

WUKY (FM) University of Kentucky

Issues/Program List: 3rd Quarter 2023

(July, August, September 2023)

Description of the issue: Matters pertaining directly and relatedly to COVID-19 and other issues including the ongoing opioid crisis that could impact the health, quality of life, healthcare and potentially health care costs of Lexingtonians.

| Program | Date | Time | Description of the program/Segment |
|------------------------------|----------------|----------------------------|---|
| Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine | July 5, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:48pm | Whether you're planning a beach vacation, gardening, or watching your kids' baseball games, make sure you take steps to protect yourself and your loved ones from skin cancer. Dr. Greg speaks with John D'Orazio, M.D., chief of the Division of Hematology/Oncology in the UK Department of Pediatrics. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 7, 2023 | 4:44-4:49pm | The FDA has granted full approval for a new Alzheimer's treatment that's been used in clinical trials at the University of Kentucky. Sanders Brown Center on Aging officials call it a "game-changer." |
| Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine | July 12, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm | It's been several months since WUKY's Karyn Czar broke the news about her diagnosis of multiple myeloma, a cancer of the plasma cells. She's back on this week's Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine to update us on her cancer journey; including what's she's learned along the way. |
| Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine | July 19, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm | Just because the COVID pandemic has been downgraded to an endemic, our go-to guy on the virus has some advice for summer travelers. University of Kentucky clinical microbiologist Dr. Vaneet Arora is the guest this week on Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine. |
| Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine | July 26, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm | A new study conducted by a group of researchers has found that people who experience interpersonal violence or child abuse face a more than 20% increased risk of developing diabetes. Dr. Greg talks with one of the researchers, Dr. Ann Coker; the interim executive director of the University of Kentucky Center for Research on Violence Against Women (CRVAW). |
| Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine | August 2, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm | The FDA recently approved the first over-the-counter birth control pill. The daily oral contraceptive, called Opill, will be available without a prescription. On this edition of Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine the host talks with UK OB-GYN Assistant Professors Kourtney Grant and Pamela ("Tess") Smallwood. |
| Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine | August 9, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm | The city of Lexington celebrated the 20th anniversary of its historic smoke-free ordinance recently in a ceremony at the Lexington-Fayette Government Center. Ellen J. Hahn, professor and director of BREATHE at the University of Kentucky College of Nursing talks about the long journey and the resulting sea change in the Commonwealth. |

| | | | |
|------------------------------|-------------------|----------------------------|--|
| Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine | August 16, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm | A recent report by 2023 Kids Count Data Book studied how economic well-being, education, health and family support impacts a child's overall well-being, and how those impacts vary from state to state. So how does Kentucky rank? Not good, according to Scottie B. Day, M.D., Physician-in-Chief at Kentucky Children's Hospital and chair of the University of Kentucky College of Medicine's Department of Pediatrics. He talks with Dr. Greg about the commonwealth's overall rating of 40th. |
| Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine | August 23, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm | A recent study led by UK Markey Cancer Center researcher Jean Edward, Ph.D., examined the effectiveness of a new oncology financial navigation intervention called Coverage and Cost-of-Care Links (CC Links), among patients and their caregivers recruited from Markey's Hematology and Blood & Marrow Transplant Program. She talks about in this week's edition of Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine. |
| Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine | August 30, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm | Sydney Clark is now a disability and preparedness specialist for the Tennessee Department of Health, a state agency with the mission of protecting and improving the health of people in the state of Tennessee. She was born with a genetic condition that resulted in losing her vision over time. However, Clark never allowed her disability to stop her from achieving her academic and professional goals — attending the University of Kentucky and becoming a public health influencer and champion. Some of her projects have included examining emergency plans for inclusivity and providing preparedness for people that need electronic medical devices. She talks about her work on this week's edition of Dr. Greg Davis on Medicine. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | September 6, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am 5:44-5:49pm | The COVID-19 public health emergency may be officially over, but COVID has not completely disappeared from concern. In fact, Lexington hospitals are seeing an increase in COVID patients this summer. With a new COVID vaccine coming this fall, the UK Pharmacist Care Clinic's Jim Hallahan, Pharm.D., and Ryan Babb, Pharm.D., answer some questions you may have. Dr. Greg talks one on one with Hallahan. |

