

Summaries for “All In”

July, August, September 2021

Filed October 2021

JULY 1, 2021

New Challenges in Special Education

Today we talk to reporters about how special education students and teachers have been impacted by the pandemic and learn about efforts to help students transition out of high school.

JULY 2, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including a discussion on using art as a means to cope with stress, efforts around accessibility for people with disabilities, and we hear from a doctor about his time in Scott County during the HIV epidemic.

JULY 6, 2021

Finding Treatment for Children's Mental Health

Today we talk to people who work on connecting children and families to mental health resources and providers, to find out what impact the pandemic has had so far and what access issues have been around long before it. We also hear from a mother in South Bend who's struggled for years to find treatment for her son.

JULY 7, 2021

Juneteenth / Stroke Prevention / Delta Variant

Today we talk to the leader of Indy Juneteenth to learn more about the importance of this new holiday. We also hear from a doctor who researches stroke prevention and learn more about the delta variant of COVID-19.

JULY 8, 2021

Stopping the Abuse and Exploitation of Seniors and Endangered Adults

Today we talk about efforts to stop the abuse and exploitation of seniors and endangered adults, a particularly underreported crime. A nonprofit in Indiana is working to raise awareness about these cases and represent people in need, as part of a project called Legal Assistance for Victimized Adults.

JULY 9, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including discussions on Juneteenth, a project to help seniors and adults who are abused or exploited, and ongoing issues around children's mental health.

JULY 12, 2021

State Fair / News Update

Today we learn about plans for the Indiana State Fair, which is back this year. We also get an update on the governor's emergency powers case, and an overview on the biggest news stories of the last week. And we talk to the leaders of a theatre collective in Bloomington about inclusivity on stage.

JULY 13, 2021

Unsolved Crimes / 2,000+ Year Old Remains in Columbus

Today we learn about an Indiana-based company aiming to use a national network of true crime fans to work on unsolved crimes. We also talk to someone analyzing human remains discovered in Columbus that could be over 2,000 years old.

JULY 14, 2021

Distrust in Mainstream Media (Repeat)

Research has shown a growing distrust in traditional mainstream media, and through the internet people are finding different ways to consume news. Today we talk about why these changes are happening and what impact they're having.

JULY 15, 2021

The Middle Class of Indianapolis (Repeat)

Today we talk to people who led a project researching and reporting on the middle class of Indianapolis, to find out how the workplace has changed in the last four years for middle class Hoosiers.

JULY 16, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including discussions on the Indiana State Fair being back in full swing, movement on the governor's lawsuit over emergency powers, and a look at a new startup designed to help true crime fans investigate cold cases.

JULY 19, 2021

Life Expectancy During The Pandemic (Repeat)

Today we talk about what research has been done on life expectancy in local communities, and some of the disparities highlighted by the pandemic, especially in the Black community in Indiana.

JULY 20, 2021

Working as a Physician Through an HIV Epidemic (Repeat)

Today we spend the hour with Dr. William Cooke to talk about the HIV outbreak that happened in Austin, Indiana in 2015, and the lessons he's learned working in the community.

JULY 21, 2021

How Do Supply Chains Work? (Repeat)

Today we talk about the crucial role global supply chains have had throughout the pandemic, and how these systems are handling COVID-19 vaccine distribution.

JULY 22, 2021

Ashley C. Ford

Today we spend the hour with Indianapolis author Ashley C. Ford to talk about her bestselling new memoir "Somebody's Daughter."

JULY 23, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including conversations about the pandemic's impact on supply chain and our talk with an Indianapolis New York Times Best Selling author about her memoir. We also learn about the 1918 flu pandemic and how health disparities looked back then.

JULY 26, 2021

Critical Race Theory

Today we talk about critical race theory. Several legislatures across the country have been in talks about banning the teaching of critical race theory, also known as CRT, in K-12 schools. What prompted this debate, and where are we headed?

JULY 27, 2021

A History of Rap and Reality TV

Today we talk to the author of a new book that explores American pop culture in the late 80's and 1990's and argues that there was a common thread connecting the explosive popularity of rap music with the origins of reality TV.

JULY 28, 2021

ILEARN Results / Space Tourism

Today we talk about the pandemic's impact on academics in Indiana. We also learn about space tourism, as interest grows around billionaires and private companies travelling past the stratosphere.

JULY 29, 2021

The Future of the Internet / FBI Negligence

Today we talk about the future of the internet, learn about a study examining the effect of the pandemic on nursing home residents, and talk to a legal expert about how victims can trust law enforcement when gross negligence is revealed.

