

WUKY (FM) University of Kentucky

Issues/Program List: 1st Quarter 2023

(January, February, March 2023)

Description of the issue: Matters pertaining directly and relatedly to COVID-19 and other issues that could impact the health, quality of life, healthcare and potentially health care costs of Lexingtonians.

Program	Date	Time	Description of the program/Segment
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	January 4, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	Could the game of bingo — with a twist — be part of healthier aging? A $1.1 million grant will help University of Kentucky College of Education researchers measure the impacts of increased exercise and social interaction for nursing home residents through a program called Bingocize®. Dr. Greg recently spoke with Dr. Melinda Ickes, who will lead the three year study.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	January 11, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	This week on Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine a popular radio reporter talks in depth, in the hope of helping others, about her recent diagnosis of multiple myeloma; a rare form of cancer and her treatment journey.
WUKY's All Things Considered	January 11, 2023	4:44-4:49pm	As a new semester gets underway, the University of Kentucky is scaling back its COVID-19 guidelines, but some infrastructure built to handle the pandemic will remain in place.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	January 18, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	Researchers at the University of Kentucky are taking an innovative approach to help a high-risk population by using easily accessible technology: an app on a smartphone. Carolyn Lauckner, Ph.D., an assistant professor in behavioral sciences in the College of Medicine, is leading a study to better understand the link between HIV and alcohol use in young adult sexual minority men and transgender (SMMT) individuals aged 18-34, with the goal to reduce HIV risk behaviors.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	January 25, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	The quick action of athletic trainers is credited with saving the life of Buffalo Bills' safety Damar Hamlin. This week on Dr. Greg Davis we take a deep dive into how athletic trainers are trained to respond to even the most unimaginable sports-related emergency situations. He goes one on one with Dr. Johanna Hoch, Program Director of the Professional Masters in Athletic Training at the University of Kentucky.
WUKY's All Things Considered	January 26, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	For the first time since the beginning of the pandemic, Kentucky was spared a major surge in serious new COVID-19 cases following the December holidays.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	February 1, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:50-5:58pm	As the COVID-19 pandemic approaches the three year mark, University of Kentucky clinical microbiologist Dr. Vaneet Arora says both the virus - and the efforts to combat it - continue to evolve. Dr. Arora joins Greg for an update.

WUKY's All Things Considered	February 2, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	With the national pandemic state of emergency coming to an end, Kentucky officials are now working to wind down the temporary streamlined Medicaid program implemented to get people insured faster.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	February 8, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	University of Kentucky College of Public Health (CPH) researchers, in collaboration with investigators from the UK College of Medicine, the UK College of Communication and Information and the Kentucky Department for Public Health (KDPH), are leading a five-year, $3.7 million project to study COVID-19 vaccination hesitancy in Eastern Kentucky. Dr. Greg talks with co-principal investigator Marc T. Kiviniemi, Ph.D.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	February 15, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	Each year, a group of students and employees at the University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy and campus and community partners work together to show Lexington that science is all around us, not just in the research labs. Everything is Science is held at different locations throughout the city, with events happening Monday through Friday. The festival features presentations, demonstrations, and conversations in laid-back spaces, like local restaurants, pubs, and breweries. Speakers aim to bring an uncomplicated approach to topics that we may not initially consider science-related. Dr. Greg gets a preview from coordinating committee member Dr. Lou Hirsch.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	February 22, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	The University of Kentucky is a site for the groundbreaking AHEAD study, the first-ever clinical trial to test the effect of a promising drug known as lecanemab. Just a few weeks ago the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved Leqembi (lecanemab-irmb) via the Accelerated Approval pathway for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease. This represents an important advancement in the ongoing fight to effectively treat Alzheimer's disease, and UK's Sanders-Brown Center on Aging is on the forefront of the work. Dr. Greg speaks with Greg Jicha, director of clinical trials at UK's Sanders-Brown Center on Aging.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	March 1, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	Jill Kolesar, Pharm.D., a professor in UK's College of Pharmacy and co-director of the UK Markey Cancer Center Molecular Tumor Board, is principal investigator of a study examining the impact molecular tumor board review has in cancer patient outcomes. She talks about it this week on Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	March 8, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	The incidence of spinal cord injury is over 17,000 new cases per year in the United States. The University of Kentucky is home to the Spinal Cord Injury and Research Center which helps develop new treatment methods for those who experience such trauma. This week Dr. Greg talks with acting director John Gensel about the center and his takeaways from a national conference he recently attended on the issue.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	March 15, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	The annual American Society for Neurochemistry conference is a unique meeting that brings young and seasoned scientists together to experience cutting-edge neurochemistry and neurobiology. This year the conference will be held at the University of Kentucky from March 18-22 and we have a preview. Dr. Greg talks with Linda Van Eldik, director of UK's Sanders-Brown Center on Aging. She's also the chair of the public forum which is scheduled for 4 to 6 p.m. on March 18th at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in downtown Lexington. The forum will look at topics ranging from healthy brain aging to addressing risks and disparities in the community.

Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	March 22, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	March is Blood Clot Awareness Month. Dr. Greg talks with Dr. George Davis, inpatient clinical pharmacist and adjunct professor in the UK College of Pharmacy about blood clots and being aware of thrombosis.
Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine	March 29, 2023	8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm	Twenty years ago, Kentucky had the highest colorectal cancer incidence and mortality rates in the U.S., as well as the second-lowest colorectal cancer screening rate. That's certainly not the case now. Dr. Greg talks with Dr. Thomas Tucker, senior director for cancer surveillance at UK's Markey Cancer Center about the turnaround and where Kentucky goes from here.

Description of the issue: Matters pertaining to the 2023 Legislative Session in Kentucky over and above our daily coverage

Program	Date	Time	Description of the program/Segment
WUKY's Morning Edition	January 3, 2023	7:44-7:49am	Lawmakers gather Tuesday to start this year's session. They're expected to consider legislation calling for another phased reduction in the state's individual income tax rate. High-profile, perennial issues could resurface during the session. Those issues include efforts to legalize, regulate and tax sports betting and resolve lingering questions over so-called gray machines — devices resembling slot machines that have spread in stores. Lawmakers also could consider another push to fully legalize medical marijuana in Kentucky. We get a preview from Laura Cullen Glasscock of the Frankfort-based Kentucky Gazette.

WUKY's Morning Edition	January 5, 2023	8:44-8:49am	Gov. Andy Beshear delivered an optimistic State of the Commonwealth address Wednesday, saying the state is ready to turn the corner after a series of crises. But Republican leaders say the governor carved out too much credit for his administration.
WUKY's Morning Edition	January 9, 2023	7:44-7:49am	What was the first week of January like for a reporter covering state government? Laura Cullen Glasscock, the editor and publisher of the Frankfort-based Kentucky Gazette joins Alan Lytle for the first edition of Capitol Chat for 2023. They talk about major legislative priorities for the GOP dominated General Assembly, recap Governor Andy Beshear's annual State of the Commonwealth address, and discuss the bizarre way in which former Kentucky Governor Matt Bevin let us all know he's not running for the office this year.
WUKY's Morning Edition	February 7, 2023	7:44-7:49am	After four weeks off the Kentucky General Assembly resumes its 30-day session on Tuesday. With the Republican supermajority expected to hit the ground running by giving final passage to its top-priority tax cut bill, what other measures have a chance of passing both chambers and getting to the governor's desk? We put that question to Kentucky Gazette editor and publisher Laura Cullen Glasscock for this week's edition of Capitol Chat.
WUKY's Morning Edition	February 14, 2023	7:44-7:49am	Kentucky Gazette editor and publisher Laura Cullen Glasscock highlights a number of bills addressing what some Kentucky GOP legislators regard as pressing social and cultural issues in the commonwealth, some long-standing Democrat priorities showing up in this session and a few bills that may have bipartisan support.
WUKY's Morning Edition	February 28, 2023	7:44-7:49am	We've already passed the halfway point of the 30-day legislative session. In this week's edition of Capitol Chat we shine the spotlight on some controversial education-related bills; one of which (SB-150) spurred protests at two Lexington high schools. Also this week, an update on legislation concerning sports betting and medical cannabis. Our guest once again is the editor and publisher of the Frankfort-based Kentucky Gazette, Laura Cullen Glasscock.

WUKY's Morning Edition	March 7, 2023	7:44-7:49am	Today is day 21 of the Kentucky Legislative Session and the next two weeks will be make or break time for hundreds of bills. Everything has to be wrapped up by March 30th. Laura Cullen Glasscock, the editor and publisher of the Frankfort-based Kentucky Gazette tells us what we need to look for over the coming days and how the 'politics of the now' may influence the agenda.
WUKY's Morning Edition	March 14, 2023	7:44-7:49am	Laura Cullen Glasscock from the Kentucky Gazette and WUKY's Alan Lytle discuss the controversy over so-called gray machines and why Kentucky's horse racing industry is lobbying hard to ban them. And speaking of lobbying there are now 700 registered lobby groups operating behind the scenes in this year's session. What is all of that money being spent on?
WUKY's Morning Edition	March 29, 2023	7:44-7:49am	Lawmakers return to Frankfort for the final two days of the legislative session. They are expected to over-ride Governor Andy Beshear's vetoes and perhaps pass bills dealing with sports betting, medical marijuana and rolling back a bourbon barrel tax. Kentucky Gazette editor and publisher Laura Cullen Glasscock has a preview.
WUKY's Morning Edition	March 31, 2023	8:44-8:49am	The 2023 Kentucky Legislative session is now over after the General Assembly passes bills on sports betting, medical marijuana and a gradual rollback of the bourbon barrel tax. We speak one final time to Kentucky Gazette editor and publisher Laura Cullen Glasscock for some analysis.

