

WPAU-FM PUBLIC FILE QUARTERLY ISSUES/PROGRAMS LIST
REPORT OCTOBER 1 – DECEMBER 31, 2022

GOVERNMENT

MORNING EDITION – WEEKDAYS 5 a.m. to 9 a.m.

RUN TIME – 4 HOURS

SOURCE – NPR

Every weekday for over three decades, Morning Edition has taken listeners around the country and the world with two hours of multi-faceted stories and commentaries that inform, challenge and occasionally amuse. Morning Edition is the most listened-to news radio program in the country. A bi-coastal, 24-hour news operation, Morning Edition is hosted by David Greene, Steve Inskeep, Noel King, and Rachel Martin. These hosts often get out from behind the anchor desk and travel around the world to report on the news firsthand. Produced and distributed by NPR in Washington, D.C., Morning Edition draws on reporting from correspondents based around the world, and producers and reporters in locations in the United States. This reporting is supplemented by NPR Member Station reporters across the country as well as independent producers and reporters throughout the public radio system.

(8.) IOWA CAUCUSES -- Iowa's caucuses are the first nominating contest in presidential politics. The red state is fighting to keep its place as the Democratic National Committee prioritizes diverse and competitive states. - 3:55

(10.) SENATE VOTES ON SAME SEX MARRIAGE -- The Senate is expected to vote Tuesday on a bill that would protect same-sex and interracial marriages. Democrats' push to pass the bill comes while they still control both chambers of Congress. - 2:20

(11.) US EASES VENEZUELA SANCTIONS -- NPR's A Martinez talks to Jason Marczak (MAR-zack) of the Atlantic Council about the Biden administration

easing some sanctions on Venezuela, as talks resume between the government and opposition. - 5:00

(14.) KROGER-ALBERTSONS MERGER -- NPR's Rachel Martin talks to Democratic Sen. Amy Klobuchar(KLOH-buh-shar) of Minnesota about the planned $25 billion merger between grocers Kroger and Albertsons ahead of a hearing on the matter. - 5:00

12/1/22

(1.) WEST VS RUSSIA OIL PROFIT -- The U.S. and the EU are taking aim again at Russia's oil profits, which it uses to fund the war in Ukraine. New rules start next week. - 3:45

(3.) CONGRESS RAIL VOTE -- The House has passed legislation aimed at preventing a crippling railroad strike. Getting the measures through the Senate won't be easy. - 2:13

(9.) AUTOMAKERS OBJECT TO TAX CREDITS -- Lawmakers in Congress passed big incentives for electric vehicles this year, but only for cars that are assembled in the U.S. -- which is upsetting foreign carmakers. - 3:30

(13.) MACRON VISIT -- President Biden hosts French President Emmanuel Macron (eh-MAN-yoo-ehl MA-krahn) for the first state dinner of Biden's presidency -- an event that is equal parts diplomacy and pageantry. - 3:16

12/2/22

(1.) TRUMP ORG CLOSING ARGUMENTS -- Closing arguments are underway in the Trump Organization's tax fraud trial in New York. Defense attorneys claim a former senior executive committed crimes to benefit himself. - 3:34

(5.) NOVEMBER JOBS REPORT -- The Labor Department reports today on job gains and unemployment for November. The news comes as the Federal Reserve has been aggressively raising interest rates to fight inflation.- 3:45

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED - All Things Considered is the most listened-to, afternoon drive-time, news radio program in the country. Every weekday the twohour show is hosted by Ailsa Chang, Audie Cornish, Mary Louise Kelly, and Ari Shapiro. In 1977, ATC expanded to seven days a week with a one-hour show on Saturdays and Sundays, which is hosted by Michel Martin. During each broadcast, stories and reports come to listeners from NPR reporters and correspondents based throughout the United States and the world. The hosts interview newsmakers and contribute their own reporting. Rounding out the mix are the disparate voices of a variety of commentators. All Things Considered has earned many of journalism's highest honors, including the George Foster Peabody Award, the Alfred I. DuPont Columbia University Award and the Overseas Press Club Award.

RUN TIME – 2 HOURS

PROGRAM SOURCE - NPR Weekdays 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

HOME GROWN MUSIC - Tuesdays at 9 p.m.

SOURCE – WVIA-FM RUN TIME – 29:00

Homegrown Music is WVIA-FM's exclusive series which each week showcases the talents of regional contemporary music artists in recordings produced in the WVIA-FM studios by series host George Graham and is broadcast Tuesdays at 9:00 PM and Saturdays at 6 PM on WVIA-HD2 Further information on Homegrown Music may be obtained via the World Wide Web at <https://www.wvia.org/radio/homegrown-music/> and <http://homegrownmusic.info>.

11/1/22

Joe Rollin Porter - A traditional-style folksinger, Ohioan Joe Rollin Porter released an album called Take This Hammer in 2018, which has been featured on WVIA's Mixed Bag. This encore of his 2018 session features a set of his interpretations of traditional songs, with some very impressive finger style guitar playing.

