WSB-AM Ascertainment Statement

WSB develops on-air programming to address issues of significant concern to Atlanta and its surrounding communities.

Our news/talk format allows the radio station to address issues of concern in our city of license daily. Issues oriented programming aired daily includes the Von Haessler Doctrine, the Clark Howard Show, and the Erick Erickson Show.

WSB airs 4 hours of news and information Monday through Friday morning. In addition, WSB airs eleven minutes of news per hour from 9am until 12 midnight Monday through Saturday. WSB-AM carries 5 minutes of news per hour in the remaining hours.

On a quarterly basis, WSB produces long-form special assignment reports on issues of community concern. Recent topics have included gangs, same-sex marriage, and eating disorders.

WSB broadcasts two community affairs programs. "Perspectives" addresses multicultural issues. "Health Talk Atlanta" addresses health issues.

Issues on these programs are ascertained through interviews with community leaders, representatives of charitable and civic organizations, and those individuals making a difference in our listening area. WSB also solicits community input during its public affairs programming and via the radio station's website.

Producers for news/talk programs and for the community/public affairs programs are required to provide, in writing, details about each program topic, guests, and how listeners may obtain additional information about the issue.

The WSB programming specialist compiles all data for the station's quarterly reports under the supervision of the assistant program director for WSB- who is responsible for the ascertainment process.

10-28-2022: Eric and the Doctrinaires opened the show talking about Tom Brady's ugly divorce. Then the gang moved on and talked about space money and Elon's Twitter takeover.

10-31-2022: Eric and the Doctrinaires opened the show talking about Jared Yamamoto's wedding, the afterparty, and George Clark's dance moves. Plus, this not being a sports show, the Buffalo Bills did their best to turn over the game to the Packers. NASCAR's Ross Chastain used his Nintendo Game Cube experience to make his way from 10th to 5th in yesterday's race. Greg Russ joined us from NYC to share a few stories and how he sits in his car on Mondays, so he won't get a ticket for blocking the street sweeper. In hour two, Greg Russ shared a story about a sexy haunted house where the ghosts moan pillow talk. Eric brought up news coverage of the war in Ukraine & specious news headlines. Experts aren't experts and those who quote them (in media) are lazy journalists. Hour three began with Chris Chandler joining us to talk more about Jared's wedding and to receive praise for his officiating.

10-31-2022: Greg Bluestein of AJC gives details on the latest election poll.

11-1-2022: "Enthusiasm Gap" - Eric kicked off the show in a good mood and we recapped Autumn's kids' Halloween loot. Eric loves disgusting candy like Necco Wafers, candy corn and circus peanuts. Eric let the audience know to always verify what you see online & President Obama still turns on the ladies. Dr. Joe Esposito joined us for hour two to talk about wellness. The sexual wellness market will be worth 12 billion dollars by 2023, Autumn doesn't understand "hysteria", picking your nose could lead to dementia but not abstaining from alcohol could help prevent. Can you eat your to better joints? Dr. Joe says, "yes" - fish oil, krill oil, or algae oil! "Krill Shill". Listeners are upset by the lack of coverage of the pending diesel fuel shortage. Another listener asked us via open mic how he's supposed to get his news. Hour Three: We welcome Greg Russ for "Tech Tuesday". Eric brought up New York State losing a court decision that forces the state to reinstate workers fired for refusing Covid vaccines. Tech stories included VIDEO GAMES are fun and the sun is smiling. Consumer Expert, Clark Howard stopped by for a visit. Clark talked about inflation and how the US shouldn't worry too much about the latter or a recession. Then Clark and Eric debated the Russia and Ukraine war.

11-1-2022: Mark is frustrated about new stop signs in his neighborhood.

11-2-2022: Autumn has a tummy ache but we soldier on! Tim has suggestions for Autumn: Mobile toilet! The Powerball is $1 Billion and we know whomever wins will squander their money. Legit billionaires are cheapskates. The Von Haessler Comb Dicotomy. $.25 is $.25! Bill Gates was a booger-eater and a nerd since kindergarten. You can't live forever, even if you upload your brain into a computer. Imagine how bored you'd be. The more excited you get about winning the lottery, the more likely you aren't living a successful life. Don't have "proxy thoughts" - your point of view is legitimate even when it goes against the narrative. Eric recaps his conversation with Clark Howard yesterday. Do they still teach civics in school? Is Russia allowed to have a sphere of influence in the world? The modern media is full of reporters who are too close to the intelligence agencies. To have a full life surround yourself with people who disagree with you. Whenever there's war, all sides engage in war propaganda.

11-2-2022: WSBTV reporter Christian Jennings plugs Neighborhood TV.

