January of 2024...

- Jan. 1 -- News Director Terry Frank takes a look back on 2023... with audio highlights of several major stories that were news over the past 12 months. Those included the late swearing-in of new Congressman Nick Langworthy, who's oath of office was slowed by the process of selecting a new Speaker. Calif. Republican Kevin McCarthy wound up winning after 15 rounds of voting. There's also the story of 18 year-old Tucker Richard, who was accused of shooting 57 year-old Scott Blake to death during a domestic incident in the town of Ellicott. The biggest story of the year was the two manhunts... and, jail escape of 35 year-old Michael Burham. Burham is accused of shooting and killing 34 year-old Kala Hodgkin in the early morning hours of last May 11, and then fleeing to Warren Co., Pa., where he kidnapped an elderly couple and forced them to accompany him to South Carolina... where he was captured later in the month. However... he escaped in July from the Warren Co. Jail, leading to another manhunt that ended just days later. Other significant stories from 2023 were the double-fatal plane crash near the Chautauqua County Airport near Jamestown... the setting of a trial date for the man accused of assaulting Author Salmon Rushdie... and, the fire that destroyed the Colony Motel in West Ellicott. Contact: Terry Frank, News Dir. at Media One Radio Group at (716) 487-1151. Ext. 201.

- Jan. 8 -- We begin the new year with News Director Terry Frank speaking with Chautauqua County Executive P.J. Wendel on a number of topics... including our lack of snow up this point in Winter. Wendel says it's a positive on the county's spending because you don't have to use road salt, or pay overtime to plow truck drivers. On the other hand... he says it hurts the county because the tourism dollars aren't coming from people who come here to ski, or snowmobile. We also discuss the start of the new legislature, which is now made up of 14 Republicans, and five Democrats. That's one more Democrat than was on the panel the past two years. He also clarifies why county taxes in the city of Jamestown are going up. Wendel says that's because the city's equalization rate has gone down because they're not at 100% assessment. He also discusses structural changes in county government... and what's happening with New York state. Wendel concluded by saying that he planned to attend New York Gov. Kathy Hochul's State of the State Address on Jan. 9. Contact: County Exec. P.J. Wendel. Office Phone is (716) 753-4211.

- Jan. 15 - Newly-re-elected Jamestown City Council President Tony Dolce joins our Terry Frank this week for his "delayed" year-end review of city government. Typically, we invite Mr. Dolce in during the final part of December to discuss the past year, but, this year the program had to wait until now. We generally discuss what he calls a "crazy" 2023 due in large part to having to decide where the bulk of the city's $28-million American Rescue Plan Act funding will go. He adds that last November's elections, where former At-large Councilwoman Kim Ecklund was elected, along with two new council members, Russ Bonfiglio, and Joe Paterniti. We also discuss changes to the 2024 budget with a projected $2.5-million budget. Dolce says there could be more changes made in the new year because $1.6-million was taken care of last December. We also discuss economic development... including the Furniture Mart, a larger Tim Horton's Cafe and former Jamestown Brewery building. Contact: City Council President Tony Dolce at (716) 969-2559.

- Jan. 22 - This week, our Terry Frank speaks with Administrator Shannon Anzalone from Lutheran's Hultquist Place Assisted Living. She talks about the differences between nursing homes, and assisted living. She says there's more "acute care" involved with nursing homes, and rehabilitation facilities. She says many people lump both nursing home care, and assisted living together as the same. However... Anzalone says assisted living allows people, who are more ambulatory, can come and go. She says those in assisted living tend to be more independent than those in acute nursing care. Anzalone says they do have medication assistance, and, other services available to residents who need them. Anzalone says they do have beds available at Hultquist Place, and they also need employees. If you have any questions or need more information, she says you can get that by calling them at (716)720-9610... or you can go to their website at "Hultquist Place" or Lutheran." They are located at 715 Falconer St. in Jamestown. Contact: Shannon Anzalone at Lutheran at (716)720-9610.

- Jan. 29 - This week... our Terry Frank airs an interview WJTN-AM Morning Man Dennis Webster did recently with Chautauqua County Humane Society Executive Director Kellie Roberts, who confirms the closing of the society's Second Chance's Thrift Store in the Fairmount Plaza on Fairmount Avenue in West Ellicott. Roberts says after looking at everything they could do the past two years, including not having recovered from a revenue stand-point, the Humane Society's board decided to close it. She says they also need to "work ahead" on meeting New York State's new Shelter Standards law for animal shelters. Roberts says it wasn't just store sales that led to the lower revenues, but, there was also a recycling program they ran, and other programs. Roberts says the Humane Society is in fairly good shape to meet the state's requirements. However, they may need to either expand, or find a new facility. Contact person: Kellie Roberts at CCHS at (716)665-2209.

