QUARTELY ISSUES & PROGRAMS REPORTS

3rd QUARTER 2016

July 1, 2016 – September 30, 2016

KDVR/KFCT's obligation is to ascertain the important issues and needs of the communities within our broadcast coverage area and to provide quarterly reports on the station's responses and coverage of these issues.

The following list was determined after careful evaluation of information and communication with community leaders and local organizations. Below represents topics we look to address year round:

- Community Service
- Economy/Finance
- Environment
- Family/Children
- Government
- Homeless & Housing
- Health/Welfare
- Public Safety/Crime
- Transportation
- Sports

From July 1-September 30, 2016, KDVR/KFCT addressed the above community issues and needs through the following on-air programs and public service announcements, supplemental off-air outreach such as the station's on-line website and participation in community service events.

- GOOD DAY COLORADO 430A
Airs Mon-Fri/430-5am
Locally produced news product focusing on national and local news. Features traffic, weather and guest appearances.

Description: I-70 Viaduct Transformed.

DENVER -- It's a section of road that's more infamous than famous. Crime, graffiti, and well, gunk. Lots of gunk. That, hopefully, is about to change. All that is needed are some creative minds and a little paint. Make that a lot of paint. "We're going to revitalize this area. We're gonna get it so the community and everybody can feel safe." said Kristin Cardenas, Denver Arts and Skill Center Executive Director. The week-long face lift is called "duct-work." Painting almost 60 huge concrete panels on East 46th Avenue between Brighton Boulevard and York Street, "We're hoping to decrease the trash and increase the traffic in this area," said Cardenas. The Denver Urban Arts Fund, a nonprofit, has contracted 20 local artists to create a sort of permanent art gallery on the viaduct. To add color and life to what is a dull, dark and sometimes dangerous place. None of this could have happened without the artists, like Chris Haven of Denver, who is responsible for two of the 60 panels. "I think they need some beautification down here." The hope is with the beautification on the viaduct, it may someday become a destination location.

Description: DPD Officer Shot/Returns to Work.

Many people never thought this day would come. Sgt. Tony Lopez Jr. returned to full duty, just eight months after being shot and critically injured on the job. Lopez said he was excited to get back to work. "It's like Christmas," he said. Lopez was shot on Dec. 8 while conducting a traffic stop. He suffered a number of injuries to his upper and lower body. He has spent months in physical therapy, and his doctors cleared him to return to work Thursday. Lopez was named a beneficiary of John Adsit's annual Rise and Run 5K race. The money raised will go to help first responders who are hurt in the line of duty. It will take place Saturday at 9 a.m. at Foundry Church in Castle Pines. Lopez said he and his family have received such an outpouring of support, and he wants to give back and help others.

Description: Nederland Businesses Struggle in Fire Aftermath.

Small businesses in Nederland are asking people to visit to make up for revenue lost during the Cold Springs Fire. The fire shut down the small town in Boulder County for about a week. More than 500 acres burned, including eight homes. Boulder Canyon was closed because of the fire line, which cut off about 70 percent of Nederland's customers from the businesses. "Most of them had no choice but to go elsewhere and that was for almost a week," said Doug Armitage, owner of Brightwood Music. Brightwood Music sells instruments, fixes broken equipment and provides lessons to music students. During the fire, students and teachers couldn't get to Nederland for lessons so they had to cancel. Tourists also couldn't get into town, so Brightwood saw a steep decline in guitar sales. "Anytime there's a sort of panic in a small town, everybody just sort of hold off doing anything," Armitage said. Now, shops like Brightwood Music are struggling to catch up. "It was a ghost town," said Jill Dreves of Wild Bear Mountain Ecology Center. The nonprofit hosts summer camps for kids and serves as a nature discovery center for people of all ages. It saw a huge drop in the number of visitors, plus it had to alter its summer camp plans for children who couldn't get into Nederland. "We do, as a nonprofit, depend on sales in our gift shop and our program tuition," Dreves said.

