FUND	Mexico Edition.
HEADLINE	Mexico Edition.
PROGRAM	In an attempt to fight inflation, the López Obrador administration insists on the need to move towards self-consumption and support for ejido production and small farming. To that end, it plans to triple the production of fertilizers and their free distribution among growers of priority crops, including corn, beans and rice. A representative of small corn farmers welcomes the initiative, while encouraging farmers to move towards economic autonomy. Also, the national leader of small merchants says that in the weeks of federal combat against inflation, little has been achieved to mitigate the rise in the prices of essential products, since inflation is a global phenomenon and "it is the economic bill of the pandemic", which has forced the poorest working families to reduce grocery buys. Finally, feminists from Mexico offer direct support services to women from the United States who cross the border to the south in search of safe abortion services now that the US Supreme Court has ruled against Roe v. Wade, noting that after the recent Texas anti-abortion law there was an uptick in Texan women requesting reproductive services in neighboring Chihuahua.
	Guests: Cuauhtémoc Rivera, President, Alianza Nacional de Pequeños Comerciantes, Mexico City; Pánfilo Hernández, Coordinator, Grupo Vicente Guerrero, Comunidad Vicente Guerrero, Tlaxcala, MX; Salma Silva, Companion for Vulnerable Women, Marea Verde Chihuahua, Founder, Salud Feminista, Chihuahua, MX.

FUND	Reproductive Freedoms.
HEADLINE	Reproductive Freedoms.
PROGRAM	The US Supreme Court's conservative majority overturned Roe v. Wade, ending the 50-year federal right to abortion. On this 4th of July, a traditional day of civil freedoms, women advocates reflect on the meaning of the Court's decision on reproductive freedom. They also comment on what the ruling means for Latina women, how will they be impacted, how do state governments respond, the looming legal battles at the state level with some states trying to expand bans while others seeking to expand rights to abortion, the legal right to access contraceptives now a target and the impact on the midterm elections.
	Guests: Lupe M. Rodríguez, Executive director, National Latina Institute for Reproductive Justice, New York, NY; Alejandra Soto, Director of Latino Communications, Planned Parenthood Federation of America, New York, NY; Xochitl Oseguera, National Vice President, MomsRising, Berkeley, CA.

FUND	TCE-2442
HEADLINE	Immigration Edition. (IN-KIND)
PROGRAM	Former US Rep. Luis Gutiérrez came out of retirement to launch a new campaign called "Our Nation's Future," in order to help 1 million permanent residents become naturalized citizens within four years. He explains his plan. Also, as federal agencies swore in thousands of citizens in naturalization ceremonies on July 4th, a citizenship law expert comments on the benefits of naturalization for eligible residents and for local communities. She also stresses on the importance of becoming a new voter this election year. In other news, the Supreme Court ruled that the Biden administration can end the policy known as "Remain in Mexico," which forces migrants to wait in Mexico during their immigration procedures.
	Guests: Former US Congressman Luis Gutiérrez, Chicago, IL; Rosalba Piña, Attorney, Immigration and Citizenship Law Expert, Chicago, IL.
	Health for All in California. California will become the first state to extend state-subsidized health insurance to all low-income undocumented residents regardless of age. Gov. Newsom signed a budget which expands Medi-Cal to make this new program possible. Leaders of this trailblazing initiative in the legislature give their perspective.
	Guests: State Sen. Maria Elena Durazo, D-LA, Sacramento, CA; Assemblymember Joaquín Arambula, D-Fresno, Sacramento, CA.
7/6/2022	12:00-1:00	LIVE	FRESNO	IMMIGRATION
FUND	ARC-2441
HEADLINE	Migrant Deaths and Border Managing.
PROGRAM	More than 50 migrants died in a trailer in the sweltering heat of Texas, as part of a rising toll of deaths of people trying to cross the border. A coalition of human rights and environmental groups warn that the number of migrant deaths along the scorching borderlands will only grow as climate change makes the Southwest one of the fastest warming regions of the US. In order to save lives from extreme heat, they question the current deterrence policy and propose a new, humanitarian, climate-informed way to manage the border.
	Guests: Vicki Gaubeca, Southern Border Communities Coalition, San Diego, CA; Clara Long, Human Rights Watch, San Francisco, CA; Linda Escalante, Southern California Legislative Director, Los Angeles, CA; US Rep. Raul Ruiz, D-Coachella, Washington, DC (TBC)