February 2024...

- Feb. 5 -- Chautauqua County Executive P.J. Wendel joins our Terry Frank this week to discuss three major topics... the first being the recent presentation of the initial report from the Jefferson Project, which has been doing research on Chautauqua Lake this past three years. Wendel says the more than 60-page report includes a significant amount of data in it... including the fact the south and north basins are both completely different bodies of water. He says - even if all nutrient loading - including Phosphorous and nitrogen - was ended today it would still take years for the lake to return to it's best days. He says dredging, at least strategically, may be the best way to help -- especially in the shallower south basin. He says in the coming year... they believe they have enough information to be able to "attack" the weed and harmful algal bloom issues. We also discuss the county being ready for what is believed to be a significant influx of people to view the Apr. 8 Total Solar Eclipse. He says the recent request for some additional equipment for the county's Department of Emergency Services was definately needed. Wendel says most hotels are already full for that time period. We also preview the upcoming State of the County Address... and Wendel says a big part of that will be the record amount of industrial development funding in the past year... along with the need for more housing... and, a new initiative: "Vision '24." He says that involves a plan to upgrade county facilities across the Chautauqua County.

- Feb. 12 - Our Terry Frank welcomes Jamestown Mayor Kim Ecklund for the first time as mayor to the program to discuss a number of issues. First... though is a question about how the first month of the job has gone. Ecklund says it's been "fairly smooth," with just a few bumps in the road. She says the main thing she's been doing is meeting with department heads and other key employees about what she wants to see done in the city. We discuss the hiring of primary Assessor Heather Young-Deyell, who will be part-time. She adds Annie Golley will be the assistant. Ecklund says both are state-certified assessors. We also discuss whether the city will hire a Deputy Comptroller because that was to be an American Rescue Plan Act hire. She adds they want to see what kind of ARPA funding they have remaining. We also discuss Chautauqua County officials coming to talk with the city council discuss a proposal to do a special study of potential flyers that could take advantage of commercial air service at the County Airport near Jamestown. Contact: Mayor Kim Ecklund. Phone #(716)483-7600.

- Feb. 19 - Our Terry Frank presents excerpts of his interview with 150th District State Assemblyman Andy Goodell about New York Gov. Kathy Hochul's proposed $233-billion, 2024-25 budget. Goodell says the governor addresses a significant number of major issues in the spending plan, which he agrees need to be addressed. However... in some cases he says Hochul is just "throwing money" at the problem instead of actually addressing the cause. As an example, he says there is more money for the prosecution of retail theft crimes. But, at the same time, some prosecutors aren't really prosecuting them when they should be. He also says there are concerns about housing and the need for more affordable housing. However... he says part of the problem is changes to eviction laws... which were on a moratorium for two-years during the COVID-19 Pandemic. He is also critical of the governor's 2.4-billion allocation to help migrants... mainly in New York City. However... Goodell says the problem has been exacerbated by New York's "Sanctuary State" status. He also talks about education funding, and his committee assignments. He's again Minority Floor Leader Pro-Temp, and is on the Social Services, and Government Operations Committees. Contact: Assemblyman Andy Goodell. Phone # (716)450-3825.

- Feb. 26 - We lighten up the mood a little on this week's program as our Terry Frank speaks with Bemus Point's Wendy Lewellen who recently published a book about Chautauqua Rails to Trails. The book is entitled: "Good Soles: Chautauqua Rails to Trails Namesakes and Trailblazers..." and we discuss the genesis of the book... which began after she became involved with the organization and was asked to archive their material. Her interest in trails was peaked when she lived in Colorado a couple of years, and enjoyed their many trails. She wanted to know more about trails locally, and had written not only about the start of the organization, but, what's behind the naming of 10 of the 28.1-miles of trails. We also discuss the book, which was published locally by Falconer Printing and Design... and where it can be found. Wendy says it can be found for sale at Loud Performance, Webb's Candies, the Musky Mall, Lawson Center in Bemus Point, or you can go on-line to chaurtt.org.donate.

March of 2024...

- Mar. 3 -- This week, our Terry Frank talks via phone with 57th New York State District Senator George Borrello, mainly on three different topics. The first is the state legislature's approval last week of new Congressional District boundary lines... a process Borrello says he had hoped that the legislature would adhere to. While not happy with the final district lines, he says the legislature basically tossed aside the state's bi-partisan, Independent Review Commission's plan... which had been approved, 9-1. He agrees with good government leaders who say the process has failed. We also get an update on the 2024-25 budget process... which Borrello says is moving along, but, adds a final spending plan is unlikely to be approved by the Apr. 1 deadline. The Sunset Bay Republican says he's most disappointed in Gov. Kathy Hochul's proposal to provide New York City with $2.4-billion in funding to deal with the migrant crisis. He adds that even some of that money could help New York's public schools without any of them being adversely impacted by a proposal by the governor to eliminate the "safe harmless" clause that directs Foundation Aid to each school never to be lowered in the budget. Several schools in Chautauqua County are facing those potential cuts. We also discuss Borrello's recent announcement that he's running for another term in the state Senate. Contact: State Senator George Borrello. Phone # (716)913-8885.