Wild Bear received two donations in the past week to make up for lost revenue. Another nonprofit business next door hasn't been so lucky. "I figure we lost $5,000 in income," said Katrina Harms, who runs Carousel of Happiness, a nonprofit that invites riders to try its antique carousel for only $1. "To lose one-quarter of our July income is a huge, huge hit and it's just hard to make that up." Local businesses in Nederland are now asking Coloradans to come visit for the day, sample the local restaurants and shop their local boutiques. They say the three best things to enjoy are: the wildlife, the local shops and the fact Nederland is usually about 20 degrees cooler in the summer than Denver.

Description: Colorado Voters Still Approve Marijuana.

A poll shows the majority of Colorado voters still approve of the decision to legalize marijuana for adult use. Only 36 percent of the people surveyed would repeal Amendment 64, according to the statewide survey conducted by Public Policy Polling. "Three out of five Colorado voters say regulating and taxing marijuana has been good for the economy, and one out of four say they have a friend, relative, or acquaintance who works for or with a regulated marijuana business," officials with the Marijuana Policy Project said in a statement Monday. The Marijuana Policy Project commissioned the survey and advocated for legalization. Overall, 47 percent said they felt Amendment 64 has been good for Colorado, while 39 percent said they felt it has been bad for the state. The poll also found 24 percent of Colorado voters said they know of a friend, family member or colleague who is consuming less alcohol because they are consuming marijuana instead, the Marijuana Policy Project said. "The folks who are trying to keep marijuana illegal in this country tell a lot of scary stories and spread a lot of myths about Colorado," said Mason Tvert, director of communications for the Marijuana Policy Project. "If you ask a typical Colorado voter, you're likely to hear a more positive and realistic account of how things are going." Colorado voters approved Amendment 64 in November 2012. It became legal in January 2014. "Opponents of Amendment 64 told voters the state would fall apart if they approved Amendment 64, but they could not have been more wrong," Tvert said. "They said it would hurt the economy, but the economy is booming. They said it would hurt tourism, but we have more visitors spending more money than ever. "They said the rate of teen use would increase, but state officials confirm it has not. And they said it wouldn't actually raise any tax revenue, but it has already exceeded expectations and generated tens of millions of dollars for schools and other important programs." The survey did not ask participants about their perceived impact on crime rates and personal safety. Public Policy Polling surveyed 629 Colorado voters on Aug. 31 and Sept. 1. It has a margin of error of plus or minus 3.9 percent, according to officials.

BOULDER, Colo. — The Boulder Reservoir swim area, which was closed over the Fourth of July weekend because of high bacteria levels, will reopen Tuesday, the city of Boulder said. The reservoir had been closed since Thursday, much to the dismay of holiday goers and putting a damper on the "Star Spangled Splash" Fourth of July celebrations. The water is tested daily, and officials believe the elevated level of bacteria was because of the runoff from recent rain.

Description: Bus Driver Remembered.

The community remembered the life of the driver who died in the Legacy High School bus crash. Kari Chopper's family and friends held a funeral for her Monday night at Crossroads Church. The 43-year-old was a wife, mother of four and friend to so many people. There were a lot of tears and her children spoke about their mother. They talked about the beautiful woman she was and how she was known by so many for her giving and compassionate heart. Chopper was a Little League baseball coach, a baker and a driver for the Adams 12 School District. On Sept. 11 she was behind the wheel when the school bus hit a concrete pillar at Denver International Airport. Members of the Legacy High School football team and some of their coaches were on the bus. The team was returning home from a game in California. Three coaches were seriously hurt. Two have been released from the hospital and one is still hospitalized. Chopper's children thanked the community Monday night for helping them get through the loss of their mother. "I just want to say thank you for all of your support and everything you have done and keeping us who we are after a terrible loss. A thousand words can't say enough," one of her sons said. After the service, everyone gathered outside the church to release blue and gold balloons, the school colors for Legacy High School. Everyone yelled "I love you, Kari," as they let go of the balloons. Her husband said after the crash that she didn't have any medical problems. The investigation into what caused her bus to crash continues.