JULY 30, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including discussions on critical race theory, American culture in the late 80's and 1990's, and the future of space tourism.

AUGUST 2, 2021

Summer Art Events

Today we talk to leaders at museums and arts councils around the state to hear about what they have in store for the rest of the summer season and get details about upcoming events, from Van Gogh to film festivals.

AUGUST 3, 2021

COVID Update / Untrained Police in Schools

Today we talk to health experts for an update on the pandemic and the Delta variant's impact and get details on a new story about untrained police officers working in Indiana's schools.

AUGUST 4, 2021

Fashion Week in Indiana

Today we talk about Indiana Fashion Week, which is coming later this month. We also talk to a local designer to find out what it's like creating and running a fashion brand in Indiana.

AUGUST 5, 2021

Fittest Cities / Carmel Arts Center / COVID Research

Today we talk to researchers about public health, get an update from The Performing Arts Center in Carmel, and learn about promising research around the COVID-19 virus.

AUGUST 6, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including discussions on untrained police in schools, an update on the Delta variant, and what it's like to run a fashion brand in Indiana.

AUGUST 9, 2021

Changes in Health Research

Today we talk to health researchers about the pandemic's effect on their work, find out how anyone can get involved in clinical trials, and learn about efforts to bring more diversity into health research.

AUGUST 10, 2021

Reporter Check-In

Today we spend the hour catching up with public media reporters around the state, to dig a little deeper into their latest stories.

AUGUST 11, 2021

Huntington Arts Center / Youth Gardening / Making Music During the Pandemic

Today we learn about an arts center that opened last year in Huntington, a summer youth gardening program in Indianapolis, and we talk to a couple leading a music school about creating bands and writing songs during the pandemic.

AUGUST 12, 2021

Lake Erosion / Honeybees / Working From Home

Today we learn about the impacts of erosion along Lake Michigan, the importance of honeybees, and the future of working from home.

AUGUST 13, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including discussions on a dispute over a local union's giant inflatable rat, what conducting health research is like during a pandemic, and we hear from a couple leading a music school in Indianapolis.

AUGUST 16, 2021

Extended Eviction Moratorium

Today we talk about what the extended eviction moratorium means for Hoosiers and learn more about a statewide renter's assistance program.

AUGUST 17, 2021

Indiana EMS is Underfunded and Under Stress

Today we talk about the unhealthy state of emergency medical services, especially after a record year for 911 calls, and find out what could be done to get medical workers the support they need.

AUGUST 18, 2021

Student Loan Payment Pause / Roncalli Update

Today we find out what you need to know about the student loan payment pause and get an update on the federal case involving Roncalli High School's firing of a gay guidance counselor.

AUGUST 19, 2021

Emergency Mental Health Care (Repeat)

Today we talk about what happens when law enforcement is called because someone shows signs of dangerous psychiatric issues. How do police typically handle these situations and are there proper protocols in place?

AUGUST 20, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including an update on Roncalli High School's federal case involving the firing of a gay guidance counselor, more on the national eviction moratorium, and we find out why many say emergency services across the state are dangerously underfunded

AUGUST 23, 2021

A History of Rap And Reality (Repeat)

Today we talk to the author of a new book that explores American pop culture in the late 80's and 1990's and argues that there was a common thread connecting the explosive popularity of rap music with the origins of reality TV.

AUGUST 24, 2021

Union Push in Kokomo

Today we find out why non-teacher school staff in Kokomo are trying to unionize, how the school board has responded, and why Indiana law makes it a difficult process.

AUGUST 25, 2021

How is Climate Change Affecting Indiana?

Today we talk to environmental experts to find out how industries like agriculture and energy have been impacted by climate change in Indiana.

AUGUST 26, 2021

Mask Research / Toxic Cosmetics / Great Resignation

Today we learn about new research on mask wearing, toxic products in cosmetics, and why millions of Americans are quitting their jobs.

AUGUST 27, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including discussions with a Kokomo bus driver about an effort to unionize, the author of a book about the connection between 90's hip-hop and the origins of reality TV, and we find out what impact climate change is having on Indiana.

AUGUST 30, 2021

Census Results / Redistricting Reform

Today we talk about the 2020 Census results, to learn how things have changed for Indiana in the last 10 years. We also talk to a group of advocates about ongoing efforts around redistricting reform.

AUGUST 31, 2021

The Life of J.B Stradford / Combative School Board Meetings

Today we learn about the incredible life of J.B. Stradford, the son of a former slave who graduated from Indiana Law School in 1899. We also talk to reporter Farah Yousry about growing divisions between school boards and parents during the pandemic.

