Our great city has quite a few historical preservation buildings and homes. Why is that important? Many of the structures are uniquely designed and cannot be replicated today. That's the good news. The bad news is some legislators in Lansing want to change how we protect those structures...to make way for newer buildings.

"On the Line" this morning, we are welcoming a woman who works tirelessly to protect these magnificent structures, Ellen Thackery. Ellen is a Field Representative for Michigan Historic Preservation Network. Good morning, Ellen.