Description: Mayor's Inauguration Address.

Michael Hancock was sworn in for a second term as Denver's mayor Monday morning. Hancock began another four years as the city is enjoying a booming economy and a healthy economic future. But the mayor still has plenty of challenges ahead in the next four years. Hancock emphasized all of the good times during his inauguration speech. And he hopes to take advantage of the economic good times to address some of the longstanding issues throughout the city. One of the top issues Hancock talked about was education and a proposed sales tax to help students with college costs. The money raised would help in-need students pay back their loans. Hancock also wants to create a sustained funding source to address the city's affordable housing gap and other long-term needs. "We are seeing Denver as one of the emerging cities of the 21st century marketplace," Hancock said. "People are focusing on cities like Denver, Seattle. These are the cities that create the quality of life ... while also participating in the global marketplaces emerging around the world." Hancock said he also wants to address the issues in the Safety and Human Services departments. Besides the mayor, the new city council was sworn in during a ceremony at the Ellie Caulkins Opera House.

Description: Coffman TV Ad/Trump.

Colorado congressman Mike Coffman has taken his discomfort with his party's presidential nominee to the airwaves. The ad, posted Thursday morning, opens with Coffman speaking directly to the camera, saying: "People ask me, 'What do you think about (Donald) Trump?' Honestly, I don't care for him much." He adds: "And I certainly don't trust Hillary (Clinton)." Coffman represents District 6, a bellwether district that includes all of Aurora, the southern Denver metro area including Centennial, Littleton and Highlands Ranch, and northern metro areas including Brighton and Henderson. Coffman, who has represented the district since 2009, is running against Democrat Morgan Carroll. The district is comprised of more moderate voters, suburban mothers and Hispanics -- all voting blocs Trump has struggled with. As he notes in the ad, Coffman is a Marine and before that, he was also in the Army reserves. He is considered one of the most vulnerable Republicans in the country, as he was last cycle when he pulled off a hard-fought win against Democrat Andrew Romanoff. The new ad shows he has made the calculation to distance himself from Trump's controversial candidacy, at a point when the Republican nominee has gone through one of the most difficult periods, taking on a Gold Star family and refusing to endorse House Speaker Paul Ryan or Sen. John McCain in their primaries. Although many members of Congress have distanced themselves from their party's nominee, Coffman's ad represents one of the first ads where a candidate outright declares their opposition to the top of their ticket. Illinois Sen. Mark Kirk, one of the most vulnerable sitting Republican senators, has also run a starkly anti-Trump campaign. He went up with an ad in June saying he had "bucked his party to say, 'Donald Trump is not fit to be commander in chief.'" Coffman's ad came as the latest signal that the Republican Party is significantly divided over Trump, despite Trump's declaration Wednesday that his campaign had "never been so united." A Fox News poll released Wednesday showed Trump down by 10 points in a head-to-head matchup with Clinton nationwide. A swing-state poll taken before the party conventions and Trump's feud with the Khan family showed the Republican down eight points in Colorado. Carroll said voters should not look at Coffman's ad as being "anti-Trump." "He won't tell anybody if he is voting for Donald Trump," Carroll said. "He has to distance himself from Donald Trump's record because his record is Donald Trump's record." The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee released an ad in response. Coffman's campaign said the ad shows Coffman will stand up for his constituents regardless of who is president.

Description: Homeless Meals on the Fourth of July.