Description of the issue: Matters pertaining to the 2023 Kentucky gubernatorial election and other important state and local contests.

| Program | Date | Time | Description of the program/Segment |
|---------|------|------|------------------------------------|
|---------|------|------|------------------------------------|

| | | | |
|------------------------------|----------------|-------------|--|
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 6, 2023 | 4:44-4:49pm | Kentucky's candidates for governor are both scheduled to speak at this year's Fancy Farm picnic. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 11, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Attorney General and Republican candidate for governor Daniel Cameron unveiled a 12-point public safety plan in Lexington Tuesday, arguing Kentucky needs a governor who can work with the General Assembly to bolster and provide more protections for law enforcement. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | July 14 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | Democratic Gov. Andy Beshear touted robust revenue collections in Kentucky as another sign of a surging state economy Thursday, building on a theme he has made a cornerstone of his reelection bid in a state that Republicans have dominated in recent years. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | July 20, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | It's official: Kentucky state Sen. Robby Mills will join Republican Daniel Cameron on the ballot this November. And it didn't take long after Wednesday's announcement for the reaction and political salvos to ramp up. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 24, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | The race is just now settling in, with GOP candidate Daniel Cameron announcing his running mate just last week, but some early numbers provide hints about where the campaigns stand. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | August 2, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am | Kentucky Republican gubernatorial nominee Daniel Cameron is looking to separate himself from the last GOP governor, apologizing for former Gov. Matt Bevin's feud with educators, in an effort to reclaim lost territory with teachers — whose voting clout helped vault the incumbent Democratic governor into office. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 3, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | The political epicenter of state politics will be in Graves County, Kentucky this Saturday at the annual Fancy Farm Picnic; a fundraiser for Saint Jerome's Parish. And this event comes in the midst of a hotly contested gubernatorial campaign. Kentucky Gazette editor and publisher Laura Cullen Glasscock plans to be in the crowd this year and she talked about what she'll be watching for. |

| | | | |
|------------------------------|--------------------|-------------|--|
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 6, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | In front of a raucous crowd at Kentucky's premier political event on Saturday, the Democratic incumbent Governor Andy Beshear talked about the state's high-flying economy while his Republican challenger, Attorney General Daniel Cameron hammered away on social issues. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 10, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear on Wednesday proposed another round of pay raises for state police troopers and support for more law enforcement training as part of his latest budget proposals to increase public safety, coming amid a sharp focus on crime rates in his bid to win a second term. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | August 11, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | The latest snapshot of the governor's race shows an eight-point lead for incumbent Democrat Andy Beshear over his rival, Daniel Cameron. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 16, 2023 | 4:44-4:49pm | Democratic Gov. Andy Beshear proposed awarding the largest pay raise in decades to Kentucky's public school personnel, upping the ante Wednesday in his competition with Republican challenger Daniel Cameron, who offered his own plan to boost salaries and overcome pandemic learning setbacks. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | September 18, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Republican nominee for governor Daniel Cameron says he would back a bill adding exceptions for rape and incest in Kentucky's strict abortion laws. |

Matters pertaining to major city government issues before the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Council, the Gorton Administration and associated agencies including addressing the affordable housing shortage and the first expansion of the Urban Service Boundary since 1996.

| | | | |
|------------------------|---------------|-------------|--|
| WUKY's Morning Edition | July 11, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | In this week's installment, WUKY's Josh James chats with CivicLex's Jillian Riseman about the fast approaching final vote on short-term rental regulations and a number of |
|------------------------|---------------|-------------|--|

