Issue: NM economy

WE RAN THE FOLLOWING PROGRAM TO ADDRESS IT (Title): Here & There

Date: Oct 24 Time of day: 5:07pm Duration: 51min

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF PROGRAM (Format, participants, content, etc.): For decades, Hollywood came to New Mexico. To film. The Land of Enchantment was largely the backdrop of movies. Because it's beautiful. And not so far from L.A. And inexpensive. Now, Albuquerque is becoming a production center...Netflix and NBC Universal have signed 10-year deals with the city. Is this good news? Journalist and author Meredith Jordan says - definitely, yes. Although she's seen the entertainment economy boom in Georgia and then go bust.

Date: Nov 4 Time of day: 5:07pm Duration: 51min

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF PROGRAM (Format, participants, content, etc.): For the 7 years I've been in New Mexico, the guiding principle on diverting the Gila River was "use it or lose it." Use the water in NM before it gets to AZ, use "free" Federal money whenever you can get it. Environment reporter Laura Paskus on how using the Gila River has become a lose-lose proposition, with incredibly shrinking plans having less and less chance of ever happening. With $14 million already spent.

Issue: impacts of the Permian Basin oil boom

WE RAN THE FOLLOWING PROGRAM TO ADDRESS IT (Title): Here and There

Date: Nov 5 Time of day: 5:07pm Duration: 51min

Issue: community mental health
WE RAN THE FOLLOWING PROGRAM TO ADDRESS IT (Title): Wake Up Call
Date: Nov 6 Time of day: 8:30am Duration: 22min
BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF PROGRAM (Format, participants, content, etc.): David Linke, Concha Garcia Allen, Louisa Putman, and Kermit Cole gather to discuss the impact families feel who are dealing with a family member experiencing a mental health crisis. The dubious nature of what we call "mental illness" often leads many families to be deeply divided over the very interpretation of what they see their family member experiencing and what we today call "mental illness". Thrust into the unknown, it can be a scary time where fears runs high and family unity can often go by the wayside as they try to navigate their way through how best to deal with it.