Several local groups came together to provide a special Fourth of July celebration for people who don't have anywhere else to go. Nearly 12 percent of the homeless people in Denver are veterans, according to the Colorado Coalition for the Homeless. The free barbecue was held at the Crossroads Resource Center (1901 29th St.) at midday Monday. The event was put on by the Salvation Army, King Soopers/City Market, Swire Coca-Cola and other local businesses, according to a statement. It is the only free celebration of its kind in Denver, officials said. Food was cooked, plates were filled and hunger was satisfied. Organizers served hamburgers, hot dogs, baked beans, cold beverages and ice cream sandwiches. Capt. Eric Wilkerson with the Salvation Army had a busy day. "Our population was 160, 180, it was under 200 every night. Now it would be a rare night when our population was under 400," he said. The number of homeless men using the shelter is taxing the resources of the Salvation Army and according to them, the cause of it all is as clear as smoke. "The homeless population is exploding fundamentally because of the marijuana laws. People are coming here from out of state to smoke weed," Wilkerson said. He cites violence on the 16th Street Mall to the now legal rocky mountain high. "We've had some interesting criminal experiences on the 16th Street Mall, haven't we," he said. The Salvation Army men's shelter sits in an economically exploding neighborhood with businesses, and high-rise condos and apartments growing as fast as the marijuana industry in Colorado. The shelter has been offered $8 million for its one-acre plot. It's not selling. As the pot business grows in Colorado, they say, so does the homeless population.

Description: Homeless Ticketed.

The Denver Police Department enforced the city's park curfew Tuesday night into Wednesday morning. Parks are closed from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. Officers cited 36 people and nine people were arrested on felony warrants. It's an enforcement some say is harassment of the homeless. "It's just overkill," said homeless advocate Robert H., who didn't want to reveal his last name. "Sleeping is a victimless crime." He was one of the people ticketed by police. Robert documented the enforcement on Facebook Live as police moved in at Cuernavaca Park at 1:30 a.m. He said the enforcement is unfair for people with no place to go. "The city is responding to what people with money and power are wanting. They are not creating any solutions," Robert said. He said the city's shelter system doesn't work and there is a crisis when it comes to affordable housing." This was to help with community complaints of unsafe living and conditions upon the river, under the pass," Denver police officer Ligeia Craven said. Craven said people were complaining of not being able to walk home at night, walk their kids or pets. "I'm a native. I would have concerns walking down by myself," Craven said. There is a seedy and not-so-secret side of what's happening along Cherry Creek and the South Platte River. "This is a work in progress. But what we will not tolerate is unsafe, unsanitary conditions to exist in our city," Denver Mayor Michael Hancock said Monday during his State of the City speech. After the curfew enforcement, crews came in and cleaned up trash that was left behind. Police said shelters are trying to help, with places to stay and other services. "We are not out to get the homeless. We are not after them. We understand people are homeless. But to make sure it's safe for the community, we have to make sure enforcements take place," Craven said. This is the city's first enforcement this year. It had three last year. Police don't know when they'll have the next one.

Description: Restaurant Report Card.

The Denver restaurant is called Brazen, but after what health inspectors found, maybe they should consider being called Humble Pie.

Brazen

Inspectors cited the restaurant for 14 critical violations in two surprise inspections in May 2016 and December 2015. The May report said, "An employee was touching a potato mix inside of a tortilla shell intended to be served to a guest as a breakfast burrito." A deli container of raw eggs was tossed for being held at too warm of temperature which can cause food poisoning. Also, the dish washers in the kitchen and bar were not sanitizing dishes. "The health of our guests is our first priority and we always provide the best quality food possible," Brazen said in a statement. "The issues on our recent inspections were immediately corrected while the inspector was in the restaurant or immediately thereafter and we continue to serve quality, safe food to our guests." Brazen passed their follow up inspection. The restaurant is located on West 38th Avenue.

