Cultural Appropriation	Cliff Berkowitz	11/9/16	9:00 AM	30 Mins	McKayla Alvarnaz. We talked about the more subtle form of institutionalized racism called cultural appropriation. The adaptation of an oppressed minority's cultural trappings by society at large is offensive to whose culture is being appropriated. Things such as team mascots as "Redskins" or "Indians" are starting to get notice. But more subtle forms of this happen every day.

Indigenous Rights	Cliff Berkowitz	11/10/16	9:00 AM	30 Mins	Ryan Jackson, Hoopa Tribal Chair. The Hoopa Nation has taken a very active role in standing with the Sioux at Standing Rock, sending over 150 people there to be part of the protest. Jackson and I also talked about US/Tribal relations, now and historically. We also took a spectacle look at how a Donald Trump presidency will affect indigenous sovereign rights.
Indigenous Right & Cultural Appropriation	Cliff Berkowitz	11/11/16	8:00 AM	2 Hours	Indigenous Right & Cultural Appropriation Panel Discussion. In this week's panel discussion I was joined in the KHUM studio by my co host for this year, my wife, Amy Berkowitz. Also on the panel, Chris Peters, President of 7th Generation Fund and by Ted Hernandez, Chairman and Assistant Cultural Director of the Wiyot Nation. This conversation focused largely on violence toward Mother Earth in what seems like a mutual suicide pact of extractive policies. We also deal with racism and violence toward native peoples. We also spoke of local history and where we are today among other things.

Anne Holcomb, the executive director of Food For People, spoke of food insecurity and the fact that the vast majority of those how seek help from the food pantries are working family who are struggling to make ends meet. Jenny Quigley is a graduate student at HSU in the department of Social Work. She has been working for the last year to set up a food pantry on the campus of College of the Redwoods. Today, is it's soft opening.
Lifting The Poor Out Of Poverty & Help for the Poor	Cliff Berkowitz	11/17/16	9:00 AM	30 Mins	Betty Chinn. Betty Chinn has be a champion for those at the bottom rung of the economic ladder here in Humboldt County for the past 32 years. Over the years Betty and here organization have given a helping had to lift hundreds of people out of poverty and into employment and productive lives. I personally find Betty Chinn to be one of the most inspiring people I have ever met. Betty has become a voice for the homeless here in Humboldt and her work as become a template for other communities.