11-3-2022: Hour One kicked off with Eric talking about The War of 1812, Autumn touted her trivia prowess (with Tim answering most questions). Eric talked about how the life coach industry is a scam and bookstores are no longer a thing. "Big Book". Wes Moss joined at the bottom of the hour to talk about what the markets are doing and to discuss the current state of the economy. Wes explained what Fed Chairman Powell is doing and how the housing market is basically shut down. The Fed still sees inflation as "Enemy No. 1" Hour Two: Doug Turnbull from WSB Traffic stopped in to talk about his Twitter account. Someone hacked his and began sub tweeting crypto spam underneath Elon Musk tweets. "Bigotry & Porn" was Doug's greatest fear, although that hasn't been the case so far. People are working to get his account fix. Jeffrey Bezos texted Autumn and asked for some help getting unstranded: Absolutely never click suspicious links! The bottom of the hour: Eric talked about Kari Lake from Arizona and how the media isn't supposed to insert opinion into "reports". Then, Paul "Entertainment News International" Stanley joined the show to delivery celebrity news. Hour Three: Paul Stanley remained to talk about Sheri Sheppard's audience wearing masks. Also, Autumn has changed, and Eric can't figure it out. Doctrinaire podcast plugs. Eric brings up Dr. Who - is not liking the lady Doctor Who misogynist? We don't want to be lectured to by our favorite TV shows.

11-3-2022: WSB radio reporter Veronica Waters has a story about selling your life insurance, Brittany Tenenbaum from Around Atlanta has weekend events.

11-4-2022: Greg presented Stories from Studio B1, English Nick joined with Toodle Pip and Hondo & Bill did a little Dawg Talk. Eric talked about historian Michael Beschloss and his hyperbolic rant about the future of US democracy, King Charles' teddy bear and demands, and more.

11-4-2022: David Johnston from 960 The Ref in Athens teases the UGA vs TN game, WSBTV Brian Mims reporting live from Athens.

11-7-2022: Hour One: This is not a sports show, but we began the show talking about; The Dawgs defeating Tennessee, the Falcons losing to San Diego, the sad ass Bills loss to the Jets, and nobody watches the World Series anymore. "Joe Namath" joined the show to make fun of Eric (and Josh Allen). OJ Simpson weighed in thanks to a bad run of Fantasy Football luck. A Houston mattress seller (Mattress Mack) won $75 million thanks to The Astros, but Autumn won't hook up with him because she's not a strumpet. And for some reason - PLEATHER FIST! Hour Two: Dolly Parton is in the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame now; Boston still is not. We debated that some, talked about of Greg's high school wrestling exploits and found out The Four Seasons are in the Hall. The old man watching "Cozi" TV made fun of Eric, Greg interrupted the trip down memory lane with a trip down memory lane. Memories are an anchor to your real self, but nostalgia can tear you apart. Identity is a feedback loop. (THE BEATLES AND PORNOGRAPHY) The Culture War is boring - you can't judge politicians for silly things because they aren't held accountable. It's never the politicians' fault (Oxycontin, hello?). Every corporation that wants you to believe they love and care for you is lying. Hour Three: Greg remained to continue "Greg's Choice", but first, Eric woke up an hour earlier than "normal" to pee and just stayed up. An open miker complained about Eric lamenting Boston's lack of entry into the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame. He thinks Eric repeats himself too much. Meanwhile, in Ukraine...30% of the weapons sent to Ukraine by the US have made it to the battlefield. The rest? Black market. The U.S. admits there are "advisers" on the ground in Ukraine. Greg has a story: A new, Jupiter-like planet that's far away the lowest-density planet ever discovered near a red dwarf star. It allegedly has the density of a marshmallow. MARSHMALLOW PLANET! Eric promoted his Election Night coverage and asserts that apathy is the new punk rock. Good governance = staying in power. If Greg wants to continue being paid, he needs to take a 90-day break. Why? Because he's paid by a third-party outlet. Autumn derailed the conversation bringing up that she and Jared are hourly employees and how that needs to be fixed. If you want to be successful, deal with the world as it is and harness the energy to help propel you.

11-7-2022: Mark asks the audience How have you dropped the ball at work?

