Issue: Crime prevention

The Odessa Police Department entered into a partnership with Nextdoor.com, a social network that acts as a virtual neighborhood watch. Website co-founder Nirav Tolia says they started as a network where neighbors could compare recommendations about plumbers and babysitters. They found they could also share information about suspicious activity in their neighborhoods. The Odessa Police Department will be able to issue alerts about criminal activity either city-wide or just in an isolated neighborhood. OPD spokesman Steve LeSueur told how the website can help them reduce crime. (21:00)

Issue: Education

Peter Norton of Gonawanda Studios in Australia talks about an exhibit he is bringing to the Midland Centennial Library and Museum of the Southwest in Midland. The exhibit contains skeletal replicas and animatronic representations of animals that lived just prior to dinosaurs. The animatronic animals simulate how the 12 foot long beasts might have moved and sounded during the time before dinosaurs. (7:00)

Issue: Odessa College Four Year Degrees

Odessa College Vice President for Instruction Valerie Jones says the Board of Trustees has approved a University Center concept for offering their students a way to get four year degrees. The community college right now only offers two year Associate Degree programs. The new plan would feature agreements with four year colleges to provide online and distance learning programs for students at the Odessa College campus. They would try to accommodate non-traditional students who hold full time jobs or have other obligations that prevent them from going full time to the four year college. (19:00)

Issue: STAAR test

Midland School Superintendent Dr. Ryder Warren discusses problems with the STAAR student assessment test. He notes that several state lawmakers have introduced bills in the legislature to make revisions to the test or the testing program. Dr. Warren called for another system of student assessment. (7:00)

Issue: Graduation panels

State Senator Kel Seliger has introduced a bill that would establish panels of educators to review cases of students who are not allowed to graduate solely because of a failed STAAR test. The panel could decide that a student has had enough success in other parts of his scholastic career that would justify allowing him to graduate with the rest of his class. (3:00)

Issue: Odessa Water Restrictions

Odessa Mayor David Turner announces the end to water restrictions for residents of the city. He says recent rains and the acquisition of underground water fields in Ward County have provided adequate water reserves for the city. Turner also announced that the city will build a desalination plant to make additional improvements to the water quality of city water. (18:00)

Issue: MISD Petroleum Academy

Midland School Superintendent Dr. Ryder Warren says a new Petroleum Academy will provide students with electives to give them an overview of the petroleum industry. Local industry leaders will provide speakers to tell the impact of local operations. Career Education director Kim Evans and Academy Coordinator Anthony Frost discussed the curriculum and the benefits students will get in preparing them for a career in the industry. (12:00)

Issue: Tom Craddick: Legislative wrap-up

State Representative Tom Craddick discusses the just completed Texas Legislative session. In particular, he talks about the failure of his proposal that would have banned texting while driving statewide. He also talked about several education issues, immigration reform, the reluctance of lawmakers to set up Obamacare exchanges, and open carry gun laws. He also talked about diverting funding for the Commemorative Air Force to the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum. (22:00)

Issue: Elder Abuse

Virginia Quinn with Adult Protective Services speaks at a conference in Midland about physical and mental abuse of the elderly, along with abuse by neglect. She told caseworkers ways to recognize abuse and to report it to law enforcement. Quinn says there were about 100-thousand reports of elder abuse in Texas in 2014. About 56 percent of the reports were confirmed as valid. (6:30)

Issue: Midland Center replacement

Midland Mayor Jerry Morales discusses the city council's decision to tear down the current Midland Center and replace it with a larger convention center. Midland Center vice president Brad Barnett says the current building is too small to host certain events, and has to turn away about one million dollars worth of bookings a year. (14:00)

Issue: High Water rescues

Midland Fire Department Captain Aaron Cox discusses water rescue and near-drowning response training for local firefighters and paramedics. Cox says despite the limited rainfall, occasional street flooding has required the rescue of motorists caught in high water. (6:00)

Issue: Mural restoration

A 1940 mural painted by noted Texas artist Tom Lea will be restored and repaired under a project sponsored by the Odessa Council on Arts and Humanities and the Ellen Noel Art Museum. Council executive director Randy Ham says the mural at the Odessa downtown post office has historic significance to the city. After repairs, it will be displayed at the Ellen Noel Art Museum while a high resolution photo will replace its space at the post office. (9:00)

MIDLAND NEED TO READ

ADULT LITERACY PROGRAM

Enhancing lives of Midland County adults through literacy

PRESS RELEASE & REQUEST FOR COVERAGE

2015 Style Show & Luncheon

The 2015 Style Show & Luncheon benefitting Midland Need to Read will take place on Thursday, May 7, 2015 at Midland Country Club.

