Topic:

- Today on Insight, Josh Rosenstern discusses a growing concern in America's public school system, looking at a situation in the state of Maryland that is affecting grades kindergarten through twelve. Brother Josh says there is an agenda in our public schools specifically targeting race and lifestyle choices. This concerns Maryland's Montgomery County school district where the schools are pushing to exclude a parent's rights and promote the voice of the children.
- Brother Josh says this is so much more than then just recognizing the LGBTQ+ agenda, but now they are pushing for the rights of young children to "come out", all in an effort to exclude parents from these decisions and prodding children to make their own choices and educating them about gender and lifestyle options.
