Twenty kilometers a year: Need to Know features a dramatic video report from Sean Smith, a reporter for The Guardian in London, who embedded with U.S. soldiers on the front lines of battle in Afghanistan. Institutional corruption in Afghanistan: Tom Gregg of New York University's Center on International Cooperation speaks with Jon Meacham about the challenges the Obama administration faces in restoring security to Afghanistan. Cottage industry: An alternative to nursing homes, state-licensed "adult family homes" house up to six seniors in private homes in Washington State. But Seattle Times investigative reporter Michael Berens found the homes rife with abuse and neglect. Jon Meacham on 'Superlativism': As the midterm elections near, Jon Meacham cautions us against the belief that everything that happens in our time is the "most" this or the "worst" that, as some pundits would have us believe. The thin green line: A new report has found that, in spite of the recession, cities are investing in urban parks. Alison Stewart tours one such park - an old elevated rail line in New York City. Next week's news: The finale: Sadly, this is Andy Borowitz's last week on Need to Know. In this retrospective, Andy looks back at the best of his prognostications, and reveals his next career move.

On call 24 hours a day for the past five years, a group of senior citizens has made history by greeting nearly 800,000 American troops at a tiny airport in Bangor, Maine. "The Way We Get By" is an intimate look at three of these greeters as they confront the universal losses that come with aging and rediscover their reason for living. Bill Knight, Jerry Mundy and Joan Gaudet find the strength to overcome their personal battles and transform their lives through service. This inspirational and surprising story shatters the stereotypes of today's senior citizens as the greeters redefine the meaning of community.

Good Fortune is a provocative exploration of how massive international efforts to alleviate poverty in Africa may be undermining the very communities they aim to benefit. In Kenya's rural countryside, Jackson's farm is being flooded by an American investor who hopes to alleviate poverty by creating a multimillion-dollar rice farm. Across the country in Nairobi, Silva's home and business in Africa's largest shantytown are being demolished as part of a U.N. slum-upgrading project. The gripping stories of two Kenyans battling to save their homes from large-scale development present a unique opportunity see foreign aid through eyes of the people it is intended to help.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

This feature documentary traces the life and work of American sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens (1848-1907) from his birth in Dublin, Ireland, to his work in New York City and Paris to his death in Cornish, New Hampshire. Trained in Paris and Rome, Saint-Gaudens is considered America's premier sculptor of the 19th and early 20th centuries. During a career that spanned three decades, Saint-Gaudens created nearly 150 works of art, including a number of major public monuments to heroes of the Civil War. The story of his personal life is woven around in-depth studies of five of his major works of art, including the contemplative Standing Lincoln in Lincoln Park, Chicago; the moving Shaw Memorial on Boston Common; the powerful Sherman Monument in Central Park; the serene Diana in the Philadelphia Museum of Art; and the stirring Adams Memorial in Washington, DC. Actor Victor Garber narrates.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

Behind the enduring images of heroic rescues undertaken by the New Orleans Police Department in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, there is another story of law enforcement in crisis, even out of control. "Law & Disorder," a year-long, ongoing collaboration among FRONTLINE, ProPublica and the New Orleans Times-Picayune, investigates charges that NOPD officers inappropriately used lethal force against New Orleans citizens and then tried to cover up their actions. Airing days before the fifth anniversary of one of the deadliest hurricanes in U.S. history and drawing from reports published in a real-time online investigation, FRONTLINE takes a fresh look at how the NOPD performed when the rules of civilized society collapsed.

Her passport said she was Cha Jung Hee. She knew she was not. So began a 40-year deception for a Korean adoptee who came to the United States in 1966. Told to keep her true identity secret from her new American family, the eight-year-old girl quickly forgot she had ever been anyone else. But why had her identity been switched? And who was the real Cha Jung Hee? This is the search to find the answers, as acclaimed filmmaker Deann Borshay Liem (POV "First Person Plural," 2000) returns to her native Korea to find her "double," the mysterious girl whose place she took in America. A co-production of ITVS in association with the Center for Asian American Media and American Documentary|POV.

It is the summer of 1982 and Ronald Reagan has decided to replace his Secretary of State. The man he has chosen for the job is George Shultz. A brief biography introduces us to this remarkable man who has been a respected academic, a corporate leader and Secretary of the Treasury. In 1982 the world is in turmoil as the new Secretary takes over. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger openly opposes Shultz' initiatives for a peace-keeping force. In this first episode of "Turmoil and Triumph," one crisis after another boils over from the Middle East to news that the CIA is secretly aiding Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Despite strenuous opposition from many of Reagan's advisors, Shultz secretly arranges for Regan to meet the Soviet Ambassador to the United States. This episode ends as the successes of Shultz' skillful negotiations are shattered with the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon.

It is the summer of 1982 and Ronald Reagan has decided to replace his Secretary of State. The man he has chosen for the job is George Shultz. A brief biography introduces us to this remarkable man who has been a respected academic, a corporate leader and Secretary of the Treasury. In 1982 the world is in turmoil as the new Secretary takes over. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger openly opposes Shultz' initiatives for a peace-keeping force. In this first episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" one crisis after another boils over from the Middle East to news that the CIA is secretly aiding Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Despite strenuous opposition from many of Reagan's advisors, Shultz secretly arranges for Reagan to meet the Soviet Ambassador to the United States. This episode ends as the successes of Shultz' skillful negotiations are shattered with the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon.

A ceremonial welcome greets George Shultz and Ronald Reagan as the second episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" opens in Japan. After a successful trade negotiation the scene quickly shifts to the Philippines where dissident Nimoy Aquino is assassinated and the island nation is thrown into turmoil. The first weapons in the still secret arms for hostages deal arrive in Iran and Reagan is sworn in for his second term. Shultz begins to set up a summit meeting with the new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, although others in the administration are opposed. Shultz perseveres and a pre-summit is held in Geneva. As successful negotiations come to a close, the Philippines boils over and despite White House staff objections Shultz persuades Reagan to abandon the dictator Ferdinand Marcos and recognize the democratically elected Cory Aquino as the new Philippine leader.

On the 4th of July, 1986 Ronald Reagan is at the peak of his popularity. Yet John Poindexter and others in the White House are up to no good. Shultz is left out of the loop as the Iran Contra scandal festers. George Shultz remains focused on what he sees as the highest priority: a summit meeting in Reykjavik between his president and Mikhail Gorbachev. Although the summit is a tremendous breakthrough in superpower relations, Reagan and Gorbachev miss the chance to eliminate all nuclear weapons. As Shultz arrives home the Iran Contra scandal becomes embarrassingly public and on CBS's "Face the Nation" Shultz risks his job by telling the truth. Still his major goal remains a nuclear free world to which Reagan and Gorbachev move one step closer with a record cut of nuclear weapons. In 1989 George Shultz leaves the State Department where he has earned accolades as one of America's ablest Secretaries of State. We follow the Secretary back home to the world of ideas and his position as a Fellow at the Hoover Institution. As this final episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" concludes, George Shultz continues to travel the world seeking an end to nuclear weapons.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

The Grammy winning bassist Israel "Cachao" Lopez died in Coral Gables, Florida, in March 2008, at almost 90 years of age. A maestro of legendary status on the world stage and ultimately considered one of the greatest Afro-Cuban musicians of all time, he had made his home in the United States for the past four decades. However, he continued playing the Havana clubs and dance halls with his brother Orestes. Together, they revolutionized the heart of Cuban music -- their spontaneous improvisations and innovations established the basis of, and the influence of, contemporary Latin jazz and salsa, rock 'n roll and rhythm and blues. The basis of this film is a sold-out 2005 concert at Bimbo's 365 Club, a famous San Francisco nightclub. Cachao's life and work are palpable. "Cachao: Uno Mas" is produced and narrated by actor Andy Garcia, a friend and ardent fan, who helped reinvigorate Cachao's career in the 1990s -- and who appears in this film playing the bongos.

This feature documentary traces the life and work of American sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens (1848-1907) from his birth in Dublin, Ireland, to his work in New York City and Paris to his death in Cornish, New Hampshire. Trained in Paris and Rome, Saint-Gaudens is considered America's premier sculptor of the 19th and early 20th centuries. During a career that spanned three decades, Saint-Gaudens created nearly 150 works of art, including a number of major public monuments to heroes of the Civil War. The story of his personal life is woven around in-depth studies of five of his major works of art, including the contemplative Standing Lincoln in Lincoln Park, Chicago; the moving Shaw Memorial on Boston Common; the powerful Sherman Monument in Central Park; the serene Diana in the Philadelphia Museum of Art; and the stirring Adams Memorial in Washington, DC. Actor Victor Garber narrates.

Noted architecture critic Paul Goldberger hosts this documentary biography of Benjamin Latrobe, the creator of the first uniquely "American" architecture. Latrobe's tumultuous life was a series of creative triumphs, personal tragedies and constant re-invention. The film features computer-generated animation, interviews with architects and historians and location shooting as Goldberger explores Latrobe's life, from his early years in England to his immigration to the young republic and his work on such iconic buildings as the U.S. Capitol, the White House and the Baltimore Basilica.

NOLA: CASM 000000
Series Title: Citizen Architect: Samuel Mockbee and the Spirit of the Rural Studio
Length: 60 minutes
Airdate: 8/27/2010 9:00:00 AM
O.B. Date: 8/23/2010 10:00:00 PM
Service: PBS
Format: Documentary
Segment Length: 00:56:46

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

Supreme Court Update: According to the majority, the Christian Legal Society is not entitled to a "preferential exemption." But according to the dissent, the Court's decision in Christian Legal Society v Martinez is "a serious setback for freedom of expression." Post-Apartheid South Africa: Sixteen years after a mostly peaceful transition and elections that brought Nelson Mandela to power, the verdict on South Africa is decidedly mixed. Archbishop Desmond Tutu Extended Interview: "Hoping against hope even when things are really rough--that's what carried us during the days of our struggle, knowing that this is a moral universe. A Poet on the Psalms: "The psalms continue to be wholly relevant to our spiritual quests today," says poet, writer, and former rabbinical student Pamela Greenberg. Pamela Greenberg Extended Interview: Watch more of producer Susan Goldstein's interview with writer Pamela Greenberg, whose new translation of the Book of Psalms is being praised for its literary beauty.

Joni Eareckson Tada: Paralyzed for more than 40 years, Joni Eareckson Tada is one of the longest living quadriplegics on record. She's also a bestselling evangelical author, an acclaimed artist and an internationally-known advocate for people with disabilities. Kim Lawton talked with Tada about her work and how she maintains her faith amid serious struggles, including a recent diagnosis of breast cancer. Mississippi Delta Healthcare: One in five Mississippians has no health care coverage and the state--among the nation's poorest--has one of the highest rates of heart disease and diabetes in the nation. Saul Gonzalez reports on a no-frills health care clinic, that serves the poor for whatever they can afford to pay, run by Dr. Anne Brooks, a physician and Catholic nun who has been treating patients in the Mississippi Delta for more than thirty years.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

Made in L.A. is an Emmy Award-winning feature documentary that follows three Latina immigrants working in Los Angeles garment sweatshops as they embark on a three-year odyssey to win basic labor protections from trendy clothing retailer Forever 21. In intimate observational style, Made in L.A. reveals the impact of the struggle on each woman's life as they are gradually transformed by the experience.

Made in L.A. is a story about immigration, the power of unity, and the courage it takes to find your voice. Shown with The First Kid to Learn English from Mexico.

Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burriss (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David

Imagine being picked up off the street, told you have committed a murder you know nothing about and then finding yourself sentenced to 20 years in jail. In December 2005 this happened to To?o Z??iga in Mexico City and, like thousands of other innocent people, he was wrongfully imprisoned. The award-winning Presumed Guilty is the story of two young lawyers and their struggle to free Z??iga. With no background in film, Roberto Hern?ndez and Layda Negrete set about recording the injustices they were witnessing, enlisting acclaimed director Geoffrey Smith (The English Surgeon, POV 2009) to tell this dramatic story.