Midland, Texas (May 5, 2015) – The 13th annual Style Show & Luncheon presented by Wildcat Oil Tools, benefitting Midland Need to Read (MN2R), will take place Thursday, May 7, 2015 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at Midland Country Club. The event will open with a video presentation of MN2R volunteer tutors and students. Afterward, lunch will be served during a style show outfitted by Willow, a local boutique. Throughout the event, there will be a silent auction featuring 12-15 auction packages. The luncheon will conclude with a raffle drawing for a stylish purse donated by Ada Marie's Boutique. The Style Show will be emceed by Reagan Howard, former Miss Texas, and Karen Fisher.

Please join us in support of this one-day special event to raise funds and public awareness of the importance of adult literacy in our community. All funds raised at the Style Show & Luncheon will support the Midland Need to Read adult literacy program. MN2R is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization.

About Midland Need to Read:

The mission of Midland Need to Read is to enhance the lives of Midland County adults through literacy.

The Midland Need to Read program is designed to ignite lasting change for adult learners, their families, and ultimately our community. Services of MN2R are provided year-round and include: G.E.D. preparation, E.S.L. (English as a Second Language) development, and Adult Basic Education (including reading, writing, grammar, mathematics, and computers). When adults improve basic literacy skills, their transformations are nothing short of remarkable. They can find and keep jobs, enjoy better health, and educate their own children. Their new skills enable them to dream big, attain their goals, and move forward and that means our community can advance, too.

Water Restrictions Rescinded

Posted Date: 5/21/2015

Water Restrictions Rescinded

May 21, 2015 – Effective immediately water restrictions for the City of Odessa are lifted.

The water supply is considerably more substantial today compared to the spring of 2011 when restrictions were first implemented. Lake Thomas is 73% full today compared to 2% percent in 2011. The City has worked with the Colorado River Municipal Water District (CRMWD) to expand the delivery capacity of 15 million gallons of water a day (MGD) to 45 MGD from the Ward County Well Fields.

Odessans have successfully decreased the City's overall average water consumption by 2.5 MGD in the past four years. Residents are encouraged to continue to use water wisely. Click here for water conservation tips.

It is important to remember the water nuisance ordinance remains in effect. Regardless of the water source it is illegal to allow water runoff of more than fifty feet from ones property.

City Offices Closed Monday, May 25

Posted Date: 5/21/2015

City Offices Closed

May 21, 2015 – City of Odessa offices will be closed Monday, May 25, 2015. There will not be trash pickup service on that day. Roll out cart service customers will have their trash picked up on Tuesday.

To avoid an overflowing accumulation of trash and debris in dumpsters, citizens are encouraged to recycle items at the Odessa Recycle Center, 816 West 42nd Street. Click here for complete recycling information.

Trash, debris and bulky items piled next to the alley dumpsters is illegal and prevents the Solid Waste trucks from being able to pick up the containers when service resumes.

During the holiday period City trash receptacles should be reserved for perishable items only.

On Friday we will be taking donations right outside of Music City Mall that will be set aside to support those affected by the Texas Tornadoes and Spring Storms. We are challenging West Texans to show their support for our fellow Texans that lost so much in the torrential rains that continue to pound the region. Any amount will be accepted between 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. in the south parking lot outside of the main entrance to the mall along 42nd Street.

New Five-Part Series Examines How Homo sapiens
Moved Around the Globe to Become its Dominant Human Species

First Peoples - 200,000 years ago on the African savanna
Credit: Graham Bartholomew

ODESSA/MIDLAND, TX; June 16, 2015
200,000 years ago our ancestors took their first steps on the African savanna. Today, seven billion of us live across the planet. How did we beat the odds and spread from continent to continent?

FIRST PEOPLES is a global detective story that traces the arrival of the first Homo sapiens on five continents. Airing Wednesdays on June 24-July 1 at 8pm and July 8 at 8:00pm, FIRST PEOPLES is part of PBS' "Think Wednesday" programming block (watch a clip here.)

Basin PBS and the Centennial Library invite the Permian Basin to join them Thursday, June 18 at 4pm at the Centennial Library in Midland for a FREE preview screening of episode one: Americas of First Peoples. Following the screening, visitors will be invited to join a tour of the Centennial Library exhibit Permian Monsters: Life Before the Dinosaurs.

Summer 2015 is an exciting time for the Centennial Library and Museum of the Southwest as they have come together to host this exhibit, never before seen in North America. The exhibit offers viewers a step back in time 290 million years ago and bizarre-looking animals dominated life on land and sea.

FIRST PEOPLES tells the story of how early Homo sapiens moved around the globe and became the dominant human species. Each episode of the five-part series focuses on a different continent and meets the earliest Homo sapiens on that continent – the Americas, Africa, Asia, Australia and Europe. Where did they come from? How did they get there? What role did art, culture and technology play in their lives? Whom did they meet along the way? It used to be thought our ancestors kept a distance from other types of human. But now DNA reveals they mated with them and interbred. As a result, our species is a patchwork of modern and ancient humans – we are all hybrids.

