Description: John and Maria discuss a popular movement that's gaining momentum in how young people build community. Relational minimalism cuts out people who are viewed as toxic, and it's problematic for our sense of unity.

Maria shares her thoughts on the media and culture frenzy surrounding Britney Spears. She shares some insights from Neil Postman regarding how we worship pop-culture and lose our bearings in the process.

John then highlights a false report that the world is being cured of Down Syndrome. New reports mask the fact that the world's way of resolving it is through abortion, which is misleading about what is actually happening.

Issue: Abortion
Time Aired: 12:30 PM, 5:25 PM
Duration: :60
Description: Dr. Stuart Derbyshire, a neuroscientist at the National University of Singapore made world headlines last year when he stated an unborn baby can feel pain at 12 weeks. His previous research said it was 24 weeks. The change was notable because he supports abortion and has worked for Planned Parenthood. Now, Dr. Derbyshire would like to know why the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, a prestigious and avid pro-abortion organization, still promotes his old, incorrect findings on its website. Under a headline that reads "Facts are Important" the text says, "the connections necessary to transmit signals from peripheral sensory nerves to the brain...do not develop until at least 24 weeks of gestation." When it comes to abortion, it's ideology over science.

Issue:	ACLU, Gnosticism, Prolife
Time Aired:	12:45 PM
Duration:	:60
Description:	On the anniversary of Ruth Bader Ginsberg's death, the ACLU celebrated the liberal justice's legacy with a slightly edited quote about abortion. Originally, Ginsberg wrote: "The decision whether or not to bear a child is central to a woman's life, to her well-being and dignity. It is a decision she must make for herself." In their Twitter post, the ACLU edited the words "woman," "her," and "she" out of Ginsberg's quote, replacing them with "[person]," "[they]," and "[them]" in brackets. The result was anything but quotable. Days later, the British medical journal the Lancet declared: "Historically, the anatomy and physiology of bodies with (word for female genitalia) have been neglected." If only there were a word for people who get pregnant and have female body parts. The push to separate women from their bodies is not only weird, it's gnostic. It denies the physical reality of who women are. You can't champion women's rights by denying who they are.

Maria then asks John about the federal government's budget deliberations. John examines why we struggle to understand the rise in national debt and the conflict surrounding the budget.

Date: 10/15/2021

Program Name: Life Issues

Issue: Euthanasia

Time Aired: 1 2: 30 PM, 5:2 5 PM

Duration: : 60

Description: You've heard me say assisted suicide is the start of a slippery slope to outright killing through euthanasia. Here's a case in point. Euthanasia is legal in Belgium but they're going beyond the legal limits with impunity. They've extended euthanasia to newborns and infants. It is so rampant that ten percent of all deaths of babies are actually euthanasia. A recent study looked at the issues driving this, but in a published article, the term euthanasia wasn't even used. What it boils down to, if physicians, and I use that term loosely, feel there is "no hope of a bearable future" euthanasia is a good choice. This means these babies are likely to survive but the doctors and their parents believe their lives aren't worth living. This kind of dangerous thinking is seeping into America

Date: 10/15/2021

Program Name: the Point

Issue: Olympics, Prolife

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: : 60

Description:

Last week, Olympic silver medalist Elinor Barker revealed she's expecting a baby and was, in fact, pregnant while cycling on the British women's team in Tokyo.

Barker's happy announcement comes in the wake of an amicus brief signed by 500 female athletes, asking the Supreme Court to keep abortion legal because without it, they argue, women athletes wouldn't be able to reach their full potential.

Barker joins a growing group of women with winning records who make the claims in the amicus brief seem, well, false. In announcing her pregnancy on social media, Barker thanked other athletes who are also moms. "Because of these women and many others," she wrote, "I didn't doubt the future of my career for one second."

Whose testimony seems more compelling: 500 women claiming it can't be done, or a woman who's not only tried, but succeeded?

The deeper question is what takes more courage: earning a silver medal in cycling while pregnant, or signing an amicus brief?

To close, John addresses the inner workings of the euthanasia movement through the story of a woman in Columbia who is battling ALS. Columbia recently authorized euthanasia for the terminally ill, but this woman's disease doesn't qualify. John also discusses the faithfulness of her grandmother, how aging with dignity is more whole in a Christian worldview.