FUND	Extra Edition: Combating Deadly Heat Threat in the Fields (Program Repeat.)
HEADLINE	Extra Edition: Combating Deadly Heat Threat in the Fields (Program Repeat.)
PROGRAM	Millions are under heat watches as a dangerous heat wave is warming the fields throughout the US South and Southwest. Exacerbated by climate change, temperatures for this summer season are expected to be worse than last one and outdoor workers are at extreme risk. Leading community health educators talk about the deadly effects of heat stress, who is most at risk of dying from heat stress, how to identify "danger days" and unsafe working conditions, and how the Covid pandemic has added another layer of risks to those workers who are exposed to extreme heat. They also discuss practical tips on how to deal with the heat and be aware of early signs of dehydration and heat stroke, and how to tell between symptoms of Covid-19 and heatstroke.
	Guests: Nezahualcoyotl "Neza" Xiuhtecutli, General Coordinator/Executive Director, Farmworker Association of Florida, Apopka, FL; Andrés Villegas, Community Health Promoter, WeCount!, Homestead, FL.

HEADLINE	Latinos Receive Nation's Highest Civilian Honor. (IN-KIND)
PROGRAM	President Biden is awarding the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor, to Raúl Yzaguirre, Julieta García, and others. Civil rights advocate Yzaguirre led for 30 years the National Council of la Raza, now known as UnidosUS, and Julieta García, who, as the former president of the University of Texas at Brownsville, became the first Latina woman to serve as a college president.
	Supreme Court Ties EPA's Hands on Pollution. The US Supreme Court decided to curb the EPA's ability to regulate power plants. The court invoked a legal doctrine which states that regulations of high national significance need to be authorized by Congress. What could be the impact on pollution, public health and climate change? Is the court getting ready to bring down regulations on Covid and consumer protections?
7/8/2022	12:00-1:00	LIVE	FRESNO	MEXICO
FUND	Mexico Edition.
HEADLINE	Political analysts discuss the public security strategy of the Mexican government now that Mexico exceeded one hundred thousand of disappeared people. How is the Hugs not Bullets policy working in reducing the rates of violence and impunity? What are the challenges ahead? In other news, after more than 50 Mexican and Central American migrants died in San Antonio, many raise questions about US border policies. Others ask: why are record numbers of people feeling compelled to cross the border at the risk of their lives? How do smugglers cross through checkpoints?
7/11/2022	12:00-1:00	LIVE	FRESNO	ABORTION
FUND	Overturning Roe: Impact on Migrant Women.
HEADLINE	An advocate talks about the impact that overturning Roe v. Wade may have on migrant and rural women, their families and farmworker and civil rights. Many farmworking women live in states where abortion is being declared illegal or heavily restricted. What's the expected effect on women who are applying for asylum, green card, or naturalization? Also, activists are promoting a national campaign to reform the Supreme Court and add four more judges. They say the current court is way out of line with the national ideological center and Congress has a history of doing this reform.
	Guests: Mónica Ramírez, Founder and President, Justice for Migrant Women; Mónica García, Communications Director, StandUp America.
	Red Flags and Another Mass Shooting. A 21-year-old suspect fired an assault weapon from a rooftop during a 4th of July parade in Highland Park killing six and injuring many more. How was he able to buy five weapons after threats of deadly violence and suicide? Why were red flags ignored? How do red flags laws work? How was he able to skirt Illinois strict gun laws?
	Guests: US Rep. Salud Carbajal, D-Santa Barbara, Washington, DC; Debbie Mukarsel-Powell, Senior Adviser, Giffords Center, Former Congressman, Miami, IL.