11-8-2022: Hour One: Day two, week two of Jared on his honeymoon. Will they come back pregnant? Eric doubts it. Mrs. Mama-nono. It's both "normal" and "ok" for vote counting to take longer than it used to, and here's why Today is ELECTION DAY! Broadway Joe Namath teased Eric about Josh Allen's boo boo. Eric wants to complain to human relations about human relations people. Who doesn't respond to "hello?" We talked about the Powerball numbers being delayed & Mike Lindell offered up his own lottery "My Balls" with the Q ball power number. Eric doesn't wear slippers, but Tim and Autumn do. Hour Two: ELECTION TALK: Trump touted the Michigan governor's race: TUDOR DIXON! Eric's spit take. Biden tells a heckler to "not jump" and touted the $35 per month insulin camp. We ended the first segment talking about the alleged shortage of diesel fuel. Alan Sanders gave us the real statistics (diesel) & we drifted into Gene Wilder talk. Some political headlines: Biden given bottomless Pinocchio by the Washington Post, Ted Cruz hit by thrown White Claw can at a Houston Astros game, Culver City, CA will decide if 16-year-old will be allowed to vote. The "voting machine isn't working" stories are starting to fill up Twitter - keeping in mind every district in the nation is voting so there are bound to be issues. Greg Russ joins us with "Tech Tuesday". As of 10:41 a.m. Greg hasn't voted. Eric laments the backward process of early voting. Greg is sticking around for the third hour. Eric says: "Fast food restaurants - if you cannot figure out a way to give (me) warm French fries, STOP SELLING FRENCH FRIES." Hour Three: Eric shares an inside joke from his group of longtime friends.

Peter Gabriel is about to release a new album “i/o” and kick off a European tour. Now – TECH TUESDAY. Famous people are leaving Twitter but that’s probably a good thing. Corporate leaders think Twitter is the real world when it most-certainly is not. Musk says there’s been an increase in Twitter users despite famous people leaving. We rejoined the bottom segment with the horrible, Gal Gadot “Imagine” from the early days of the pandemic. Stars like Billie Eilish complain about being attacked - but celebs are about to find out that after they leave Twitter, no one will care. We played a few open mics and Eric has an idea for a new reality show: “Move On With Your Life!” Tom Brady just had his 55th game-winning drive. 371 total starts. 281 total wins, including 35 post-season wins. We wrapped up with more audio: Biden stumping and appears to not know the name but seems to be goofing around.

11-8-2022: election night, Mark wonders what do politicians do after they are voted out of office?

11-9-2022: Hour One: We recapped Election Day with Wes Moss and “Donald Trump” favored us with a parody of “Red Red Wine” (Red Red Wave). Wes gave us a positive spin for the economy if the congress ends up split with a Democrat White House. Hour Two: Eric and Autumn discussed their podcast dustup from yesterday. Hey, there’s still a war between Russia and Ukraine. Winter is coming to Europe, and it looks as if there will be some discussions towards peace. We spent a lot of time talking about Jimmy Durante, Tony Curtis and movies from before even we were born. Hour Three: More election coverage with audio from the winners and losers. Then: Awesome, Awful or Awkward. Stolen from sports TV and innovated by TVHD.

11-9-2022: AJC political analyst Greg Bluestein discusses the runoff elections, President Biden post midterm election speech

11-10-2022: Hour One: We opened the show talking about (and reenacting) Mike Pence’s opinion piece in today’s Wall Street Journal “My Last Days with Donald Trump” - Trump’s final days in the White House. We also talked about gay frogs and Alex Jones. Autumn caused a great issue by referring to gypsies. Hour Two: Dr. Joe came in to talk about addiction and Pleasure Muffins. Preservatives in the food cause addiction and could lead to further addictions (cigarettes, etc.). Next - better mindfulness proves a better mind. A study shows that being mindful and, in the present, makes for a healthy life - the “never-ending now”. It’s always right now. In the second half hour we began counting “likes” from an only fans influencer’s recent TikTok video. 23 “likes” in under 50 seconds. LIKE COUNT. You can’t take someone overusing “Like” seriously. Hour Three: Toodle Pip! With English Nick. But first, Eric loves Elon Musk’s update of Twitter’s employee culture. No more remote work or wellness days. Prince Charles had to dodge some eggs thrown at him by a protester. The Royal Family is important to England. Jennifer Anniston says there aren’t any more movie stars, and she hates social media. Celebrities must compete with TikTok losers. Eric thinks he knows the VHD audience. BUT - he can’t get away from the Midterms because Joe Biden is very excited. He’s taking a victory lap and starts feeling his power. The President says, under the radar, that they may investigate Elon Musk. It’s close to a fascist mentality.

11-10-2022: WSB meteorologist Christina Edwards gives hurricane Nicole updates and effects on Georgia, Brittany Tenenbaum from Around Atlanta share weekend events to check out.