Date: 10/21/2021
Program Name: The Point
Issue: Navy, Transgender
Time Aired: 12:45 PM
Duration: :60
Description:

Admiral Rachel Levine, a man who identifies as a transgender woman, was commissioned into the U.S. Public Health Service's Commissioned Corps. Officials called Levine's promotion "historic" because, they assured everyone, Levine was the first female four-star admiral in the Commissioned Corps.

When something like this is announced the way it was – surrounded by fanfare and reporters constantly reminding us that this is a woman – it's not cynical to wonder whether the job was earned by qualification or just a PR campaign. But it is unsettling to consider that the administration might promote someone more for the photo op than their abilities. And it's frankly condescending to the Admiral, though he didn't seem to see it that way.

This feels a lot less like a culture that's soberly "following the science" and a lot more like a culture heading "through the looking glass."

He broke the news to Zoey, a teacher, by phone as she stood before her class, just before informing her she was having an abortion. What arrogance. The couple was told to expect a grim medical future, that the baby would be stillborn, die soon after birth or be on permanent dialysis. None of this happened. I wish I could tell you it was a rare situation, but it's not. Visit today's broadcast link at lifeissues.org for a list of equally bad or worse behavior on the part of physicians who hold an antiquated and bigoted view toward babies with Down syndrome. Thinking that MD stands for medical deity. Parents should fire doctors who cross the line. Money talks when ethics won't.

Date: 10/29/2021

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Feminsim

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description:

Handmaid's Tale author Margaret Atwood became a feminist icon for her dystopian novel in which women are enslaved for the purpose of childbearing. Her writing is both the basis for a hit Hulu series and the unofficial mascot of the #MeToo movement.

Recently, Atwood retweeted an op-ed criticizing the use of phrases like "pregnant person" instead of "woman." "Why can't we say 'woman' anymore?" the article's author asked. And the backlash to Atwood's retweet was swift and vicious. Opinion pieces in USA Today and the Independent called her everything from "misguided" to "transphobic." She was compared with Harry Potter author J. K. Rowling, who has consistently rejected the trans narrative, and each of these onetime progressive heroines are now labeled a "TERF," or "trans-exclusionary radical feminist."

This conflict between the "F" and the "T" in the acronym is real. The feminism of Rowling and Atwood assumes that women are real and are oppressed by men. But those in the camp of T claim that "woman" is a self-identifying construct, which men can fairly appropriate. So what's coming in this narrative? Will feminism eventually be edited to exclude women?

Recently, a boy (who identifies as female) was convicted for having molested two teenage girls in two different schools. According to John, this real-world, and painful, situation is a consequence of ideological shifts about sex. These shifts embody the sexual revolution and is encapsulated in a White House statement on gender equity.

He refused, but another doctor did so, prompting the woman to deliver a 22-week-old infant. On today's edition of Family Talk, Dr. Jackson recounts that the patient's little baby, born alive, was wrapped in a cold, wet towel, and abandoned to die in a metal basin. Since that horrific moment, Dr. Jackson has been a passionate and staunch pro-life defender of the child in the womb.

Date: 11/5/2021

Program Name: The Point

Issue: China's Organ Harvesting, Worldview

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description:

According to a new report from the China Tribunal, the Chinese government is harvesting organs, essentially running a "kill to order" business of conscience dissidents from inside the Fulan Gong sect and Uyghur prison camps. They then remove organs from the dead.

The scale is stunning. Last year, China reported 20,000 organ transplants to the World Health Organization. Critics think the number is closer to 100,000. The numbers are staggering, but this is something that's been widely reported since 2006, with government documents from China outlining parts of the practice since the early 2000s.

Forced organ harvesting from minorities is barbaric. It's a consequence of the Chinese Communist Party's dehumanizing view of its citizens and its totalitarian methods, which are further reflected in its draconian birth policies. The continuation of this practice is enabled by an international community still pretending it isn't happening.

The test of a society, and the worldview driving it, isn't just what it promotes, but also what evil it confronts. Right now, the silence is telling.

Issue:	Abortion
Time Aired:	12:30 PM, 5:25 PM
Duration:	:60
Description:	Before abortion was legalized, pro-abortion activists claimed tens of thousands of women died from illegal back-alley abortions. One of those people, Dr. Bernard Nathanson, later admitted those numbers were totally false. According to the US Vital Statistics, only 39 women died from illegal abortions the year before Roe v Wade. Today the extreme pro-abortion organization called Occupy Democrats claims the same outrageous numbers. They also claim, "Roe was the end of women dying from abortions." This is another lie. Hundreds of women have died from legal abortions since Roe. And those are only the reported ones. Most go unreported. Abortion advocates will say and do anything to keep the lucrative abortion industry humming along while women and their babies suffer.

