1727	7/5/2017	RERUN - Bill Frisell / Sam Amidon		Doniece Sandoval Lava Mae (California)	Driven by a fierce belief that everyone has a right to dignity and the knowledge that access to showers and sanitation are in serious short supply for the homeless, Doniece was compelled to start Lava Mae. Started by private citizens who believe that access to showers and toilets shouldn't be a luxury, Lava Mae seeks to serve those who lack access to what should be basic human rights – showers and sanitation. Length: 8:58@21:21
1728	7/12/2017	Brother Ali / Chuck Pr	Laura Tenenbaum NASA (California)		Topic: Climate Change and recent NASA findings Length: 6:48@21:07
1729	7/19/2017	RERUN - Son Little / Chris Daniels		Edwin Sabuhoro Iby'Iwacu Cultural Village (Africa)	Disenchanted with the realities of poaching in Rwanda's national parks, Sabuhoro left his post in pursuit of a solution that would reverse the population decline, starting with the people responsible for hunting or selling gorillas. He started by connecting with the locals who were pigeonholed by an economic burden into the poaching business. He began teaching poachers and their families useful, nonviolent skills, like crafting, painting and woodworking, which would help them earn money without having to kill. The reformed poachers now sell fruits of their labor to tourists. The more he earned their trust, the more willing they were to step away from a career poaching. Length: 9:58@19:15
1730	7/26/2017	Drew Holcomb / Tift Merritt		Steve Ritz Green Bronx Machine (New York)	Stephen Ritz is a South Bronx educator / administrator who believes that students shouldn't have to leave their community to live, learn, and earn in a better one. Moving generations of students into spheres of personal and academic successes which they had never imagined — while reclaiming and rebuilding the Bronx — Stephen's extended student and community family have grown more than 40,000 pounds of vegetables in the Bronx while generating extraordinary academic performance. Length: 8:35@18:37

1732	8/9/2017	RERUN - Jose Gonzales / Mandolin Oran		Ruth Libby Ruth's Reusable Resources (Maine)	In the mid 1990's while her sons were in elementary school, Ruth Libby became aware that schoolteachers often pay for classroom supplies for their students out of their own pockets. Around the same time, Ruth read an article about a local project providing teachers with recycled materials, and she was inspired to start something similar to help the teachers in her district. In 1994, Ruth created Ruth's Reusable Resources as a grassroots, community-driven effort to collect surplus office supplies and other items from individuals and local businesses and make them affordable and available to local teachers. Since she started, Ruth's Reusable Resources has provided over $54 million in school supplies to tens of thousands of teachers and nonprofits in her area. Length: 6:45@22:41

1734	8/23/2017	RERUN - Greyhounds / Thurston Moore		Ali Dunford Hole Food Rescue (Wyoming)	While attending college in Colorado, Ali Dunford briefly dated a fellow student who was a “dumpster diver,” meaning someone who routinely searches trash dumpsters around town for any usable items. The amount of perfectly good, edible food they found blew Ali’s mind. After college, Ali moved to Jackson Hole, Wyoming and decided to save money by “dumpster diving” for her food there as well. After a chance encounter with a particularly bountiful dumpster, Ali decided she needed to do something to salvage all this edible food, far more than she could possibly use, to keep it from the landfill and get it to the poor and hungry in her area. In the summer of 2013, Ali founded Hole Food Rescue as a volunteer-driven, grassroots organization to collect food waste from grocery stores, bakeries, and farmers markets and give it to people who need it. They provide over 2,500 lbs of food each week to 400 people in the Jackson Hole area, distributing well over 100,000 lbs of fresh, healthy food since they started. Length: 9:03@20:22

1738	9/20/2017	RERUN - Langhorne Slim / Robyn Hitchcock	Caroline DeCelles We're hEAR For You (Colorado)	We're hEAR For You was founded in 2009 by Speech-Language Pathologist Caroline DeCelles and Music Business Professional Katie Carmody after realizing the need for concert-goers to have access to free hearing protection. While in graduate school, illness ruptured one of Caroline's eardrums, leaving her particularly sensitive to loud noise. While attending a concert a few days later, she attempted to purchase a pair of earplugs at a local music venue, but the machine was empty. For Caroline, it was like an epiphany. She was studying speech and hearing and knew the importance of protecting her hearing from noise exposure. It was this experience that inspired We're hEAR For You's inception. Length: 7:19@20:05
