At Issue – FCC Writeups (January-March 2015)

1/11/15

State lawmakers revealed their top priorities for the 2015 session. House republicans propose spending $750 million over four years exclusively on roads and bridges. House republicans also proposed changes to MNsure, the state's health care exchange. During Governor Dayton's inauguration speech, he said education would be a top priority, and said he would oppose 4-day school weeks or shorter school years.

1/18/15

The Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis has filed for bankruptcy. The filing puts more than 20 sex abuse lawsuits on hold temporarily. Lawmakers need to reach an agreement over office space at the State Capitol building by Thursday, or it might cause expensive delays. A state Senate committee heard two bills regulating license plate readers.

1/25/15

On At Issue, we preview some of the proposals Governor Dayton is expected to unveil in his 2015 Budget, including child care tax credits for additional Minnesota families and more money for the University of Minnesota's Medical School. The issue of Sunday liquor sales will return to the State Capitol this session. Lawmakers are pushing a new bill to better protect children, victimized by abuse, in the state. A family makes a push to change a law in order to allow family members to access text messages and other digital assets from a loved one who has died.

1/30/15

Governor Dayton unveiled his two-year, $42 billion dollar budget proposal this week. We break down who are the big winners and big losers in his budget. Minnesota students may be required to take more physical education courses under a new bill unveiled this week. In light of a large measles outbreak, a lawmaker wants to require parents who wish to opt out of vaccinations for their children to meet with a doctor first. The chairs of the state DFL and GOP parties join us in studio to discuss Dayton's budget proposal, transportation and education funding and the dynamics of this year's legislative session with the GOP in control of the House and DFL controlling the Senate.

2/6/15

Governor Dayton addresses concerns about proposals to prevent the Minnesota State Lottery from expanding online gaming. Minnesota taxpayers will not be able to use TurboTax to file state returns due to fraud concerns. Senate Democrats unveiled a package of education bills addressing everything from expanded preschool to free breakfast for students to more funding for school counselors. One lawmaker is proposing lowering Minnesota's drinking age to 18. University of Minnesota president Eric Kaler joins us in studio to talk about the university's legislative wish list, its efforts to free student tuition and upgrade athletic facilities. Our political experts talk about the U's legislative requests and the raises Governor Dayton has recently approved for his commissioners.

2/15/15

Governor Dayton and DFL senate majority leader Tom Bakk got into a very public and heated debate this week regarding large pay raises for Dayton's commissioners. Our political experts discuss the fallout from this public feud and what can be done to repair the relationship between Dayton and Bakk. MNsure touted a number of improvements as the 2015 open enrollment period comes to a close. A proposal to increase the weight limit of trucks on Minnesota highways and county roads is set to be introduced. President Obama signed a bill this week to help prevent suicides by military veterans.

2/22/15