“Scientific developments in genetics have dramatically changed the thinking of who we are as a species and where we came from,” said Beth Hoppe, PBS’ Chief Programming Executive and General Manager of General Audience Programming. “The story that FIRST PEOPLES tells is vastly different from the story of our origins we knew just five or ten years ago. This cinematic, extraordinary series of films is up-to-the-minute science; the kind of program people expect from PBS.”

“FIRST PEOPLES is the first chance most people will get to see extraordinary new research in human origins brought to life – real science, happening in remote places around the globe, with an international team of leading scientists,” said John Hawks, a paleoanthropologist at University of Wisconsin, Madison who worked as a consultant and appears in each episode. “FIRST PEOPLES is grounded in the latest genetics, archaeology and anthropology research, yet it also shines a light on different viewpoints from an indigenous perspective.”

With a camera crew winging its way around the world, FIRST PEOPLES dives into the underwater caves of Yucatan, soars above the Australian outback and journeys to the Himalayas. In every location, key experts are on hand to reveal their findings, but the biggest breakthroughs are taking place in genetic laboratories. It is now possible to extract high quality DNA from ancient fossils, and the sequences that emerge are re-writing the human story.

“Throughout our filming, we learned that our family tree is not a simple one. It looks more like a bush, with interweaving branches and tangled roots. We are the product of many species that were similar and different at the same time,” said Tim Lambert, series producer, Wall to Wall Media “Using dramatic reenactments and movie style prosthetics, we have tried to tell this compelling story and explain how our ancient ancestors survived and ultimately thrived.”

Descriptions of each episode are below:

Episode 1 - Americas

As early humans spread out across the world, their toughest challenge was colonizing the Americas because a huge ice sheet blocked the route. It has long been thought that the first Americans were Clovis people, who arrived 13,000 years ago. But an underwater discovery in Mexico suggests people arrived earlier — coming by boat, not on foot. How closely related were these early Americans to today’s Native Americans? It’s an emotive issue, involving one of the most controversial fossils in the world, Kennewick Man. Wednesday, June 24, 9:00 p.m. ET

Episode 2 - Africa

200,000 years ago, a new species, Homo sapiens, appeared on the African landscape. While scientists have long imagined eastern Africa as a real-life Garden of Eden, the latest research suggests humans evolved in many places across the continent at the same time. Now, the DNA of a 19th-century African-American slave reveals that during the early days of our species, our ancestors continued meeting, mating and hybridizing with other human types in Africa — creating ever greater diversity within us. Wednesday, June 24, 10:00 p.m. ET

Episode 3 - Asia

What happened when early humans ventured out of Africa and into Asia? Where did they go and whom did they meet along the way? The latest evidence suggests they left far earlier than previously thought and interbred with a newly discovered type of ancient human — the Denisovans, whose existence was established only four years ago when geneticists extracted DNA from a tiny fragment of finger bone. Because our ancestors mated with them, their genes found a home within our DNA. More than that, they've helped us survive and thrive. Wednesday, July 1, 9:00 p.m. ET

Episode 4 - Australia

When humans arrived in Australia, they were, for the first time, truly alone, surrounded by wildly different flora and fauna. How did they survive and populate a continent? There is a close cultural and genetic link between early Australians and modern-day Aborigines; here the ancient and modern story intersect as nowhere else. The secret to this continuity is diversity. Intuitively, early Australians found the right balance between being separate and connected. Wednesday, July 1, 10:00 p.m. ET

Episode 5 - Europe

When Homo sapiens turned up in prehistoric Europe, they ran into the Neanderthals. The two types of human were similar enough to interbreed — and both created artifacts of similar complexity. As more and more Homo sapiens moved into Europe, the balance of power shifted. Neanderthals were overwhelmed. Ever since, we've had Europe and the rest of the world to ourselves. Wednesday, July 8, 9:00 p.m. ET

FIRST PEOPLES is produced for PBS by Wall to Wall Media, one of the UK's leading production companies, making high quality shows for broadcasters across the world. Series producer, Tim Lambert, has made a number of shows about the crossover between science and history, including Guns, Germs & Steel (PBS); Neanderthal Code (National Geographic); Mankind - The Story of All of Us (History). Executive Producer, Jonathan Hewes has overseen major series for PBS including Black in Latin America and America Beyond the Color Line with Henry Louis Gates Jr. For PBS the series was overseen by Bill Gardner, VP, Programming and Development, and Bill Margol, Senior Director, Programming and Development.

PBS LearningMedia will add FIRST PEOPLES resources in June to its growing library of digital assets for teachers and students. New material includes program clips, support materials, and an interactive map that allows users to track the migration routes Homo sapiens took as they moved out of Africa and journeyed across the world. Visit PBS LearningMedia (basinpbs.pbslearningmedia.org) to access these free resources.

First Peoples will be available on DVD from PBS Distribution: ShopPBS.org; 800-PLAY-PBS, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. The film will also be available for digital download.
