AIR GROUP 16: WE CAME TO REMEMBER tells the story of the last reunion of Air Group 16 - the pilots, radiomen and gunners who served on the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Lexington in the Pacific in World War II. The film follows the veterans and their families as they make the journey by train, plane and car to Washington D.C. for their final reunion at the dedication of the National World War II Memorial in May 2004. Through stunning archival footage, period music and dramatic first-person accounts, the film follows Air Group 16 as they tell their stories, remember their fallen comrades and accept official honors from the country they served.

Renowned sculptor John Houser has a dream: to build the world's tallest bronze equestrian statue for the city of El Paso, Texas. He envisions a stunning monument to the Spanish conquistador Juan de Oñate that will pay tribute to the contributions Hispanic people made to building the American West. But as the project nears completion, troubles arise. Native Americans are outraged - they remember Oñate as the man who brought genocide to their land and sold their children into slavery. As El Paso splits along lines of race and class, the artist must face the moral implications of his work.

Forget the pie charts, color-coded maps and hyperventilating pundits. What's the street-level experience of voters in today's America? In a triumph of documentary storytelling, "Election Day" combines 12 stories - shot simultaneously on November 2, 2004, from dawn until long past midnight - into one. Factory workers, ex-felons, harried moms, Native-American activists and diligent poll watchers, from South Dakota to Florida, take the process of democracy into their own hands. The result: an entertaining, inspiring and sometimes unsettling tapestry of citizens determined on one fateful day to make their votes count.

In 1997, U.S. Marines patrolling the Texas-Mexico border as part of the War on Drugs shot and killed Esequiel Hernández Jr. Mistaken for a drug runner, the 18-year-old was, in fact, a U.S. citizen tending his family's goats with a .22 rifle. He became the first American killed by U.S. military forces on native soil since the 1970 Kent State shootings. Narrated by Tommy Lee Jones, the film explores Hernández's death and its torturous aftermath. His parents and friends, the Marines on patrol and investigators discuss the death of one young man and the dangers of militarizing the border.

An unemployment epidemic in the Middle East: what does it mean for America? NOW travels to Jordan to explore the implications of - and possible solutions to - having millions of young people out of work in the Middle East. Staggering unemployment rates among the region's massive youth population is fueling anger, frustration and resentment. To combat the problem, Jordan's Queen Rania has made job creation a top priority. Another initiative comes from an unlikely source: a Brooklyn, New York businessman who has set up programs across the region to give young people the real world skills they desperately need to gain employment. Both have their work cut out for them: nearly 70 million jobs are needed in the Middle East by the year 2020, according to the World Bank. Can these training programs work to stem the tide or are they just a drop in the bucket?

Granted unprecedented access to Japan's "West Point" - the National Defense Academy - WIDE ANGLE captures a remarkable view of the military's shifting role in post-war Japanese society. Since WWII, Japan's pacifist constitution has mandated a strictly defensive force. But the line between defense and offense has blurred, and Japan's military budget is now the fifth largest in the world. With troops in Iraq and sophisticated new fighter jets, Japan is reconsidering its rules of engagement. This program follows Academy cadets preparing for possible overseas deployment and meets a group of peace demonstrators - including atom bomb survivors - on a two-month march dedicated to keeping Japan's troops at home.

Rocky Mountain National Park is just outside the back door of the grand and graceful Stanley Hotel, which may look familiar to fans of Stephen King's "The Shining." At Jackson Lake Lodge, the magnificent views were personally selected by John D. and Laurence Rockefeller when they built this modern masterpiece at the foot of Grand Teton. Visitors can eat breakfast like a cowboy on an early morning mountain trail ride. Then it's on to Alaska, where rivers of ice march into the ocean and bears fish from the water's edge at Glacier Bay Lodge; North America's highest peak greets visitors each day in their cozy cabin at the wild and remote Camp Denali.

Filmed in the mountains of western Montana, this poignant, engrossing story focuses on an extraordinary wild stallion whose life has been recorded since his moment of birth in the wild by Emmy-winning filmmaker Ginger Kathrens. Ms. Kathrens' exceptional footage follows the striking white horse she names Cloud through a series of harrowing struggles and adventures, including expulsion from his own horse family, the rites of passage as he develops into a dominating stallion, his capture in a government roundup and subsequent release, the struggle to survive harsh winters and frequent summer lightning strikes, and the dangers posed by illegal horse shooters. As an illuminating visual record of the emergence of a natural leader, this is an unprecedented film about wild horses.

Science fiction writers have come up with strange depictions of alien life, but nothing to rival creatures with a beak like a parrot, no bones, three hearts, blue blood, skin that can change colors and arms growing out of lips. Scientists call them cephalopods (squid and octopus); they inhabit a world where cannibalism is a daily practice, mating can involve amputation, trickery is rife and size means everything - and nothing. Viewers follow a cameraman into the abyss and share his adventures with the planet's most cryptic and clever monsters.

The ship's location and itinerary are classified. Details of how the nuclear reactor works are top secret. Many aspects of life on a nuclear aircraft carrier are hush-hush. Dating and sex aboard ship are strictly forbidden, but according to one sailor, with 5,000 people on board, relationships are "inevitable," resulting in a "don't ask, don't tell" policy that applies to relationships as well as sexual orientation. When the Nimitz pulls into Hong Kong for a four-day port call, a scandal dramatically alters the lives of two sailors. As the ship departs, the crew learns their itinerary has changed. The captain announces that they are heading for Korea, but the crew can't share this information with their families back home...because it's a secret.

Forget the pie charts, color-coded maps and hyperventilating pundits. What's the street-level experience of voters in today's America? In a triumph of documentary storytelling, "Election Day" combines 12 stories - shot simultaneously on November 2, 2004, from dawn until long past midnight - into one. Factory workers, ex-felons, harried moms, Native-American activists and diligent poll watchers, from South Dakota to Florida, take the process of democracy into their own hands. The result: an entertaining, inspiring and sometimes unsettling tapestry of citizens determined on one fateful day to make their votes count.

Forget the pie charts, color-coded maps and hyperventilating pundits. What's the street-level experience of voters in today's America? In a triumph of documentary storytelling, "Election Day" combines 12 stories - shot simultaneously on November 2, 2004, from dawn until long past midnight - into one. Factory workers, ex-felons, harried moms, Native-American activists and diligent poll watchers, from South Dakota to Florida, take the process of democracy into their own hands. The result: an entertaining, inspiring and sometimes unsettling tapestry of citizens determined on one fateful day to make their votes count.

The ship's location and itinerary are classified. Details of how the nuclear reactor works are top secret. Many aspects of life on a nuclear aircraft carrier are hush-hush. Dating and sex aboard ship are strictly forbidden, but according to one sailor, with 5,000 people on board, relationships are "inevitable," resulting in a "don't ask, don't tell" policy that applies to relationships as well as sexual orientation. When the Nimitz pulls into Hong Kong for a four-day port call, a scandal dramatically alters the lives of two sailors. As the ship departs, the crew learns their itinerary has changed. The captain announces that they are heading for Korea, but the crew can't share this information with their families back home...because it's a secret.

Niall Ferguson examines the horrors of the Second World War and shows how, in order to win, the allies had to act with the same savagery as their enemies. It was, in his words, "a tainted victory" - and the true, ultimate winners were not those who were victorious in 1945.

Granted unprecedented access to Japan's "West Point" - the National Defense Academy - WIDE ANGLE captures a remarkable view of the military's shifting role in post-war Japanese society. Since WWII, Japan's pacifist constitution has mandated a strictly defensive force. But the line between defense and offense has blurred, and Japan's military budget is now the fifth largest in the world. With troops in Iraq and sophisticated new fighter jets, Japan is reconsidering its rules of engagement. This program follows Academy cadets preparing for possible overseas deployment and meets a group of peace demonstrators - including atom bomb survivors - on a two-month march dedicated to keeping Japan's troops at home.

Granted unprecedented access to Japan's "West Point" - the National Defense Academy - WIDE ANGLE captures a remarkable view of the military's shifting role in post-war Japanese society. Since WWII, Japan's pacifist constitution has mandated a strictly defensive force. But the line between defense and offense has blurred, and Japan's military budget is now the fifth largest in the world. With troops in Iraq and sophisticated new fighter jets, Japan is reconsidering its rules of engagement. This program follows Academy cadets preparing for possible overseas deployment and meets a group of peace demonstrators - including atom bomb survivors - on a two-month march dedicated to keeping Japan's troops at home.

An unemployment epidemic in the Middle East: what does it mean for America? NOW travels to Jordan to explore the implications of - and possible solutions to - having millions of young people out of work in the Middle East. Staggering unemployment rates among the region's massive youth population is fueling anger, frustration and resentment. To combat the problem, Jordan's Queen Rania has made job creation a top priority. Another initiative comes from an unlikely source: a Brooklyn, New York businessman who has set up programs across the region to give young people the real world skills they desperately need to gain employment. Both have their work cut out for them: nearly 70 million jobs are needed in the Middle East by the year 2020, according to the World Bank. Can these training programs work to stem the tide or are they just a drop in the bucket?

Slipping and sliding, the economy can't get a grip, which is the same thing the presidential candidates are trying to do at home and abroad this week on "Washington Week." Fed. Chairman Ben Bernanke said, "I think the housing market is really the central element of this crisis." Pres. George W. Bush stated, "I think the system basically is sound - I truly do." So which is it? As big mortgage lenders flounder and major industries continue to scale back, there remained more questions than answers. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "You raise taxes in a bad economy, you eliminate jobs. I'm not going to let that happen." But as one candidate starts talking about the economy, the other turns to foreign policy. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I will give our military a new mission on my first day in office: ending this war." We are covering the commander-in-chief conundrum tonight with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Jeff Zeleny of the New York Times, John Maggs of National Journal, and Eamon Javers of Politico.

Northern Uganda has been ravaged by one of Africa's longest civil wars. For more than 20 years, as many as 25,000 children, some as young as five years old, have been kidnapped by Uganda's anti-government rebel group, the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), and forced to serve as child soldiers and sex slaves. Under the command of LRA leader Joseph Kony, these children have been terrorized into committing the worst atrocities, even killing their own families. "Lord's Children" follows three former LRA soldiers who escaped from the bush and have taken refuge in a rehabilitation center. WIDE ANGLE is with the center's counselors as they help the physically and emotionally scarred children put their lives back together. Fourteen-year old Jennifer was abducted by the LRA when she was nine-years old, handed a gun and trained to kill. Raped by a rebel soldier, she now fears that she's HIV positive. Kilama, 13, is rejected by his grandmother, who is fearful of his turbulent past. Homeless, he wanders to the nearby city, like thousands of other children, in constant fear of being re-kidnapped by the rebels. At a young age, Francis witnessed the execution of two boys, killed by machete for not following orders. Terrified of a similar fate, he fled and now hopes to be reunited with his mother. As these children piece their lives together, the LRA continues to carry out attacks in the region. Though the ICC issued an arrest warrant for Kony in 2005, he remains at large, hiding in the jungle of neighboring Congo.

Even though he's no longer running for president, John Edwards is still a man with a mission: to cut poverty in the United States by 50 percent in 10 years. This week, NOW's David Brancaccio talks with Edwards about how he plans to achieve this ambitious goal and what role it may and should have on the upcoming presidential election. "What's happening in America today is middle class workers, people who are like my parents and my family, the family that I grew up in, they are having a terrible time," Edwards tells NOW. The current economic crisis has Edwards and his followers more committed than ever, but will their efforts gain enough momentum to make a difference?

Slipping and sliding, the economy can't get a grip, which is the same thing the presidential candidates are trying to do at home and abroad this week on "Washington Week." Fed. Chairman Ben Bernanke said, "I think the housing market is really the central element of this crisis." Pres. George W. Bush stated, "I think the system basically is sound - I truly do." So which is it? As big mortgage lenders flounder and major industries continue to scale back, there remained more questions than answers. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "You raise taxes in a bad economy, you eliminate jobs. I'm not going to let that happen." But as one candidate starts talking about the economy, the other turns to foreign policy. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I will give our military a new mission on my first day in office: ending this war." We are covering the commander-in-chief conundrum tonight with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Jeff Zeleny of the New York Times, John Maggs of National Journal, and Eamon Javers of Politico.

Obama in the Middle East and Europe; McCain in the Midwest and Maine. Plus, a foreign policy reality check and new housing help, tonight, on "Washington Week." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "The greatest danger of all is to allow new walls to divide us from one another. These now are the walls we must tear down." Barack Obama's speech in Berlin capped a very presidential looking week as he rubbed shoulders with foreign leaders and staged an international PR blitz, while back at home John McCain's criticism of the Democrat grew sharper. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Senator Obama would rather lose a war in order to win a political campaign." What new challenges await? And what are the toughest foreign policy issues either man will inherit? Plus, Congress takes a big step to ease the mortgage crisis, but not everybody's happy about it. Sen. Jim Demini (R-SC) said, "The president has decided he wants this bailout more than he wants to stand by his original position that he would veto it." We take you behind the week's stories with the reporters covering them: Michael Duffy of Time magazine, John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, and Michael Viqueira of NBC News.

"9 Star Hotel" documents the lives of a group of young Palestinian men working illegally as construction laborers in the Israeli city of Modi'in. Caught between Israeli security laws and a Palestinian Authority they believe has failed them, they work for Israeli contractors by day while hiding from police by night. Like youths everywhere, they pass their idle hours talking about love, marriage and future hopes. Israeli filmmaker Ido Haar has crafted a powerful vérité film that illuminates the plight of young men questioning their own culture while struggling to survive in the midst of bitter conflict.

It was the greatest flood of the past two million years, and it posed a giant scientific riddle. A maverick geologist became convinced that near the end of the last ice age, thousand-foot-deep floodwaters had scoured out vast areas of the American northwest. Mainstream scientists scorned his theory, while he searched patiently for answers to what could have triggered such an inconceivably violent event. Finally, a remarkable discovery silenced the skeptics: traces of an enormous ice dam half a mile high, which had blocked a valley in present-day Montana and created an enormous lake behind it. With the help of stunning, realistic animation, NOVA takes viewers back to the Ice Age to reveal what happened when the dam broke, unleashing a titanic flood that swept herds of woolly mammoth and everything else into oblivion.

New Mexico's high desert is a captivating land of hallowed mountains, red rock canyons and vast, serene plateaus. In "Remembered Earth," filmmaker John Grabowska and Indian author N. Scott Momaday present a vision of hope for humankind's relationship to the natural world by interpreting the myth, beauty and power of a scarred but sacred landscape of the American West. Can we come to see land itself as a community to which we belong?

