

Section I: Issues

WFUM has identified the following topics as significant issues facing our community in this quarter:

1. Arts/Humanities:
2. Children's Issues:
3. Civil Rights/Race:
4. Crime/Safety:
5. Economy:
6. Education:
7. Environment:
8. Government:
9. Labor Relations:
10. Legal System/Court Cases:
11. Public Health/Medicine:
12. Social Policy/Welfare:
13. Transportation:

Section II: Responsive Programs

WFUM broadcast programming dealing with the various issues outlined in Section I of this list. The programming was aired on the dates and times as follows:

1. Arts/Humanities:

Stateside: Hubert Roberts

Broadcast on 11-03-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 8:42. From a youthful act that landed him in prison...to his release...and growth into a man whose life work is mentoring youth in Flint...the life of Hubert Roberts is a powerful lesson in redemption.

Now that story is being told through the work of a Michigan State University professor and her team. Their project is called "Hubert: His Story". It's a documentary film and a comic book that features the life and work of Hubert Roberts.

2. Children's Issues:

Stateside: Hubert Roberts

Broadcast on 11-03-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 8:42. From a youthful act that landed him in prison...to his release...and growth into a man whose life work is mentoring youth in Flint...the life of Hubert Roberts is a powerful lesson in redemption.

Now that story is being told through the work of a Michigan State University professor and her team. Their project is called "Hubert: His Story". It's a documentary film and a comic book that features the life and work of Hubert Roberts.

7. Environment:

All Things Considered: Smith/Flint Water Webber Pipe

Broadcast on 10-01-2016 at 5:35PM; Duration: 3:15. It's been exactly one year since health officials in Michigan warned people living in Flint to stop drinking their tap water.

The water is improving, but Flint's water is still not safe to drink without a filter.

Michigan Radio's Lindsey Smith has one story of hope on this no-so-pleasant anniversary.

All Things Considered: The Environment Report

Broadcast on 10-20-2016 at 5:45PM; Duration: 4:00. Flint is not the only city that doesn't know where all its lead drinking water lines are. Detroit is trying to verify its old records too. Tracking down 100-thousand lead lines in Detroit.

Stateside: Lindsey Smith/Flint Water When Can We Drink It

Broadcast on 12-14-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 3:51. Today marks exactly one year since the mayor of Flint, Michigan declared a state of emergency, because of lead in that city's drinking water. Data show the water system as a whole is improving...good news for the Flint families who've been relying on faucet filters and bottled water. But as Michigan Radio's Lindsey Smith reports, filters and bottled water is likely to remain the way of life in Flint for the foreseeable future.

Stateside: Smith-Flint

Broadcast on 12-14-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 6:40. Lindsey, here we are on the one-year anniversary of the declaration of emergency in Flint...and we've got an all-out tug-of-war between the State of Michigan...and federal judge David Lawson. Twice now, Judge Lawson has ordered the state to deliver bottled water to certain Flint residents...not all.

And the state continues to fight that order. What's the latest argument the state put forth late yesterday?

Section II: Responsive Programs (Continued)7. Environment (Continued):*Stateside: Stateside: Team Banks Montage-My Flint Story

Broadcast on 12-15-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 4:47. A year ago, Flint Mayor Karen Weaver declared a state of emergency in the city. Now, officials say the water is improving, but it's still not safe to drink without a filter. The water crisis has forced some people to make tough choices. Dana Banks and her husband Charles took their 4 daughters out of Flint and moved to Ann Arbor. Here's the Banks family talking about how they're doing today.

Morning Edition: The Environment Report

Broadcast on 12-15-2016 at 8:55AM; Duration: 4:00. It's been a year since Flint's mayor declared a state of emergency. For people in Flint, the water crisis is not over. We'll hear about one family who decided to find a way out of Flint, but it wasn't easy to leave.

8. Government:All Things Considered: Smith/Flint Water Webber Pipe

Broadcast on 10-01-2016 at 5:35PM; Duration: 3:15. It's been exactly one year since health officials in Michigan warned people living in Flint to stop drinking their tap water. The water is improving, but Flint's water is still not safe to drink without a filter. Michigan Radio's Lindsey Smith has one story of hope on this no-so-pleasant anniversary.

All Things Considered: The Environment Report

Broadcast on 10-20-2016 at 5:45PM; Duration: 4:00. Flint is not the only city that doesn't know where all its lead drinking water lines are. Detroit is trying to verify its old records too. Tracking down 100-thousand lead lines in Detroit.