FUND	TCE-2442
HEADLINE	Extra Edition: Finding Housing After Prison. (IN-KIND)
PROGRAM	People who were previously incarcerated face a number of barriers when trying to find housing: landlord stigma, prior evictions, good paying jobs, loss of income, and more. A new journalistic project looks into the constant threat of homelessness people suffer after they have served their time in the justice system. This and other topics are highlighted in this edition.
	Guests: Cassandra Garibay, Reporter, Fresnoland Lab, The Fresno Bee, Fresno, CA; Others TBA.

7/12/2022	12:00-1:00	LIVE	FRESNO	IMMIGRATION
FUND	Immigration Edition.
HEADLINE
PROGRAM	After the Biden-AMLO meeting in the White House, a journalist who attended the meeting reports on the talks on migration, including AMLO's call for US immigration reform and more visas for temporary workers of diverse sectors. Also, two days after six county executives in Texas issued declarations of invasion, Texas gov. Greg Abbott issued an executive order declaring that President Biden had failed to protect Texas "against invasion" at the border and authorized the Texas National Guard to arrest them and take them to the border for deportation. Meantime, the Justice Department is investigating Abbott's multibillion-dollar Operation Lone Star initiative for possible civil rights violations. Also, a Washington correspondent reports on the latest hearing from the Jan. 6 committee this morning, which was expected to shed light on how white nationalist groups coordinated their participation in the insurrection and Capitol Hill attack. Finally, Mexico's Attorney General office is investigating former President Peña Nieto on charges of money laundering. An expert on corruption and money laundering comments on this.
	Guests: José López Zamorano, Political Reporter, Washington, DC; Perla Trevizo, Investigative Reporter, ProPublica/Texas Tribune, El Paso, TX; Emir Olivares, Special Envoy at the White House, La Jornada, Mexico City; (Audio Segment) Pablo Gómez, Director, Unidad de Inteligencia Financiera, Mexico City; Dr. Edgardo Buscaglia, Professor, Columbia University, Author of Book "Lavado de Dinero y Corrupción Política", Poland.

7/13/2022	12:00-1:00	LIVE	FRESNO	DROUGHT
FUND	ARC-2441
HEADLINE	Drought and Water Supply; Wildfire Season.
PROGRAM	As the historic drought worsens, unregulated industries turn to open new agricultural wells and over pumping groundwater, threatening the water supplies for disadvantaged communities. To protect the stressed aquifers and communities, Gov. Newsom released an executive, drought-emergency order, requiring new wells not to affect the primary drinking water source for many communities. Legislators are seeking to pass a new bill to strengthen this temporary protection. Also, as the drought worsens in the West Coast, millions are told to conserve water at home or risk mandated water restrictions. Listeners call in to share their experience on how to save water. In another story, as firefighters make progress in containing a wildfire in Yosemite National Park, a state emergencies official joins this program to explain how to protect yourself against the toxic effects of smoke from wildfires, how to prevent wildfires, and tips for families on how to prepare for the moment when a fire break out.
	Guests: Susana de Anda, Executive Director, Community Water Center, Visalia, CA; Diana Crofts-Pelayo, Office of Media Relations and Public Information, Governor's Office of Emergency Services, Sacramento, CA.

HEADLINE	Risks of Not Getting Children Vaccinated against COVID-19.
PROGRAM	"If you've had Covid already you don't need to be vaccinated." A public health expert joins this program to debunk this and other myths, with a focus on those parents who are still hesitant to vaccinate their children. Is the vaccine safe for kids? When can kids get the vaccine or booster shot? What is the risk of not vaccinating them? How do you compare the risks of the vaccine versus getting sick with COVID-19 in children, especially in the little ones under 5 years old? These questions and more are part of this conversation. Guest: Dr. Lucía Abascal, Public Health Physician, Director's Office, California Department of Public Health, Sacramento, CA. BA.5 Variant Worries. An expert on the science of COVID talks about new concerns about the number of new infections by BA.5 and the long-term effects of Covid. She discusses the ability of the virus to rapidly develop new mutations, especially as it infects immunocompromised people. She also discusses the challenges to develop new vaccines that may specifically protect against the new variants. Guest: Dr. Lorena Zuliani-Alvarez, Virologist, Immunologist, Member of the Covid Research Team, UCSF, San Francisco, CA.