As temperatures and sea levels rise, the world is scrambling to stop global warming - a threat the UN Secretary General has described as "the defining issue of our era." But international consensus is slow to emerge, and debate over how to slow climate change continues. WIDE ANGLE travels to Indonesia, where rainforest areas equivalent to 300 soccer fields are cut down and burnt every hour to clear land for crops such as oil palms. New studies show that the devastation of Indonesia's forests has helped to make it the world's third-largest emitter of carbon dioxide - exceeded only by the U.S. and China. How to reduce these harmful greenhouse gas emissions? Dorjee Sun, a 29-year-old Australian green entrepreneur, thinks he has a solution: his idea involves selling the carbon credits represented by large forest areas in three Indonesian provinces to polluters in the West. "Burning Season" follows Sun on a whirlwind trip to boardrooms around the world - from Starbucks to eBay to Merrill Lynch - as he tries to convince skeptical financiers that his proposal is viable. To carry out the plan, local political leaders in the jungle of Indonesia must also agree that their forests are worth more alive than dead. Meanwhile, small farmers like Achmadi, whose survival depends on cutting down trees to plant oil palms, fear the layers of government officials will be the only ones in his country making money from the carbon credit project. "Burning Season" captures both sides of the climate divide and explores whether commercialism can step in where altruism has so far failed to succeed.

Northern Uganda has been ravaged by one of Africa's longest civil wars. For more than 20 years, as many as 25,000 children, some as young as five years old, have been kidnapped by Uganda's anti-government rebel group, the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), and forced to serve as child soldiers and sex slaves. Under the command of LRA leader Joseph Kony, these children have been terrorized into committing the worst atrocities, even killing their own families. "Lord's Children" follows three former LRA soldiers who escaped from the bush and have taken refuge in a rehabilitation center. WIDE ANGLE is with the center's counselors as they help the physically and emotionally scarred children put their lives back together. Fourteen-year old Jennifer was abducted by the LRA when she was nine-years old, handed a gun and trained to kill. Raped by a rebel soldier, she now fears that she's HIV positive. Kilama, 13, is rejected by his grandmother, who is fearful of his turbulent past. Homeless, he wanders to the nearby city, like thousands of other children, in constant fear of being re-kidnapped by the rebels. At a young age, Francis witnessed the execution of two boys, killed by machete for not following orders. Terrified of a similar fate, he fled and now hopes to be reunited with his mother. As these children piece their lives together, the LRA continues to carry out attacks in the region. Though the ICC issued an arrest warrant for Kony in 2005, he remains at large, hiding in the jungle of neighboring Congo.

Slipping and sliding, the economy can't get a grip, which is the same thing the presidential candidates are trying to do at home and abroad this week on "Washington Week." Fed. Chairman Ben Bernanke said, "I think the housing market is really the central element of this crisis." Pres. George W. Bush stated, "I think the system basically is sound - I truly do." So which is it? As big mortgage lenders flounder and major industries continue to scale back, there remained more questions than answers. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "You raise taxes in a bad economy, you eliminate jobs. I'm not going to let that happen." But as one candidate starts talking about the economy, the other turns to foreign policy. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I will give our military a new mission on my first day in office: ending this war." We are covering the commander-in-chief conundrum tonight with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Jeff Zeleny of the New York Times, John Maggs of National Journal, and Eamon Javers of Politico.

Obama in the Middle East and Europe; McCain in the Midwest and Maine. Plus, a foreign policy reality check and new housing help, tonight, on "Washington Week." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "The greatest danger of all is to allow new walls to divide us from one another. These now are the walls we must tear down." Barack Obama's speech in Berlin capped a very presidential looking week as he rubbed shoulders with foreign leaders and staged an international PR blitz, while back at home John McCain's criticism of the Democrat grew sharper. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Senator Obama would rather lose a war in order to win a political campaign." What new challenges await? And what are the toughest foreign policy issues either man will inherit? Plus, Congress takes a big step to ease the mortgage crisis, but not everybody's happy about it. Sen. Jim Demini (R-SC) said, "The president has decided he wants this bailout more than he wants to stand by his original position that he would veto it." We take you behind the week's stories with the reporters covering them: Michael Duffy of Time magazine, John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, and Michael Viqueira of NBC News.

Northern Uganda has been ravaged by one of Africa's longest civil wars. For more than 20 years, as many as 25,000 children, some as young as five years old, have been kidnapped by Uganda's anti-government rebel group, the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), and forced to serve as child soldiers and sex slaves. Under the command of LRA leader Joseph Kony, these children have been terrorized into committing the worst atrocities, even killing their own families. "Lord's Children" follows three former LRA soldiers who escaped from the bush and have taken refuge in a rehabilitation center. WIDE ANGLE is with the center's counselors as they help the physically and emotionally scarred children put their lives back together. Fourteen-year old Jennifer was abducted by the LRA when she was nine-years old, handed a gun and trained to kill. Raped by a rebel soldier, she now fears that she's HIV positive. Kilama, 13, is rejected by his grandmother, who is fearful of his turbulent past.

Homeless, he wanders to the nearby city, like thousands of other children, in constant fear of being re-kidnapped by the rebels. At a young age, Francis witnessed the execution of two boys, killed by machete for not following orders. Terrified of a similar fate, he fled and now hopes to be reunited with his mother. As these children piece their lives together, the LRA continues to carry out attacks in the region. Though the ICC issued an arrest warrant for Kony in 2005, he remains at large, hiding in the jungle of neighboring Congo.

Slipping and sliding, the economy can't get a grip, which is the same thing the presidential candidates are trying to do at home and abroad this week on "Washington Week." Fed. Chairman Ben Bernanke said, "I think the housing market is really the central element of this crisis." Pres. George W. Bush stated, "I think the system basically is sound - I truly do." So which is it? As big mortgage lenders flounder and major industries continue to scale back, there remained more questions than answers. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "You raise taxes in a bad economy, you eliminate jobs. I'm not going to let that happen." But as one candidate starts talking about the economy, the other turns to foreign policy. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I will give our military a new mission on my first day in office: ending this war." We are covering the commander-in-chief conundrum tonight with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Jeff Zeleny of the New York Times, John Maggs of National Journal, and Eamon Javers of Politico.

Even though he's no longer running for president, John Edwards is still a man with a mission: to cut poverty in the United States by 50 percent in 10 years. This week, NOW's David Brancaccio talks with Edwards about how he plans to achieve this ambitious goal and what role it may and should have on the upcoming presidential election. "What's happening in America today is middle class workers, people who are like my parents and my family, the family that I grew up in, they are having a terrible time," Edwards tells NOW. The current economic crisis has Edwards and his followers more committed than ever, but will their efforts gain enough momentum to make a difference?

Slipping and sliding, the economy can't get a grip, which is the same thing the presidential candidates are trying to do at home and abroad this week on "Washington Week." Fed. Chairman Ben Bernanke said, "I think the housing market is really the central element of this crisis." Pres. George W. Bush stated, "I think the system basically is sound - I truly do." So which is it? As big mortgage lenders flounder and major industries continue to scale back, there remained more questions than answers. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "You raise taxes in a bad economy, you eliminate jobs. I'm not going to let that happen." But as one candidate starts talking about the economy, the other turns to foreign policy. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I will give our military a new mission on my first day in office: ending this war." We are covering the commander-in-chief conundrum tonight with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Jeff Zeleny of the New York Times, John Maggs of National Journal, and Eamon Javers of Politico.

Obama in the Middle East and Europe; McCain in the Midwest and Maine. Plus, a foreign policy reality check and new housing help, tonight, on "Washington Week." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "The greatest danger of all is to allow new walls to divide us from one another. These now are the walls we must tear down." Barack Obama's speech in Berlin capped a very presidential looking week as he rubbed shoulders with foreign leaders and staged an international PR blitz, while back at home John McCain's criticism of the Democrat grew sharper. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Senator Obama would rather lose a war in order to win a political campaign." What new challenges await? And what are the toughest foreign policy issues either man will inherit? Plus, Congress takes a big step to ease the mortgage crisis, but not everybody's happy about it. Sen. Jim Demini (R-SC) said, "The president has decided he wants this bailout more than he wants to stand by his original position that he would veto it." We take you behind the week's stories with the reporters covering them: Michael Duffy of Time magazine, John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, and Michael Viqueira of NBC News.