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies." Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

Political broadcasts, Pentagon costs cutting, and this debatable question:--is Washington broken--we'll talk about it all tonight on Washington Week. Linda McMahon, Connecticut Republican GOP Senate Candidate, said, "They don't want to send the same politicians to Washington and get the same politics out of Washington. Ken Buck, Colorado Republican Senate Candidate said, "It is time Republicans started acting like Republicans." Outsiders rule. Political novices and upstarts carry the day in the latest round of primaries, as running against Washington becomes all the rage. Will a presidential endorsement help or hurt in the fall? Senator Michael Bennet (D-CO) said, "We'll have to see. We'll obviously do what's right for the campaign." Or do polls and tea partiers prove the pox is on both houses? In Washington, Pentagon Chief Robert Gates proposes slashing military spending. And not everybody's happy about it. Representative Randy Forbes (R-VA) said, "What we're witnessing is the piecemeal auctioning off of the greatest military the world has ever known." Does all this mean that Washington is broken? And if it is, why is everybody still trying to get here? Covering the week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

A fresh try for Middle East peace; stepping back in Iraq; drumming up campaign money; and the politics of Islam--tonight, on Washington Week. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "I've invited Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and Palestinian Authority President Abbas to meet on September 2nd in Washington, D.C." The Obama administration dives head first back into the thorny and historically difficult Middle East peace process. What's different this time? U.S. troops celebrate the long promised pullout from Iraq. U.S. SOLDIER: We won. It's over. America, we brought democracy to Iraq. But events there, in Afghanistan and in Pakistan show it's more complicated than that. At home, Democrats and Republicans raise money hand over fist for the midterm elections. Tim Kaine, Chairman, Democratic National Committee, said, "We'll be able to put more money into the midterms by far than we've ever put in, probably north of $50 million. And the presidential events are huge." And as the president steps into the debate about a New York mosque, saying, "The answer is no regrets." A secondary discussion builds. Gov. Chris Christie (R-NJ) said, "It's being used as a political football by both parties." How do Americans view Islam? And why do so many think their president is Muslim? Franklin Graham, Evangelist, said, "I think the president's problem is that he was born a Muslim." Really? Covering the week: Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Martha Raddatz of ABC News, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created.

They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

Behind the enduring images of heroic rescues undertaken by the New Orleans Police Department in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, there is another story of law enforcement in crisis, even out of control. "Law & Disorder," a year-long, ongoing collaboration among FRONTLINE, ProPublica and the New Orleans Times-Picayune, investigates charges that NOPD officers inappropriately used lethal force against New Orleans citizens and then tried to cover up their actions. Airing days before the fifth anniversary of one of the deadliest hurricanes in U.S. history and drawing from reports published in a real-time online investigation, FRONTLINE takes a fresh look at how the NOPD performed when the rules of civilized society collapsed.

For the first time on television, NOVA exposes the hidden world of the high-tech, 21st century eavesdropping carried out by the National Security Agency or NSA. Today, the NSA is the world's largest intelligence agency, three times the size of the CIA and far more secret. Its mission is to eavesdrop on the world - from cell phones in Europe to pay phones in Afghanistan to e-mail messages from Pakistan to Baghdad. But since 9/11, it has also turned its giant ear inward, listening in without warrant on thousands of American citizens, many of whom are on the government's secret watch list, now more than half-a-million names long. Based on the latest bestseller by journalist James Bamford, INSIDE THE SPY FACTORY is a gripping investigation of the NSA from its tragic failures leading up to the 9/11 attacks to its secret listening rooms currently installed in the nation's telecom networks.

Imagine being picked up off the street, told you have committed a murder you know nothing about and then finding yourself sentenced to 20 years in jail. In December 2005 this happened to Toño Zúñiga in Mexico City and, like thousands of other innocent people, he was wrongfully imprisoned. The award-winning Presumed Guilty is the story of two young lawyers and their struggle to free Zúñiga. With no background in film, Roberto Hernández and Layda Negrete set about recording the injustices they were witnessing, enlisting acclaimed director Geoffrey Smith (The English Surgeon, POV 2009) to tell this dramatic story.

Supreme Court Update: According to the majority, the Christian Legal Society is not entitled to a "preferential exemption." But according to the dissent, the Court's decision in Christian Legal Society v Martinez is "a serious setback for freedom of expression." Post-Apartheid South Africa: Sixteen years after a mostly peaceful transition and elections that brought Nelson Mandela to power, the verdict on South Africa is decidedly mixed. Archbishop Desmond Tutu Extended Interview: "Hoping against hope even when things are really rough--that's what carried us during the days of our struggle, knowing that this is a moral universe. A Poet on the Psalms: "The psalms continue to be wholly relevant to our spiritual quests today," says poet, writer, and former rabbinical student Pamela Greenberg. Pamela Greenberg Extended Interview: Watch more of producer Susan Goldstein's interview with writer Pamela Greenberg, whose new translation of the Book of Psalms is being praised for its literary beauty.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapierre, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies." Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

What is it like to be torn from your Chinese foster family, put on a plane with strangers and wake up in a new country, family and culture? Stephanie Wang-Breal's Wo Ai Ni (I Love You) Mommy is the story of Fang Sui Yong, an 8-year-old orphan, and the Sadowskys, the Long Island Jewish family that travels to China to adopt her. Sui Yong is one of 70,000 Chinese children now being raised in the United States. Through her eyes, we witness her struggle with a new identity as she transforms from a timid child into someone that no one --neither her new family nor she could have imagined.

Off and Running tells the story of Brooklyn teenager Avery, a track star with a bright future. She is the adopted African-American child of white Jewish lesbians. Her older brother is black and Puerto Rican and her younger brother is Korean. Though it may not look typical, Avery's household is like most American homes until Avery writes to her birth mother and the response throws her into crisis. She struggles over her true identity, the circumstances of her adoption and her estrangement from black culture. Just when it seems as if her life is unraveling, Avery decides to pick up the pieces and make sense of her identity, with inspiring results.

As Hurricane Katrina laid the cultural and racial complexities of New Orleans bare in August 2005, this film offers a probing personal view into one of the city's oldest and more controversial traditions. Mardi Gras in New Orleans is known as the "greatest free show on earth," but when the parades are over, a very private celebration is just beginning. That's when the curtain goes up on the old-line carnival balls. Secret revelers take special pride in presenting the queens of their balls, but the young women who play this role can find themselves under pressure in upholding tradition and status for their all-white families. Questioning its racial exclusivity, New Orleans filmmaker Rebecca Snedeker decided to forego this debutante tradition that was a birthright of women in her family-but still she could not ignore its hold on her identity. In BY INVITATION ONLY, she takes an insider's look at the pageantry of the balls and asks the question: what does it really mean to be the queen of the masked men?

Questioning its racial exclusivity, New Orleans filmmaker Rebecca Snedeker decided to forego this debutante tradition that was a birthright of women in her family-but still she could not ignore its hold on her identity. In BY INVITATION ONLY, she takes an insider's look at the pageantry of the balls and asks the question: what does it really mean to be the queen of the masked men?

As Hurricane Katrina laid the cultural and racial complexities of New Orleans bare in August 2005, this film offers a probing personal view into one of the city's oldest and more controversial traditions. Mardi Gras in New Orleans is known as the "greatest free show on earth," but when the parades are over, a very private celebration is just beginning. That's when the curtain goes up on the old-line carnival balls. Secret revelers take special pride in presenting the queens of their balls, but the young women who play this role can find themselves under pressure in upholding tradition and status for their all-white families. Van Kirk flew 58 missions in England and North Africa before returning to the United States. He was assigned to navigation training and in November 1944 became group navigator of the 509th Composite Group training for atom bomb delivery. Quietly, in June 1945, the group started moving overseas to the Pacific island of Tinian in the Marianas chain. Their familiar arrowhead tail markings were changed on both sides to the letter "R" in a circle, standard identification for the Sixth Bomb Group. The idea behind this change was to confuse the enemy if they made contact, which they did not. On Aug. 6, 1945, Van Kirk was the navigator on the first atomic bombing mission. At 2:30 a.m., the Enola Gay lifted off North Field en route to Hiroshima, Japan. "I knew when we hit the coast of Japan we were well on the way to completing a successful mission and the new bomb we carried would be a great help in shortening the war," Van Kirk said. At exactly 09:15:15, the world's first atomic bomb exploded. When the Enola Gay landed back on Tinian Island at 2:58 p.m., the plane and crew were greeted by Gen. Spaatz, a large contingent of brass and jubilant GIs. Van Kirk later participated in the first Bikini Atoll atomic bomb tests.

"Flight to Freedom" tells the complete story of the underground railroad. Host Cicely Tyson narrates this profile of the people, places and events behind one of the most remarkable yet largely untold chapters of American history. The documentary chronicles the rise of the slave system and follows the many freedom trails northward -- from Memphis up the Mississippi, from Kentucky across the Ohio River to Ripley and Oberlin, from Maryland to Philadelphia, through upstate New York and into Canada. It concentrates on the men and women of all races who served on or who were saved by the underground railroad. And while the civil war put an end to the need for the railroad, "Flight to Freedom" reveals situations where slavery stopped in name only. The program also tells the modern day story of the growing efforts to preserve what little legacy remains of the underground railroad -- how communities are trying to save one time station houses and how people are retracing the trail their great grandparents took to Canada.

This one-hour documentary is a vintage tour of the transformation of HersheyPark from its beginnings as a small picnic grove to its growth into a world-famous attraction. Using archival film footage, historic photographs, home movies and first-hand accounts, this program also presents a sweet ride through the chocolate factory, and the town of Hershey, enveloped in the smell of chocolate, with candy-shaped street lights that look good enough to eat. It traces the park's origins to the turn of the century, when chocolate magnate Milton S. Hershey wanted to provide his employees with a place where they could come with their families and indulge in a Sunday picnic or a stroll by the stream. After building a merry-go-round, which on its first day earned $87 at five cents a ride, Hershey knew he was on to something. The program also looks at the park today and the updates that were made in honor of its 90th anniversary.

On June 5, 1944, thousands of ships amassed off the coast of Normandy, France in preparation for the largest air, land, and amphibious assault ever recorded in history. On June 6, 1944, General Eisenhower gave the order for allied troops to storm the coast of Normandy on D-Day. Under the command of General Omar Bradley, thousands of American troops landed that fateful day on Omaha and Utah Beach. This is a moving, first hand account from those who survived D-Day. Now for the first time hear the stories from those who were there over 60 years ago as they retell (many for the first time) what it was like to land on Omaha Beach as a young, 18 or 19 year old. This was the first time in combat for many of these young men.

Iwo Jima - which means, "Sulphur Island." This tiny pork chop shaped Pacific island measuring only 8 1/2 square miles is 1/3 the size of Manhattan. Although small and remote, in 1945, Iwo Jima was an extremely costly piece of real estate for both Japanese and American fighting forces. Lying just 660 miles south of Japan, this tiny fortress would give the U.S. a forward airbase at the front door of the Japanese homeland. Iwo Jima was a landmark of courage and individual valor - a battle the likes of which will never be seen again.

"Vietnam - Remembered", is an up close, personal, first hand look into the lives of Vietnam Veterans who fought, survived and endured the pain, suffering and anguish of a war that changed their lives and America forever. Vietnam was called an "unpopular war." Unfortunately, many of our veterans never received the help they needed when they came home. Unlike the World War II veteran, most Vietnam Veterans did not receive a homecoming when they came home. This fact has had a dramatic affect on their lives many years after the war. Today, many Vietnam Veterans suffer from Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD). Several of the veterans in this film documentary are diagnosed with PTSD. Their stories are very moving, inspiring and at times stunning. These veterans exemplified the courage, strength and stamina required to go to war as a young eighteen & nineteen year old men. Vietnam - Remembered, reveals the pride, honor and camaraderie these men shared with each other on the battlefield and off. It truly is a moving tribute towards those who have served our country and those currently serving. The documentary gracefully brings to life, in a positive manner, the Vietnam Veteran today. It truly is a piece of American and world history that needs to be recorded before it is lost. It's intended use is for public showings in schools across America and the world, helping to educate our young people about the price for freedom and the cost of war.

Korea - 1950-1953. The fighting in Korea was different than any other war. "We went to Korea with a World War II mentality." The Chosin Reservoir was where the Marines first saw action against the North Koreans and the Chinese. The terrain was different than the island fighting in the Pacific. It was right at the end of Nov. 1950 that the Chinese came out in force. "The Chinese were in the number of 200,000 and we were 12,000. They always came in with bugles blowing, whistles blowing and shouting. They scared the hell out of you!" "When the Chinese finally hit us we took a terrible amount of casualties." "They told us it was 35 degrees below zero, 40 mile an hour wind and it was snowing. In order to keep from freezing to death you had to keep moving. You didn't stop." It was so cold that many men lost their feet and their hands. Some froze to death. The Corpsmen held the morphine surrets in their mouths in order to be able to have some morphine that they could use to treat the wounded. "The Forgotten War," will be remembered through this stunning account and griping stories.

Patrick Henry's impassioned plea at the second Virginia Convention of 1775, "Give me liberty or give me death," defined the American Revolution. The one-hour docu-drama LIBERTY OR DEATH captures this seminal moment in American history by balancing experts' commentary on the events preceding the second Virginia Convention with dramatic re-enactments of the historic moments that followed. Actors portraying founding fathers George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry and other delegates bring the convention to life as another character, convention clerk John Tazwell, narrates the unfolding action. Historians also explain the lasting significance of the convention and Henry's stirring speech.

THE MEN WHO SAILED THE LIBERTY SHIPS pays belated homage to the U.S. Merchant Marines, civilians who volunteered for one of the most dangerous jobs of World War II: sailing cargo ships loaded with food, fuel and raw materials to the frontlines. Despite their valiant support of the Allied war effort, veteran merchant seamen waited 45 years before they received official recognition in the form of medals, disability benefits and federal cemetery plots. The documentary, filmed aboard the Jeremiah O'Brien - one of the last unaltered World War II-era Liberty Ships still afloat - intertwines stirring firsthand accounts of war at sea with personal photographs and archival film footage.