Mimi's Café

Mimi's Café in Lone Tree scored an "F" on our restaurant report card with 11 critical violations in its June inspection. The Park Meadows location's mistakes include rodent droppings under the soda tower, in dry storage and hot water heater area. An employee was handling lettuce with without gloves on and another worker washed their hands for less than fifteen seconds. The restaurant's public relations firm sent a statement: "The health and safety of our guests and associates is our top priority and we are taking the results of this Lone Tree inspection very seriously. First, because our incredibly high standards were not upheld, we made management changes at both the local and regional levels in order to bring in new cafe leadership. Second, the new management and staff conducted a thorough cleaning of the café and also contracted a third party company to conduct an assessment to make further recommendations that are above and beyond the industry standard. Third, all associates and managers will have completed a full retraining of health and food safety standards by July 29 which is being conduct by a third party health and safety expert and is in addition to the retraining already conducted by the health department. We have taken this opportunity to bring the best training and processes, exceeding local standards to Lone Tree. We take great pride in our high standards and are confident that the actions we are taking in Lone Tree will ensure that a similar situation never recurs.”

Description: Problem Solvers - Insurance won’t cover bill

When a Loveland woman tripped and fell on her face inside her home, her insurance company said she wasn’t covered because she was legally drunk. Now, Carol Mullins has a $54,000 medical bill for a fractured cheekbone. “These insurance companies, they take and take and take and as soon as you have a claim, sorry, can’t help you,” Mullins said. The 55-year old said she tripped on her front porch on the evening of March 28, after her grandchildren left a sled partially hidden behind a chair. “I’m 100 percent sure I would not have fallen if the sled would not have been there,” said Mullins, denying her several glasses of wine earlier that night were to blame. But her insurance company, Tokio Marine HCC, sent her a denial of coverage letter, saying, “Injury sustained that is due wholly or partially to the effects of intoxication or drugs is excluded under this policy.” Mullins remembered her reaction upon reading the letter. “I wanted to throw up because I couldn’t believe it because I knew we were in the 50 thousands (of medical bills),” she said. Mullins said the fall would’ve happened if she had been stone cold sober and feels insurance is for accidents. “I was in my own home. I wasn’t out driving. Since when can’t you have a couple of glasses of wine in your own home?” she said. An attorney for Mullins’ insurance company said the policy speaks for itself but suggested Mullins file an appeal. Vincent Plymell, the communications manager for Colorado’s Division of Insurance, suggested Mullins file a complaint with the Department of Regulatory Agencies because his office had never heard of such an exclusion. Plymell said it might be legal for an HMO to deny such a claim, but he’s unaware of one ever doing it, and it’s not clear that Tokio Marine HCC qualifies as an HMO in Colorado. Anyone with a similar situation can file a complaint with the Department of Regulatory Agencies by calling 303-894-7490 or 800-930-3745 (outside the Denver metro area), or email DORA\_insurance@state.co.us.

Description: 16th Street Mall Safety.

Mayor Michael Hancock revealed his 2017 proposed budget Monday. It addresses many of the needs highlighted by the FOX31 Problem Solvers over the course of the past year. In regards to the violence on the 16th Mall, Hancock announced the hiring of 16 dedicated officers to patrol the area around the mall. A total of 48 officers will be added to the force, costing around $16 million. “We are making a concerted effort to protect our central corridor,” Hancock said. “When I got the budget this time I had to read it four or five times to make sure I was seeing what I was seeing -- so I can’t tell you how elated I am,” Denver police Chief Robert White said. In addition to adding more officers, the city will be dedicating resources to equip off duty police officers with body cams.

Affordable housing

In regards to affordable housing, the mayor proposes adding $5 million into the Affordable Housing Fund. That number is separate from a city council proposal that would increase the fund by raising taxes. "Residents have been very clear to us that they feel priced out of the market in Denver," Hancock said.

Homeless

In regards to homeless outreach, the mayor wants to create a new Office of Hope (Housing and Opportunities for People Everywhere) with dedicated staff to help get people off the streets.

Disabled parking

Recently, the Problem Solvers highlighted the problems the city is having with enforcing disabled parking spots. The mayor's budget includes $289,000 to hire three full-time employees to better enforce ordinances.

Transportation

The budget also includes a 25 percent increase in transportation funding to help maintain main roads like Broadway and Colfax Avenue.

More

Additionally, five outdoor pools will remain open next year through Labor Day -- including Barnum, Berkley, Congress, Eisenhower and Congress.