Northern Uganda has been ravaged by one of Africa's longest civil wars. For more than 20 years, as many as 25,000 children, some as young as five years old, have been kidnapped by Uganda's anti-government rebel group, the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), and forced to serve as child soldiers and sex slaves. Under the command of LRA leader Joseph Kony, these children have been terrorized into committing the worst atrocities, even killing their own families. "Lord's Children" follows three former LRA soldiers who escaped from the bush and have taken refuge in a rehabilitation center. WIDE ANGLE is with the center's counselors as they help the physically and emotionally scarred children put their lives back together. Fourteen-year old Jennifer was abducted by the LRA when she was nine-years old, handed a gun and trained to kill. Raped by a rebel soldier, she now fears that she's HIV positive. Kilama, 13, is rejected by his grandmother, who is fearful of his turbulent past. Homeless, he wanders to the nearby city, like thousands of other children, in constant fear of being re-kidnapped by the rebels. At a young age, Francis witnessed the execution of two boys, killed by machete for not following orders. Terrified of a similar fate, he fled and now hopes to be reunited with his mother. As these children piece their lives together, the LRA continues to carry out attacks in the region. Though the ICC issued an arrest warrant for Kony in 2005, he remains at large, hiding in the jungle of neighboring Congo.

It was the greatest flood of the past two million years, and it posed a giant scientific riddle. A maverick geologist became convinced that near the end of the last ice age, thousand-foot-deep floodwaters had scoured out vast areas of the American northwest. Mainstream scientists scorned his theory, while he searched patiently for answers to what could have triggered such an inconceivably violent event. Finally, a remarkable discovery silenced the skeptics: traces of an enormous ice dam half a mile high, which had blocked a valley in present-day Montana and created an enormous lake behind it. With the help of stunning, realistic animation, NOVA takes viewers back to the Ice Age to reveal what happened when the dam broke, unleashing a titanic flood that swept herds of woolly mammoth and everything else into oblivion.

The mission really kicks off when the Nimitz arrives in the Gulf. The conditions are extreme: flight deck personnel endure temperatures hovering around 120 degrees, while the pilots undertake grueling six-hour missions over Iraq. The F-18s are mounted with infrared cameras, enabling them to serve as the "eyes in the sky" to support the troops on the ground. Some of the pilots are frustrated that they're not dropping bombs because, as they describe it, that's what they've been trained to do. The aircraft carrier's role and effectiveness in this particular war are questioned. Meanwhile, the strike group searches for terrorists on small dhows and intercepts cargo ships to search for weapons and bomb-making materials.

After two months in the Gulf, one day starts to become indistinguishable from the next. The airwing still hasn't dropped a single bomb, which is frustrating for some on board. The only relief comes from a port call in Bahrain, where some sailors relax by the pool, while others visit a mosque and learn about Muslim culture. The Princeton, one of the escort ships in the Nimitz strike group, loses a man overboard; an intense search to find the lost sailor ensues.

The last day in the Gulf is the last chance to drop bombs before the Nimitz heads home. The jets take off, laden with ordnance, and return hours later, still carrying the same bombs. As the Nimitz crosses the equator, the entire ship takes part in the Crossing the Line Ceremony, an ancient maritime ritual. In the middle of flight operations, a storm arises in the South Indian Ocean. The deck pitches violently, turning the already dangerous task of landing on the carrier into a nail-biting, heart-pounding drama.

Churchill fell in love with the United States of America, the land of his mother's birth, during his first visit there in 1894. It was an unlikely match, but it endured, culminating in the special relationship between him and President Roosevelt, which was the bedrock of Allied victory during the Second World War. During this middle period of his life, Sandys focuses on Churchill's growing gift with words and his deepening passion for painting, both of which help illustrate the inner man. Sandys travels extensively throughout the United States and to Egypt, which seemed to lure Churchill to the banks of the Nile at crucial moments in his life.

America thought it had won the war in Afghanistan six years ago, but a recent escalation in violence and instability - including the death of nine U.S. soldiers this past weekend - has given rise to the question: Have we allowed the Taliban to come back? This week, NOW Correspondent Bill Gentile reports from Afghanistan's southern Helmand Province, where he was embedded for nearly three weeks in May and June with the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit. They are among 60,000 foreign troops on the ground in Afghanistan - more than half of them American. Forces there face an ominous challenge as the Taliban attempts a return to power, in some cases merging with other insurgent groups, and potentially providing safe haven for Al-Qaeda and other anti-American terrorists. Reporting from the front lines, NOW provides a soldier's-eye view into what some consider America's "forgotten war." Are we still winning it?

Northern Uganda has been ravaged by one of Africa's longest civil wars. For more than 20 years, as many as 25,000 children, some as young as five years old, have been kidnapped by Uganda's anti-government rebel group, the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), and forced to serve as child soldiers and sex slaves. Under the command of LRA leader Joseph Kony, these children have been terrorized into committing the worst atrocities, even killing their own families. "Lord's Children" follows three former LRA soldiers who escaped from the bush and have taken refuge in a rehabilitation center. WIDE ANGLE is with the center's counselors as they help the physically and emotionally scarred children put their lives back together. Fourteen-year old Jennifer was abducted by the LRA when she was nine-years old, handed a gun and trained to kill. Raped by a rebel soldier, she now fears that she's HIV positive. Kilama, 13, is rejected by his grandmother, who is fearful of his turbulent past. Homeless, he wanders to the nearby city, like thousands of other children, in constant fear of being re-kidnapped by the rebels. At a young age, Francis witnessed the execution of two boys, killed by machete for not following orders. Terrified of a similar fate, he fled and now hopes to be reunited with his mother. As these children piece their lives together, the LRA continues to carry out attacks in the region. Though the ICC issued an arrest warrant for Kony in 2005, he remains at large, hiding in the jungle of neighboring Congo.

Slipping and sliding, the economy can't get a grip, which is the same thing the presidential candidates are trying to do at home and abroad this week on "Washington Week." Fed. Chairman Ben Bernanke said, "I think the housing market is really the central element of this crisis." Pres. George W. Bush stated, "I think the system basically is sound - I truly do." So which is it? As big mortgage lenders flounder and major industries continue to scale back, there remained more questions than answers. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "You raise taxes in a bad economy, you eliminate jobs. I'm not going to let that happen." But as one candidate starts talking about the economy, the other turns to foreign policy. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I will give our military a new mission on my first day in office: ending this war." We are covering the commander-in-chief conundrum tonight with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Jeff Zeleny of the New York Times, John Maggs of National Journal, and Eamon Javers of Politico.

Obama in the Middle East and Europe; McCain in the Midwest and Maine. Plus, a foreign policy reality check and new housing help, tonight, on "Washington Week." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "The greatest danger of all is to allow new walls to divide us from one another. These now are the walls we must tear down." Barack Obama's speech in Berlin capped a very presidential looking week as he rubbed shoulders with foreign leaders and staged an international PR blitz, while back at home John McCain's criticism of the Democrat grew sharper. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Senator Obama would rather lose a war in order to win a political campaign." What new challenges await? And what are the toughest foreign policy issues either man will inherit? Plus, Congress takes a big step to ease the mortgage crisis, but not everybody's happy about it. Sen. Jim Demini (R-SC) said, "The president has decided he wants this bailout more than he wants to stand by his original position that he would veto it." We take you behind the week's stories with the reporters covering them: Michael Duffy of Time magazine, John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, and Michael Viqueira of NBC News.

"Women hold up half the sky," Mao said. Yet for centuries, their feet were bound and their horizons were narrow. Deprived of opportunities, China's women suffered terribly. Today, Chinese women are starting to witness changes. The young in the cities have opportunities unimaginable to their grandmothers, who survived the Great Leap Forward, and their mothers, who denounced parents and teachers in the Cultural Revolution. Yet for millions of women in rural China, change remains painfully slow.