In RICHARD BANGS' ADVENTURES WITH PURPOSE "Egypt: Quest for the Lord of the Nile, "explorer and travel writer Richard Bangs sets off for an incredible adventure on the great Nile River to uncover the history, myths and culture of the lost crocodiles of ancient Egypt. From Alexandria to Cairo, from the pyramids at Giza to the Valley of the Kings, Bangs explores the way the river and its fearsome "Lord" molded a civilization. Further upstream, he visits a temple dedicated to Sobek, the crocodile god, and searches for the beast in the waters of Lake Nasser.

In his second hour-long Adventures With Purposespecial, Richard Bangs travels to the southernmost reaches of civilization to uncover New Zealand's pristine natural beauty, alluring culture and enigmatic mythology. In RICHARD BANGS' ADVENTURES WITH PURPOSE "New Zealand: Quest for Kaitiakitanga," the father of modern adventure travel traverses the most physically and climatically diverse landmass in Polynesia in the pursuit of an age-old Maori tradition. In this new special, Bangs seeks answers to questions rooted in indigenous wisdom, hoping to unearth the meaning and origins of "kaitiakitanga," the responsibility of human beings to protect the natural world. Today's Kiwis believe the knowledge of the ancients may hold a key to the planet's survival. Bangs begins his 1,000-mile trek in Mt. Aspiring National Park, where he navigates north to the Franz Joseph Glacier and then to the east coast town of Kaikoura. From there, Bangs crosses the Cook Strait to the North Island and the capital city of Wellington. He next visits the Taupo region, heads to Hokianga Harbor, and finally makes his way to Cape Reinga on the upper tip of New Zealand, where he encounters the great tangled "spirit tree" of Maori myth.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Covering these stories this week: John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, and Dana Priest of the Washington Post.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Series Title: Citizen Architect: Samuel Mockbee and the Spirit of the Rural Studio
Length: 60 minutes
Airdate: 8/27/2010 9:00:00 AM
O.B. Date: 8/23/2010 10:00:00 PM
Service: PBS
Format: Documentary
Segment Length: 00:56:46

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

The first episode looks at the importance of relationships and why they are central to our emotional well-being. What are the cognitive and neurological processes underpinning our everyday interactions, and can they help us to understand why some relationships flourish and others fail? We meet a young boy adopted from a Russian orphanage, whose story illustrates how a lack of attachment in infancy fundamentally shapes his ability to build relationships for years to come. We meet the young parents of newborn twins; a couple in therapy for a troubled marriage; a teenager who was bullied with tragic consequences; two women grappling with the stress of workplace conflicts; and other characters - all to better understand the importance of social connections and relationships.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burriss (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burriss (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Covering these stories this week: John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, and Dana Priest of the Washington Post.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen.

Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Behind the enduring images of heroic rescues undertaken by the New Orleans Police Department in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, there is another story of law enforcement in crisis, even out of control. "Law & Disorder," a year-long, ongoing collaboration among FRONTLINE, ProPublica and the New Orleans Times-Picayune, investigates charges that NOPD officers inappropriately used lethal force against New Orleans citizens and then tried to cover up their actions. Airing days before the fifth anniversary of one of the deadliest hurricanes in U.S. history and drawing from reports published in a real-time online investigation, FRONTLINE takes a fresh look at how the NOPD performed when the rules of civilized society collapsed.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

Service: PBS
Format: Documentary
Segment Length: 00:56:46

Emperors and kings, chinstraps and adelies -- the penguins of Antarctica all make their home in one of the most unforgiving environments on Earth. Their life has always been a constant struggle to survive. But their biggest challenge is yet to come. As the climate changes, long-established territories are being invaded, and traditional nesting colonies are being disrupted. How will these extraordinary birds deal with the full effects of global warming?

Millions of rhinos once roamed the Earth. There were hundreds of species of all shapes and sizes. But today, the rhinoceros is one of the planet's rarest animals, with three of its species on the brink of extinction. While there's still a chance to save them, teams of rhino experts work to protect them from poachers, relocate them to better habitats and breed them in captivity.

From the tiniest Chihuahua to the largest St. Bernard, all dogs claim the wolf as their ancestor. But how did the wolf become the domesticated dog, and how did the hundreds of breeds we know today come to be so different? Using DNA analysis and other research, scientists have now pieced together the puzzle of canine evolution, creating a fascinating picture of how dogs became an indispensable part of our own history.

Some working dogs are able to use their skills to perform tasks they were bred for; there are still jobs today for herders, hunters and guard dogs. But as we multiply and transform the many breeds of dogs, honing their looks and their sizes, we also change our relationship with them, and theirs with us. How can we learn to cope with the hard-wired instincts of our pets, and what roles can they play in a world their ancestors would hardly recognize?

They slice through the water's surface with explosive power, sail, spear and a half ton of muscle flashing in the sun. Their journeys through the open ocean are epic, their life cycle, bizarre. They are the billfish - marlin, sailfish, spearfish, and swordfish - largest and most highly prized of all gamefish. Rarely caught on film, their astonishing story has never been fully told. Emmy award-winning filmmaker and biologist Rick Rosenthal brings a lifetime of experience with these incredible sea creatures to the screen as he observes tiny billfish nurseries in the wild, dives deep into secret undersea canyons, films incredible color-changing behavior and embarks on a quest for an elusive thousand-pound "grandeur."

The Drakensberg Mountains are southern Africa's Alps, rising more than 11,000 feet into the sky. But beneath their shimmering beauty lies an incredibly hostile environment for the creatures that manage to live there. Each Spring, drenching rains destroy the grasslands at the base of the mountains, and those who would survive must climb up sheer cliffs of volcanic rock, through gauntlets of storms and snow, to reach the carpets of new grass on the plateau. The baboons that make their home halfway up the heights may have the advantage of agility, but eland, the world's largest antelope, have long, spindly legs and heavy bodies, which make their climb to the top all but unbelievable. All have babies at their sides. And the vultures circle overhead.

This small island's varied landscape, its location in the heart of the Caribbean and its longstanding place at the center of Cold War politics have all combined to preserve some of the richest and most unusual natural environments of the hemisphere. For decades, Cuba's wild landscapes lay untouched while its Caribbean neighbors poisoned or paved over their ecological riches. Now, Cuba's priceless treasures are about to face an onslaught. Tourism is already on the rise and most experts predict tourism will double once the U.S. trade embargo ends. What will happen to Cuba's stunning biodiversity - an island filled with amphibians, reptiles and the most biologically diverse freshwater fish in the region?

Series Title: Nature
Episode Title: Cuba: The Accidental Eden
Length: 60 minutes

Airdate: 9/27/2010 4:00:00 PM
O.B. Date: 9/26/2010 8:00:00 PM
Service: PBS
Format: Documentary
Segment Length: 00:56:46

This small island's varied landscape, its location in the heart of the Caribbean and its longstanding place at the center of Cold War politics have all combined to preserve some of the richest and most unusual natural environments of the hemisphere. For decades, Cuba's wild landscapes lay untouched while its Caribbean neighbors poisoned or paved over their ecological riches. Now, Cuba's priceless treasures are about to face an onslaught. Tourism is already on the rise and most experts predict tourism will double once the U.S. trade embargo ends. What will happen to Cuba's stunning biodiversity - an island filled with amphibians, reptiles and the most biologically diverse freshwater fish in the region?

Long ago in the age of dinosaurs, a volcano in eastern China erupted and buried a host of strange creatures in ash, creating exquisite fossils that preserved a big surprise - many dinosaurs were covered in feathers. In "The Four-Winged Dinosaur," NOVA investigates the most bizarre of these feathered dinosaurs, which has rekindled a fierce, decades-long debate over the origin of bird flight. The central character in this drama is a strange little dinosaur with wings on its legs as well as its arms. The pigeon-sized Microraptor is the smallest adult dinosaur ever found, perhaps the first known tree-dweller. But could it really fly? NOVA assembles a team of top paleontologists, aeronautical engineers, and paleo-artists to reconstruct Microraptor and build a sophisticated model for a wind tunnel experiment. The results have surprising implications for long-accepted ideas about how winged flight began.

Every so often a giant emerges on the stage of science, someone who transcends the narrow boundaries of a particular line of research and alters our perspective on the world. E.O. Wilson is such a man. In "Lord of the Ants," NOVA profiles this soft-spoken Southerner renowned for his scientific study of ants that led to his 1975 book "Sociobiology: The New Synthesis," where he put forth the notion that evolutionary principles could explain social behavior throughout the animal kingdom, including in humans. Though sociobiology was a controversial new discipline at the time, today experimental science shows that genes do play a role in aspects of human behavior. E.O. Wilson is an icon of our times: a lord of the ants who sought to explain nature on earth and who now fights for its survival through his worldwide conservation efforts. Actor and environmentalist Harrison Ford narrates this engaging portrait of a ceaselessly active scientist and eloquent writer, who has accumulated two Pulitzer Prizes among his many other honors.

The world's oceans are in trouble. Warming seas and man-made pollutants are combining to unleash toxic algae blooms that are decimating whales, sea lions and other marine mammals. In a high-action film, NOVA explores this crisis through the exploits of Dr. Frances Gulland, a San Francisco veterinarian who runs the equivalent of a West Coast ER for marine mammals. On a typical day, listless sea lions flop on their sides, too exhausted to lift their heads. Others are agitated. Another chews obsessively on a flipper. They are all victims of a marine neurotoxin made by an organism that feeds on algae. Dr. Gulland is committed to saving these sick animals one at a time, but she is also desperately trying to figure out what's killing them.

Though they may look like dragons and inspire stories of man-eating, fire-spitting monsters with long claws, razor-sharp teeth and muscular, whip-like tails, these creatures are actually monitor lizards, the largest lizards to walk the planet. With their acute intelligence-including the ability to plan ahead-these lizards are a very different kind of reptile, blurring the line between reptiles and mammals. And even though these bizarre reptiles haven't changed all that much since the dinosaurs, they are a very successful species, versatile at adapting to all kinds of settings. Lizard Kings will look at what makes these tongued reptiles so similar to mammals and what has allowed them to become such unique survivors. But while the creatures can find their way around many different habitats, finding them is no easy task. Natural loners, and always on guard, they sense anything or anyone from hundreds of feet away. NOVA will follow expert lizard hunter Dr. Eric Pianka as he tracks the elusive creatures through Australia's heartland with cutting-edge "lizard cam" technology for an unparalleled close encounter with these amazingly versatile "living dragons."

And even though these bizarre reptiles haven't changed all that much since the dinosaurs, they are a very successful species, versatile at adapting to all kinds of settings. Lizard Kings will look at what makes these tongued reptiles so similar to mammals and what has allowed them to become such unique survivors. But while the creatures can find their way around many different habitats, finding them is no easy task. Natural loners, and always on guard, they sense anything or anyone from hundreds of feet away. NOVA will follow expert lizard hunter Dr. Eric Pianka as he tracks the elusive creatures through Australia's heartland with cutting-edge "lizard cam" technology for an unparalleled close encounter with these amazingly versatile "living dragons."

Though they may look like dragons and inspire stories of man-eating, fire-spitting monsters with long claws, razor-sharp teeth and muscular, whip-like tails, these creatures are actually monitor lizards, the largest lizards to walk the planet. With their acute intelligence-including the ability to plan ahead-these lizards are a very different kind of reptile, blurring the line between reptiles and mammals. And even though these bizarre reptiles haven't changed all that much since the dinosaurs, they are a very successful species, versatile at adapting to all kinds of settings. Lizard Kings will look at what makes these tongued reptiles so similar to mammals and what has allowed them to become such unique survivors. NOVA presents a comprehensive three-part, three-hour special-investigating explosive new discoveries that are transforming the picture of how we became human. The first program explores fresh clues about our earliest ancestors in Africa, including the stunningly complete fossil nicknamed "Lucy's Child." These three-million-year-old bones from Ethiopia reveal humanity's oldest and most telltale trait-upright walking rather than a big brain. The second program tackles the mysteries of how our ancestors managed to survive in a savannah teeming with vicious predators, and when and why we first left our African cradle to colonize every corner of the Earth. In the final program, NOVA probes a wave of dramatic new evidence, based partly on cutting-edge DNA analysis, that reveals new insights into how we became the creative and "behaviorally modern" humans of today, and what really happened to the enigmatic Neanderthals who faded into extinction. Shot "in the trenches" as discoveries were unearthed throughout Africa and Europe, each hour of Becoming Human unfolds with a forensic investigation into the life and death of a specific hominid ancestor, such as Lucy's Child. Dry bones spring back to vivid life with stunning animation, the product of a unique NOVA collaboration between top anthropologists and a talented team of movie animators.

