Manager's Memo

On Thursday, May 23 at 7:00 p.m., KUED launches our new series, This Is Utah, featuring the people, places, and lifestyles of Utah. As we now have the sole responsibility of covering the entire state with the exit of KBYU from the Public Television Service, there is a greater emphasis on making sure that we represent our wonderful state.

We have an excellent track record at producing quality, long-form documentaries about the history and people of Utah, which we will continue to do. But, the cost and frequency of those "big docs" makes it less feasible to get around the state in an effective manner.

This Is Utah is a program that features at least three topics about the state, covering a great swath of geography. The program, which has been in production for several months, features our newest Host and Story Producer, Liz Adeola. Liz is new to Utah, which is actually an asset, since she looks at the state with fresh eyes and fresh questions while working with the KUED production staff.

James Morgese
General Manager KUED

We have a captivating state with fascinating people and curious lifestyles, food, and music. And, we are always looking for new topics. Email me at jmorgese@kued.org if you have an idea for the series.

Also this month, we say goodbye to Rebecca Davis who will be retiring. She has worked at KUED in accounting and administration for 35 years, beginning in February 1984. She was also the Chief Financial Officer for KUER-FM for 19 years and served on the Public Media Business Association Board of Directors from 2006 to 2012, serving as Board Chair from 2009 to 2011. Rebecca is a valued and dedicated part of KUED. We congratulate her on her much-deserved retirement. She will be sorely missed.
