Andrew,

Sorry I'm a little late... but, here's the second-quarter Community Spotlight issues report.

Terry

Community Spotlight issues report for second-quarter of 2023

The Community Spotlight Local Public Affairs Program airs on all six of the Media One Radio Group radio stations. The Chautauqua County Executive appears the first week of each month, and city of Jamestown Mayor appears the second week of each month. The other weeks of the month feature a variety of community leaders and special guests. The program airs on the following stations at the following times: WJTN - Saturday at 8:05 A.M. | WWSE - Sunday at 7 A.M. | WHUG Sunday at 6:30 A.M and WKSJ - Sunday at 8:10 A.M. | WQFX - Sunday at 5:30 A.M. | WKZA - Sunday at 6:00 A.M..

April of 2023...

- Mar. 28 - Apr. 1 Jamestown Board of Public Utilities General Manager Dave Leathers is in the spotlight this week to discuss a number of topics, including the energy future in Jamestown and the rest of New York State. He tells our Terry Frank that it's all based around the state's new Energy Standards, which were put in place in August of 2016... and, the NYS Climate Action Plan, which was approved in 2019. Leathers says the BPU is actually well positioned to weather the changes, but, adds the cost for those approved changes are already adding about 20% more costs to BPU electric customers. He says the board's New York State Power Authority allocation of about 90% of the city's power will continue to come from the Niagara Hydropower Project through at least 2040. He adds the future of the BPU's gas turbine should be good through 2035. We also discuss the State Research and Development Agency's recent awarding of a $95,000 dollar grant to the BPU, and the city School District to develop a plan for changing the district's bus fleet to all-electric in the next few years. We also discuss current and future projects to replace old water mains around the city.

- Apr. 3 -- Busti Town Supervisor Jesse Robbins and Town Clerk Darlene Nygren talk with our Terry Frank about the upcoming Bicentennial celebration in the town, with a number of activities running from mid-April through late September. Robbins says the bicentennial planning actually began three-years ago when he heard from a former town resident that it was coming up, and he, Nygren and others began planning, and a committee was formed. The first activity is coming up on Apr. 12 when long-time Historian Norm Carlson gives the "Busti Talk" at the Fenton History Center. Robbins says they'll host a "Miss Busti" competition on Apr. 14 who will serve through the year. The first major event will then be held on Sunday, Apr. 16 at the Lakewood Rod and Gun Club beginning at 1:30 p.m. with an opening ceremony, and a town board reenactment, featuring board members in 1923 garb. Robbins says there'll be music, a chicken barbecue, kids bounce house, and fireworks at 8:30 p.m. There'll be several other activities through the summer, with a night at Stateline Speedway on Sat. July 1, and at a Jamestown Tarp Skunks baseball game on July 15. The big event will be held Sept. 21-24 with concerts and a carnival at the Busti Firemen's Grounds. It will be held in conjunction with what will be a two-day Busti Apple Harvest Festival Sept. 23 and 24. For more information... go to www.townofbusti.com.

- Apr. 10 - Our Terry Frank talks with Chautauqua County Executive P.J. Wendel this week on a number of local and state issues... including what the county will do now to raise needed funds to maintain and improve Chautauqua Lake and other waterways. A recent proposal by Wendel to increase the county's occupancy -- or bed tax -- from 5% to 8% was changed back to 5% by the legislature. He says a meeting is being held this Wednesday night (4/12) on the possibility of instituting a boat user fee for people who use the lake for recreation. Wendel had said some time ago that such a fee at $200-dollars a boat could bring in up to $2.4-million dollars in additional revenues. We also discuss the late state budget, but, also the fact that it looks like there will be no "intercept" of federal funds going directly to counties through the eFMAP Medicaid program. That would have cost the county between 4-million and 4.3-million dollars this year. We also discuss economic development, and efforts this year to construct a new industrial park with about 150-acres of land in the western portion of the county... as well as Cummins Engines' recent, major announcement that it's embarking on a 452-million dollar expansion project that would add one new engine line to the Jamestown Engine Plant.

- Apr. 17 - Jamestown Mayor Eddie Sundquist joins our Terry Frank this week to discuss several topics... including the result of two neighborhood meetings in the Allen Park and Jackson-Taylor Park areas to gauge interest in having two smaller splash pads in those two locations. Sundquist says the neighborhoods are very excited about having them... and, adds the soil issue at Jackson-Taylor should not be a problem because the pad is proposed for the former skateboard park, where some residential housing has been previously located, so soft soils should not be a problem. We also discuss the ongoing concern over the deer population in various parts of the city... and, Sundquist believes a deer harvest -- or hunt -- needs to be done. However, it needs to be done safely. With Spring now here... we also discuss the closing of the two "Code Blue" homeless shelters in the city... and, where things are going for the warmer months, and next Winter. The mayor also talks about meeting with Congressional leaders in Washington, D.C. recently. They included U.S. Senate Majority Leader Charles Schumer, and, Rep. Nick Langworthy.