Haiti Six Months Later: This week marked the 6 month anniversary of the devastating earthquake in Haiti, which killed more than 230,000 people. Humanitarian groups say while there has been some recovery, an overwhelming amount of work still needs to be done. Ethical Eating: Religious communities are part of a growing movement across America that is concerned with the ethics of how food is grown and how it gets to our tables. Norman Wirzba Extended Interview: "Every time you eat, you give expression to what you think the world ought to be," says Norman Wirzba, a professor of theology, ecology, and rural life at Duke Divinity School. Abraham Verghese: The vocation of healing is a central theme in the acclaimed novel "Cutting for Stone" by Abraham Verghese, who writes that doctors "must believe that ministering to others will heal our woundedness. And it can. But it can also deepen the wound." Abraham Verghese Extended Interview: "Patients require that one-on-one encounter, the Samaritan function of being a physician," says writer and Stanford Medical School professor Abraham Verghese. "I'm convinced that when the physician examines the patient, this is an incredibly important ritual."

Fishermen of the Gulf: According to U.S. government figures, more than 40,000 people have been brought in to help clean up the oil and deal with the crisis. But many in the fishing industry say they haven't been able to get work, and they don't know when they'll be able to resume their livelihoods. Spiritual Implications of the Oil Spill: Watch more from New Orleans Roman Catholic Archbishop Gregory Aymond, Margaret Dubuisson of Catholic Charities of New Orleans, and Rev. John Dee Jeffries of the First Baptist Church of Chalmette on the spiritual toll of the Gulf Coast oil spill crisis. Disappearing Christians of Iraq: At the time of Saddam Hussein's overthrow, about one million Christians lived in Iraq. Now a third of the Christian community has fled the country in order to escape growing violence and Muslim hostility.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapierre, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

In a provocative report from the frontiers of biology, NOVA explores new findings that call into question the long-held belief that all inherited traits are passed on by our genes. The fast-growing field of epigenetics investigates hidden influences that could affect not only our health today but that of our descendants far into the future. It now seems that our environment makes small chemical changes to our DNA without affecting the gene's overall makeup. To put it another way, epigenetics adds to our DNA another layer that acts as a control system of "switches." Experiential factors such as nutrition or stress may trigger these switches and turn genes on or off. These subtle changes can then be "remembered" and passed on from generation to generation, altering inherited traits. This means the lives of our grandparents - the air they breathed, the food they ate, even the things they saw - could have directly affected us, and that what we do could, in turn, affect our grandchildren. NOVA explores this fascinating new idea, interviewing top scientists in the field and following what could be a paradigm shift in the way we think about inheritance and genes.

What is it like to be torn from your Chinese foster family, put on a plane with strangers and wake up in a new country, family and culture? Stephanie Wang-Breal's Wo Ai Ni (I Love You) Mommy is the story of Fang Sui Yong, an 8-year-old orphan, and the Sadowskys, the Long Island Jewish family that travels to China to adopt her. Sui Yong is one of 70,000 Chinese children now being raised in the United States. Through her eyes, we witness her struggle with a new identity as she transforms from a timid child into someone that no one --neither her new family nor she could have imagined.

Off and Running tells the story of Brooklyn teenager Avery, a track star with a bright future. She is the adopted African-American child of white Jewish lesbians. Her older brother is black and Puerto Rican and her younger brother is Korean. Though it may not look typical, Avery's household is like most American homes until Avery writes to her birth mother and the response throws her into crisis. She struggles over her true identity, the circumstances of her adoption and her estrangement from black culture. Just when it seems as if her life is unraveling, Avery decides to pick up the pieces and make sense of her identity, with inspiring results.

In a time where thirty-one states have passed English Only initiatives, one urban school district is exploring the provocative notion that speaking a foreign language can be a national asset. We follow four diverse students and their families as they encounter the challenges and delights of becoming fluent in two languages. As we witness their journey, we see how speaking more than one language changes them, their families, their communities, and maybe even the world.

In a time where thirty-one states have passed English Only initiatives, one urban school district is exploring the provocative notion that speaking a foreign language can be a national asset. We follow four diverse students and their families as they encounter the challenges and delights of becoming fluent in two languages. As we witness their journey, we see how speaking more than one language changes them, their families, their communities, and maybe even the world.

The first episode looks at the importance of relationships and why they are central to our emotional well-being. What are the cognitive and neurological processes underpinning our everyday interactions, and can they help us to understand why some relationships flourish and others fail? We meet a young boy adopted from a Russian orphanage, whose story illustrates how a lack of attachment in infancy fundamentally shapes his ability to build relationships for years to come. We meet the young parents of newborn twins; a couple in therapy for a troubled marriage; a teenager who was bullied with tragic consequences; two women grappling with the stress of workplace conflicts; and other characters - all to better understand the importance of social connections and relationships.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

Twenty kilometers a year: Need to Know features a dramatic video report from Sean Smith, a reporter for The Guardian in London, who embedded with U.S. soldiers on the front lines of battle in Afghanistan. Institutional corruption in Afghanistan: Tom Gregg of New York University's Center on International Cooperation speaks with Jon Meacham about the challenges the Obama administration faces in restoring security to Afghanistan. Cottage industry: An alternative to nursing homes, state-licensed "adult family homes" house up to six seniors in private homes in Washington State. But Seattle Times investigative reporter Michael Berens found the homes rife with abuse and neglect. Jon Meacham on 'Superlativism': As the midterm elections near, Jon Meacham cautions us against the belief that everything that happens in our time is the "most" this or the "worst" that, as some pundits would have us believe. The thin green line: A new report has found that, in spite of the recession, cities are investing in urban parks. Alison Stewart tours one such park - an old elevated rail line in New York City. Next week's news: The finale: Sadly, this is Andy Borowitz's last week on Need to Know. In this retrospective, Andy looks back at the best of his prognostications, and reveals his next career move.

In a provocative report from the frontiers of biology, NOVA explores new findings that call into question the long-held belief that all inherited traits are passed on by our genes. The fast-growing field of epigenetics investigates hidden influences that could affect not only our health today but that of our descendants far into the future. It now seems that our environment makes small chemical changes to our DNA without affecting the gene's overall makeup. To put it another way, epigenetics adds to our DNA another layer that acts as a control system of "switches." Experiential factors such as nutrition or stress may trigger these switches and turn genes on or off. These subtle changes can then be "remembered" and passed on from generation to generation, altering inherited traits. This means the lives of our grandparents - the air they breathed, the food they ate, even the things they saw - could have directly affected us, and that what we do could, in turn, affect our grandchildren. NOVA explores this fascinating new idea, interviewing top scientists in the field and following what could be a paradigm shift in the way we think about inheritance and genes.

In a provocative report from the frontiers of biology, NOVA explores new findings that call into question the long-held belief that all inherited traits are passed on by our genes. The fast-growing field of epigenetics investigates hidden influences that could affect not only our health today but that of our descendants far into the future. It now seems that our environment makes small chemical changes to our DNA without affecting the gene's overall makeup. To put it another way, epigenetics adds to our DNA another layer that acts as a control system of "switches." Experiential factors such as nutrition or stress may trigger these switches and turn genes on or off. These subtle changes can then be "remembered" and passed on from generation to generation, altering inherited traits. This means the lives of our grandparents - the air they breathed, the food they ate, even the things they saw - could have directly affected us, and that what we do could, in turn, affect our grandchildren. NOVA explores this fascinating new idea, interviewing top scientists in the field and following what could be a paradigm shift in the way we think about inheritance and genes.

Haiti Six Months Later: This week marked the 6 month anniversary of the devastating earthquake in Haiti, which killed more than 230,000 people. Humanitarian groups say while there has been some recovery, an overwhelming amount of work still needs to be done. Ethical Eating: Religious communities are part of a growing movement across America that is concerned with the ethics of how food is grown and how it gets to our tables. Norman Wirzba Extended Interview: "Every time you eat, you give expression to what you think the world ought to be," says Norman Wirzba, a professor of theology, ecology, and rural life at Duke Divinity School. Abraham Verghese: The vocation of healing is a central theme in the acclaimed novel "Cutting for Stone" by Abraham Verghese, who writes that doctors "must believe that ministering to others will heal our woundedness. And it can. But it can also deepen the wound." Abraham Verghese Extended Interview: "Patients require that one-on-one encounter, the Samaritan function of being a physician," says writer and Stanford Medical School professor Abraham Verghese. "I'm convinced that when the physician examines the patient, this is an incredibly important ritual."

Service: PBS
Format: Documentary
Segment Length: 01:56:46

The first episode looks at the importance of relationships and why they are central to our emotional well-being. What are the cognitive and neurological processes underpinning our everyday interactions, and can they help us to understand why some relationships flourish and others fail? We meet a young boy adopted from a Russian orphanage, whose story illustrates how a lack of attachment in infancy fundamentally shapes his ability to build relationships for years to come. We meet the young parents of newborn twins; a couple in therapy for a troubled marriage; a teenager who was bullied with tragic consequences; two women grappling with the stress of workplace conflicts; and other characters - all to better understand the importance of social connections and relationships.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Minneapolis native Billy McLaughlin astounded audiences with his innovative guitar technique and composing style. Holding his instrument vertically and "pulling" the strings, his original stylings and compositions enthralled his audiences. Then, in the late 1990s, he began to lose control of his right hand and arm and was soon unable to play his own music. Many thought his career was over when he was diagnosed with focal dystonia, an incurable neuro-muscular disorder. After years of countless therapies, McLaughlin was forced to give up his life's passion, playing solo guitar, and he abruptly disappeared from the stage and his national fan base. Billy McLaughlin decided not to give up and began the arduous task of starting over to learn the guitar from scratch! Producer Suzanne Jurva followed McLaughlin during these five years chronicling his unlikely attempt to re-claim his career by re-training himself to become a left-handed guitarist. The film delves into the scientific mysteries of dystonia and delivers a story about determination, persistence and personal triumph wrapped in the exquisite music of this innovative and newly left-handed guitarist.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

The Grammy winning bassist Israel "Cachao" Lopez died in Coral Gables, Florida, in March 2008, at almost 90 years of age. A maestro of legendary status on the world stage and ultimately considered one of the greatest Afro-Cuban musicians of all time, he had made his home in the United States for the past four decades. However, he continued playing the Havana clubs and dance halls with his brother Orestes. Together, they revolutionized the heart of Cuban music -- their spontaneous improvisations and innovations established the basis of, and the influence of, contemporary Latin jazz and salsa, rock 'n roll and rhythm and blues. The basis of this film is a sold-out 2005 concert at Bimbo's 365 Club, a famous San Francisco nightclub. Cachao's life and work are palpable. "Cachao: Uno Mas" is produced and narrated by actor Andy Garcia, a friend and ardent fan, who helped reinvigorate Cachao's career in the 1990s -- and who appears in this film playing the bongos.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

In 1966, Deann Borshay Liem was adopted by an American family and was sent from Korea to her new home. Growing up in California, the memory of her birth family was nearly obliterated until recurring dreams led Borshay Liem to discover the truth: her Korean mother was very much alive. Bravely uniting her biological and adoptive families, Borshay Liem's heartfelt journey makes "First Person Plural" a poignant essay on family, loss and the reconciling of two identities.

What is it like to be torn from your Chinese foster family, put on a plane with strangers and wake up in a new country, family and culture? Stephanie Wang-Breal's Wo Ai Ni (I Love You) Mommy is the story of Fang Sui Yong, an 8-year-old orphan, and the Sadowskys, the Long Island Jewish family that travels to China to adopt her. Sui Yong is one of 70,000 Chinese children now being raised in the United States. Through her eyes, we witness her struggle with a new identity as she transforms from a timid child into someone that no one --neither her new family nor she could have imagined.

Segment Length: 00:00:00

In a time where thirty-one states have passed English Only initiatives, one urban school district is exploring the provocative notion that speaking a foreign language can be a national asset. We follow four diverse students and their families as they encounter the challenges and delights of becoming fluent in two languages. As we witness their journey, we see how speaking more than one language changes them, their families, their communities, and maybe even the world.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us."

Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

PENNSYLVANIA BREWERIES tours some of Pennsylvania's most famous and unique breweries, microbreweries and brewpubs. Based on Lew Brison's book - considered the Pennsylvania beer-drinker's bible - PENNSYLVANIA BREWERIES uncovers the Keystone State's best stout, lager, ale and porter. It also celebrates the dedicated regional brewers who survived the dark days of corporate buyouts and takeovers, discovered niche markets and blossomed. The program treats casual beer drinkers and beer connoisseur's alike to the history, current output and types of beer produced at breweries including D. G. Yuengling & Son, Pittsburgh Brewing Company, and Latrobe Brewing and many others.