11/15/22

Jon Fuller - A first-rate young singer-songwriter pianist whose day job is as a classical accompanist, Jon Fuller released his debut album Skipping Away from Dissonance in 2013, which was a Mixed Bag featured album review, and recently released a new album When Did You Get So Damn Scared. This is an encore of his debut 2014 solo session spotlighting his appealing original material in a solo piano/vocalsetting.

11/22/22

Kate & C.J. - The long-running Poconos folk duo of Kate Jordan and CJ McKenna performs memorable original music featuring outstanding vocal harmonies, in this encore of a 2006 Homegrown Music session.

11/29/22

Ned Farr - This archive session from 1998 is a particular favorite of HGM producer George Graham. Known for his work as a film director, editor and director of photography, Ned Farr nevertheless created memorable music that combined thoughtful lyrics, fine vocals and excellent instrumental arrangements. This session preceded his second album Desert Motel and featured some of the songs that would appear on it. This edition of Homegrown Music was subsequently released as The Warehouse Sessions.

12/7/22

The Jim Gilmour Band - A fine singer-songwriter and multi-instrumentalist and producer, whose 2006 album Quarterline was featured on the Mixed Bag weekly album review at the time, Jim Gilmour brought his group to appear on Homegrown

Music to perform his thoughtful and appealing songs. Their 2006 session is featured in this Encore.

12/14/22

Pavlov's Dogs - A very eclectic bluegrass band from the Lehigh Valley, the group was known for their high original interpretations of music from outside the realm of bluegrass such as Talking Heads, The Rolling Stones and Bob Marley. The group make three appearances on the series in the 1990s, and this encore features a cross-section of their memorable and good-spirited music.

12/21/22

A Homegrown Music Christmas Anthology - Series host George Graham presents a collection of mostly original holiday music from the Homegrown Music archive.

12/28/22

Chet Vincent & Birdwatcher - Chet Vincent and Birdwatcher. From Western PA, rock singer-songwriter Chet Vincent has been the leader of The Big Bend, which released an album in 2016. Now working under his own name, Vincent released "Where the Earth Opens Wide" in 2018 which has been featured on WVIA's Mixed Bag. Vincent and his four-piece band are heard in their 2019 Homegrown Music debut with a set of original music not heard on the album.

FEATURE 1 - Larry - STARS for KeyEd Radio 1204222.mp3

HEADLINE: Keystone Edition Reports to Feature Two Organizations Fostering Hope and Opportunity

INTRO: Without hope there's no life. Sure a person can wake up, go through the day, get through school or maybe even have a job. But without hope a person feels no purpose, doesn't look to the future with anticipation, can't see a way forward. Two community outreach projects, one in Hazleton in Luzerne county, the other in Lackawanna county are fostering hope to disadvantaged and underserved populations. I'm Larry Vojtko. Tomorrow evening at 7 I'll be hosting a program introducing us to the Hazleton Integration Project and to STARS at Marywood University, which seeks to offer opportunities to families with students in 7th through 12th grades. Jenny Gonzalez Monge is the current Program Director and will be one of my guests tomorrow night. The program is entering its 5th year. Its name, STARS, is an acronym that Ms. Gonzalez Monge says stands for...

PROGRAM SOURCE – NPR RUN TIME – 2 HOURS

WXPN's live performance and interview program featuring music and conversation from a variety of important musicians.

11/21/22

Calexico's 'El Mirador' is a love letter to Tucson - If there ever was a band that defined the southwestern sound and feel of Tucson, Ariz., it would undoubtedly be longtime indie rock band Calexico. So, it may be surprising to hear that both founding members Joey Burns and John Convertino had recently moved to Boise, Idaho, and El Paso, Texas, respectively. If there's truth to be found in the expression "absence makes the heart grow fonder," you can find it in Calexico's new album, El Mirador, a love letter to their longtime home base. It's filled with Latin influences, including cumbia and ranchera music. Recorded at longtime member Sergio Mendoza's house, El Mirador is about introspection and connectivity. It's Calexico at their finest.

11/22/22

The Culture Corner: Love's 'Forever Changes' counterbalanced 1967's 'Summer of Love' - When you think of the "Summer of Love," you probably imagine hippies and flower children hanging out in San Francisco. But the Los Angeles-based band Love reacted a little differently to the "Summer of Love" with their album Forever Changes. In this edition of The Culture Corner, World Cafe correspondent John Morrison talks about how Love's 1967 album was, in many ways, the thematic opposite to much of the music that came out of the "Summer of Love." Morrison explains why Love's band name may have been a little tongue-in-cheek and what set them apart from other bands.