HEADLINE	Critical Health Care Talks. (IN-KIND)
PROGRAM	If the US Congress does not close the Medicaid coverage gap in the current economic reconciliation package, more than two million people would lose health coverage. Many Latinos will be critically affected. Latina women may be at highest risk after the Supreme Court overturned abortion rights and some states further restrict access to abortion services. Abortion restrictions will only exacerbate the high mortality rates among Latino babies and mothers, advocates warn. Guest: Laura Guerra-Cardus, Director for Medicaid State Strategy, Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, Austin, TX. Affording Health Insurance. Hundreds of thousands of low-income Californians could lose their health insurance because of higher premiums unless the US Congress takes action and decides to continue the American Rescue Plan's benefits. This law, which helped millions to sign up for health insurance, is set to expire at the end of the year. Guests: Patricia Ward, State Spokesperson, Covered California, Sacramento, CA.

PROGRAM	California's state budget plan makes historic investments for low-income immigrant communities after allowing access for undocumented residents to Medi-Cal and to the state's food assistance program to people over 55, first state in the nation. In other news, Texas Gov. Abbott declared that his state is being invaded by migrants at the border. Warning that this campaign rhetoric inspires acts of terrorism by domestic extremists and encourages violence at the border, activists call on the federal government to defund agencies and counties involved in Operation Lone Star. Finally, ICE announced a new policy that would prevent agents from 'unnecessarily' conducting separations of migrant families by requiring agents to identify the relationship between adult and child migrants at the border.

HEADLINE	A Hot, Dry and Burning West.
PROGRAM	The U.S. West is experiencing another summer of extreme heat, droughts, wildfires and smoke, destructive events that are all escalating because of climate change. After two years of devastating summers, the forecasts for new major disasters are ominous. Summer used to be related to vacations and picnic days. Now, some call it "the danger season." What role is climate change playing on this? What can we do to reduce risks? What warning systems are being set in place? How is extreme weather placing Texas' at risk of power outages and mayor disasters?

HEADLINE	Extra Edition: Dealing with Back-to-School Blues. (IN-KIND HALF)
PROGRAM	As children across the US prepare to return to school, they may be feeling insecure, anxious or overwhelmed. Stress of the pandemic and fears related to school safety exacerbate those feelings. Children of color have an additional burden: systemic racism, which can lead to chronic stress, anxiety, and depression. What can parents do? Advocates are launching a national campaign called "Sound It Out," to use the power of music to support middle-school kids' emotional wellbeing.
	Guest: Dr. Regina Miranda, Psychology Professor, Director of Laboratory for the Study of Youth Cognition and Suicide, Hunter College, New York, NY.
	"First Time Home." A conversation with a young Triqui Californian about her recent documentary film titled "First Time Home." The film, narrated in Spanish, English and Triqui, tells the story of her visit, along with three cousins, to her family's ancestral village in the highlands of Oaxaca to meet their gravely-ill grandfather.
	Guest: Noemi Librado Sánchez, Co-Director, "First Time Home" Film, Fresno, CA.
	Help for Wildfires and Floods Victims. As crews make progress fighting the raging McKinney and Oak fires in Northern California, an expert shares information about resources available to help the evacuees, including shelter and emotional support. Also, a news contributor reports on the deadly floods ravaging Kentucky and the efforts to bring emergency relief.