- Mar. 10 - News Director Terry Frank talks with Chautauqua County Executive P.J. Wendel this week on three significant topics. The first is a proposal by the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation to designate the Burtis Bay area of Chautauqua Lake as a wetlands area. Wendel says it's a "very concerning" plan that could lead to more -- or all of the south basin -- having that designation. However... he says the belief that property owners aren't going to be allowed to put out docks, or use boats on the lake is "absurd." He says both state and federal leaders have made "significant" investments in Chautauqua Lake -- "as a lake." The new designations would take effect next January unless changes are made... and, Wendel says the county will continue discussions with state DEC officials about it. Wendel also says the order to release $70-million of funding to build a new Brook's Hospital in the Dunkirk-Fredonia-area remains on Gov. Kathy Hochul's desk. He also discusses proposed use of American Rescue Plan Act funding to expand broadband in Chautauqua County. He also discusses being part of a state Association of Counties contingent that will go to the southern border to see impacts of the ongoing migrant crisis.

- Mar. 17 - Our Terry Frank welcomes Jamestown Mayor Kim Ecklund back to the program to discuss a number of topics... led by this week's tragic fire at the Senior High Rise on West Fifth Street. Ecklund says there were plenty of anxious moments, including the fire dept. calling for 20 additional firefighters. However... she says they attacked and contained the blaze quickly... limiting it mainly to the one apartment on the seventh-floor. That's where one resident was found dead. She also commended all the mutual aid agencies on hand that helped to successfully evacuate the remaining residents from the building. She says it drives home the need for people to be prepared for a fire, and have working smoke detectors. Ecklund says the city is teaming up next weekend with the local American Red Cross for a "Sound the Alarm" event to get working smoke detectors into at least 90 homes. We also talk about the mayor beginning her efforts to meet as many business owners as possible during the early part of her term... first, with those that received American Rescue Plan Act funding from the federal government. We also talk about restarting the city's Strategic Planning and Partnerships Commission, and the upcoming annual Easter Egg Hunt at Allen Park. Contact: Mayor Kim Ecklund. Office Phone #(716) 483-7600.

- Mar. 24 - This week... News Director Terry Frank highlights a recent press conference held by local leaders to help local residents prepare for the Total Solar Eclipse coming up on Monday, Apr. 8. County Executive P.J. Wendel stressed the need for people to wear the proper Eclipse Glasses... which are now available through the county, and most local municipalities. Several libraries also have a supply of glasses to make sure residents are well equipped. Emergency Services Dir. Noel Guttman also stressed safety, and the fact people should expect more traffic the weekend in advance of the eclipse, through the day after. Eye safety was further stressed by County Public Health Director Lacey Wilson, and County Physician Dr. Michael Faulk. Dr. Faulk further discussed what kind of damage can be done to the eye if you look directly into the sun that day. He says it's called "Solar Retinopathy..." and can last a few days to several days or longer. Chautauqua County Visitors Bureau Director Andrew Nixon, and Chautauqua County Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Dan Heitzenrater further discuss the expected influx of thousands of people to the region to get a look at the eclipse... which will take place between 2 and 4 p.m. on Apr. 8. Contact: County Exec. P.J. Wendel. Phone #(716)753-4211.

- Mar. 31 - News Director Terry Frank gets a first-quarter update on economic development in Chautauqua County from Deputy County Executive, and Industrial Development Agency Chief Executive Officer, Mark Geise. They first discuss the IDA Board of Director's most recent meeting... in which low-interest loans totaling $725,000 were approved for three expansion and acquisition projects in the county. The first, for $400,000, went to the real estate company owned by Shults Auto Groups owners Tim and Ed Shults. It's part of a just over 1-million project to develop 60,000 square feet of space inside the former Quality Markets on Fluvanna Ave. -- across from their main dealership location. Smaller loans were approved for two other companies: LINC is acquiring the former Universal Tool Company in Gerry with the help of two loans... and, the other is for ENL in Silver Creek to help fulfill two customer contracts. We also get updates on the effort to help ElectroVaya get up and going in a 150,000 square foot facility, and efforts to create a new, 150-acre industrial park in the western part of the county. Contact: Mark Geise, Deputy Chautauqua Co. Executive for Economic Development, and IDA CEO. Phone #(716)661-8902.