Stateside: Lindsey Smith/Flint Water When Can We Drink It

Broadcast on 12-14-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 3:51. Today marks exactly one year since the mayor of Flint, Michigan declared a state of emergency, because of lead in that city's drinking water. Data show the water system as a whole is improving...good news for the Flint families who've been relying on faucet filters and bottled water. But as Michigan Radio's Lindsey Smith reports, filters and bottled water is likely to remain the way of life in Flint for the foreseeable future.

Stateside: Smith-Flint

Broadcast on 12-14-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 6:40. Lindsey, here we are on the one-year anniversary of the declaration of emergency in Flint...and we've got an all-out tug-of-war between the State of Michigan...and federal judge David Lawson. Twice now, Judge Lawson has ordered the state to deliver bottled water to certain Flint residents...not all.

And the state continues to fight that order. What's the latest argument the state put forth late yesterday?

Stateside: Stateside: Team Banks Montage-My Flint Story

Broadcast on 12-15-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 4:47. A year ago, Flint Mayor Karen Weaver declared a state of emergency in the city. Now, officials say the water is improving, but it's still not safe to drink without a filter. The water crisis has forced some people to make tough choices. Dana Banks and her husband Charles took their 4 daughters out of Flint and moved to Ann Arbor. Here's the Banks family talking about how they're doing today.

Morning Edition: The Environment Report

Broadcast on 12-15-2016 at 8:55AM; Duration: 4:00. It's been a year since Flint's mayor declared a state of emergency. For people in Flint, the water crisis is not over. We'll hear about one family who decided to find a way out of Flint, but it wasn't easy to leave.

10. Legal System/Court Cases:Stateside: Smith-Flint

Broadcast on 12-14-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 6:40. Lindsey, here we are on the one-year anniversary of the declaration of emergency in Flint...and we've got an all-out tug-of-war between the State of Michigan...and federal judge David Lawson. Twice now, Judge Lawson has ordered the state to deliver bottled water to certain Flint residents...not all.

And the state continues to fight that order. What's the latest argument the state put forth late yesterday?

Section II: Responsive Programs (Continued)10. Legal System/Court Cases (Continued):*Morning Edition: The Environment Report

Broadcast on 12-15-2016 at 8:55AM; Duration: 4:00. It's been a year since Flint's mayor declared a state of emergency. For people in Flint, the water crisis is not over. We'll hear about one family who decided to find a way out of Flint, but it wasn't easy to leave.

11. Public Health/Medicine:All Things Considered: Smith/Flint Water Webber Pipe

Broadcast on 10-01-2016 at 5:35PM; Duration: 3:15. It's been exactly one year since health officials in Michigan warned people living in Flint to stop drinking their tap water.

The water is improving, but Flint's water is still not safe to drink without a filter.

Michigan Radio's Lindsey Smith has one story of hope on this no-so-pleasant anniversary.

All Things Considered: The Environment Report

Broadcast on 10-20-2016 at 5:45PM; Duration: 4:00. Flint is not the only city that doesn't know where all its lead drinking water lines are. Detroit is trying to verify its old records too. Tracking down 100-thousand lead lines in Detroit.

Stateside: Lindsey Smith/Flint Water When Can We Drink It

Broadcast on 12-14-2016 at 3:00PM; Duration: 3:51. Today marks exactly one year since the mayor of Flint, Michigan declared a state of emergency, because of lead in that city's drinking water. Data show the water system as a whole is improving...good news for the Flint families who've been relying on faucet filters and bottled water.

But as Michigan Radio's Lindsey Smith reports, filters and bottled water is likely to remain the way of life in Flint for the foreseeable future.

12. Social Policy/Welfare:All Things Considered: Smith/Flint Water Webber Pipe

Broadcast on 10-01-2016 at 5:35PM; Duration: 3:15. It's been exactly one year since health officials in Michigan warned people living in Flint to stop drinking their tap water.

The water is improving, but Flint's water is still not safe to drink without a filter.

Michigan Radio's Lindsey Smith has one story of hope on this no-so-pleasant anniversary.

Morning Edition: The Environment Report

Broadcast on 12-15-2016 at 8:55AM; Duration: 4:00. It's been a year since Flint's mayor declared a state of emergency. For people in Flint, the water crisis is not over. We'll hear about one family who decided to find a way out of Flint, but it wasn't easy to leave.