The Department of Defense has announced a new Navy task force in charge of shutting down the Red Hill fuel facility. Hawaii News Now spoke exclusively with military leaders shortly after that announcement. Mahealani Richardson joins us with the latest. The new task force in charge of removing the last remaining fuel, closing down the Red Hill fuel tank facility, and aquifer remediation is called the Navy Closure Task Force-Red Hill. Tonight we hear two military leaders who spoke exclusively on HNN's Spotlight Now on the transition from one task force to another. The new Navy Closure Task Force will have about 200 people and be lead by Rear Admiral Stephen Barnett who's continuing to serve as Commander of Navy Region Hawaii.	0:02:30

The city already granted permission for a shopping center. But our Ben Gutierrez says there's a growing push.. for a new Plan B. For years, there have been plans to develop this parcel of land behind me with the food trucks into a larger retail complex. Some North Shore residents say they want to see something else put the property. Small retailers now operate in the area across from Shark's Cove. But Hanapohaku LLC wants to build a 34-thousand foot shopping center, called McCully's corner - - with 126 parking stalls. The Honolulu City Council recently approved a two-year extension on the developer's permits.	0:02:30

And as the skies clear.. many people see the downpours as a blessing. Our Ben Gutierrez has tonight's top story. Hundreds of people are expected here on the grounds of Honolulu Hale tomorrow night for the start of the Honolulu City Lights holiday festivities. A lot of people may be looking at the sky to see if more rain will fall, but that rain has proved beneficial for for farmers and ranchers. The National Weather Service says the Kona low dropped up to a foot of rain on parts of the Big Island and Maui. But most areas, including Kauai and Oahu, got got about two to three inches over several days..	0:02:10