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Abortion
Time Aired: 12:45 PM
Duration: :60
Description:

On Saturday Night Live last week, in a sketch featuring “Goober the Clown,” Cecily Strong ridiculed Texas’ heartbeat law. Strong told her abortion story using “fun clown stuff” like balloon animals, a squirting flower, and a clown costume. The intent, I think, was to portray abortion as no big deal, not as dark and scary as it’s made out to be, and to suggest that women shouldn’t be forced to talk about it.

But the sketch came across awkward and sad. Perhaps Strong’s parody was actually rooted in her own deep pain. But if it’s really no big deal, why wouldn’t people be more excited about the freedom abortion supposedly brings?

Perhaps the pain so many women feel after abortion isn’t just from social stigma or new laws, but because of what abortion is: an act of violence perpetrated on both mother and child... which is why abortion is no laughing matter.

Program Name: Life Issues
Issue: Heartbeat Laws
Time Aired: 12:30 PM, 5:25 PM
Duration: :60
Description: Pro-abortion politicians warned the Texas law ending abortion when the baby's heartbeat can be detected would cause such public outrage, pro-life Republicans would pay at the ballot box. It doesn't look that way. Another poll shows a majority of Texans support the Heartbeat Act. A majority of women, men, and independents support the legislation. So do a majority of Latinos and Whites. About a quarter of the respondents think there should be exceptions for rape and incest, but a vast majority of them support the law even though they're not included. A similar poll in Missouri shows support for Heartbeat legislation there. Early reports indicate the number of abortions in Texas has been cut in half, with expectations even more babies will be spared in the coming months. Praise God!

Program Name: The Point
Issue: fertility, IVF
Time Aired: 12:45 PM
Duration: :60
Description: A California couple is suing a fertility clinic after discovering they gave birth to someone else's daughter. Apparently, there was a mix-up during their in vitro fertilization procedure in 2019. After a DNA test proved the mistake, the couple returned their baby girl to her genetic parents in return for their genetic daughter, whom they'd never met.

It's a mind-boggling story about a tragedy made possible by a culture quick to accept technology based on if we can do something instead of whether we should do it.

The focus of the news coverage so far has been on the parents, whom we're all meant to assume are the story's victims. While this was certainly heartbreaking for them, no one seems to be asking what this will do to the children.

That's true redemption indeed!

Program Name: Life Issues
Issue: Pro Life, Abortion, Abortion Pill
Time Aired: 12:30 PM 5:25 PM
Duration: :60
Description: Pro-abortion activists and the abortion industry are pushing to make the chemical abortion pill available by mail, without a face-to-face interaction with a licensed physician. This is dangerous for women, and of course fatal for the babies. The United Kingdom has already implemented this reckless system and is having big problems. Here's one example. Sarah Dunn, a mother of five, recently died from a do-it-yourself chemical abortion. One of the main complications is parts of the baby or placenta can be left behind, an open invitation for infection. This happened to Sarah, and she died from sepsis, even though she had follow up care with a physician. Chemical abortion is dangerous under the best of circumstances. Do-it-yourself abortion is back-alley abortion returned.

Issue:	Abortion, Supreme Court
Time Aired:	12:30 PM, 5:25 PM

Description:	My friend, tomorrow is a very important day in our efforts to protect America's unborn babies from abortion. The US Supreme Court will hear oral arguments regarding the Dobbs late-term abortion case. Attorneys from both sides will present arguments why they think the Court should uphold Mississippi's law protecting babies at 15 weeks in the womb or continue with the status quo of unbridled abortion until birth. Millions of lives hang in the balance, so I'm asking you to cover this event tomorrow in prayer. We must never underestimate the power of prayer. It's a tool worth more than gold to the babies and their parents. Abortion has taken an unfathomable toll on society. Over 62 million babies have been sacrificed on the altar of so-called "choice." Let's empower women and protect life.

Issue: Abortion
Time Aired: 12:30 PM, 5:25 PM
Duration: :60
Description: The government Centers for Disease Control released abortion numbers for 2019. Sadly, abortion increased in America by nearly two percent. Of the states that report these figures, about half reported an increase. The use of the chemical abortion pill is likely the cause for more abortions. It now accounts for about half of all abortions done. These latest figures show how state taxpayer funding of abortion impacts the number of babies killed. West Virginia stopped funding abortion and the number fell by over 20%. Illinois started funding abortions and the number of babies killed increased by nine percent. While the increase in our nation's abortions is tragic, the pro-life movement has sustained a long-term decline in the incidence of abortion. Let's pray we can save more.