Julieta Venegas finds the perfect balance between past and future on 'Tu Historia' - Julieta Venegas is no stranger to sonic experimentation. The Mexican artist has played with Latin rock and folk, regional Mexican styles, electronica and hip hop. Last year, she even co-wrote a duet with reggaeton hitmakers Tainy and Bad Bunny. World Cafe producer Miguel Perez says it's that versatility that has made Venegas one of the most beloved musicians across Latin America. She released her first album in 1997, but she became a star in the mid-2000s with her album Limón y Sal. Julieta has a new record out, Tu Historia. In this session, she talks about finding the inspiration to write new music, working with Chilean producer Álex Anwandter and how that Bad Bunny collab has introduced her to a whole new generation of fans.

Tamino showcases his heavenly voice and calm energy on his latest album, 'Sahar' - In 2019, Tamino accumulated a healthy amount of buzz for his debut album, Amir. But when the pandemic hit, the Belgian-Egyptian artist canceled his tour, turned off his social media and went dark. Now, more than two years later, comes the new record, Sahar. Tamino stopped by the World Cafe to share some of the new music in an exclusive mini-concert.

11/30/22

The 1975's Matty Healy says the band's latest record is 'a call for empathy' -

Think about all that goes into a good joke: the timing, the delivery or even the specific words you use. They're things you might take for granted if you're telling a joke in your first language, but things get a bit trickier if you're trying to tell that joke in another one. Concepts like innuendo, double meanings, cultural context and subtlety all change. The 1975's latest album is called Being Funny in a Foreign Language, and in this session, frontman Matty Healy talks about confusion, humor and the way we communicate with each other in the internet age. Healy also gets into how the band made its new album alongside co-producer Jack Antonoff. Plus, you'll hear live performances from The 1975 that were recorded at the Reading Festival back in August.

Here's how Kenny Loggins became the 'King of the Movie Soundtrack' -

If you needed a hit for your movie's soundtrack in the 1980s, there was a good chance you'd call on Kenny Loggins. The singer-songwriter created several hits for movies like Top Gun, Caddyshack and Footloose. Loggins has a new memoir, titled Still Alright, that covers his time as one of the best-selling artists of the '80s, but it also offers a full picture of his work in Loggins and Messina, the band he formed with producer Jim Messina in the '70s. In this session, Loggins talks about being a struggling musician growing up in Southern California, the unique constraints that came with working with Messina, and how he wasn't the first choice for songs that are now some of his signature hits.

Madi Diaz is one of Nashville's best kept secrets - Madi Diaz has been one of Nashville's best kept secrets as an in-demand songwriter who's worked with Miranda Lambert, Little Big Town and Kesha. She started work on her latest album, History of a Feeling, in 2017, penning more than 100 demos in the process. This March, she released Same History, New Feelings, an EP reimagining several of the songs from the album. In this session, she joins us for a mini-concert along with some friends: Eric Slick of Dr. Dog on drums and Joey Howard of Paramore on bass.

Harlem Gospel Travelers share a message of hope on 'Look Up!' - Gospel music has always offered hope in hard times and light in the dark, whether you're listening to it or like the Harlem Gospel Travelers, you're singing it yourself. The group has its roots in a gospel quartet class Eli "Paperboy" Reed taught — and today you'll hear how he joined forces with singers Ifedayo Thomas Gatling, George Marage and Dennis Bailey, discovered and nurtured their talents, and how the tumult and challenges of the last few years inspired the hopeful, powerful songs on the latest Harlem Gospel Travelers album, Look Up!

How The Lone Bellow channeled Roy Orbison on their new album - Roy Orbison was very shy. He wore sunglasses on stage to help him conquer stage fright. His image was that of a brooding introvert, not a cool dude or a macho hunk. His love songs weren't the happy kind; they were the unrequited love kind — you might say they were love songs for losers. So it makes sense that The Lone Bellow's new album, which they recorded in Orbison's old house in Nashville, Tenn., might take inspiration from songs like that. The album is called Love Songs for Losers, and it came out back in November. In this session, you'll hear a conversation with the band as well as live performances from them — guitarist and lead vocalist Zach Williams, multi-instrumentalist Kanene Donehey Pipkin and guitarist and vocalist Brian Elmquist. They'll tell you all about what Orbison's house was like and why love and human relationships were on their mind this time around.

The Smile is a weirder version of Radiohead, if that's even possible - Jonny Greenwood was dealing with the pandemic in his own way by writing riffs on his guitar, and Thom Yorke was eager to do some recording. So the two Radiohead members dreamed up a new project called The Smile, and enlisted Sons of Kemet drummer Tom Skinner to join them. The newly formed three-piece along with longtime Radiohead producer Nigel Godrich got to work, and after a handful of performances, we arrive at the debut from The Smile, A Light for Attracting Attention. It's a weirder version of Radiohead, if there could be such a thing, loaded with jazz and post-punk influences. In this session, The Smile share an exclusive mini-concert recorded at the Montreux Jazz Festival in July 2022. You could call it a mega-mini-concert, as we're going to feature eight songs from the trio, which showcases some of the best players in the world.
