She's noticed that some people don't just admire the Constitution, they worship it. Or, at least they worship the parts that they like, parts like the First and Second Amendments. But there are lots of parts of the Constitution, and many of them are, arguably, just as important as the First and Second Amendments. How should we balance them all? Join Mary Anne and Stewart for a fascinating and enlightening conversation about how modern Americans view their most basic law.	Stewart Harris, Lincoln Memorial University
6/27/2021	08:00	53:00	27515	Your Weekly Constitutional	If you're accused of a crime and you can't afford a lawyer, you have a right to a state-appointed public defender. But what happens if you get into non-criminal legal trouble, like a landlord-tenant case or a property dispute? Who you gonna call? Legal Aid. Dave Yoder, the former Executive Director of Legal Aid of East Tennessee, tells us all about this important organization. But Legal Aid can't do it alone. It needs the assistance of dedicated private attorneys, attorneys like Tony Seaton of Johnson City, Tennessee who joins us to discuss what he calls Access to Justice. 5/9/2021	12:00	38:30	27501	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	This special episode with Dr. Timothy Smith was recorded during Discovery Park's Military History and Armed Forces Symposium. Dr. Smith was one of the featured historians on "Grant," a three-night mini-series from The History Channel. The live audience learned more about the life and career of Ulysses S. Grant and the Civil War and discovered how history-related documentaries are made. Dr. Smith also shared suggestions on getting your children interested in the past and the best historic Tennessee destinations. He is the author of more than 20 books on topics ranging from Shiloh to Champion Hill to Vicksburg to Grant. You can watch the documentary on the History Channel and purchase Dr. Smith's books on Amazon.	Discovery Park of America, Union City, TN Host Scott Williams
5/16/2021	12:00	36:00	27504	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	Film, television, theatre and live events producer Samuel Goldberg recently contributed to the work of the Discovery Park of America team on the safety portion of the new exhibit on innovation in agriculture. His latest movie, "Silo," has now been released in theaters around the country. It's an incredible story based on real-life events about how a community came together to save a boy trapped in a silo grain bin. In this episode, Goldberg shares how a New Yorker who grew up in Manhattan was inspired to produce a film on grain bin entrapment. It's a fascinating story of how the film made the journey from an idea tossed his way by a friend in Tennessee to finally premiering in theaters around the country. Find out more about "Silo" at silothefilm.com.	Discovery Park of America, Union City, TN Host Scott Williams
5/23/2021	12:00	56:00	27330	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	She now calls West Tennessee home, but Lauren Smothers spent much of her childhood in Krasnodar, Russia and the United Kingdom with her missionary parents, and often had her nose in a book or could be found writing in her journal. Today, Lauren is an independent bookstore owner in Jackson, Tenn. and continues her writing. This episode is especially meaningful for those who love book stores in rural communities, and all listeners will enjoy hearing how Lauren made her dream come true, in spite of the challenges of opening a new business during a pandemic. 5/30/2021	12:00	36:00	27506	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	Rusty Robinson combined two of his favorite things to create one of the most unique museums in the world, Rusty's TV and Movie Car Museum in Jackson, Tenn. Rusty's passion for both cars and entertainment has led to a museum with more than 26 cars on display that have been used in movies and television shows along with lots of entertainment memorabilia. The list of movies represented there is long and includes "The Fast and The Furious," "Death Race," "Batman," "The Beverly Hillbillies" and many more. Pay Rusty a visit at his museum and you'll hear hilarious stories from the man himself while checking out cars like Scooby Do's Mystery Machine, the General Lee from "The Dukes of Hazzard" and Herbie The Love Bug. In this episode, he shares about the role his parents played in supporting his passion, why his museum is a great first date spot and which of the cars he wanted got away. 6/6/2021	12:00	37:00	27508	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	Take a step back in time as Scott talks with Marti Doss, who was in on the action when the first conversations were had about the wild idea to build a 100,000SF museum in the middle of a cornfield in Union City, Tennessee. Marti lets us in on how the Obion County Museum played a big role in the development of Discovery Park of America. She is now a volunteer artist at the park, and talks about the importance of art in the lives of children. Later, Andrew has a conversation with David Heathcott that will surely "spark" your imagination. They discuss direct and alternating electrical currents, and also talk about who really was the inventor of electricity - Thomas Edison or Nikola Tesla. You can learn more about these currents in our Energy Gallery located on the third level inside Discovery Center.	Discovery Park of America, Union City, TN Host Scott Williams
6/13/2021	12:00	49:00	27509	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	If Old McDonald is your idea of a farmer, you will want to listen to this episode featuring Emily Workman. Over 2.1 million farms dot America's rural landscape and about 99 percent of U.S. farms are operated by families, individuals, family partnerships or family corporations. Because these farm and ranch families comprise just 2 percent of the U.S. population, many people today live their entire lives and never actually meet a real farmer or even see crops growing in a field. Farmer and ag specialist Emily Workman shares with Scott some of the truths behind what it takes to run a farm in a world where false information and propaganda can be spread with the click of a mouse on a computer or the touch of a finger on a mobile device. From GMOs and precision ag to education and raising a family on a farm, Emily's first-hand knowledge will be fascinating to anyone who cares about how a growing population is fed and clothed today and will be in the future. Also, go behind-the-scenes at Discovery Park of America with Hugh Wade and discover more about the World War II Jeep located in the Military Gallery. As an early volunteer, Wade played a significant leadership role in acquiring many of the unusual artifacts on display in the museum and heritage park. 6/20/2021	12:00	37:00	27510	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	In 1901, Andrew Carnegie donated $70,000 for the construction of a library in Jackson, Tenn. Today, the ornate building is devoted to telling stories in a different way. In this episode, John Reitzammer takes us behind-the-scenes of the renovation of the building that now tells the stories of West Tennessee's musical history. As part of the Americana Music Triangle, the Tennessee Music Museum highlights the lives and careers of artists like Carl Perkins, Eddy Arnold, Sonny Boy Williamson and others. Later, discover what happened during Union City's 1954 10-day Centennial.	Discovery Park of America, Union City, TN Host Scott Williams