PROGRAM	Reporting tens of deaths and a number of racial profiling cases in connection with Operation Lone Star, congress members and civil rights groups ask the federal government to intervene in Texas. Meantime, Texas Gov. Greg Abbott has bused 6,500 migrants to Washington, forcing the city to take emergency measures. In more news, advocates say migrants are being illegally detained at detention centers along the border, as ICE is failing to release them even though their cases were terminated by the court. Why has DHS failed to end the MPP program and continued the detention of asylum seekers? Finally, the Biden administration's "public charge" policy has been completed by the DHS and the final regulation may be ready in weeks. What do advocates expect? What are the stakes for millions of immigrant families?

HEADLINE	The Colorado: A Drying River. (ROUNDTABLE)
PROGRAM	The Colorado River, the West's largest water supply, is flowing with less and less water. Its reservoirs are drying up. And mega-drought, climate change and overuse are exacerbating the shortage crisis. To save the Colorado River, the seven Western states that depend on the river have to cut trillions of gallons of water and find new ways to share the river. But time is running out and there is no agreement on sight. How dire is the Colorado crisis? What went wrong with the current plan? What are the proposed plans on the table? How are the communities along the Basin expected to change in the near future? Guest analysts also comment on the push by Latinos to be part of the planning conversation, the efforts to restore and bring back to life the Colorado River Delta, and the impact of the water disaster on Mexican border communities.
	Guests: Rebecca Mitchell, Director, Colorado Water Conservation Board, Denver, CO; Juan Roberto Madrid, Colorado Clean Transportation and Energy Policy Advocate, GreenLatinos, Denver, CO; Dr. Carlos de la Parra Rentería, Adviser to International Boundary and Water Commission, President, Restaremos el Colorado, Mexicali, MX; Jorge Figueroa, Co-Founder, River Sisters Initiative, Denver, CO.

PROGRAM	Colorado's Covid hospitalizations dropped during the summer, but Denver's public health department is warning that infections will increase during the fall. In other news, the federal government suspended the program of sending free Covid-19 testing kits to people around the US because Congress hasn't authorized more funding. In more news, federal health authorities authorized updated Covid booster shots that target Omicron subvariants, ahead of a fall or winter surge. These and other news are discussed with a top representative of Colorado state's health system.
	Guest: Vanessa Bernal, Spokesperson, Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment, Denver, CO
	Student Debt Relief: What to Know - The White House has announced a plan for student loan relief that is expected to benefit about half of all Latino borrowers. Now that the program has arrived, the FTC has issued a warning about student loan scams and advises borrowers to take safety steps. How will this plan impact Coloradans? How to get the student loans forgiven? What to know about the repayments? How to protect against scams?

PROGRAM	The Biden administration announced a new "public charge" regulation that includes critical protections to secure immigrant families' access to health care and social services. What are those protections? An immigrant advocate from Denver explains the new federal rule and dispels the fears. She also comments on the recent plan in Colorado to open access to healthcare for some undocumented, including expanding Medicaid to include undocumented pregnant women and their children. In other news, Democrats in the House introduced a bill that would allow undocumented immigrants to apply for residency after seven years in the country by updating a line in the program known as "Registry." An immigrant activist from Colorado talks about these news. She also warns that while the state of Colorado is moving towards sanctuary-type protections for immigrants, some local governments continue their policies of cooperation with ICE and calls on congressional candidates to make good on their promises for support of immigration reform.

A ruling against the program may impact millions of families, the midterm elections, and the Supreme Court. An analyst discusses the ramifications of this case. In another story, Republican governors from border states keep sending buses to drop off migrants now at the home of Vice President Harris and chartered flights to Martha's Vineyard. Finally, the White House hosted a summit to address the effects of hate violence on democracy and public safety. An advocate discusses the white nationalist conspiracy theories being spread in this election season, and the findings on the effects of that violent rhetoric. Finally, pro-bono immigration attorneys and community activists came together on National Citizenship Day to guide green card holders to take their final steps toward naturalization. What were their most common questions?