The Grammy winning bassist Israel "Cachao" Lopez died in Coral Gables, Florida, in March 2008, at almost 90 years of age. A maestro of legendary status on the world stage and ultimately considered one of the greatest Afro-Cuban musicians of all time, he had made his home in the United States for the past four decades. However, he continued playing the Havana clubs and dance halls with his brother Orestes. Together, they revolutionized the heart of Cuban music -- their spontaneous improvisations and innovations established the basis of, and the influence of, contemporary Latin jazz and salsa, rock 'n roll and rhythm and blues. The basis of this film is a sold-out 2005 concert at Bimbo's 365 Club, a famous San Francisco nightclub. Cachao's life and work are palpable. "Cachao: Uno Mas" is produced and narrated by actor Andy Garcia, a friend and ardent fan, who helped reinvigorate Cachao's career in the 1990s -- and who appears in this film playing the bongos.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. In 1997, U.S. Marines patrolling the Texas-Mexico border as part of the War on Drugs shot and killed Esequiel Hernandez Jr. Mistaken for a drug runner, the 18-year-old was, in fact, a U.S. citizen tending his family's goats with a .22 rifle. He became the first American killed by U.S. military forces on native soil since the 1970 Kent State shootings. Narrated by Tommy Lee Jones, the film explores Hernandez's death and its torturous aftermath. His parents and friends, the Marines on patrol and investigators discuss the death of one young man and the dangers of militarizing the border.

In 1997, U.S. Marines patrolling the Texas-Mexico border as part of the War on Drugs shot and killed Esequiel Hernandez Jr. Mistaken for a drug runner, the 18-year-old was, in fact, a U.S. citizen tending his family's goats with a .22 rifle. He became the first American killed by U.S. military forces on native soil since the 1970 Kent State shootings. Narrated by Tommy Lee Jones, the film explores Hernandez's death and its torturous aftermath. His parents and friends, the Marines on patrol and investigators discuss the death of one young man and the dangers of militarizing the border.

Her passport said she was Cha Jung Hee. She knew she was not. So began a 40-year deception for a Korean adoptee who came to the United States in 1966. Told to keep her true identity secret from her new American family, the eight-year-old girl quickly forgot she had ever been anyone else. But why had her identity been switched? And who was the real Cha Jung Hee? This is the search to find the answers, as acclaimed filmmaker Deann Borshay Liem (POV "First Person Plural," 2000) returns to her native Korea to find her "double," the mysterious girl whose place she took in America. A co-production of ITVS in association with the Center for Asian American Media and American Documentary|POV.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Covering these stories this week: John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, and Dana Priest of the Washington Post.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats, headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Segment Length: 01:58:55:00

Throughout a long golden era, the American movie musical transformed Hollywood into a Mecca for the biggest singing stars and leading songwriters of the '30s, '40s, and '50s. Hosted by musician and musicologist Michael Feinstein, THE GREAT AMERICAN SONGBOOK offers a dazzling parade of American popular songs as seen and heard in some of the most beloved films ever made. With stars ranging from Al Jolson to Judy Garland to Frank Sinatra, and sounds from the Gilded Age to New Orleans jazz to Broadway musicals, THE GREAT AMERICAN SONGBOOK tells the story of the first 50 years of American popular music. Whether it was from the vaudeville stage or Tin Pan Alley, on the radio or the record player, it all found its way to the silver screen. This treasure trove of musical clips overflows with the very best of George Gershwin, Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, Lorenz Hart, Richard Rodgers, Oscar Hammerstein II, Cole Porter, Harold Arlen, and many more artists.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

Twenty kilometers a year: Need to Know features a dramatic video report from Sean Smith, a reporter for The Guardian in London, who embedded with U.S. soldiers on the front lines of battle in Afghanistan. Institutional corruption in Afghanistan: Tom Gregg of New York University's Center on International Cooperation speaks with Jon Meacham about the challenges the Obama administration faces in restoring security to Afghanistan. Cottage industry: An alternative to nursing homes, state-licensed "adult family homes" house up to six seniors in private homes in Washington State. But Seattle Times investigative reporter Michael Berens found the homes rife with abuse and neglect. Jon Meacham on 'Superlativism': As the midterm elections near, Jon Meacham cautions us against the belief that everything that happens in our time is the "most" this or the "worst" that, as some pundits would have us believe. The thin green line: A new report has found that, in spite of the recession, cities are investing in urban parks. Alison Stewart tours one such park - an old elevated rail line in New York City. Next week's news: The finale: Sadly, this is Andy Borowitz's last week on Need to Know. In this retrospective, Andy looks back at the best of his prognostications, and reveals his next career move.

Segment Length: 00:00:00

For the first time on television, NOVA exposes the hidden world of the high-tech, 21st century eavesdropping carried out by the National Security Agency or NSA. Today, the NSA is the world's largest intelligence agency, three times the size of the CIA and far more secret. Its mission is to eavesdrop on the world - from cell phones in Europe to pay phones in Afghanistan to e-mail messages from Pakistan to Baghdad. But since 9/11, it has also turned its giant ear inward, listening in without warrant on thousands of American citizens, many of whom are on the government's secret watch list, now more than half-a-million names long. Based on the latest bestseller by journalist James Bamford, INSIDE THE SPY FACTORY is a gripping investigation of the NSA from its tragic failures leading up to the 9/11 attacks to its secret listening rooms currently installed in the nation's telecom networks.

Imagine being picked up off the street, told you have committed a murder you know nothing about and then finding yourself sentenced to 20 years in jail. In December 2005 this happened to Toño Zúñiga in Mexico City and, like thousands of other innocent people, he was wrongfully imprisoned. The award-winning Presumed Guilty is the story of two young lawyers and their struggle to free Zúñiga. With no background in film, Roberto Hernández and Layda Negrete set about recording the injustices they were witnessing, enlisting acclaimed director Geoffrey Smith (The English Surgeon, POV 2009) to tell this dramatic story.

It is the summer of 1982 and Ronald Reagan has decided to replace his Secretary of State. The man he has chosen for the job is George Shultz. A brief biography introduces us to this remarkable man who has been a respected academic, a corporate leader and Secretary of the Treasury. In 1982 the world is in turmoil as the new Secretary takes over. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger openly opposes Shultz' initiatives for a peace-keeping force. In this first episode of "Turmoil and Triumph," one crisis after another boils over from the Middle East to news that the CIA is secretly aiding Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Despite strenuous opposition from many of Reagan's advisors, Shultz secretly arranges for Regan to meet the Soviet Ambassador to the United States. This episode ends as the successes of Shultz' skillful negotiations are shattered with the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon.

A ceremonial welcome greets George Shultz and Ronald Reagan as the second episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" opens in Japan. After a successful trade negotiation the scene quickly shifts to the Philippines where dissident Nimoy Aquino is assassinated and the island nation is thrown into turmoil. The first weapons in the still secret arms for hostages deal arrive in Iran and Reagan is sworn in for his second term. Shultz begins to set up a summit meeting with the new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, although others in the administration are opposed. Shultz perseveres and a pre-summit is held in Geneva. As successful negotiations come to a close, the Philippines boils over and despite White House staff objections Shultz persuades Reagan to abandon the dictator Ferdinand Marcos and recognize the democratically elected Cory Aquino as the new Philippine leader.

On the 4th of July, 1986 Ronald Reagan is at the peak of his popularity. Yet John Poindexter and others in the White House are up to no good. Shultz is left out of the loop as the Iran Contra scandal festers. George Shultz remains focused on what he sees as the highest priority: a summit meeting in Reykjavik between his president and Mikhail Gorbachev. Although the summit is a tremendous breakthrough in superpower relations, Reagan and Gorbachev miss the chance to eliminate all nuclear weapons. As Shultz arrives home the Iran Contra scandal becomes embarrassingly public and on CBS's "Face the Nation" Shultz risks his job by telling the truth. Still his major goal remains a nuclear free world to which Reagan and Gorbachev move one step closer with a record cut of nuclear weapons. In 1989 George Shultz leaves the State Department where he has earned accolades as one of America's ablest Secretaries of State. We follow the Secretary back home to the world of ideas and his position as a Fellow at the Hoover Institution. As this final episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" concludes, George Shultz continues to travel the world seeking an end to nuclear weapons.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapierre, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies." Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burris (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Covering these stories this week: John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, and Dana Priest of the Washington Post.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats, headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

Political broadcasts, Pentagon costs cutting, and this debatable question:--is Washington broken--we'll talk about it all tonight on Washington Week. Linda McMahon, Connecticut Republican GOP Senate Candidate, said, "They don't want to send the same politicians to Washington and get the same politics out of Washington. Ken Buck, Colorado Republican Senate Candidate said, "It is time Republicans started acting like Republicans." Outsiders rule. Political novices and upstarts carry the day in the latest round of primaries, as running against Washington becomes all the rage. Will a presidential endorsement help or hurt in the fall? Senator Michael Bennet (D-CO) said, "We'll have to see. We'll obviously do what's right for the campaign." Or do polls and tea partiers prove the pox is on both houses? In Washington, Pentagon Chief Robert Gates proposes slashing military spending. And not everybody's happy about it. Representative Randy Forbes (R-VA) said, "What we're witnessing is the piecemeal auctioning off of the greatest military the world has ever known." Does all this mean that Washington is broken? And if it is, why is everybody still trying to get here? Covering the week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

A fresh try for Middle East peace; stepping back in Iraq; drumming up campaign money; and the politics of Islam--tonight, on Washington Week. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "I've invited Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and Palestinian Authority President Abbas to meet on September 2nd in Washington, D.C." The Obama administration dives head first back into the thorny and historically difficult Middle East peace process. What's different this time? U.S. troops celebrate the long promised pullout from Iraq. U.S. SOLDIER: We won. It's over. America, we brought democracy to Iraq. But events there, in Afghanistan and in Pakistan show it's more complicated than that. At home, Democrats and Republicans raise money hand over fist for the midterm elections. Tim Kaine, Chairman, Democratic National Committee, said, "We'll be able to put more money into the midterms by far than we've ever put in, probably north of $50 million. And the presidential events are huge." And as the president steps into the debate about a New York mosque, saying, "The answer is no regrets." A secondary discussion builds. Gov. Chris Christie (R-NJ) said, "It's being used as a political football by both parties." How do Americans view Islam? And why do so many think their president is Muslim? Franklin Graham, Evangelist, said, "I think the president's problem is that he was born a Muslim." Really? Covering the week: Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Martha Raddatz of ABC News, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

A ceremonial welcome greets George Shultz and Ronald Reagan as the second episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" opens in Japan. After a successful trade negotiation the scene quickly shifts to the Philippines where dissident Nimoy Aquino is assassinated and the island nation is thrown into turmoil. The first weapons in the still secret arms for hostages deal arrive in Iran and Reagan is sworn in for his second term. Shultz begins to set up a summit meeting with the new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, although others in the administration are opposed. Shultz perseveres and a pre-summit is held in Geneva. As successful negotiations come to a close, the Philippines boils over and despite White House staff objections Shultz persuades Reagan to abandon the dictator Ferdinand Marcos and recognize the democratically elected Cory Aquino as the new Philippine leader.

On the 4th of July, 1986 Ronald Reagan is at the peak of his popularity. Yet John Poindexter and others in the White House are up to no good. Shultz is left out of the loop as the Iran Contra scandal festers. George Shultz remains focused on what he sees as the highest priority: a summit meeting in Reykjavik between his president and Mikhail Gorbachev. Although the summit is a tremendous breakthrough in superpower relations, Reagan and Gorbachev miss the chance to eliminate all nuclear weapons. As Shultz arrives home the Iran Contra scandal becomes embarrassingly public and on CBS's "Face the Nation" Shultz risks his job by telling the truth. Still his major goal remains a nuclear free world to which Reagan and Gorbachev move one step closer with a record cut of nuclear weapons. In 1989 George Shultz leaves the State Department where he has earned accolades as one of America's ablest Secretaries of State. We follow the Secretary back home to the world of ideas and his position as a Fellow at the Hoover Institution. As this final episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" concludes, George Shultz continues to travel the world seeking an end to nuclear weapons.

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

Good Fortune is a provocative exploration of how massive international efforts to alleviate poverty in Africa may be undermining the very communities they aim to benefit. In Kenya's rural countryside, Jackson's farm is being flooded by an American investor who hopes to alleviate poverty by creating a multimillion-dollar rice farm. Across the country in Nairobi, Silva's home and business in Africa's largest shantytown are being demolished as part of a U.N. slum-upgrading project. The gripping stories of two Kenyans battling to save their homes from large-scale development present a unique opportunity see foreign aid through eyes of the people it is intended to help.

Haiti Six Months Later: This week marked the 6 month anniversary of the devastating earthquake in Haiti, which killed more than 230,000 people. Humanitarian groups say while there has been some recovery, an overwhelming amount of work still needs to be done. Ethical Eating: Religious communities are part of a growing movement across America that is concerned with the ethics of how food is grown and how it gets to our tables. Norman Wirzba Extended Interview: "Every time you eat, you give expression to what you think the world ought to be," says Norman Wirzba, a professor of theology, ecology, and rural life at Duke Divinity School. Abraham Verghese: The vocation of healing is a central theme in the acclaimed novel "Cutting for Stone" by Abraham Verghese, who writes that doctors "must believe that ministering to others will heal our woundedness. And it can. But it can also deepen the wound." Abraham Verghese Extended Interview: "Patients require that one-on-one encounter, the Samaritan function of being a physician," says writer and Stanford Medical School professor Abraham Verghese. "I'm convinced that when the physician examines the patient, this is an incredibly important ritual."