"9 Star Hotel" documents the lives of a group of young Palestinian men working illegally as construction laborers in the Israeli city of Modi'in. Caught between Israeli security laws and a Palestinian Authority they believe has failed them, they work for Israeli contractors by day while hiding from police by night. Like youths everywhere, they pass their idle hours talking about love, marriage and future hopes. Israeli filmmaker Ido Haar has crafted a powerful vérité film that illuminates the plight of young men questioning their own culture while struggling to survive in the midst of bitter conflict.

"The Forgetting: A Portrait of Alzheimer's" is aimed at helping Americans better understand and cope with this fearsome disease. The centerpiece of the two-hour special is a 90-minute documentary - a dramatic, compassionate, all-encompassing look at Alzheimer's that weaves together the history and biology of the disease, the intense real-world experiences of Alzheimer's patients and caregivers, and the race to find a cure. An informative, customizable half-hour show will follow the documentary and lead viewers to local and national experts and resources. The Forgetting will reach out to all Americans concerned about Alzheimer's - providing broader awareness and understanding of the disease and offering immediate, practical support to families and caregivers. At this critical time in our nation's struggle with Alzheimer's, "The Forgetting" promises to provide millions of Americans with insight and context, help and hope.

In this, the third chapter of Churchill's life, Celia Sandys travels to Morocco and to the South of France in search of those places that gave Churchill particular pleasure. He called Morocco "the most beautiful place on earth." Here, even during the turmoil of the Second World War, he found time to travel with Roosevelt and indulge in his favorite relaxation - painting. Towards the end of his life, travel, friends and the solace he found in painting and writing became more and more important to him. As CHASING CHURCHILL comes to its conclusion in the beautiful setting of the Cote d'Azur, Sandys reflects on the life of the man she knew: a life that began on the battlefields of the world, blossomed through remarkable qualities of leadership and inspiration, but then began to fade into the melancholy of old age.

MUHAMMAD ALI: MADE IN MIAMI explores the critical role that Miami played in the evolution of one of the most significant cultural figures of our time: Muhammad Ali (né Cassius Clay). The film chronicles Cassius Clay's arrival in Miami in the fall of 1960 (fresh from earning a gold medal in the Rome Olympics), his life in Overtown - a neighborhood that was considered "Harlem South" and a vibrant center of black entertainment and commerce - and his affiliation with the famed Fifth Street Gym in Miami Beach. Over the course of the next few years - coinciding with the height of the national civil rights movement - Clay evolved both professionally and politically, piling up victories in the ring and adopting the black separatist teachings of the Nation of Islam. As MUHAMMAD ALI: MADE IN MIAMI makes clear, it was in this period that Cassius Clay became Muhammad Ali.

Belarus has been called "Europe's last dictatorship." Since 1994, Alexander Lukashenko has ruled the former Soviet republic with a despotic hand, jailing the opposition, shutting down the press and refusing to investigate the assassinations of dissidents. He has virtually silenced his critics - but not one lone performance artist who stages public stunts mocking the dictator's pretensions. "Belarusian Waltz" is the story of Alexander Pushkin, whose audacious, comical exploits earn him the hostility of the police and the consternation of his family. An offbeat tale of post-modern street theater meeting 1930s-style authoritarianism, the film offers a surprising window into the soul of the Belarusian people.

Alaska Senator Ted Stevens has been indicted for failing to disclose gifts he received from VECO Corporation, an Alaska-based oil services company. But his indictment is only the latest news - and perhaps the tip of the iceberg - in an ongoing political scandal that's rocking the state and Congress. This week, NOW goes behind the breaking headlines to shine a bright light on the scandalous connection between VECO and Alaska's old-boy political network. Three state legislators have already been convicted in Federal court for accepting bribes from VECO, and the FBI has video and audio evidence that reveal VECO executives shockingly handing out cash to those legislators in exchange for promises to roll back a tax on the oil industry. And more lawmakers - including Senator Stevens' own son, former Alaska State Senate President Ben Stevens - are being eyed in the growing scandal. NOW continues its ongoing investigation into the bribes, the connections to big oil and the payoffs to obtain friendly tax policies.

In 2006, Congress authorized the Secure Fence Act - a multi-billion dollar plan to build hundreds of miles of fencing along the southern border of the United States to stem the flow of undocumented immigrants and provide security from potential terrorism. But what was built to fight illegal immigration has turned into a nightmare for many Americans living along the U.S.-Mexico border. The fence, which will cover less than half of the actual border, inexplicably cuts through the middle of some properties, while leaving others untouched. Many question if it can keep people from sneaking in at all. This week, NOW senior correspondent Maria Hinojosa travels to Texas to meet border families who fear losing their property, their safety, and their way of life. We also follow an investigative reporter who questions whether certain landowners are getting preferential treatment. Is America's border fence working, or an utter waste?

In San Salvador, El Salvador, two thousand miles from Los Angeles's Eighteenth Street, a gang known as "18" governs its territory like an armed militia. In the mid 1990s, thousands of Salvadoran nationals living illegally in the U.S. were deported to their homeland. Some brought L.A. gang culture back with them to a country beset by poverty and awash in arms. Organizing support for gang members in need, meting out justice to those who would defy the gang's code and waging an endless vendetta against its enemies, 18 is helping to make El Salvador one of the most violent and crime-ridden countries in the world. 18 with a Bullet presents a chilling portrait of six months in the life of this notorious Central American gang.

Allegations of celebrity over substance on the campaign trail, an indictment on Capitol Hill could sway the balance of power, and a murder mystery that might be solved. I'm John Harwood sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on "Washington Week." A McCain Ad said, "He's the biggest celebrity in the world, but is he ready to lead?" After Barack Obama's trip overseas, the McCain campaign hits back. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I do have to ask my opponent. Is that the best you can come up with?" Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Campaigns are tough and I'm proud of the campaign that we have run. I'm proud of the issues that we have been trying to address with the American people." Will this be known as the week the campaign turned from cordial to nasty? And which candidate put the explosive issue of race on the table - McCain or Obama. He's long been one of the Senate's most powerful Republicans. Matthew Friedrich said, "Between 1999 and 2006, Senator Stevens accepted gifts from a privately held company." Could a new cloud hanging over the Alaska senator have larger implications in November? And shocking developments in the nearly seven-year-old mystery of who may have been behind the anthrax attacks that targeted politicians and journalists. Covering these stories this week: Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine, James Barnes of National Journal, Janet Hook of the Los Angeles Times, and Pete Williams of NBC News.

When Pakistani filmmaker Sabiha Sumar chose to make a film about democracy in her country, she didn't just request a traditional interview with the Pakistani president Pervez Musharraf, she insisted on a formal dinner. To her surprise, Musharraf -- who is facing impeachment charges after running Pakistan for nearly nine years -- agreed. Sumar spent the evening grilling Musharraf about the state of affairs in their sharply polarized culture. Sumar's documentary, "Dinner With the President," includes candid interviews with a wide range of Pakistanis, from religious fundamentalists to partiers on a Pakistani beach. This week, NOW's David Brancaccio talks with Sumar about the film, about America's cultural and political relationship with Pakistan, and about Musharraf's desire to democratize his nation while functioning as its dictator. Is Pakistan the biggest security threat in the world? As the crisis facing Musharraf deepens, a filmmaker shares her rare insider's view of a troubled leader in a troubled country.