SEPTEMBER 1, 2021

Unemployment / Rural Vaccinations / Art Fair

Today we talk about efforts to get farmers to promote the COVID-19 vaccine in their communities. We also learn about a new fine arts fair coming to Indianapolis featuring the work of Black artists across the country and get the latest news around unemployment in the state.

SEPTEMBER 2, 2021

COVID-19 Update / Federal Case on Abortion / Refugees in Indiana

Today we get the latest on COVID-19 cases in the state, and also find out about a recent Supreme Court ruling on abortion that could affect Indiana. We also learn out about what happens when refugees make it to the U.S. and what options there are for them in our state.

SEPTEMBER 3, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit a few of the most interesting conversations we had this week, including discussions about growing divisions between school boards and parents, efforts to get farmers to promote the COVID-19 vaccine, and learn about the latest efforts around redistricting reform with a group of advocates.

SEPTEMBER 7, 2021

Lake Erosion / Honeybees / Working From Home (Repeat)

Today we learn about the impacts of erosion along Lake Michigan, the importance of honeybees, and the future of working from home.

SEPTEMBER 8, 2021

Nurse Staffing Shortage

Today we talk to nurses across the state to find out how the nursing shortage has affected their work this past year during the COVID-19 pandemic.

SEPTEMBER 9, 2021

The History of Vaccine Laws and Mandates

Today we talk to an expert to learn about the rules behind vaccine mandates and history of how vaccine laws came about in the first place. We also talk about the rights of teens to get vaccinated without parental consent.

SEPTEMBER 10, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit our conversation with nurses on how they're handling COVID-19 despite a nursing shortage in the field and in academia, listen back to the challenges of remote work, and whether it's the new future employers should learn to adjust to.

SEPTEMBER 14, 2021

Hoodox

Today we learn about Hoodox, a streaming service that launched earlier this summer exclusively built to present Indiana documentaries.

SEPTEMBER 15, 2021

Immigrants and Refugees in Indiana

Today we talk about what it's like to make a new home in a place where everything is different – the language, the culture, and the people. We also hear from the president of a group representing the Burmese community, to find out what services refugees need when they come here.

SEPTEMBER 16, 2021

Artificial Intelligence

Artificial intelligence is everywhere these days, and a few universities in Indiana are working to advance the technology. Today we talk to experts about what A.I. can be used for and the ethical concerns surrounding it.

SEPTEMBER 17, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit our conversation on schools and how they're handling the pandemic, hear the story of a Burmese refugee who made a new home in Indiana, and learn about a streaming service launched this summer made for Indiana documentaries.

SEPTEMBER 20, 2021

The Spread of Misinformation and Conspiracy Theories (Repeat)

Today we talk about misinformation and conspiracy theories with psychology and media experts to find out how it starts, why people believe it, and the impact it's had on politics and culture in Indiana and around the world.

SEPTEMBER 21, 2021

Why is Indiana Ranked So Low on Maternal Health? (Repeat)

Today we talk about maternal health in Indiana, and find out why the state is ranked so low on pregnancy-related deaths.

SEPTEMBER 22, 2021

Precarious Employment and Worker Health (Repeat)

The pandemic brought attention to things we might not have noticed, one of those being the health of essential workers. Today we talk about the issue of precarious employment, what it is, and who it affects.

SEPTEMBER 23, 2021

Healing Through Art (Repeat)

Today we find out how art can create a sense of community for people, and how accessible it is for Hoosiers. We also learn about the practice of clinical art therapy in Indiana.

SEPTEMBER 24, 2021

Friday Recap

Today we revisit our conversations about conspiratorial thinking and misinformation, precarious employment, and how art can be an effective way to heal from stress and trauma.

SEPTEMBER 27, 2021

Improving Quality of Life for the African American Community

Today we learn about an initiative to address issues that affect the African American community in Marion County, from housing to mental health.

SEPTEMBER 28, 2021

Changes in Health Research (Repeat)

Today we talk to health researchers about the pandemic's effect on their work, find out how anyone can get involved in clinical trials, and learn about efforts to bring more diversity into health research.

SEPTEMBER 29, 2021

Redistricting Update / The Death of Danyé Dion Jones

Today we talk to the hosts of the podcast "After the Uprising," which investigates what happened to Danyé Dion Jones, who was found hanging from a tree in Missouri in 2018. We also get an update on what's happening with redistricting in Indiana.

SEPTEMBER 30, 2021

Flu Update / Invasive Insects

Today we find out if we're seeing the return of flu season, as more people head back to school and work. We also learn about invasive insects in Indiana with an exotic insect specialist.