Joni Eareckson Tada: Paralyzed for more than 40 years, Joni Eareckson Tada is one of the longest living quadriplegics on record. She's also a bestselling evangelical author, an acclaimed artist and an internationally-known advocate for people with disabilities. Kim Lawton talked with Tada about her work and how she maintains her faith amid serious struggles, including a recent diagnosis of breast cancer. Mississippi Delta Healthcare: One in five Mississippians has no health care coverage and the state--among the nation's poorest--has one of the highest rates of heart disease and diabetes in the nation. Saul Gonzalez reports on a no-frills health care clinic, that serves the poor for whatever they can afford to pay, run by Dr. Anne Brooks, a physician and Catholic nun who has been treating patients in the Mississippi Delta for more than thirty years.

Hassen Chalghoumi is the only imam in France who supports a ban on the burqa. For that, he is paying a high price. Chalghoumi's opponents gather regularly in front of his mosque Chalghoumi has received death threats; extremists often besiege his mosque in a Paris suburb. But he will not back down. He says Islam does not require women to cover up entirely and to do so is to deprive women of their freedom. Chalghoumi is also keen to promote cordial relations between Muslims and Jews.

France: The L'Oreal Funding Scandal: The Liliane Bettencourt scandal has all the ingredients of a prime time soap opera and has put French President Nicolas Sarkozy under intense pressure. He denies claims that his presidential campaign was funded illegally by France's richest woman, but the affair has brought his popularity to an all-time low. Spain: Women in the Army: Spain's top military official - Minister of Defence Carme Chacon Piqueras Spain's conservative generals need to do a rethink. For two years the post of defense minister has been occupied by a woman. And more and more women have joined Spain's elite fighting force, the "Legion." The Czech Republic: Is Prague Turning into a New Amsterdam? This year the Czech Republic has eased its anti drugs laws. Narcotics police would like that to change again. Belgium: A Shadowy Legacy in the Congo: There are still unresolved issues between Belgium and the Congo some 50 years after the latter became independent. Belgians in general are reluctant to look into the brutal policies conducted in the former colony under King Leopold II. Russia: A Village Calls the Tune: Bavlenny is a small Russian provincial town which no one would pay any attention too...if there had not been a music school and a woodwind orchestra for children for 30 years.

Village Scenes, Tales of Rural Life in Europe Europe, it's not just about the big cities thronging with tourists. Europe is also about village life. Despite rural flight one in four Europeans lives in small communities where life has its own rhythm. This week European Journal presents some very special villages like Kuskoy in Turkey, the whistling village. Loud, piercing and sharp...a whistle is hard to ignore. But whistling languages are in danger of extinction. However the villages of Kuskoy on the Black Sea coast still communicate by whistling.

Spain: The beginning of the end of bullfighting in Catalonia: Every year, thousands of bullfighting aficionados stream into the arenas to see matadors perform. Some call bullfighting an art; others say it's sadistic. The end of the spectacle is hardly pretty; the bulls die with gaping wounds and twitching muscles. Occasionally matadors or spectators are trampled by the angry animals -- or even panic-stricken crowds. Catalonia is the first place in mainland Spain to ban bullfighting. Animal protection activists gathered 180,000 signatures urging the regional parliament prohibit the practice - and it has done so. Bullfighting fans are now holding their breath to see whether the Catalanian example will influence the rest of Spain or if the Conservatives in Madrid can overturn the ban.

A special on the youth of Europe - this week on European Journal from Deutsche Welle and American Public Television. Germany/Denmark: Rammstein - Teutonic theatre: Rammstein are one of Germany's most successful cultural exports. The six band members grew up in communist East Germany, and have built a musical career on exploiting German cultural stereotypes. Bosnia: School of hope in Mostar: The United World College in Bosnia-Herzegovina is no ordinary school. Located in the center of the bombed-out city, it wants to promote peace through education. The Netherlands: Tweens - First love hits ever earlier: Girls are now beginning puberty at eleven and a half, boys a year later. They are also feeling the pangs of love at an increasingly young age. Germany: Football fever and national pride: Germany's national football team was the pride of the country's soccer fans during the World Cup. Many young people shared the highs and lows of the tournament at public viewings. Greece: Stay or go? Young people in Greece are being disproportionately hit by the country's financial crisis and budgetary cuts. Many now want to emigrate, which could have serious consequences for the future of the nation.

Czech Republic: The Botched Restoration of the Charles Bridge: The Czech capital, Prague, has been rocked by scandal. Serious mistakes were made during the refurbishment of the city's world-famous Charles Bridge. Even UNESCO is asking questions. The Netherlands -- The Running Dutchmen: Participants in the International Four Day Marches Nijmegen, also known as the Vierdaagse, can expect to wind up with smelly socks and sore feet. Some 45,000 people take part in The Netherlands' largest -- and arguably most strenuous -- sporting event. Ireland -- A Fishing Village Tries To Fight Off A Major Investor: The fishermen of Dunmanus Bay have banded together in an attempt to prevent a big company from setting up a salmon farm in their idyllic bay. Bulgaria -- Taking Bribes for Building Land: The European Union is putting pressure on Bulgaria to tackle corruption. Otherwise it's threatening to cut off EU subsidies to the country.

Poland: Conflict over a cross - A wooden cross in front of Warsaw's Presidential Palace has led to heated disputes in a political struggle over the Catholic Church's influence on politics. Polish boy scouts erected the cross in memory of President Lech Kaczynski, who died in an airplane crash in April. The newly elected President Bronislaw Komorowski wanted to have the cross removed and cited the separation of Church and State. France: Opposition to "Halal burgers" - Some branches of the French fast-food chain Quick no longer sell anything that's not halal, or allowed under Islam. And not everyone is pleased with this. The mayors of several town have protested what they call discrimination against non-Muslims. Quick, the French answer to McDonalds, has been experimenting since last fall with a menu altered to suit Muslim customers. Hassen Chalghoumi is the only imam in France who supports a ban on the burqa. For that, he is paying a high price. Chalghoumi's opponents gather regularly in front of his mosque Chalghoumi has received death threats; extremists often besiege his mosque in a Paris suburb. But he will not back down. He says Islam does not require women to cover up entirely and to do so is to deprive women of their freedom. Chalghoumi is also keen to promote cordial relations between Muslims and Jews.

Britain: Security Patrols Booming: The UK's new prime minister David Cameron is cutting costs ruthlessly. Police are not being spared. It's a chance for private security companies. Sweden: Young and Jobless: One young person in three in Sweden doesn't have a job. During an election campaign, that's a heavy burden on the government, which vowed to take up the fight against youth unemployment. Russia: Life Costs More After the Fire: For Russia it was a summer of disasters. Enormous fires raged in the forests while on the fields the crops withered in the sun. Netherlands: Minimum Age for Prostitutes: Amsterdam is considering imposing a new law that all prostitutes there must be at least 23 years old. It's a way the municipal authorities are trying to crack down on forced prostitution. Czech Republic: Budweiser Under Threat: For Czechs, their original Budweiser beer is more than a quaff. It's a piece of national identity. If could be sold off soon.

Now secondary schools are offering courses in military theory to make the new professional army more popular. Italy: Collecting Fines to Fill Government Coffers: Feeding pigeons can be expensive in Venice. Building sand castles and eating sandwiches in public squares are forbidden activities in some Italian towns. Local officials are busily collecting fines for such transgressions - especially from tourists. Village Scenes - Tales of Rural Life in Europe: Erquy, the village where the Gauls really lived. Spain: Catholics Rebel Against the Church Hierarchy: small parish church in the working-class Madrid neighborhood of Entrevias is famous for defying the city's powerful archbishop. One of the church's left-wing priests, Javier Baeza Atienza said he wanted to continue working with the poor, instead of performing empty rituals. Germany: Bees for Hire: German beekeepers are now aged an average of 60 years old due to a drop-off in new, young recruits. To make up for the shortfall in personnel, many have resorted to hiring out their hives.

The sixth inning leads off with the baseball season of 1941, one of the most exciting of all time. Joe DiMaggio hit in 56 straight games, the longest hitting streak in history. Ted Williams becomes the last man to hit .400. The Brooklyn Dodgers win their first pennant in 20 years. Then the war intervenes and baseball's best players become soldiers. On their return, the game--and the entire country--are changed forever: Branch Rickey integrates baseball on April 15, 1947, when Jackie Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers takes the field. Baseball finally becomes what it had always claimed to be: America's national pastime.

Haiti Six Months Later: This week marked the 6 month anniversary of the devastating earthquake in Haiti, which killed more than 230,000 people. Humanitarian groups say while there has been some recovery, an overwhelming amount of work still needs to be done. Ethical Eating: Religious communities are part of a growing movement across America that is concerned with the ethics of how food is grown and how it gets to our tables. Norman Wirzba Extended Interview: "Every time you eat, you give expression to what you think the world ought to be," says Norman Wirzba, a professor of theology, ecology, and rural life at Duke Divinity School. Abraham Verghese: The vocation of healing is a central theme in the acclaimed novel "Cutting for Stone" by Abraham Verghese, who writes that doctors "must believe that ministering to others will heal our woundedness. And it can. But it can also deepen the wound." Abraham Verghese Extended Interview: "Patients require that one-on-one encounter, the Samaritan function of being a physician," says writer and Stanford Medical School professor Abraham Verghese. "I'm convinced that when the physician examines the patient, this is an incredibly important ritual."

Fishermen of the Gulf: According to U.S. government figures, more than 40,000 people have been brought in to help clean up the oil and deal with the crisis. But many in the fishing industry say they haven't been able to get work, and they don't know when they'll be able to resume their livelihoods. Spiritual Implications of the Oil Spill: Watch more from New Orleans Roman Catholic Archbishop Gregory Aymond, Margaret Dubuisson of Catholic Charities of New Orleans, and Rev. John Dee Jeffries of the First Baptist Church of Chalmette on the spiritual toll of the Gulf Coast oil spill crisis. Disappearing Christians of Iraq: At the time of Saddam Hussein's overthrow, about one million Christians lived in Iraq. Now a third of the Christian community has fled the country in order to escape growing violence and Muslim hostility.

Ethics of Human Enhancement: "Computers will match us in emotional intelligence, which includes our whole moral system," says inventor and computer scientist Ray Kurzweil. Ray Kurzweil Extended Interview: Biological and technological evolution "is a spiritual process," says this famous futurist. "Entities become more godlike, never reaching that ideal but moving in that direction exponentially." Christian Brugger Extended Interview: Purposefulness and self-sacrifice in human life "can never be reduced to a machine," according to this bioethicist. Organ Donation: Donating organs and tissues "is considered an altruistic, charitable act and all the major religions look favorably upon that behavior," says ethicist Robert Veatch. Organ Donation: Press Conference: Watch scenes from an emotional meeting of transplant donors and recipients after the largest kidney exchange ever. Robert Veatch Extended Interview: "We can open up the question of financial incentives" for organ donations "without worrying about undue coercive pressures," says medical ethicist Robert Veatch of Georgetown University.

The Limits of Religious Tolerance: University of Notre Dame history professor Scott Appleby assesses the present moment and analyzes the anxiety, fear, and conflict currently in evidence on the American religious scene. Muslims Combating Extremism: "We want to prove to America that we are not terrorist suspects," says Imam Mahdi Bray. U.S. Islamic groups have launched several projects to fight extremism within their own communities, particularly among young people. Photographer Monk: Photography, according to Abbot Barnabas Senecal of St. Benedict's Abbey in Atchison, Kansas, is an exercise in monastic mindfulness, and he says his pictures express "being aware of the presence of God with you and in the world." Abbot Senecal Extended Interview: Abbot Barnabas Senecal, a Benedictine monk, reflects on the Psalms, prayer, photography, and the Benedictine desire "to seek God daily."

Joni Eareckson Tada: Paralyzed for more than 40 years, Joni Eareckson Tada is one of the longest living quadriplegics on record. She's also a bestselling evangelical author, an acclaimed artist and an internationally-known advocate for people with disabilities. Kim Lawton talked with Tada about her work and how she maintains her faith amid serious struggles, including a recent diagnosis of breast cancer. Mississippi Delta Healthcare: One in five Mississippians has no health care coverage and the state--among the nation's poorest--has one of the highest rates of heart disease and diabetes in the nation. Saul Gonzalez reports on a no-frills health care clinic, that serves the poor for whatever they can afford to pay, run by Dr. Anne Brooks, a physician and Catholic nun who has been treating patients in the Mississippi Delta for more than thirty years.