A former major league baseball manager, Jim Lefebvre, and Boston Red Sox Hall of Fame pitcher Bruce Hurst take on the toughest task of their careers -- transforming China's fledgling national baseball team into a contender in the 2008 Olympic Games. This is a story of two divergent nations united by America's pastime, a seat-of-the-pants chronicle of underdogs, world-class dreams, high-stakes risks and Olympic glory. What started four years ago with a phone call from an office not far from China's Forbidden City to a retired manager in Scottsdale, Arizona, ends in August 2008, when outmatched Chinese baseball players -- bolstered by their American coaches -- step onto an Olympic baseball diamond and make history.

As the world's attention turns to the 2008 Beijing Olympics, WIDE ANGLE reports on how the next generation of Chinese leaders is being molded. "China Prep" follows four Chinese students through their final high-pressure year at an elite high school in Sichuan Province, where a class of 1,800 teenagers is competing for 59 spots in China's top two universities.

The students' lives are regimented almost every minute of the day as they study Monday through Saturday from 7:00 in the morning to 11:00 at night, preparing for the end-of-year exam that will determine their fate. Those who fail will be forced to take low-paying jobs or at best be relegated to trade schools. The program follows Zhang Lie, who wants to study law and join the Communist Party elite like her father; Mei Jiachin, a genius mathematician from a farming family; Chen Zhibo, a misfit science student with big plans to become China's Bill Gates; and Gao Mengjia, a self-professed nerd who loves money and aspires to be a hedge fund manager. Nicknamed the "I want" generation by the Chinese press, these only children - the sole focus of their parents' and grandparents' nurturing under China's one-child policy - will be the new class of corporate managers, lawyers and civil servants who are expected to propel 21st-century China to surpass the United States as the largest economy in the world. How do the ambitions of these teenagers reflect the realities of today's and tomorrow's China? Who among them will be most likely to succeed? Who will be the boss?

The hurricane season of 2004 is categorized as one of the most active on record. It begins with an uneventful June and July then suddenly turns violent in August. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami are confronted with satellite images showing a steady stream of tropical storms spinning across the Atlantic from Africa. Combining their experience with the latest technology, they focus on making the most accurate predictions. As Hurricane Specialist Jack Bevens says, "If you get it wrong you can get a lot of people killed." No one wants to risk a wrong forecast. Anatomy of a Hurricane goes behind the scenes at the National Hurricane Center to see forecasters on a mission to save lives and property. It is a look at the stressful work of a dedicated staff as they track Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne - all major hurricanes with unexpected challenges. It is also a look at the complicated dynamics of the atmosphere - why these hurricanes form and where they go.

More than 25 years ago, filmmaker Hardy Jones set out to learn everything he could about dolphins. At the time, no one had conducted studies in the wild of these enigmatic creatures, and many thought it couldn't be done. Since then, Jones has spent more time with dolphins than other humans, developing unique insights into what goes on in their sophisticated societies. This is the story of his personal journey into the world of dolphins, the sometimes dangerous waters into which they have led him and his continuing crusade to protect them.

As global warming turns up the heat, researchers are stunned to discover that our sun is actually growing dimmer. Increasing air pollution allows less and less sunlight to reach earth's surface, a 'global dimming' that disturbs rainfall patterns and creates severe droughts. In an even more alarming twist, there is concern that recent success in solving the dimming problem is greatly accelerating global warming, melting ice caps and flooding coastal cities. NOVA examines a baffling climate conundrum and follows the disturbing implications of the discovery for our planet's future.

Join NOVA on a voyage beneath the waves, where you'll discover a bizarre, alien-like creature like no other. It's an animal with eight sucker-covered arms growing out of its head, three hearts pumping its blue-green blood, and a doughnut-shaped brain. It has the ability to change its color and shape to blend in with seaweed and rocks, and it has a knack for switching on electrifying light shows that dazzle its prey. Perhaps most surprising of all, this animal is quite intelligent, with a highly complex brain. In this program, underwater cameras capture the extraordinary, transformative powers of the cuttlefish.

As the world's attention turns to the 2008 Beijing Olympics, WIDE ANGLE reports on how the next generation of Chinese leaders is being molded. "China Prep" follows four Chinese students through their final high-pressure year at an elite high school in Sichuan Province, where a class of 1,800 teenagers is competing for 59 spots in China's top two universities. The students' lives are regimented almost every minute of the day as they study Monday through Saturday from 7:00 in the morning to 11:00 at night, preparing for the end-of-year exam that will determine their fate. Those who fail will be forced to take low-paying jobs or at best be relegated to trade schools. The program follows Zhang Lie, who wants to study law and join the Communist Party elite like her father; Mei Jiachin, a genius mathematician from a farming family; Chen Zhibo, a misfit science student with big plans to become China's Bill Gates; and Gao Mengjia, a self-professed nerd who loves money and aspires to be a hedge fund manager. Nicknamed the "I want" generation by the Chinese press, these only children - the sole focus of their parents' and grandparents' nurturing under China's one-child policy - will be the new class of corporate managers, lawyers and civil servants who are expected to propel 21st-century China to surpass the United States as the largest economy in the world. How do the ambitions of these teenagers reflect the realities of today's and tomorrow's China? Who among them will be most likely to succeed? Who will be the boss?

In 2006, Congress authorized the Secure Fence Act - a multi-billion dollar plan to build hundreds of miles of fencing along the southern border of the United States to stem the flow of undocumented immigrants and provide security from potential terrorism. But what was built to fight illegal immigration has turned into a nightmare for many Americans living along the U.S.-Mexico border. The fence, which will cover less than half of the actual border, inexplicably cuts through the middle of some properties, while leaving others untouched. Many question if it can keep people from sneaking in at all. This week, NOW senior correspondent Maria Hinojosa travels to Texas to meet border families who fear losing their property, their safety, and their way of life. We also follow an investigative reporter who questions whether certain landowners are getting preferential treatment. Is America's border fence working, or an utter waste?

In San Salvador, El Salvador, two thousand miles from Los Angeles's Eighteenth Street, a gang known as "18" governs its territory like an armed militia. In the mid 1990s, thousands of Salvadoran nationals living illegally in the U.S. were deported to their homeland. Some brought L.A. gang culture back with them to a country beset by poverty and awash in arms. Organizing support for gang members in need, meting out justice to those who would defy the gang's code and waging an endless vendetta against its enemies, 18 is helping to make El Salvador one of the most violent and crime-ridden countries in the world. 18 with a Bullet presents a chilling portrait of six months in the life of this notorious Central American gang.

Allegations of celebrity over substance on the campaign trail, an indictment on Capitol Hill could sway the balance of power, and a murder mystery that might be solved. I'm John Harwood sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on "Washington Week." A McCain Ad said, "He's the biggest celebrity in the world, but is he ready to lead?" After Barack Obama's trip overseas, the McCain campaign hits back. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I do have to ask my opponent. Is that the best you can come up with?" Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Campaigns are tough and I'm proud of the campaign that we have run. I'm proud of the issues that we have been trying to address with the American people." Will this be known as the week the campaign turned from cordial to nasty? And which candidate put the explosive issue of race on the table - McCain or Obama. He's long been one of the Senate's most powerful Republicans. Matthew Friedrich said, "Between 1999 and 2006, Senator Stevens accepted gifts from a privately held company." Could a new cloud hanging over the Alaska senator have larger implications in November? And shocking developments in the nearly seven-year-old mystery of who may have been behind the anthrax attacks that targeted politicians and journalists. Covering these stories this week: Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine, James Barnes of National Journal, Janet Hook of the Los Angeles Times, and Pete Williams of NBC News.

The increasingly nasty campaign, the candidates speak. Plus the economy, the cost of the Iraq war, and the anthrax murder mystery, tonight on "Washington Week." Maybe these guys just don't like each other. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "He opposes offshore drilling immediately, and he's out of touch." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "Their team is good at creating distractions and engaging in negative attacks." On the stump, in millions of dollars of advertising and online, John McCain and Barack Obama are duking it out. Is this a sign of the campaign to come?

