Opioid-use disorder is a chronic disease that affects many residents in [insert community name]. Like other chronic diseases, it can be managed with medication. Medications like methadone are the most effective way to save lives by managing withdrawal symptoms and cravings and reducing the risk of relapse, overdose, and even death. Hey, Andrew. Here are both options for the PSAs. I believe I recorded both of them, but I think you were going to use option 2.

Option 1

Are you or a loved one struggling with opioid use disorder? Now is the time to seek help. FDA-approved medications – like methadone – are a path to recovery from opioid use disorder. These medications lower the risk of relapse and increase the chances of staying in recovery long-term. Seeking recovery is a brave step, and help is available. Learn more about medications for opioid-use disorder available in our community at HEALTogetherNY.org/Chautauqua.

Thanks for any help you can provide with this.

I'll get you some info.

Did you ever send me the script for this (for our records) or did you just do it off your phone?

Hi, Andrew. I was just wondering if you would be able to share a report of when the PSA for the opioid overdose reduction project has run on the Media One stations? Columbia University and the project developer would like us to report out as much information back to them as possible. Please let me know when you have a moment.

“The opioid epidemic continues to affect all of us, as Americans and New Yorkers,” said Dr. James McDonald, acting commissioner for the state Department of Health. “Deaths from overdose continue to increase nationally and locally and data can help inform and drive local solutions to this complex public health crisis.”

According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, opioids are a class of drugs that include heroin as well as powerful pain relievers such as oxycodone, morphine and fentanyl. When used, opioids can cause intense euphoria or a high that can lead to dependence and addiction.

As noted by the state Health Department, fentanyl is 50 to 100 times stronger than heroin and has contributed to an increase in opioid overdose deaths in recent years. Fentanyl is now involved in the majority of overdose deaths in New York state.

CDC information released last year found that overdose deaths involving opioids increased in the U.S. from an estimated 70,029 in 2020 to 80,816 in 2021. Overdose deaths from synthetic opioids also continued to increase in 2021 compared to 2020.

— 12.6% increase in outpatient emergency department visits due to opioid overdoses, with 10,430 visits in 2021.

— 30.2% increase in outpatient emergency department visits due to opioid overdoses other than heroin, including illicitly produced opioids such as fentanyl, with 5,137 visits in 2021.

— 11.8% increase in emergency medical services naloxone administration encounters, with 19,139 in 2021.

IMPACT LOCALLY

In 2021, opioid overdoses resulted in 173 emergency department visits in Chautauqua County. For the first half of 2022, 95 local ER visits were reported to the state Health Department.

Of the overdoses recorded in 2021, 21 people required hospitalization in the county. Information was not yet available for hospitalizations last year as a result of opioid overdoses.

The state’s quarterly report also notes that naloxone, medication designed to rapidly reverse an opioid overdose, was administered 165 times by EMS and law enforcement personnel in 2021.

“Fentanyl, a powerful and deadly opioid, continues to be found in street drugs of all kinds and continues to cause overdose and death in our communities,” County Executive PJ Wendel said last month. “At the same time, numerous individuals and agencies throughout our county are working to combat addiction and reduce drug overdoses, and we are grateful for their life-saving efforts.”