Hearings to discuss the mayor's budget will start taking place next week. A final vote is expected sometime in November.

A Douglas County sheriff's deputy was shot near Sierra Middle School on Friday afternoon, the Parker Police Department said. The deputy was in critical condition Friday night, Douglas County Sheriff Tony Spurlock said. Spurlock requested the community offer its prayers and support for the deputy, Det. Dan Brite. He was out of surgery late Friday night but remained in ICU in very critical condition on Saturday, the sheriff's office said. Detective Dan Brite has been moved from the OR to ICU. No further info available at this time. Brite is married to Sgt. Christine Brite, who also works for the Douglas County Sheriff's Office. His wife, children and other family members were at the hospital with him. Spurlock said the suspect, who the Douglas County Coroner's Office has identified as 40 year-old Randall Rodick on Saturday, was shot and killed by a deputy. The sheriff's office described Rodick as suicidal. Sierra Middle School and several other schools were put on lockdown, but it was later lifted, and parents were reunited with their children. according to a spokesman for the Douglas County School District. The schools were not directly involved, the sheriff's office said. Spurlock asked that people stay away from that section of Parker while the shooting scenes were under investigation. The Parker Police Department said it was called to a home on North Dixon Drive. When officers arrived, Rodick fired shots at them, and then got into the RV. Rodick drove toward Parker Adventist Hospital and continued to fire shots, according to the sheriff's office. Rodick crashed the RV between the hospital and the school.

Starting in January, a third person will be needed to use the carpool lanes on Colorado highways without being charged. The HOV requirement will change to HOV 3+, or a driver plus two passengers, on Jan. 1, the Colorado Department of Transportation said. "HOV 3 ensures that those lanes remain free-flowing now and into the future, so that those who choose to ride the bus, pay a toll, or carpool always have a reliable and faster trip," the CDOT website states. "In addition, getting more people into carpools with HOV 3 reduces overall congestion and vehicle emissions -- a good thing for a state with a growing population." CDOT released a statement saying it is working to help drivers find an additional passenger to carpool or use a different mode of travel, such as transit, and other options. CDOT will also be making the switchable HOV transponder free to drivers who will only carpool, officials said. The decision to increase the number of passengers needed to use the HOV lanes was made in 2013.

Description: DIA A-Line Runs Late.