- Apr. 24 - This week, our Terry Frank gets an update on several economic development projects in Chautauqua County with Deputy Co. Executive, Mark Geise. Geise agrees that the recent announcement by Cummins Engine of a $452-million dollar expansion project at the Jamestown Engine Plant shows a long-term commitment to the region by the heavy-duty engine maker. He says the only request Cummins has made to the county's Industrial Development Agency is about $3-million dollars in sales tax exemptions on items not already covered by New York state. We also discuss packaging of 150-acres of land in the western portion of the county for a new, "shovel-ready" industrial Park. Geise says the effort is taking time, and he didn't realize how time-consuming it would be. He says... once completed... the effort could cost upwards of $11-million dollars. However... he says a large share of that money is in-hand. We also discuss north county projects, and that Ferraro's purchase of Wells Enterprises in Dunkirk has stabilized the plant, and remaining jobs through at least this year. We also discuss future development of the former Lexington Die Cast plant in Lakewood... and, Truck-Lite in Falconer.

May 2023...

- May 1 -- Our Terry Frank talks with Chautauqua County Office for Aging Services Director Mary Ann Spanos about a number of topics this week, including whether their services are up and fully running after the COVID pandemic shut-down. Dr. Spanos says they are able to hold most of their "in-person" programs this year. However... she says they will not be holding their annual Senior Picnic at Midway Park this year. In it's place... she says they'll be holding indoor celebrations in the next couple of weeks for their 50th anniversary of being established in 1973. That was the first year the federal Older Americans Act took effect after being approved in 1965. Dr. Spanos just returned from the U.S. Aging Conference in Washington, D.C. where they lobbied for federal monies to support local Offices for Aging or Aging Services,. She says the first celebration will be held this coming Wed., May 3 at the Celoron Harbor Hotel. The second will be held at the Clarion Hotel in Dunkirk on May 10. She says they still serve between 7,000 and 9,000 seniors in the county in various ways through Meals on Wheels, Chautauqua Adult Day Services, and others.

- May 8 -- Our Terry Frank discusses a number of issues on this week's program with Chautauqua County Executive P.J. Wendel... in particular the new, New York state budget. Wendel says they are still trying to find out the status of two funding requests -- totaling about $4-million dollars for Chautauqua Lake. He says there is other funding in the spending plan for the region... but, adds it's top-heavy in favor of the New York City Metro area. We also further discuss the lake and the need for funding... including 2-million in local funding recent approved by the County Legislature. Wendel says the first $1-million will support the Jefferson Project, whose scientific research helped turn around the weed and algae bloom situation at Lake George. The other $1-million went to purchase of equipment -- including a new weed harvester for the Chautauqua Lake Association. We also discuss the county Office for Aging Services celebrations of it's 50th anniversary. There was a sell-out for the first of two programs -- this once at the Celoron Harbor Hotel last Wednesday in Celoron... and, the second coming up this Wed. (5/10) at the Clarion Hotel in Dunkirk.

- May 14 - Our Terry Frank continues the discussion with Jamestown Mayor Eddie Sundquist about the need for eight new firefighters in the city's Fire Department. Sundquist says he looks forward to City Council members getting their questions answered about the $1.8-million dollar SAFER Grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Sundquist says there is a definite need for them now... and, added the union understands that the positions may not be retained after the grant runs out. However... he says the city had learned more about the possibility of a Firefighter Retention Grant through SAFER they would be eligible for after the three-years of the initial grant. Lawmakers have expressed concern over the projected costs to retaining those firefighters if the funding runs out. A meeting with FEMA officials is set for a Zoom Conference on Tuesday, May 16 at 4 p.m. We also discuss the new state budget, which Sundquist says is taking some time to go through because there's a lot in there, to see if there is anything that would benefit the city. Terry also talks with the mayor about last Saturday's tree re-planting along West Third St., between Hall Avenue, and Hallock St., to replace the old Cathedral Oaks that had to be taken out the past 3 and 4 years. They were replaced by four kinds of smaller trees. A total of 37 were planted last Saturday.

- May 21 - Our Terry Frank spotlights the end of the national COVID-19 emergency by talking with the head of an organization instrumental in helping to keep dozens of local non-profit agencies afloat during the pandemic. Chautauqua Region Community Foundation Exec. Director Tory Irgang joins Terry to look back on what they, and the Northern Chautauqua Community Foundation were able to do. They also partnered with local United Ways to establish a fund to help just over 100 local entities with just over one-million dollars in grants. For the most part... she says they all came through the pandemic alright, but, adds that the number of people using those services, or taking part in activities is still down from pre-pandemic levels. We also discuss the need for students looking to go to college to start looking at scholarship opportunities through CRCF. We also discuss other endowment and grant programs available to the community... and, the "Give Big CHQ" day of giving on Tues., June 8.