Description:
To hear the NCAA tell the story, an average swimmer from the University of Pennsylvania became a nationally ranked superstar overnight. Check the receipts, and we learn Will Thomas only started breaking records and winning meets by comically huge margins when he began going by "Lia" Thomas this past year.

Similar incidents are increasingly happening in various sports at all levels, but swimming offers an especially clear picture of what it means when we allow men to compete against women. Success in swimming is heavily dependent on physiology. The length of the body, the body's center of gravity, and even the placement of a person's belly button can mean the difference between an average swimmer and a major competitor. A man can identify however he wants, and can even take dangerous hormone supplements, but his belly button isn't going anywhere.

This sort of let's-all-pretend-we-don't-know-what's-happening groupthink isn't good for college sports or for women's rights. It's not good for Lia Thomas, his teammates, or his competitors. No matter how fast he swims, no man really breaks a women's record.

Description: n God's perfect plan He's allowing us to see how women will benefit without abortion. The Supreme Court allowed the Texas Heartbeat Act to take effect. As a result, we're getting a ringside seat to see how women fare without abortion. After three months, abortion facilities are surprised that when they tell women they can't have an abortion, the women are stunned but most decide to have their babies. At the same time, pro-life pregnancy help centers are mobilizing to help women facing unexpected pregnancies. And Texas dedicated 100 million dollars to assist these women with practical help, both during and after their pregnancies. Plus, funding for the Healthy Texas Women program has been increased. Texas, like all other states, will be there to help empower women to choose life and thrive. It's God's way.

Issue: Roe vs Wade, Prolife

Time Aired: 12:30 PM, 5:25 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Two former clerks for Supreme Court Justice Samuel Alito payed close attention to the oral arguments on the Dobbs late-term abortion case. And they're convinced Roe v Wade will be overturned. One of them is Sherif Girgis a professor at Norte Dame University. The other is Megan Wold an attorney practicing appellate and constitutional law. They believe the justices signaled that Roe was wrongly decided and has been undermined by science and medicine that's a half-century old. Their assessment is Roe will be substantially weakened or more likely overruled. Either is a huge victory. I agree with their conclusions but am mindful Satan will be working overtime to keep his deadly tool of abortion. Therefore, we must continually pray for a compassionate outcome. He offers many reasons why. In one study, young women were told to use Instagram, Facebook, or play a simple video game. After just seven minutes of scrolling, the Instagram users, in particular, showed decreased body satisfaction and a negative emotional state. This isn't because of the amount of time on the site, but because of its design. Focusing on body image creates a trap that young people can't escape. "Instagram," he writes, "can loom in a girl's mind even when the app is not open, driving hours of obsessive thought, worry, and shame." What's worse, Haidt argues, big tech executives have known about this effect for years but have done little to stop it. They should be held accountable, but that accountability starts with parents. We shouldn't just look to the state to do what God has tasked parents with first, to fight for the hearts and minds of our kids.

Description:

Last year, the FDA lifted an important restriction on the “abortion pill,” a drug that induces abortion in early pregnancy by starving the preborn child. Prior to the pandemic, doctors were required to meet face-to-face with patients before prescribing the drug, but that requirement was lifted during the pandemic. Last week, the FDA made the policy change permanent.

This comes just as our culture, from psychological literature to the arts, has begun to understand miscarriage as real trauma, even if it is a loss not readily seen.

Part of the trauma is how hidden a miscarriage can feel. The abortion pill causes this trauma on purpose. Not only do many women report physical trauma after so-called “medical” abortion, but without a face-to-face visit, the mother is isolated from one less source of support and accountability.

This is not healthcare.

This is, however, the reality of what it will mean to advocate for the preborn in the days ahead. Hidden evil is allowed to flourish, we must work to change hearts and minds, no matter what the Supreme Court decides.

Description:

Two months ago, Apple quietly removed a Quran app and a Bible App from its app store in China at the request of the Chinese Communist Party. Apple claimed in a statement they had to do it because they have to, quote, “obey local laws.”

This is the same 2.8-trillion-dollar company with an “Inclusion and Diversity” initiative that claims, without a sense of irony, to hold a, quote, “long-standing commitment to making... the world more just.” According to its American website, that means hiring a more racially diverse group of employees. That’s great. It’s unclear how that helps the 1.4 billion people living under increasing religious oppression in China.