DENVER -- Denver's new $1.2 billion train line from Union Station downtown to Denver International Airport runs late about one out of every seven trips. Since the opening of the RTD A Line on April 22 through the end of August, internal departure and arrival data proves the rail line showed up more than five minutes late at least 3,127 times. Passengers arrived more than 15 minutes late at least 612 times. And on 49 trips, the delays were so insurmountable that train operators described the route as "incomplete" or "canceled." The owners of the A Line, the Regional Transportation District, and the operators of the rail, Denver Transit Partners, have been keeping a close tally on "unexcused delays," but until the FOX31 Problem Solvers acquired their vast internal time database, the public-private partners have been speaking about delays in general terms. The investigative team reviewed 69,155 stops system-wide before concentrating on 21,525 time records specifically logging delay times between Denver International Airport and Union Station platforms for its calculations. RTD fines train operator $70,000 for delays "All A Line trains are running approximately 30 minutes behind schedule at this time. We apologize for the inconvenience," are the words that have been playing on speakers over and over along platforms linking Denver's expensive new route from downtown to the airport. It's easy to see the allure of jumping on a train at scenic Union Station, then buzzing peacefully along the rails toward DIA. When the A Line opened in April, politicians promised a 37-minute trip. Instead, passengers have been repeatedly running into disappointing breakdowns, stoppages, cancellations and chaos. In the past five months, thousands of commuters, such as Green Valley Ranch resident Kaleena Cain, have been stuck standing around waiting for a train that is significantly late. "I'm probably about an hour behind schedule, so my husband had to pick our daughter up from day care," Cain said. "I just got off work. I work downtown and am trying to get home in a reasonable amount of time. It was kind of nerve wracking trying to get everything rearranged." Exactly how often the train line has been late or delayed had been kept away from the public. Arrival and departure data show on top of 3,157 late arrivals (defined by RTD as more than five minutes overdue), at least 119 trips have been more than 30 minutes late. The longest reported delay has been 97 minutes. 612 trips on the A-Line have been more than 15 minutes late. Spokesman Scott Reed said delays have been such a problem, RTD has been fining the agency it hired to operate the A Line for failing to meet its contractual "on-time" obligations. So far, Denver Transit Partners have paid $70,000 in fines for running late train routes. Reed said DTP has also paid an additional $1 million in fines for failing to honor smooth operations in other parts of the A Line such as the continued use of paid day labor to stand guard at every crossing because the safety arms don't come down at the proper time. "They have not met our expectations. That's a little disappointing, but we also know they are working very hard to get to where they need to be." Denver Transit Partners is a consortium of private companies, which brought about $500 million to the table to help RTD build and operate the A Line. "It's common during the first year of operations to see some performance variables as the system adjusts to the new railroad," Denver Transit Partners executive project director John Thompson said in a statement. "For example, in the months of July and September, roughly eight out of every nine trips between DIA and DUS or DUS and DIA were on time, so we saw an improvement there. DTP remains diligent and committed to providing the traveling public with a reliable customer-service experience, always keeping safety our number one priority." But five months after launching the A Line, commuters such as Tom Vyles are still hesitant to get aboard if they need to be on time. "I wouldn't trust it right now until they get the kinks worked out," Vyles said. "If I was actually trying to catch a flight? I wouldn't be standing here right now." The arrival and departure time records show delays aren't just affecting families pulling their luggage to the airport. It appears the A Line delays are also making thousands of commuters late for work. Records show 1,062 trips between Union Station and the 40th Avenue station (and back) have been delayed for more than 10 minutes.

Description: Jeffco Motorcycle Safety Seminar.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Office will offer a free motorcycle safety seminar in Littleton. Members of the motorcycle traffic unit will discuss challenges that riders face. They will also offer tips for dodging hazards in the road. According to the Sheriff's Office, there have been 28 fatalities involving motorcycles in Colorado from January through July of this year. Four of those occurred in Jefferson County. The seminar will be held Oct. 1 from 9-11 a.m. at the South Precinct, located at 11139 Bradford Rd. in Littleton.

Description: Trevor Siemian Starts for Broncos.

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. -- Broncos coach Gary Kubiak told the team Monday that Trevor Siemian will be the team's starting quarterback when the season begins Sept. 8 in a Super Bowl 50 rematch with the Carolina Panthers. Siemian, a second-year player from Northwestern who was taken in the seventh round of the draft in 2015, was in competition with Mark Sanchez and first-round draft pick Paxton Lynch for the starting job.

"I felt very strongly that he had won the job, and that's exactly what I told the quarterbacks and the football team," Kubiak said. "The guys gave Trevor a big hand in the meeting room. I think they're all as proud of him as I am and the coaches. They know how hard he's worked." The competition dominated the offseason and training camp. Sanchez, who was acquired in a trade in the offseason with the Philadelphia Eagles, started the Broncos' first preseason game against the Chicago Bears. Siemian started the second preseason game against the San Francisco 49ers and on Saturday in the "dress rehearsal" game against the Los Angeles Rams. Siemian led the Broncos on a touchdown drive in each of the two games he started. On Saturday, Siemian played the entire first half, completing 10 of 17 passes for 122 yards, one touchdown and one interception. Sanchez did not play against the Rams. "I'm impressed," Kubiak said after the game. Siemian and Sanchez were considered "neck and neck" by Kubiak a few weeks before training camp. Sanchez led the New York Jets to two AFC Championship Games but only played in 13 games the past three seasons. He's expected to be traded or cut by the Broncos as they trim their roster. NFL Network reported the Broncos are in talks with the Dallas Cowboys about trading Sanchez. The Broncos lost their two quarterbacks during the offseason. Peyton Manning retired and Brock Osweiler left as a free agent to sign with the Houston Texans. The first team is not expected to play in the final preseason game Thursday at Arizona. The Broncos open the season Sept. 8 against the Carolina Panthers at Sports Authority Field at Mile High in a rematch of Super Bowl 50, which the Broncos won, 24-10, on Feb. 7. The Broncos released 11 players on Monday and must cut four more by 2 p.m. Tuesday to get down to 75 players.