The Debate on Islam: As the nation commemorates the ninth anniversary of the September 11 terrorist attacks, Americans' attitudes toward Islam grow increasingly unfavorable. America's 'New Moment': Secretary of State Hillary Clinton delivers a speech outlining a bright future for America. Women in Combat: U.S. Rep. Loretta Sanchez (D-CA) says it's time for the military to abolish its combat-exclusion policy for women. The panelists are: Republican Pollster Kellyanne Conway; Former Clinton Advisor Patricia Sosa; Conservative Commentator Darlene Kennedy; and Women's Campaign Forum President Sam Bennett.

A fresh try for Middle East peace; stepping back in Iraq; drumming up campaign money; and the politics of Islam--tonight, on Washington Week. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "I've invited Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and Palestinian Authority President Abbas to meet on September 2nd in Washington, D.C." The Obama administration dives head first back into the thorny and historically difficult Middle East peace process. What's different this time? U.S. troops celebrate the long promised pullout from Iraq. U.S. SOLDIER: We won. It's over. America, we brought democracy to Iraq. But events there, in Afghanistan and in Pakistan show it's more complicated than that. At home, Democrats and Republicans raise money hand over fist for the midterm elections. Tim Kaine, Chairman, Democratic National Committee, said, "We'll be able to put more money into the midterms by far than we've ever put in, probably north of $50 million. And the presidential events are huge." And as the president steps into the debate about a New York mosque, saying, "The answer is no regrets." A secondary discussion builds. Gov. Chris Christie (R-NJ) said, "It's being used as a political football by both parties." How do Americans view Islam? And why do so many think their president is Muslim? Franklin Graham, Evangelist, said, "I think the president's problem is that he was born a Muslim." Really? Covering the week: Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Martha Raddatz of ABC News, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man.

Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

From the tiniest Chihuahua to the largest St. Bernard, all dogs claim the wolf as their ancestor. But how did the wolf become the domesticated dog, and how did the hundreds of breeds we know today come to be so different? Using DNA analysis and other research, scientists have now pieced together the puzzle of canine evolution, creating a fascinating picture of how dogs became an indispensable part of our own history.

NOVA presents a gripping investigation of what went wrong when two Boeing 747 airliners collided in thick fog on the runway at a tiny airport in the Canary Islands, killing 583 passengers and crew - the worst loss of life in any air disaster. With heart-breaking survivor interviews, re-enactments and a detective story approach, NOVA pieces together the clues that led to a fatal take-off decision by the highly experienced captain of the KLM 747, who couldn't see the Pan Am 747 still parked on the runway, lost in the fog ahead of him. The disaster led to fundamental improvements in air safety, but experts worry that a repeat of the Tenerife disaster could still happen.

NOVA presents a gripping investigation of what went wrong when two Boeing 747 airliners collided in thick fog on the runway at a tiny airport in the Canary Islands, killing 583 passengers and crew - the worst loss of life in any air disaster. With heart-breaking survivor interviews, re-enactments and a detective story approach, NOVA pieces together the clues that led to a fatal take-off decision by the highly experienced captain of the KLM 747, who couldn't see the Pan Am 747 still parked on the runway, lost in the fog ahead of him. The disaster led to fundamental improvements in air safety, but experts worry that a repeat of the Tenerife disaster could still happen.

In a provocative report from the frontiers of biology, NOVA explores new findings that call into question the long-held belief that all inherited traits are passed on by our genes. The fast-growing field of epigenetics investigates hidden influences that could affect not only our health today but that of our descendants far into the future. It now seems that our environment makes small chemical changes to our DNA without affecting the gene's overall makeup. To put it another way, epigenetics adds to our DNA another layer that acts as a control system of "switches." Experiential factors such as nutrition or stress may trigger these switches and turn genes on or off. These subtle changes can then be "remembered" and passed on from generation to generation, altering inherited traits. This means the lives of our grandparents - the air they breathed, the food they ate, even the things they saw - could have directly affected us, and that what we do could, in turn, affect our grandchildren. NOVA explores this fascinating new idea, interviewing top scientists in the field and following what could be a paradigm shift in the way we think about inheritance and genes.

In a provocative report from the frontiers of biology, NOVA explores new findings that call into question the long-held belief that all inherited traits are passed on by our genes. The fast-growing field of epigenetics investigates hidden influences that could affect not only our health today but that of our descendants far into the future. It now seems that our environment makes small chemical changes to our DNA without affecting the gene's overall makeup. To put it another way, epigenetics adds to our DNA another layer that acts as a control system of "switches." Experiential factors such as nutrition or stress may trigger these switches and turn genes on or off. These subtle changes can then be "remembered" and passed on from generation to generation, altering inherited traits. This means the lives of our grandparents - the air they breathed, the food they ate, even the things they saw - could have directly affected us, and that what we do could, in turn, affect our grandchildren. NOVA explores this fascinating new idea, interviewing top scientists in the field and following what could be a paradigm shift in the way we think about inheritance and genes.

Long ago in the age of dinosaurs, a volcano in eastern China erupted and buried a host of strange creatures in ash, creating exquisite fossils that preserved a big surprise - many dinosaurs were covered in feathers. In "The Four-Winged Dinosaur," NOVA investigates the most bizarre of these feathered dinosaurs, which has rekindled a fierce, decades-long debate over the origin of bird flight. The central character in this drama is a strange little dinosaur with wings on its legs as well as its arms. The pigeon-sized Microraptor is the smallest adult dinosaur ever found, perhaps the first known tree-dweller. But could it really fly? NOVA assembles a team of top paleontologists, aeronautical engineers, and paleo-artists to reconstruct Microraptor and build a sophisticated model for a wind tunnel experiment. The results have surprising implications for long-accepted ideas about how winged flight began.

Every so often a giant emerges on the stage of science, someone who transcends the narrow boundaries of a particular line of research and alters our perspective on the world. E.O. Wilson is such a man. In "Lord of the Ants," NOVA profiles this soft-spoken Southerner renowned for his scientific study of ants that led to his 1975 book "Sociobiology: The New Synthesis," where he put forth the notion that evolutionary principles could explain social behavior throughout the animal kingdom, including in humans. Though sociobiology was a controversial new discipline at the time, today experimental science shows that genes do play a role in aspects of human behavior. E.O. Wilson is an icon of our times: a lord of the ants who sought to explain nature on earth and who now fights for its survival through his worldwide conservation efforts. Actor and environmentalist Harrison Ford narrates this engaging portrait of a ceaselessly active scientist and eloquent writer, who has accumulated two Pulitzer Prizes among his many other honors.

For the first time on television, NOVA exposes the hidden world of the high-tech, 21st century eavesdropping carried out by the National Security Agency or NSA. Today, the NSA is the world's largest intelligence agency, three times the size of the CIA and far more secret. Its mission is to eavesdrop on the world - from cell phones in Europe to pay phones in Afghanistan to e-mail messages from Pakistan to Baghdad. But since 9/11, it has also turned its giant ear inward, listening in without warrant on thousands of American citizens, many of whom are on the government's secret watch list, now more than half-a-million names long. Based on the latest bestseller by journalist James Bamford, INSIDE THE SPY FACTORY is a gripping investigation of the NSA from its tragic failures leading up to the 9/11 attacks to its secret listening rooms currently installed in the nation's telecom networks.

On the 150th anniversary of the publication of Darwin's famous On the Origin of Species, NOVA reveals answers to the riddles that Darwin couldn't explain. Stunning breakthroughs in a new science - nicknamed "evo devo" - are linking the enigma of origins to another of nature's great mysteries: the development of an embryo. To explore this exciting new idea, NOVA takes viewers on a journey from the Galapagos Islands to the Arctic, from the Cambrian explosion of animal forms half a billion years ago to the research labs of today. Here, scientists are finally beginning to crack nature's biggest secrets at the genetic level. And, as NOVA shows in this absorbing detective story, the results are confirming the brilliance of Darwin's insights, while exposing clues to life's breathtaking diversity in ways he could scarcely have imagined.

NOVA presents a comprehensive three-part, three-hour special-investigating explosive new discoveries that are transforming the picture of how we became human. The first program explores fresh clues about our earliest ancestors in Africa, including the stunningly complete fossil nicknamed "Lucy's Child." These three-million-year-old bones from Ethiopia reveal humanity's oldest and most telltale trait-upright walking rather than a big brain. The second program tackles the mysteries of how our ancestors managed to survive in a savannah teeming with vicious predators, and when and why we first left our African cradle to colonize every corner of the Earth. In the final program, NOVA probes a wave of dramatic new evidence, based partly on cutting-edge DNA analysis, that reveals new insights into how we became the creative and "behaviorally modern" humans of today, and what really happened to the enigmatic Neanderthals who faded into extinction. Shot "in the trenches" as discoveries were unearthed throughout Africa and Europe, each hour of Becoming Human unfolds with a forensic investigation into the life and death of a specific hominid ancestor, such as Lucy's Child. Dry bones spring back to vivid life with stunning animation, the product of a unique NOVA collaboration between top anthropologists and a talented team of movie animators.

The first program explores fresh clues about our earliest ancestors in Africa, including the stunningly complete fossil nicknamed "Lucy's Child." These three-million-year-old bones from Ethiopia reveal humanity's oldest and most telltale trait-upright walking rather than a big brain. The second program tackles the mysteries of how our ancestors managed to survive in a savannah teeming with vicious predators, and when and why we first left our African cradle to colonize every corner of the Earth. In the final program, NOVA probes a wave of dramatic new evidence, based partly on cutting-edge DNA analysis, that reveals new insights into how we became the creative and "behaviorally modern" humans of today, and what really happened to the enigmatic Neanderthals who faded into extinction. Shot "in the trenches" as discoveries were unearthed throughout Africa and Europe, each hour of Becoming Human unfolds with a forensic investigation into the life and death of a specific hominid ancestor, such as Lucy's Child. Dry bones spring back to vivid life with stunning animation, the product of a unique NOVA collaboration between top anthropologists and a talented team of movie animators.

NOVA presents a comprehensive three-part, three-hour special-investigating explosive new discoveries that are transforming the picture of how we became human. The first program explores fresh clues about our earliest ancestors in Africa, including the stunningly complete fossil nicknamed "Lucy's Child." These three-million-year-old bones from Ethiopia reveal humanity's oldest and most telltale trait-upright walking rather than a big brain. The second program tackles the mysteries of how our ancestors managed to survive in a savannah teeming with vicious predators, and when and why we first left our African cradle to colonize every corner of the Earth. In the final program, NOVA probes a wave of dramatic new evidence, based partly on cutting-edge DNA analysis, that reveals new insights into how we became the creative and "behaviorally modern" humans of today, and what really happened to the enigmatic Neanderthals who faded into extinction. Shot "in the trenches" as discoveries were unearthed throughout Africa and Europe, each hour of Becoming Human unfolds with a forensic investigation into the life and death of a specific hominid ancestor, such as Lucy's Child. Dry bones spring back to vivid life with stunning animation, the product of a unique NOVA collaboration between top anthropologists and a talented team of movie animators.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

Haiti Six Months Later: This week marked the 6 month anniversary of the devastating earthquake in Haiti, which killed more than 230,000 people. Humanitarian groups say while there has been some recovery, an overwhelming amount of work still needs to be done. Ethical Eating: Religious communities are part of a growing movement across America that is concerned with the ethics of how food is grown and how it gets to our tables. Norman Wirzba Extended Interview: "Every time you eat, you give expression to what you think the world ought to be," says Norman Wirzba, a professor of theology, ecology, and rural life at Duke Divinity School. Abraham Verghese: The vocation of healing is a central theme in the acclaimed novel "Cutting for Stone" by Abraham Verghese, who writes that doctors "must believe that ministering to others will heal our woundedness. And it can. But it can also deepen the wound." Abraham Verghese Extended Interview: "Patients require that one-on-one encounter, the Samaritan function of being a physician," says writer and Stanford Medical School professor Abraham Verghese. "I'm convinced that when the physician examines the patient, this is an incredibly important ritual."

On April 21st, 1918, Manfred von Richthofen, Germany's most feared fighter ace, known as the "Red Baron," took off on patrol over the Somme valley with his notorious red-painted "Flying Circus." What happened next has divided historians and air buffs for decades. NOVA's exciting new investigation of the Red Baron's death presents newly discovered documents that overturn the conventional theory of von Richthofen's demise. In accounting for the Baron's singular success, NOVA explores the origins of the first fighter planes and the evolution of aerial tactics. NOVA presents a gripping investigation of what went wrong when two Boeing 747 airliners collided in thick fog on the runway at a tiny airport in the Canary Islands, killing 583 passengers and crew - the worst loss of life in any air disaster. With heart-breaking survivor interviews, re-enactments and a detective story approach, NOVA pieces together the clues that led to a fatal take-off decision by the highly experienced captain of the KLM 747, who couldn't see the Pan Am 747 still parked on the runway, lost in the fog ahead of him. The disaster led to fundamental improvements in air safety, but experts worry that a repeat of the Tenerife disaster could still happen.