MUHAMMAD ALI: MADE IN MIAMI explores the critical role that Miami played in the evolution of one of the most significant cultural figures of our time: Muhammad Ali (né Cassius Clay). The film chronicles Cassius Clay's arrival in Miami in the fall of 1960 (fresh from earning a gold medal in the Rome Olympics), his life in Overtown - a neighborhood that was considered "Harlem South" and a vibrant center of black entertainment and commerce - and his affiliation with the famed Fifth Street Gym in Miami Beach. Over the course of the next few years - coinciding with the height of the national civil rights movement - Clay evolved both professionally and politically, piling up victories in the ring and adopting the black separatist teachings of the Nation of Islam. As MUHAMMAD ALI: MADE IN MIAMI makes clear, it was in this period that Cassius Clay became Muhammad Ali.

But what was built to fight illegal immigration has turned into a nightmare for many Americans living along the U.S.-Mexico border. The fence, which will cover less than half of the actual border, inexplicably cuts through the middle of some properties, while leaving others untouched. Many question if it can keep people from sneaking in at all. This week, NOW senior correspondent Maria Hinojosa travels to Texas to meet border families who fear losing their property, their safety, and their way of life. We also follow an investigative reporter who questions whether certain landowners are getting preferential treatment. Is America's border fence working, or an utter waste?

Allegations of celebrity over substance on the campaign trail, an indictment on Capitol Hill could sway the balance of power, and a murder mystery that might be solved. I'm John Harwood sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on "Washington Week." A McCain Ad said, "He's the biggest celebrity in the world, but is he ready to lead?" After Barack Obama's trip overseas, the McCain campaign hits back. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I do have to ask my opponent. Is that the best you can come up with?" Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Campaigns are tough and I'm proud of the campaign that we have run. I'm proud of the issues that we have been trying to address with the American people." Will this be known as the week the campaign turned from cordial to nasty? And which candidate put the explosive issue of race on the table - McCain or Obama. He's long been one of the Senate's most powerful Republicans. Matthew Friedrich said, "Between 1999 and 2006, Senator Stevens accepted gifts from a privately held company." Could a new cloud hanging over the Alaska senator have larger implications in November? And shocking developments in the nearly seven-year-old mystery of who may have been behind the anthrax attacks that targeted politicians and journalists. Covering these stories this week: Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine, James Barnes of National Journal, Janet Hook of the Los Angeles Times, and Pete Williams of NBC News.

Another August, another war, this one with far reaching implications, plus what to watch for at the upcoming conventions and with the Hispanic vote, tonight on "Washington Week." Pres. Mikheil Saakashvili of Georgia said, "Who invited these innocent deaths here? Not only those people who perpetrate them are responsible, but also those people who failed to stop that." The Georgian president lashes out at his enemies, but also at his friends. What can anyone do to stop Russia? Sec. of State Condoleezza Rice said, "All Russian troops and any irregular and paramilitary forces that entered with them must leave immediately." And does the conflict provide John McCain with his 3 a.m. moment? Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "I know I speak for every American when I say to him, today we are all Georgians." How does Barack Obama stay on the stage while on vacation? An advertisement said, "As Washington embraced him, John McCain hugged right back." And deal with his own unfinished business. Sen. Hillary Clinton (D-NY) said, "People want to feel like okay, it's a catharsis. We're here, we did it." As both parties prepare for lavish conventions someone else may be paying for, and each candidate begins to compete for the booming Hispanic vote. Alaska Senator Ted Stevens has been indicted for failing to disclose gifts he received from VECO Corporation, an Alaska-based oil services company. But his indictment is only the latest news - and perhaps the tip of the iceberg - in an ongoing political scandal that's rocking the state and Congress. This week, NOW goes behind the breaking headlines to shine a bright light on the scandalous connection between VECO and Alaska's old-boy political network. Three state legislators have already been convicted in Federal court for accepting bribes from VECO, and the FBI has video and audio evidence that reveal VECO executives shockingly handing out cash to those legislators in exchange for promises to roll back a tax on the oil industry. And more lawmakers - including Senator Stevens' own son, former Alaska State Senate President Ben Stevens - are being eyed in the growing scandal. NOW continues its ongoing investigation into the bribes, the connections to big oil and the payoffs to obtain friendly tax policies.

When Pakistani filmmaker Sabiha Sumar chose to make a film about democracy in her country, she didn't just request a traditional interview with the Pakistani president Pervez Musharraf, she insisted on a formal dinner. To her surprise, Musharraf -- who is facing impeachment charges after running Pakistan for nearly nine years -- agreed. Sumar spent the evening grilling Musharraf about the state of affairs in their sharply polarized culture. Sumar's documentary, "Dinner With the President," includes candid interviews with a wide range of Pakistanis, from religious fundamentalists to partiers on a Pakistani beach. This week, NOW's David Brancaccio talks with Sumar about the film, about America's cultural and political relationship with Pakistan, and about Musharraf's desire to democratize his nation while functioning as its dictator. Is Pakistan the biggest security threat in the world? As the crisis facing Musharraf deepens, a filmmaker shares her rare insider's view of a troubled leader in a troubled country.

The increasingly nasty campaign, the candidates speak. Plus the economy, the cost of the Iraq war, and the anthrax murder mystery, tonight on "Washington Week." Maybe these guys just don't like each other. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "He opposes offshore drilling immediately, and he's out of touch." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "Their team is good at creating distractions and engaging in negative attacks." On the stump, in millions of dollars of advertising and online, John McCain and Barack Obama are duking it out. Is this a sign of the campaign to come?

Another August, another war, this one with far reaching implications, plus what to watch for at the upcoming conventions and with the Hispanic vote, tonight on "Washington Week." Pres. Mikheil Saakashvili of Georgia said, "Who invited these innocent deaths here? Not only those people who perpetrate them are responsible, but also those people who failed to stop that." The Georgian president lashes out at his enemies, but also at his friends. What can anyone do to stop Russia? Sec. of State Condoleezza Rice said, "All Russian troops and any irregular and paramilitary forces that entered with them must leave immediately." And does the conflict provide John McCain with his 3 a.m. moment? Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "I know I speak for every American when I say to him, today we are all Georgians." How does Barack Obama stay on the stage while on vacation? An advertisement said, "As Washington embraced him, John McCain hugged right back." And deal with his own unfinished business. Sen. Hillary Clinton (D-NY) said, "People want to feel like okay, it's a catharsis. We're here, we did it." As both parties prepare for lavish conventions someone else may be paying for, and each candidate begins to compete for the booming Hispanic vote. Covering these stories: Janine Zacharia of Bloomberg News, Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair, Jeffrey Birnbaum of the Washington Post, and Gebe Martinez of Politico.

MUHAMMAD ALI: MADE IN MIAMI explores the critical role that Miami played in the evolution of one of the most significant cultural figures of our time: Muhammad Ali (né Cassius Clay). The film chronicles Cassius Clay's arrival in Miami in the fall of 1960 (fresh from earning a gold medal in the Rome Olympics), his life in Overtown - a neighborhood that was considered "Harlem South" and a vibrant center of black entertainment and commerce - and his affiliation with the famed Fifth Street Gym in Miami Beach. Over the course of the next few years - coinciding with the height of the national civil rights movement - Clay evolved both professionally and politically, piling up victories in the ring and adopting the black separatist teachings of the Nation of Islam. As MUHAMMAD ALI: MADE IN MIAMI makes clear, it was in this period that Cassius Clay became Muhammad Ali.