This is a good reminder. When companies like Apple throw around the word “inclusive,” it’s because they see a profit opportunity. When companies like Apple are happily complicit in outright oppression, it’s because they won’t risk a profit opportunity. If the day comes when American culture gives Apple an ultimatum: either nix the Bible here or lose your profit, we need only look to China to discover what they’d do.

Time Aired: 12:30 PM, 5:25 PM

Duration: :60

Description: My motto is the world needs more babies and Christmas trees. This week I'm sharing Scripture verses that help me keep that Christmassy feeling all year round. The thing that thrills our hearts at Christmas isn't the gifts, but the birth of the Christ child. Few things generate such elation for me as holding an infant – the miracle of life. Babies were often at the epicenter of major biblical events. God's promise was fulfilled through Zechariah and Elizabeth. Her unborn child was the first to react to presence of the Savior. Psalm 139:13 reads, "For you created my inmost being; you knit me together in my mother's womb." There's a heartwarming Christmas reminder in the birth of every child of God. May each one remind you of the manger.

Issue: China, Christmas Carols, Technology

Time Aired: 12:00 PM

Duration: 30:00

Description: John and Maria revisit a recent BreakPoint commentary that highlighted the theology in Christmas Carols. John shares how many carols illuminate the Incarnation as an act of war against evil, discussing how this imagery has fallen out of favor in pop-Christianity but holds significance inside church history and tradition.

Maria shares the recent story of the escape by a number of missionaries in Haiti from their captors. She tells how this is a miracle, recounting a few details surrounding the escape. John responds to a question from Maria about understanding calling in the wake of this event, as Maria is challenged by the missionaries' resolve and passion to engage in dangerous situations.

To close, John and Maria revisit a number of troubling things coming out of China. They wrap up their conversation discussing some new technology that assigns gender to individuals in pictures using facial recognition software. The software is said to be transphobic because it fails to assign the correct gender two-thirds of the time. John and Maria discuss the worldview significance of this and other realities surrounding this new technology.

Issue: Grandparents, Family
Time Aired: 1 PM
Duration: 27:00
Description: According to research, 3 out of 4 Christian grandparents take on a cultural view of grandparenting rather than a biblical view. When Larry Fowler asked a group of people at a conference how many of them had ever heard a sermon on grandparenting, only three raised their hands. On today's edition of Family Talk, Dr. James Dobson sits down with Larry Fowler, founder of the Legacy Coalition, to discuss the great need for grandparents to be involved in their grandchildren's lives. The most important thing a grandparent can do is live out his or her spiritual walk and testimony. In a rapidly changing society, grandparents are essential!

Description: Normally when an Olympian wins the gold, we see happy tears. We see families back home cheering. We see the pride in carrying the national flag around the field. It's such a pure moment. It never gets old. So, when the Fiji men's rugby team recently won the gold over New Zealand, there was something about this that was even more pure and enjoyable.

This was the second Olympic gold for the Fijians. They got on their knees, they prayed to God in thanksgiving, and sang a hymn of praise. It was so beautiful. It's a traditional tune that contains these words, "We have overcome, by the blood of the lamb, and the word of the Lord, we have overcome."

It was a wonderful moment, and a wonderful reminder, that whether we win in rugby, or anything else, the most certain thing in the world is what Jesus Christ has done for us, not what we will ever do.

They want to purchase at least 100 acres in Texas to develop a working maternity ranch called Blue Haven Ranch with about twenty cottages to house pregnant women and their born children. They'll take care of them for a year after the birth. The fully functioning ranch will raise cattle and produce to sell to be self-sustaining. Surrogate male role models and grandparents will be recruited to mentor the women and their children. They want to change the trajectory of their lives toward Jesus and successful, independent lives. Program Name: The Point

Issue: Atheism, Christianity, The Church

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Last week, the Atheists in Kenya Society issued a regretful announcement that the secretary of their organization, Seth Mahiga, had resigned because “he has found Jesus Christ and is no longer interested in promoting atheism in Kenya.” Praise God!

This is a reminder that Christ is building His Church in places beyond the United States and North America. While we talk of the growth of non-belief in the West, the Holy Spirit is working in places often ignored, drawing men and women and children to Christ.

I pray that Mr. Mahiga will follow the footsteps of Justin Martyr, Augustine of Hippo, and C.S. Lewis, who came to faith later in life, converting from other belief systems, and were used by God to build His Church.
