

PRIVATE: ECONOMY REPORTER

The economy reporter is responsible for covering, writing and presenting local and regional economic and business coverage on WFPL News. The reporter carefully follows movements in the local, state and regional economy, identifies and examines trends in workforce and business development, and presents stories about how economic forces are affecting people's lives and shaping public policy. The economy reporter is expected to report and file daily news stories under deadline, while also maintaining a high-level perspective on stories as they develop over time. The reporter is a key member of the WFPL news team, working with colleagues in Kentucky Public Radio newsrooms and with editors at NPR and other networks.

Essential Duties and Responsibilities

- Conduct interviews and cover news events in the field, over telephone, or by other means.
- Produce short- and long-form timely news reports based on interviews and events covered.
- Post news and other content online.
- Generate story ideas.
- Attend daily news meetings, and other special meetings, as scheduled.
- Cover occasional general assignment news as determined by editors.
- Cooperate with other media entities, such as NPR or other Louisville Public Media partners, in creating and covering stories.
- Participate in Louisville Public Media events and represent the organization at public and professional functions and conferences.
- Participate in on-air fundraising campaigns.

Experience

- Extensive knowledge of how local economies function and businesses develop. Knowledge of Louisville and Kentucky are a plus.
- Advanced reporting abilities and proficiency in reporting for digital and radio are required.
- Bachelor's degree in journalism or in a related field.
- Relevant work experience for at least 4 years. Public radio experience preferred.

Mac or Windows operating system, Microsoft Office and common sharing platforms, such as Google Work and Dropbox. Digital platform and social media experience a plus. Audio editing software, such as Hindenburg or Pro Tools, a plus.

Application

Please send resume and work samples to:
