C. During the Report Term, KQED engaged in the following recruitment initiatives:

1. Establishment of an internship program designed to assist members of the community to acquire skills needed for broadcast employment.

KQED continued and improved its internship program to help interns gain experience within the broadcast environment while enhancing their skills and/or education inside the classrooms. Pre-selected staff members serve as mentors for the interns.

KQED conducts an ongoing internship program for students. This past year KQED had fourteen types of internships each term throughout various departments including television production, allowing up to a maximum of two interns per type of internship each term. The goal is to help the interns gain experience within the broadcast environment while enhancing their education inside the classrooms. The program changed October 1, 2014 from an unpaid internship to a fully paid internship for periods of six months or longer*. This allowed a more diverse pool of students to apply for the program and enabled selected interns to have a deeper learning experience with KQED. In January of 2015 we launched the Internship Wrap Around Program which provided opportunities for interns to learn not only about the department that they worked in during their term but also provided the interns with information about public broadcasting and the public media landscape. Internship eligibility requirements, schedules, descriptions, and application procedures can be found at <http://www.kqed.org/about/internships>. The departments that host interns at KQED are listed below and cover Radio, Television, Online, Education and Marketing.

Education Services
Education Production
Education
The California Report
Forum
KQED News (Radio and Television)
KQED Arts (Online)
KQED Science (Online)
KQED Presents
KQED Film School Shorts
KQED Distribution
Marketing Communications
*On-Air Creative Services – 3 months only

2. Participation in the following events or programs sponsored by educational institutions relating to career opportunities in broadcasting.

Participated in the following career/internship fairs:

Date	Event/School
September 4, 2014	University of San Francisco
September 18, 2014	San Francisco State University
October 8, 2014	University of California at Berkley
October 23, 2014	California State University East Bay
October 29, 2014	University of California at Santa Cruz
January 29, 2015	California State University East Bay
February, 27, 2015	University of San Francisco
April 3, 2015	San Francisco State University
April 15, 2015	University of California at Santa Cruz

3. Provision of training to management level personnel as to methods of ensuring equal employment opportunity and preventing discrimination.

- KQED provided training to all newly hired managers and supervisors on EEO and Sexual Harassment using our online training system from Lawroom.com. The online training was two hours long and met the California State requirements for AB1825 training. We continue to require all new managers and supervisors to complete this training. In 2016 we will conduct our biennial training for all managers and supervisors at KQED.
- This year KQED provided online training opportunities to all employees with a course called Sexual Harassment – It Can Happen Here. This course is designed to make all employees aware of the need to maintain proper workplace behavior and to understand how their actions might affect another employee.

4. Establishment of a training program designed to enable station personnel to acquire skills that could qualify them for higher level positions.

KQED provided in-depth training to all managers and supervisors at KQED. Each manager from CEO to Line Supervisor completed four training sessions. The sessions were led by an external facilitator and focused on the following areas: Fundamentals of Communication, Constructive Coaching, Situational Leadership and Unleashing Innovation. The workshops provided a valuable learning opportunity for the management team to develop leadership and management skills and build a strong and effective workplace culture.

5. Participation in events sponsored by organizations representing groups present in the community interested in broadcast employment issues, including conventions, career days, workshops and similar activities.

- On July 18, 2015 the HR Manager participated in Students Rising Above Career Day. During that event the HR Manager met with first generation college students to discuss careers in public broadcasting as well as conduct mock interviews and informational interviews to help prepare students for future opportunities.
- On July 31, 2015 KQED participated in the Breakthrough Oakland Career Day by hosting a group of eight 7th and 8th grade students who learned about careers in public broadcasting, toured the KQED facilities and worked with the Youth Participation Manager on a hands on-learning activity designed to show the students what it would be like to have a career in producing media. Breakthrough Oakland serves underserved middle and high school students by initiating a learning cycle that begins in middle school and extends through adulthood.

C. During the Report Term, KQED engaged in the following recruitment initiatives:

1. Establishment of an internship program designed to assist members of the community to acquire skills needed for broadcast employment.

KQED continued and improved its internship program to help interns gain experience within the broadcast environment while enhancing their skills and/or education inside the classrooms. Pre-selected staff members serve as mentors for the interns.

KQED conducts a fully paid ongoing internship program for students lasting six months or longer*. This past year KQED had fifteen types of internships each term throughout various departments including television production, allowing up to a maximum of two interns per type of internship each term. The goal is to help the interns gain experience within the broadcast environment while enhancing their education inside the classrooms. We have been able to attract a more diverse pool of candidates with our internship program and several of our interns were converted to staff positions this year. The program enables the selected interns to have a deeper learning experience with KQED and an opportunity to learn not only about the department that they worked in during their term but also provide the interns with information about public broadcasting and the public media landscape. Internship eligibility requirements, schedules, descriptions, and application procedures can be found at <http://www.kqed.org/about/internships>. The departments that host interns at KQED are listed below and cover Radio, Television, Online, Education, Marketing and Corporate Support.

3. Provision of training to management level personnel as to methods of ensuring equal employment opportunity and preventing discrimination.

KQED provided biennial training to all managers and supervisors on EEO and Sexual Harassment. The training was provided by Eric Glassman, Esq. This was an in-person 2-hour workshop that met the California State requirements for AB1825 training. Managers who were unable to attend this in-person session took an online training course that was two hours long and met the California State requirements for AB1825 training. We continue to require all new managers and supervisors to complete this training.

4. Establishment of a training program designed to enable station personnel to acquire skills that could qualify them for higher level positions.

KQED actively promoted our online training program for all employees to enable employees to increase their skills in a variety of areas. Monthly topics were announced to all staff for employees to take advantage of the system. Our usage reflects that employees are using the system to increase technical skills as well as management skills.

KQED established a Lab inside KQED focused on innovating and incubating new products and services to serve the changing media needs of the Bay Area. The KQED Lab produces a series of KQED staff workshops and events to increase KQED's innovation culture, professional learning and immersion in the latest media technologies.
