Peggy Veneble with Americans for prosperity in Texas joins us now to talk about what that means
Tax Freedom Day Finally Arrives in Texas
Texans worked 100 days to pay off tax burden before Texans could start putting money in their own pockets to pay for their rent, mortgage or groceries or to save for their retirement or education for their children.
The worst part is that even while having 100 days' worth of wages skimmed away by the government, Texans get off relatively easy. Fully 32 states have their Tax Freedom Days on the same day or later than Texas. Still, there's room to improve. Louisianans are able to pocket more than an extra weeks' worth of cash, as their Tax Freedom Day came March 29.