- May 30 - We look back on last week's huge celebration of the 2.5-millionth heavy-duty engine produced at Cummins' Jamestown Engine Plant in the town of Busti. Our Terry Frank features comments made by Plant Manager Anna Dibble, Cummins' Engine Business President Srikanth Padmanabhan, New York State Empire State Development President Hope Knight, and Chautauqua County Executive P.J. Wendel. Dibble introduced the program, noting that Cummins will be celebrating it's 50th year at JEP, where the first engines were actually produced on an assembly line in 1976. She says, with Cummins 15-liter diesel engine production moved to JEP, their growth has been exponential. Padmanabhan says it's important to move forward with producing more environmentally-friendly natural gas, and later hydrogen engines for trucks, buses, and other heavy-duty vehicles. Knight represented New York Gov. Kathy Hochul at the program, and congratulated the company on it's achievements. Wendel expressed his appreciation to the company for keeping the plant local... and, noted that his family moved here when his father became employed by Cummins.

June 2023...

- June 5 -- Our Terry Frank discusses a number of topics with Chautauqua County Executive P.J. Wendel this week... led by the county's purchase of 64-acres of land to develop "shovel-ready" development sites. Wendel notes that is just the beginning of developing 150-acres of land that could be used for large, manufacturing facilities. He says the county's Industrial Development Agency had been working for some time to obtain the property from four different owners. Wendel calls it exciting news, and once the infrastructure is in place, allows the county to be ready for someone to locate here. We also discuss the situation with ImmunityBio at the former Athenex pharmaceutical plant in the town of Dunkirk. He says it's disappointing to see the facility pretty much empty at this point. We also discuss his State of Emergency he issued first on May 18 to prohibit New York City officials from contracting with local hotels, and motels, and agencies to bring migrants and asylum seekers to the county. He says there are currently about 80 migrants here, and the agencies he's spoken with say they can't handle anymore.

- June 12 - This week... our Terry Frank talks with Executive Director Kelly Roberts, and Director of Fund Raising and Communication Brian Papalia with the Chautauqua County Humane Society. We start off talking about the very successful "Pennies 4 Paws" fund-raiser, which brought in just under 26,000 with the help of several groups and organizations. Brian says the Chautauqua Lake Fishing Association again was the big fund-raiser, bringing in about 1,600 for the animals at the shelter, among others. He says it wasn't a record... but, the largest amount in many years. We also discuss recently approved state legislation regulating shelter operations. Roberts says the Shelter Standards Act was okayed, and will be brought on line in about three-years. She says building lay-out, and amount of time the animals are out of their cages will be regulated. We also discuss their foster, and adoption programs... as well as the annual "Walk 4 Paws" coming up in September.

- June 19 - Jamestown Mayor Eddie Sundquist joins our Terry Frank this week to discuss a number of issues, including unfinished business regarding the hiring of eight new firefighters. The City Council approved the hiring at last month's voting session. Sundquist says the city is now moving ahead with having a third-party attorney to draw up and finalize the agreement with the Jamestown Professional Firefighters union to hire the new firefighters. Once that takes place... the new firefighters will be hired, and sent to the State Academy in Montour Falls for training. We also discuss the wrap-up to the New York State Legislative session... and the measure that moves several local elections to even-numbered years. However... Sundquist says he's been told there will be no change to village and city elections since those are mainly set by those communities charters. We also talk extensively about the new "Bird Bike" program that will provide e-bikes and e-scooters to people in the city, once they're able to have both available to residents, and visitors. He says it's part of their effort to provide better "micro-mobility" in the city.

- June 26 - This year's Juneteenth Celebration in Jamestown featured an opening that included a report from Project Director, Leecroft Clarke, on the one year anniversary of the Chautauqua County I.D.E.A. Coalition. I.D.E.A. is short for Inclusion, Diversity, Equity and Accessability, and the organization's goal is to "make Chautauqua County a place where everyone belongs, and has opportunities to thrive, especially those who have been historically marginalized." The United Way of Southern Chautauqua County is serving as the "backbone" agency for the coalition... the idea of which came out of the George Floyd murder in Minneapolis, Minn. in 2020. Clarke says they are now moving forward on addressing three areas of concern for both the black and latino communities in the Jamestown-area. He says they started with 13, and pared them down to those three areas. The first is: Educational Systems... the second business/employment... and, thirdly is community/social issues. The coalition held six town hall-style meetings the past year with more than 160 people to develop a strategy.