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

Format: Documentary
Segment Length: 00:56:46

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

Twenty kilometers a year: Need to Know features a dramatic video report from Sean Smith, a reporter for The Guardian in London, who embedded with U.S. soldiers on the front lines of battle in Afghanistan. Institutional corruption in Afghanistan: Tom Gregg of New York University's Center on International Cooperation speaks with Jon Meacham about the challenges the Obama administration faces in restoring security to Afghanistan. Cottage industry: An alternative to nursing homes, state-licensed "adult family homes" house up to six seniors in private homes in Washington State. But Seattle Times investigative reporter Michael Berens found the homes rife with abuse and neglect. Jon Meacham on 'Superlativism': As the midterm elections near, Jon Meacham cautions us against the belief that everything that happens in our time is the "most" this or the "worst" that, as some pundits would have us believe. The thin green line: A new report has found that, in spite of the recession, cities are investing in urban parks. Alison Stewart tours one such park - an old elevated rail line in New York City. Next week's news: The finale: Sadly, this is Andy Borowitz's last week on Need to Know. In this retrospective, Andy looks back at the best of his prognostications, and reveals his next career move.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

Twenty kilometers a year: Need to Know features a dramatic video report from Sean Smith, a reporter for The Guardian in London, who embedded with U.S. soldiers on the front lines of battle in Afghanistan. Institutional corruption in Afghanistan: Tom Gregg of New York Universtiy's Center on International Cooperation speaks with Jon Meacham about the challenges the Obama administration faces in restoring security to Afghanistan. Cottage industry: An alternative to nursing homes, state-licensed "adult family homes" house up to six seniors in private homes in Washington State. But Seattle Times investigative reporter Michael Berens found the homes rife with abuse and neglect. Jon Meacham on 'Superlativism': As the midterm elections near, Jon Meacham cautions us against the belief that everything that happens in our time is the "most" this or the "worst" that, as some pundits would have us believe. The thin green line: A new report has found that, in spite of the recession, cities are investing in urban parks. Alison Stewart tours one such park - an old elevated rail line in New York City. Next week's news: The finale: Sadly, this is Andy Borowitz's last week on Need to Know. In this retrospective, Andy looks back at the best of his prognostications, and reveals his next career move.

Length: 60 minutes
Airdate: 7/22/2010 5:00:00 AM

Segment Length: 00:00:00

In 1947, a B-29, on a secret reconnaissance mission over Russia, became lost over the North Pole. The pilot made an emergency landing in Greenland, and the crew was rescued. This program follows pilot Darryl Greenamyer as he heads an expedition into the Arctic to rescue the downed B-29. Battling unpredictable weather, an unforgiving landscape, limited equipment, illness and fatigue, his team rushes to refurbish the plane before the harsh winter sets in. The second half of the program focuses on the Titanic's sister ship, the Britannic. Few people realize that the Titanic had two nearly identical sister ships, the Olympic and the Britannic. The Olympic had a successful career as a liner until she broke up in 1935, but the Britannic met a fate almost as unlucky as the Titanic's. Serving as a hospital ship in the Aegean, it was either torpedoed or struck a mine on November 21, 1916, and sank within an hour, yet only thirty of the crew of 1,100 died. Nova joins the search for the wreck of the Britannic and explores the evidence of its dramatic end.

On April 21st, 1918, Manfred von Richthofen, Germany's most feared fighter ace, known as the "Red Baron," took off on patrol over the Somme valley with his notorious red-painted "Flying Circus." What happened next has divided historians and air buffs for decades. NOVA's exciting new investigation of the Red Baron's death presents newly discovered documents that overturn the conventional theory of von Richthofen's demise. In accounting for the Baron's singular success, NOVA explores the origins of the first fighter planes and the evolution of aerial tactics. The show features thrilling re-enactments of hair-raising duels between the fragile fighters of World War I.

For the first time on television, NOVA exposes the hidden world of the high-tech, 21st century eavesdropping carried out by the National Security Agency or NSA. Today, the NSA is the world's largest intelligence agency, three times the size of the CIA and far more secret. Its mission is to eavesdrop on the world - from cell phones in Europe to pay phones in Afghanistan to e-mail messages from Pakistan to Baghdad. But since 9/11, it has also turned its giant ear inward, listening in without warrant on thousands of American citizens, many of whom are on the government's secret watch list, now more than half-a-million names long. Based on the latest bestseller by journalist James Bamford, INSIDE THE SPY FACTORY is a gripping investigation of the NSA from its tragic failures leading up to the 9/11 attacks to its secret listening rooms currently installed in the nation's telecom networks.

On call 24 hours a day for the past five years, a group of senior citizens has made history by greeting nearly 800,000 American troops at a tiny airport in Bangor, Maine. "The Way We Get By" is an intimate look at three of these greeters as they confront the universal losses that come with aging and rediscover their reason for living. Bill Knight, Jerry Mundy and Joan Gaudet find the strength to overcome their personal battles and transform their lives through service. This inspirational and surprising story shatters the stereotypes of today's senior citizens as the greeters redefine the meaning of community.

Fishermen of the Gulf: According to U.S. government figures, more than 40,000 people have been brought in to help clean up the oil and deal with the crisis. But many in the fishing industry say they haven't been able to get work, and they don't know when they'll be able to resume their livelihoods. Spiritual Implications of the Oil Spill: Watch more from New Orleans Roman Catholic Archbishop Gregory Aymond, Margaret Dubuisson of Catholic Charities of New Orleans, and Rev. John Dee Jeffries of the First Baptist Church of Chalmette on the spiritual toll of the Gulf Coast oil spill crisis. Disappearing Christians of Iraq: At the time of Saddam Hussein's overthrow, about one million Christians lived in Iraq. Now a third of the Christian community has fled the country in order to escape growing violence and Muslim hostility.

It is the summer of 1982 and Ronald Reagan has decided to replace his Secretary of State. The man he has chosen for the job is George Shultz. A brief biography introduces us to this remarkable man who has been a respected academic, a corporate leader and Secretary of the Treasury. In 1982 the world is in turmoil as the new Secretary takes over. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger openly opposes Shultz' initiatives for a peace-keeping force. In this first episode of "Turmoil and Triumph," one crisis after another boils over from the Middle East to news that the CIA is secretly aiding Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Despite strenuous opposition from many of Reagan's advisors, Shultz secretly arranges for Regan to meet the Soviet Ambassador to the United States. This episode ends as the successes of Shultz' skillful negotiations are shattered with the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon.

A ceremonial welcome greets George Shultz and Ronald Reagan as the second episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" opens in Japan. After a successful trade negotiation the scene quickly shifts to the Philippines where dissident Nimoy Aquino is assassinated and the island nation is thrown into turmoil. The first weapons in the still secret arms for hostages deal arrive in Iran and Reagan is sworn in for his second term. Shultz begins to set up a summit meeting with the new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, although others in the administration are opposed. Shultz perseveres and a pre-summit is held in Geneva. As successful negotiations come to a close, the Philippines boils over and despite White House staff objections Shultz persuades Reagan to abandon the dictator Ferdinand Marcos and recognize the democratically elected Cory Aquino as the new Philippine leader.

On the 4th of July, 1986 Ronald Reagan is at the peak of his popularity. Yet John Poindexter and others in the White House are up to no good. Shultz is left out of the loop as the Iran Contra scandal festers. George Shultz remains focused on what he sees as the highest priority: a summit meeting in Reykjavik between his president and Mikhail Gorbachev. Although the summit is a tremendous breakthrough in superpower relations, Reagan and Gorbachev miss the chance to eliminate all nuclear weapons. As Shultz arrives home the Iran Contra scandal becomes embarrassingly public and on CBS's "Face the Nation" Shultz risks his job by telling the truth. Still his major goal remains a nuclear free world to which Reagan and Gorbachev move one step closer with a record cut of nuclear weapons. In 1989 George Shultz leaves the State Department where he has earned accolades as one of America's ablest Secretaries of State. We follow the Secretary back home to the world of ideas and his position as a Fellow at the Hoover Institution. As this final episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" concludes, George Shultz continues to travel the world seeking an end to nuclear weapons.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapierre, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration.

And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies." Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burris (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Covering these stories this week: John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, and Dana Priest of the Washington Post.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Political broadcasts, Pentagon costs cutting, and this debatable question--is Washington broken--we'll talk about it all tonight on Washington Week. Linda McMahon, Connecticut Republican GOP Senate Candidate, said, "They don't want to send the same politicians to Washington and get the same politics out of Washington. Ken Buck, Colorado Republican Senate Candidate said, "It is time Republicans started acting like Republicans." Outsiders rule. Political novices and upstarts carry the day in the latest round of primaries, as running against Washington becomes all the rage. Will a presidential endorsement help or hurt in the fall? Senator Michael Bennet (D-CO) said, "We'll have to see. We'll obviously do what's right for the campaign." Or do polls and tea parties prove the pox is on both houses? In Washington, Pentagon Chief Robert Gates proposes slashing military spending. And not everybody's happy about it. Representative Randy Forbes (R-VA) said, "What we're witnessing is the piecemeal auctioning off of the greatest military the world has ever known." Does all this mean that Washington is broken? And if it is, why is everybody still trying to get here? Covering the week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

Political broadcasts, Pentagon costs cutting, and this debatable question:--is Washington broken--we'll talk about it all tonight on Washington Week. Linda McMahon, Connecticut Republican GOP Senate Candidate, said, "They don't want to send the same politicians to Washington and get the same politics out of Washington. Ken Buck, Colorado Republican Senate Candidate said, "It is time Republicans started acting like Republicans." Outsiders rule. Political novices and upstarts carry the day in the latest round of primaries, as running against Washington becomes all the rage. Will a presidential endorsement help or hurt in the fall? Senator Michael Bennet (D-CO) said, "We'll have to see. We'll obviously do what's right for the campaign." Or do polls and tea partiers prove the pox is on both houses? In Washington, Pentagon Chief Robert Gates proposes slashing military spending. And not everybody's happy about it. Representative Randy Forbes (R-VA) said, "What we're witnessing is the piecemeal auctioning off of the greatest military the world has ever known." Does all this mean that Washington is broken? And if it is, why is everybody still trying to get here? Covering the week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

A fresh try for Middle East peace; stepping back in Iraq; drumming up campaign money; and the politics of Islam--tonight, on Washington Week. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "I've invited Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and Palestinian Authority President Abbas to meet on September 2nd in Washington, D.C." The Obama administration dives head first back into the thorny and historically difficult Middle East peace process. What's different this time? U.S. troops celebrate the long promised pullout from Iraq. U.S. SOLDIER: We won. It's over. America, we brought democracy to Iraq. But events there, in Afghanistan and in Pakistan show it's more complicated than that. At home, Democrats and Republicans raise money hand over fist for the midterm elections. Tim Kaine, Chairman, Democratic National Committee, said, "We'll be able to put more money into the midterms by far than we've ever put in, probably north of $50 million. And the presidential events are huge." And as the president steps into the debate about a New York mosque, saying, "The answer is no regrets." A secondary discussion builds. Gov. Chris Christie (R-NJ) said, "It's being used as a political football by both parties." How do Americans view Islam? And why do so many think their president is Muslim? Franklin Graham, Evangelist, said, "I think the president's problem is that he was born a Muslim." Really? Covering the week: Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Martha Raddatz of ABC News, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Made in L.A. is an Emmy Award-winning feature documentary that follows three Latina immigrants working in Los Angeles garment sweatshops as they embark on a three-year odyssey to win basic labor protections from trendy clothing retailer Forever 21. In intimate observational style, Made in L.A. reveals the impact of the struggle on each woman's life as they are gradually transformed by the experience. Made in L.A. is a story about immigration, the power of unity, and the courage it takes to find your voice. Shown with The First Kid to Learn English from Mexico.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

Faith and the Brain: "Being religious or spiritual has a very profound effect on our biology and our brain," says neuroscientist Andrew Newberg. "It can change our brain and change ourselves over time." Father Leo: "What binds us together and what binds God to us is food," says Father Leo Patalinghug, a Roman Catholic priest who has his own cooking show. Father Leo Extended Interview: Read more of Kim Lawton's interview with Father Leo and watch him talk about his television cook-off with celebrity chef and restaurateur Bobby Flay. Jewish Children's Museum: An interactive museum in Brooklyn teaches children and their families the universal values rooted in Jewish tradition.

The Limits of Religious Tolerance: University of Notre Dame history professor Scott Appleby assesses the present moment and analyzes the anxiety, fear, and conflict currently in evidence on the American religious scene. Muslims Combating Extremism: "We want to prove to America that we are not terrorist suspects," says Imam Mahdi Bray. U.S. Islamic groups have launched several projects to fight extremism within their own communities, particularly among young people. Photographer Monk: Photography, according to Abbot Barnabas Senecal of St. Benedict's Abbey in Atchison, Kansas, is an exercise in monastic mindfulness, and he says his pictures express "being aware of the presence of God with you and in the world." Abbot Senecal Extended Interview: Abbot Barnabas Senecal, a Benedictine monk, reflects on the Psalms, prayer, photography, and the Benedictine desire "to seek God daily."