| | | | |
|------------------------------|--------------------|-------------|--|
| | | | updates, including how lighting and solar projects have impacted the city's energy usage. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 17, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Concerned Lexington residents, joined by the Fayette Alliance, say their lawsuit against the city's urban county government over its new comprehensive plan and boundary expansion isn't "anti-growth," but rather a statement about adhering to process and data-driven decision-making. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 24, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | City and community leaders were on hand this morning to cut the ribbon on six new affordable housing units in Lexington's East End neighborhood. The townhomes, located at the corner of Race and Third streets, represent the latest effort to address the city's shortage of affordable housing. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | August 15, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | In this week's installment of CivicLex Chat: work is beginning on Lexington's Urban Service Boundary expansion. But it's still extremely early in the process. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 17, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | A group opposed to the recent decision to expand Lexington's urban services boundary is circulating a petition and looking to prove it's got the public on its side. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | August 22, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | Jillian Riseman with CivicLex talks with WUKY's Alan Lytle about expansion of Lexington's Urban Service Boundary and other issues happening at City Hall. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | August 29, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | Planning staff have presented 15 sections of land that could be roped in to the city's urban service boundary expansion. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | September 5, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | Work continues apace on drafting recommended urban service boundary expansion map, with seven areas likely candidates for expansion. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | September 12, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | In this installment, we discuss Tuesday's field trip for advisory committee members as they get a first-person look |

| | | | |
|--|--------------------|---------------------------|---|
| | | | at spots targeted for expansion, public comment, and what happens next. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | September 19, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | In this installment, CivicLex's Jillian Riseman reviews last week's public comment on Lexington's boundary expansion, plus new meetings this week regarding Accessory Dwelling Unit rules and diversity in contracting. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered | September 20, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am & 4:44-4:49pm | Lexington's proposed urban service boundary expansion has been scaled back to something more modest than what some had envisioned. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition | September 26, 2023 | 7:44-7:49am | In this installment, we talk with CivicLex's Kit Anderson about a change that could help the city's homelessness fund keep up with the growing city budget, plus more. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | September 26, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | A newly released survey is shining a light on youth homelessness in Fayette County and how the public school system hopes to address it. |

Description of the issue: Matters pertaining to gun violence in Lexington and efforts to prevent it.

| | | | |
|------------------------------|-----------------|-------------|--|
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 25, 2023 | 4:44-4:49pm | ONE Lexington, an initiative dedicated to reducing youth violence has ramped up its programming this summer. On the final day of their "It Takes a Village" mentoring camp the kids got a lesson in money - how to earn it, how to save it, and how to use it. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 25, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Family members of the late Desman LaDuke, a Black man in his early 20s who was killed by police in Nicholasville in |

| | | | |
|------------------------------|--------------------|-------------|---|
| | | | 2022, are reacting to a grand jury decision handed down this week. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | September 27, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Kentucky House Republicans are working on a comprehensive anti-crime bill dubbed the Safer Kentucky Act. The proposed legislation is still evolving, but a number of provisions are already grabbing attention. |

Description of the issue: Matters pertaining to the documentation and improvement of Racial, Ethnic, Cultural, LGBTQ and Gender Diversity, Equity and Inclusion in Lexington and Central Kentucky.

| | | | |
|------------------------------|---------------|-------------|---|
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 10, 2023 | 4:44-4:49pm | Any museum curator will tell you that putting together an exhibit that effectively tells a compelling story, perhaps addressing myths or highlighting underappreciated achievements, is a challenge under any circumstance. So, it's no surprise that it took awhile for the Kentucky Historical Society in Frankfort to roll out a comprehensive past and present tribute to Kentucky's women in uniform. But now "Our Stories, Our Service: Kentucky's Women Veterans" is |
|------------------------------|---------------|-------------|---|