Matters pertaining to major city government issues before the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Council, the Gorton Administration, and associated agencies.

WUKY's Morning Edition	January 23, 2023	7:44-7:49am	In this installment of our weekly look ahead at the Urban County Council's docket, Richard Young discusses Mayor Gorton's State of the City address, plus meetings focusing on parking prices and the city's youth anti-violence program.
WUKY's All Things Considered	January 24, 2023	4:44-4:49pm	Lexington Mayor Linda Gorton laid out lots of numbers in her annual State of the City address, most pointing to progress she sees the city making on issues, such as affordable housing and gun violence. But one new city council member says her mission is to put a face on those figures.

WUKY's All Things Considered	January 25, 2023	4:44-4:49pm	The executive director of LexPark defended the agency's recent controversial increase in parking prices and expansion of enforcement hours during an Urban County Council meeting Tuesday, but the presentation left many city leaders and members of the public far from satisfied.
WUKY's Morning Edition	January 30, 2023	7:44-7:49am	What's on the docket this week downtown? We talk with CivicLex's Adrian Bryant about the financial outlook, Lexington's portion of the recent national opioid settlement, and the return of the city's racial justice commission.
WUKY's Morning Edition	February 6, 2023	8:44-8:49am	In this week's episode of the CivicLex Chat, we talk with Adrian Bryant about Lexington's comprehensive plan and how some of its language is evolving, street tree cutting proposals, and grading the city on its litter.
WUKY's Morning Edition	February 14, 2023	8:44-8:49am	In this week's CivicLex chat Adrian Bryant updates us on a productive initial confab between Mayor Gorton and members of the Urban County Council, there's also news about Lexington's Comprehensive Plan and an unusual kudos from a publication out of Argentina.
WUKY's Morning Edition	February 27, 2023	8:44-8:49am	In this week's installment, WUKY chats with CivicLex's Richard Young about the latest moves on the comprehensive plan, the jobs outlook in Lexington, and an informational meeting on the city's license plate reader program.
WUKY's Morning Edition	March 6, 2023	8:44-8:49am	In this week's installment, WUKY's Josh James chats with CivicLex's Adrian Bryant about the latest iteration of proposed regulations for short term rentals (think Airbnb and VRBO), more language services on the city's website, and the latest on when drivers can expect to learn the location of the Lexington's license plate readers.
WUKY's All Things Considered	March 6, 2023	4:44-4:49pm	WUKY's Josh James spoke with Lexington Mayor Linda Gorton about the ongoing effort to restore power to thousands of Fayette Countians still without electricity following Friday's wind event.

WUKY's Morning Edition	March 14, 2023	8:44-8:49am	In this week's edition of CivicLex Chat Richard Young recaps what happened last week regarding the short-term rental issue and previews a very busy Tuesday on tap at City Hall with discussions on Community Corrections, Lexington's paramedicine program and other substance use disorder issues.
WUKY's Morning Edition	March 21, 2023	8:44-8:49am	This week the Lexington Fayette Urban County Council will discuss the challenges associated with building more affordable housing and how to pay for it. Richard Young of CivicLex has a preview of some options on the table.

Description of the issue: Matters pertaining to gun violence and violence prevention programs in Lexington.

WUKY's All Things Considered	February 2, 2023	4:44-4:49pm	Fayette County Schools began the work of assessing its progress five years after convening a panel to respond to the growing safety concerns in the wake of the 2018 school shootings in Parkland, Florida and Marshall County, Kentucky.
WUKY's All Things Considered	February 3, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	Law enforcement officials say a 17-year-old Dunbar High School student is in custody after a loaded firearm was found in the student's backpack.
WUKY's All Things Considered	February 7, 2023	4:44-4:49pm	Mayor Linda Gorton and ONE Lexington today announced the city will provide first-ever violence prevention grants to 16 public schools in Fayette County. WUKY's Samantha Lederman has details.

WUKY's All Things Considered	March 15, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	Fifteen grassroots nonprofit organizations active in violence prevention are receiving grants from ONE Lexington. Karyn Czar has details.
------------------------------	----------------	-------------	---

Description of the issue: Matters pertaining to the documentation and improvement of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion in Lexington and Central Kentucky including the 50th anniversary of Lexington's first Martin Luther King Day celebration.

WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered	January 12, 2023	8:44-8:49am & 4:44-4:49pm	The Lyric Theatre and Cultural Arts Center in downtown Lexington is celebrating the Martin Luther King holiday a day early with two free screenings of "After King 23," a new documentary by Lexington hip-hop artist and filmmaker Jeremiah Wrong, that explores where America is today, after Dr. King's dream. WUKY's Alan Lytle spoke with Lyric executive director Whit Whitaker about this weekend's kickoff event and several other related programs on the venue's calendar.
WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered	January 13, 2023	8:44-8:49am & 5:44-5:49pm	Lexington is gearing up for its 50th anniversary commemoration of the life and legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. We speak with Chester Grundy and George Brown co-organizers of this year's festivities.
WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered	January 16, 2023	8:44-8:49am & 5:44-5:49pm	In this special MLK Holiday edition of WUKY's award winning history series Saving Stories, Doug Boyd, director of the Louie B. Nunn Center for Oral History in the UK Libraries highlights an extraordinary interview with Dr. King from March of 1964. Hear the non-violent advocate and activist at the height of his influence in a one-on-one conversation with Kentucky author Robert Penn Warren discussing the revolutionary nature of the Civil Rights movement and where he thought it should go next.
WUKY's All Things Considered	January 17, 2023	4:44-4:49pm	State and local leaders led thousands of people through the streets of Lexington Monday celebrating the legacy of Martin

			Luther King Junior for the 50th year. WUKY's Arlo Barnette was there.
WUKY's All Things Considered	January 18, 2023	4:44-4:49pm	Martin Luther King Day commemorations continued Tuesday at the University of Kentucky as the school brought together civil rights leaders, university speakers, and the power of song. The program concluded with the announcement of a new vocal ensemble in Lexington — formed with more than just musical harmony in mind.
WUKY's All Things Considered	February 15, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	A historic structure in Lexington's East End neighborhood will get a new lease on life. On Wednesday Mayor Linda Gorton transferred ownership of the former Palmer Pharmacy building on East Fifth Street to United Way of the Bluegrass. The building, once home to the first Black-owned ReXall pharmacy franchise in the country, will be repurposed as the Marksbury Family Way Point Center. President and Chief Executive Officer Timothy Johnson called the project a long labor of love for the stakeholders.
WUKY's All Things Considered	February 23, 2023	4:44-4:49pm	A new exhibit celebrating Black Americans' significant and unsung contributions to Thoroughbred Racing opens at the Keeneland Library Thursday and WUKY's Samantha Lederman paid a visit to find out more.
WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered	February 23, 2023	7:44-7:49am & 5:44-5:49pm	In this Black History Month edition of WUKY's award winning history series Saving Stories, we highlight an extraordinary interview with Malcolm X from June of 1964. The conversation with Robert Penn Warren was part of a series of interviews the Kentucky author and poet conducted as part of his book "Who Speaks for the Negro." The Muslim minister provides his opinions of the white race and the lasting effects of slavery and oppression on both the white race and African Americans. Malcolm X also questions the effectiveness of integration as well as non-violent tactics, like those advocated by Martin Luther King in the Civil Rights Movement.
WUKY's All Things Considered	February 24, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	Students at two Lexington high schools held walkouts to protest anti-LGBTQ+ bills filed by Kentucky lawmakers. WUKY's Karyn Czar reports.
WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered	March 1, 2023	8:44-8:49am & 4:44-4:49pm	The Kentucky Wildcats' final home game of the season takes place tonight in Rupp Arena and that means soon it'll be March mania time once again. We don't often send our equestrian reporter Samantha Lederman to cover basketball, but you may be surprised to learn that she shares a common passion with UK sophomore forward Daimion Collins and she recently sat down with him (during practice) to find out a little more.

WUKY's All Things Considered	March 1, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	A long sought-after bill barring discrimination based on hairstyles drew hundreds to the center of Kentucky government Wednesday. WUKY News has this snapshot from the Capitol steps.
WUKY's All Things Considered	March 2, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	Physicians providing gender transition services to Kentucky minors risk losing their license under a bill making its way through the General Assembly. Passage of the measure out of committee led to heated exchanges between advocates and lawmakers.
WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered	March 27, 2023	7:44-49am & 4:44-4:49pm	WUKY's Award winning history series Saving Stories celebrates Women's History Month. Nunn Center Director Doug Boyd shares audio from a rare oral history interview with Martha Layne Collins; the only woman ever to be elected governor of Kentucky. She talks about her approach to the office, convincing Japanese automaker Toyota to build a plant in Georgetown and how she hoped Kentuckians would look back on her time as governor.
WUKY's All Things Considered	March 27, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	Why does where you live and who you are affect the quality of your healthcare? That broad topic was explored at UK Monday at the 18th annual Center for Clinical and Translational Science spring conference.
WUKY's All Things Considered	March 29, 2023	5:44-5:49pm	More than a dozen people were arrested at the Kentucky Capitol Wednesday as protesters railed against a bill effectively barring gender transitioning services for those under 18.