Description: High School Early Recruiting.

High school sports can be stressful, but there's a hidden practice adding even more pressure on the playing field. College athletics programs are recruiting kids earlier than ever. Some Colorado students are being targeted in middle school. "We're talking about these kids going to college before they've even gone to high school, and if that's not a broken system I don't know what is," said Sam Bartron the coach of Team 180, a girl's lacrosse club team in Denver. Bartron has been coaching in the Denver area since 2001. She says recruiting has become more than a trend. It's a tradition. Colleges that once targeted high school juniors began asking sophomores to commit. Then school started recruiting freshman. Now many programs are evaluating kids as young as 8th grade. "It totally takes the fun out of it," said Bartron. Early recruiting is taking a toll on many young players. Megan Gordon started getting offers from college lacrosse teams shortly after starting high school. Before her sophomore year she'd already committed not just to a college lacrosse team, but to five years in the military. She'll attend Navy after graduation next year. "I questioned it a lot because it's a military school. It isn't just like a regular school. I committed so early which is kind of ridiculous. I'm making that decision for the rest of my life and of course there are going to be doubts," Gordon said. Megan is excited and happy with her decision, but it's one that can be detrimental. Brooke Pengel is the medical director of the Rocky Mountain Youth Sports Medicine Institute. She says early recruiting not only leads to anxiety and depression in many kids, it also results in more injuries. "To get to that level the athletes are really required to put in certain days per week and certain hours per week and that's leading to overuse injuries we didn't use to see in kids," Pengel said. There are recruiting rules to protect kids. The NCAA bars coaches from directly contacting kids before their junior year of high school. The problem is, there are loopholes. Colleges often use club and high school coaches to reach students, coaches like Sam Bartron. "You have to. There's nothing that sits right with me about the whole process. I feel like it's a broken system, but at the same time I feel like I'm not doing my job to help my players if I'm not a part of that process," she said. Parents are also often sucked in, persuaded by promises of scholarships for their kids. Doug Gordon hated seeing the pressure colleges were putting on his daughter, Megan, but he let her commit to Navy. Despite his concerns about the process, he admits there have been upsides. "It's almost a bit of a carrot we can hold out as a family and say, hey it's not a guarantee you can get in. You have to get phenomenal grades, you have to be phenomenal on your ACT's and SAT's," said Gordon. However, for many students that pressure is too much. According to the American Academy of Pediatrics, 70 percent of kids today drop out of organized sports by the time they turn 13. That's right around the same time those recruiters are showing up in droves. "We had one game where there was like 50 of them. Our entire sideline was completely covered," said Kaile Lammers, a player for Team 180 who will be attending the University of Denver on a lacrosse scholarship. "It kind of makes the game more stressful than fun because you have to do good when they're watching. You can't just play." That is what worries coaches like Sam Bartron the most. A game that once put smiles on her player's faces is now a source of stress. "We don't know if someone's going to get burnt out. We don't know if someone's going to get injured. We don't know if someone's going to maintain their grades," Bartron said. Bartron says early recruiting is forcing kids to become adults before they're ready. "It's a broken system. I mean, the pressure we're putting on these kids to not be able to develop as they are, we're pressing too hard for them not to be in middle school, and not high school, but to be college athletes," she said. The NCAA has been reluctant to change recruiting rules, although women's lacrosse is making some headway. The NCAA will vote on a proposal next April that would eliminate the loopholes for that sport.