| | | | |
|--|---------------|---------------------------|---|
| | | | ready for you to come and experience for yourself. WUKY's Alan Lytle recently did just that with curator Julie Maio Kemper. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 14, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Friday marked a setback for opponents of Kentucky's Senate Bill 150, which includes provisions effectively banning gender transitioning services for minors – things like puberty blockers and hormone therapy. Both opponents and proponents say they're optimistic the bill's on-again-off-again journey through the courts will result in a win for their side. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 18, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | 15 years ago Congress designated July as National Minority Mental Health Awareness month in part to bring light to the stigma of mental health illness within the minority population of the US. Historically Black Colleges and Universities or HBCU's are doing what they can to aid in this effort. Edgar Lewis is an interventionist and mental health counselor at Kentucky State University in Frankfort. He recently sat down with KSU student and WUKY reporter Anyiah Chambers to talk about student mental health. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered | July 26, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am & 5:44-5:49pm | Amid a national debate on how Black history should be taught, comes a new book on the African American Experience in Kentucky. Slavery and Freedom in the Bluegrass State: Revisiting My Old Kentucky Home is a collection of powerful essays that uncover the long-forgotten stories of pain, protest, and perseverance of African Americans in Kentucky. WUKY's Alan Lytle recently sat down with the editor of the project. Gerald L. Smith is professor of history at the University of Kentucky and pastor of Pilgrim Baptist Church in Lexington. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 27, 2023 | 4:44-4:49pm | Kentucky singer-songwriter Tyler Childers has announced a new album and shared its first single and video, which tells the story of two gay men working to forge a life in rural Appalachia in the 1950s. And the writer behind the video will also be familiar to Kentucky readers. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | July 31, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Reaction continues to pour in for Kentucky singer-songwriter Tyler Childers' new music video, a collaboration between Childers and state poet laureate Silas House depicting two gay coal miners who make a life for themselves in Appalachia. |

| | | | |
|--|--------------------|---------------------------|---|
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 8, 2023 | 4:44-4:49pm | Americans are now more familiar with Juneteenth since it was named a national holiday in 2021, but African-Americans in parts of Kentucky and Tennessee commemorate another day of freedom. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 11, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Since 2021 United Way of the Bluegrass has established a number of WayPoint Centers across Lexington. On Thursday they cut the ribbon on a brand new facility serving mostly Hispanic residents in the Cardinal Valley neighborhood. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered | August 17, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am & 4:44-4:49pm | Recently, the Henry Clay Memorial Foundation has prioritized telling a more inclusive and complete story of African Americans who lived and worked at Ashland the Henry Clay Estate. An event this Saturday builds on that effort. Black History at Ashland will feature a number of prominent local and national voices, artists and experts. This week WUKY's Alan Lytle spoke with Shea Brown, long-time Fayette County Deputy Clerk whose office has been working on a project to make available online, some 60,000 pages of Fayette County's historical property records containing information about enslaved people from the late 1700s through 1865; some of whom lived and worked at Ashland. Brown has a high profile role in Saturday's Black History at Ashland event. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 23, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Throughout its rich history the Grand Theatre in downtown Frankfort has been a showplace for arts and entertainment in the Capital city since opening to the public in 1911. But it wasn't always so grand for African American patrons. The latest phase in an oral history project promises a deep dive into their experiences when the venue was subject to Jim Crow segregation. |
| WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered | August 29, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am & 4:44-4:49pm | Fayette School Board members have been given a preliminary recommendation for naming a new middle school under construction on Polo Club Boulevard after Lexington's first African American female doctor, Dr. Mary E. Britton. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 29, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | The Lexington History Museum reopened at its new home on Saturday, and it includes a display featuring the recent removal of Confederate statues in a popular downtown gathering spot. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | August 30, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | A community-based organization working to increase equity in health care will be holding another "Barbershop Initiative" event in Lexington next month. WUKY's Josh James has more. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | September 22, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | For the next two nights downtown Lexington's Robert F. Stephens Courthouse Plaza will take on a more international flavor with the annual Festival Latino De Lexington. The event is presented by the Foundation for Latin American and Latino Culture and Arts – also known as FLACA, and Lexington Parks & Recreation. On Friday morning WUKY's Alan Lytle talked with event coordinator Jessica Piersol about what to expect this year. |

| | | | |
|---|---------------------------|--------------------------------------|---|
| WUKY's Morning Edition & All Things Considered | September 26, 2023 | 8:44-8:49am & 4:44-4:49pm | UK HealthCare and Fayette County Public Schools are working on a career path project for high school students with intellectual and developmental disabilities. The partnership – part of a nationwide initiative, dubbed project SEARCH, just launched in August. On Tuesday the stakeholders held a press conference to explain how the program works and who it's meant to benefit. Alan Lytle has details. |
| WUKY's All Things Considered | September 29, 2023 | 5:44-5:49pm | Kentucky's law effectively banning what's known as "gender-affirming care" for transgender youth will remain in effect while the matter continues to be litigated. |