11-11-2022: Hour One: Jared's final day off, celebrating his Honeymoon in Australia. Will he be back Monday? Nobody seems to know. We drifted into Trump's meltdown and made our way to Autumn's nosering and tobacco dippers. SHOW NAME IDEA: "Snot Rocket" CW's new majority owner is getting rid of woke DC superhero TV shows and will now focus on ratings. Go Equals Nut - No Go November (No Nut November). Alliteration works! It's more focused on men. George Stein the DUI Lawyer stopped in. Before that - Eric asks where all the money going to Ukraine is coming from. Eric's first question for George: Companies force you go through social conditioning in order to stay employed. Can a worker, an American (who is innocent until proven guilty), avoid these things? Corporate policy includes these things to a) make them look good and b) provide a cover. The Novel Question: Couldn't Eric say that his personal pronoun is "personal" and avoid declaring anything? George says they don't have the right. TWITTER is being sued by laid-off workers; do they have a case? Missouri said "yes" to legalized marijuana, the Dakotas said "no" - when a state legalizes it, how many people in jail for possession get released? George says people with small amounts don't usually serve time but have a record. Now they can get that expunged. Hour Two: Stories from Studio B-1 with Greg Russ. Stories: Actors and their on-screen vocabulary. The F-word: Joe Pesci! 272 times on screen. Al Pacino, Jason Mews, etc. More debt talks! War!!! Denzel Washington said the "S" word more than anyone 84 times. Pete Davidson has a huge dong and that's why Martha Stewart wants to date him. People who organize their books by spine color are idiots. Eric's wife is doing home improvement, now over her sickness, and erecting a feature wall. It's one wall that looks totally different from the other walls. She also added wallpaper that confuses you with its trippyness. Eric brought up the Falcons, who lost last night, because nobody wants to win the NFC South. Studies show that money can buy happiness. Duh. Money can alleviate the stress of bills, etc., but can't solve real problems.

Perspectives: White Flag: A Haunting Story of Addiction and a Woman's battle to save a family member Raising the white flag is a universal symbol of surrender, a symbol of the hope that our vulnerability will be shielded from further harm, and we can finally lay down our burden. What separates those who summon the inner strength to ask for help from those who can never unfurl their banner? These are the questions that haunt Judy L. Mandel in her searingly honest memoir about loss and addiction, WHITE FLAG. When Mandel discovers her sensitive, funny, bookworm niece, Cheryl, in jail, she recalls the deathbed promise she made to Cheryl's mother to look after her girls. She hopes and prays that this might be a second chance to help Cheryl kick her addiction and reclaim her life. But lying is second nature to addicts and Cheryl hides layers of deception as Mandel tries to help her toward safety, recovery, and survival. However, no amount of love or good will can topple the mountain of secrets as sexual abuse, pregnancy and prostitution are added to the tally of horrors hiding beneath Cheryl's addiction.

Perspectives: From Journalist to Author: John Pruitt "Tells it True"
Retired WSB-TV anchor John Pruitt has written his first novel, Tell it True. About the book, Ambassador Andrew Young wrote, "In 1964, a decorated war veteran was murdered by Klansmen in Georgia for driving while black. As a freshman reporter, John Pruitt covered the event, and in the decades since, his name has been synonymous with truth and accuracy, a reputation he lives up to even in his powerful, unexpected, and important debut novel. I have always admired Pruitt's honest, fearless reporting of our struggle and I also believe members of the news media are among the greatest unsung heroes of the civil rights movement. Although the characters and events have been altered, TELL IT TRUE does in fact "tell it true" and in as compelling way as you're likely to find." Pruitt is my guest for this show.

Perspectives: From Journalist to Author: John Pruitt "Tells it True"
Retired WSB-TV anchor John Pruitt has written his first novel, Tell it True. About the book, Ambassador Andrew Young wrote, "In 1964, a decorated war veteran was murdered by Klansmen in Georgia for driving while black. As a freshman reporter, John Pruitt covered the event, and in the decades since, his name has been synonymous with truth and accuracy, a reputation he lives up to even in his powerful, unexpected, and important debut novel. I have always admired Pruitt's honest, fearless reporting of our struggle and I also believe members of the news media are among the greatest unsung heroes of the civil rights movement. Although the characters and events have been altered, TELL IT TRUE does in fact "tell it true" and in as compelling way as you're likely to find." Pruitt is my guest for this show.

Perspectives: The Fight for the Equal Rights of Women
Title IX of the Education Amendment of 1972 provides that no person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied benefits or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance. This law – enacted 50 years ago – helped pave the way for equality in women's athletics. We enter into conversation about women and sports with Sherry Boschert, an award-winning journalist and author. Her latest book is 37 Words: Title IX and Fifty Years of Fighting Sex Discrimination.

Perspectives: Turning a Mirage into a Mission for Life
When Anisa Palmer was on tour in the Iraqi desert she looked up and saw a familiar image. It was her mother. A woman she'd lost to breast cancer when Anisa was only 5 years old. She'd struggled with losing her mom for some time. Seeing this mirage in the desert heat gave Palmer a message. Her work, once her military service ended would be in helping women like her mom. 12 years ago, she founded I Will Survive Inc. an Atlantabased nonprofit providing early awareness, health and wellness support and financial support for women battling breast cancer.