The hurricane season of 2004 is categorized as one of the most active on record. It begins with an uneventful June and July then suddenly turns violent in August. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami are confronted with satellite images showing a steady stream of tropical storms spinning across the Atlantic from Africa. Combining their experience with the latest technology, they focus on making the most accurate predictions. As Hurricane Specialist Jack Bevens says, "If you get it wrong you can get a lot of people killed." No one wants to risk a wrong forecast. Anatomy of a Hurricane goes behind the scenes at the National Hurricane Center to see forecasters on a mission to save lives and property. It is a look at the stressful work of a dedicated staff as they track Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne - all major hurricanes with unexpected challenges. It is also a look at the complicated dynamics of the atmosphere - why these hurricanes form and where they go.

As global warming turns up the heat, researchers are stunned to discover that our sun is actually growing dimmer. Increasing air pollution allows less and less sunlight to reach earth's surface, a 'global dimming' that disturbs rainfall patterns and creates severe droughts. In an even more alarming twist, there is concern that recent success in solving the dimming problem is greatly accelerating global warming, melting ice caps and flooding coastal cities. NOVA examines a baffling climate conundrum and follows the disturbing implications of the discovery for our planet's future.

In this, the third chapter of Churchill's life, Celia Sandys travels to Morocco and to the South of France in search of those places that gave Churchill particular pleasure. He called Morocco "the most beautiful place on earth." Here, even during the turmoil of the Second World War, he found time to travel with Roosevelt and indulge in his favorite relaxation - painting. Towards the end of his life, travel, friends and the solace he found in painting and writing became more and more important to him. As CHASING CHURCHILL comes to its conclusion in the beautiful setting of the Cote d'Azur, Sandys reflects on the life of the man she knew: a life that began on the battlefields of the world, blossomed through remarkable qualities of leadership and inspiration, but then began to fade into the melancholy of old age.

In 2006, Congress authorized the Secure Fence Act - a multi-billion dollar plan to build hundreds of miles of fencing along the southern border of the United States to stem the flow of undocumented immigrants and provide security from potential terrorism. But what was built to fight illegal immigration has turned into a nightmare for many Americans living along the U.S.-Mexico border. The fence, which will cover less than half of the actual border, inexplicably cuts through the middle of some properties, while leaving others untouched. Many question if it can keep people from sneaking in at all. This week, NOW senior correspondent Maria Hinojosa travels to Texas to meet border families who fear losing their property, their safety, and their way of life. We also follow an investigative reporter who questions whether certain landowners are getting preferential treatment. Is America's border fence working, or an utter waste?

Art Sinsabaugh's Midwest landscapes, photographed between 1960 and 1963, were unprecedented in both subject matter and format. He used a gigantic 12x20-inch "banquet" camera to capture panoramic photographs of rural and suburban spaces in the Midwest United States. His work represented a radical break with the romantic tradition of landscape photography and prefigured the quasi-documentary perspectives of the "New Topographics" by about a decade. Sinsabaugh's large-format photographs were shown at venues such as the Art Institute of Chicago, the Museum of Modern Art in New York and the Victoria and Albert Museum in London. He was instrumental in the development of photographic education and built one of the country's leading photography programs, at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, from scratch. This film brings to life the remarkable stories behind the legendary group of New Deal-sponsored photographers who traversed the country in the 1930s and early 1940s, capturing the face of Depression-era America. The program explores the personal vision and the struggles experienced by photographers Gordon Parks, Dorothea Lange, Russell Lee, Walker Evans, Marion Post Wolcott and Jack Delano, who created some of the most iconic images in history. This unlikely group of photographers and artists was brought together by a fiery prairie populist and government bureaucrat named Roy Stryker. Julian Bond narrates.

Can the quality of healthcare in developing nations be transformed by the same principle that makes fast food such a success here? This week NOW travels to Kenya to continue ongoing coverage of an enterprising idea: franchising not burger and donut shops, but health services and drugs in rural Africa. American businessmen have been teaming with African entrepreneurs to spread for-profit clinics around the country in the hopes of providing quality, affordable medical care to even Kenya's poorest people. In this show, NOW chronicles how the Kenyan facilities weathered recent violent unrest, as well as the program's expansion into Rwanda. This show is part of Enterprising Ideas, NOW's continuing spotlight on social entrepreneurs working to improve the world through self-sustaining innovation.

NOVA presents a minute-by-minute eyewitness account of the Hurricane Katrina disaster, exploring why the flood defenses and disaster relief planning failed to match Katrina's fury. What made this storm so deadly? How accurately did scientists predict its impact? And why are powerful hurricanes like Katrina likely to strike more often? The program will investigate the immense challenges posed by rebuilding New Orleans, and why - despite all the knowledge of the peril faced by its citizens - the city was so tragically unprepared when the long-feared disaster finally struck.

With Barack Obama officially nominated as the Democrat's Presidential nominee, is it time to re-think affirmative action? This week, NOW on PBS looks at some state ballot measures that would eliminate race or gender considerations in public hiring, contracting and education programs. The controversial initiatives are being spearheaded by Ward Connerly, a long-time affirmative action opponent who some are accusing of ballot fraud. "I think that in some quarters, many parts of the country, a white male is really disadvantaged," Connerly, who considers himself multi-racial, tells NOW. "Because we have developed this notion of women and minorities being so disadvantaged and we have to help them, that we have, in many cases, twisted the thing so that it's no longer a case of equal opportunity. It's a case of putting a fist on the scale."

How about a hot dog for lunch? "A Hot Dog Program" is an All-American celebration of those fabulous and phenomenally popular little sausages in their soft little buns. From a Fourth of July hot-dog eating contest at Coney Island to a gourmet reindeer-dog vendor at the start of the Iditarod dog-sled race, we visit some of the country's coolest hot dog places. During the one-hour documentary we find out what makes a Chicago-style dog, go inside a giant hot-dog shaped building, stop at some crazy late-night stands and see how hot dogs are made.

With Barack Obama officially nominated as the Democrat's Presidential nominee, is it time to re-think affirmative action? This week, NOW on PBS looks at some state ballot measures that would eliminate race or gender considerations in public hiring, contracting and education programs. The controversial initiatives are being spearheaded by Ward Connerly, a long-time affirmative action opponent who some are accusing of ballot fraud. "I think that in some quarters, many parts of the country, a white male is really disadvantaged," Connerly, who considers himself multi-racial, tells NOW. "Because we have developed this notion of women and minorities being so disadvantaged and we have to help them, that we have, in many cases, twisted the thing so that it's no longer a case of equal opportunity. It's a case of putting a fist on the scale."

NOVA presents a minute-by-minute eyewitness account of the Hurricane Katrina disaster, exploring why the flood defenses and disaster relief planning failed to match Katrina's fury. What made this storm so deadly? How accurately did scientists predict its impact? And why are powerful hurricanes like Katrina likely to strike more often? The program will investigate the immense challenges posed by rebuilding New Orleans, and why - despite all the knowledge of the peril faced by its citizens - the city was so tragically unprepared when the long-feared disaster finally struck.

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout - one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

In a provocative report from the frontiers of biology, NOVA explores new findings that call into question the long-held belief that all inherited traits are passed on by our genes. The fast-growing field of epigenetics investigates hidden influences that could affect not only our health today but that of our descendants far into the future. It now seems that our environment makes small chemical changes to our DNA without affecting the gene's overall makeup. To put it another way, epigenetics adds to our DNA another layer that acts as a control system of "switches." Experiential factors such as nutrition or stress may trigger these switches and turn genes on or off. These subtle changes can then be "remembered" and passed on from generation to generation, altering inherited traits. This means the lives of our grandparents - the air they breathed, the food they ate, even the things they saw - could have directly affected us, and that what we do could, in turn, affect our grandchildren. NOVA explores this fascinating new idea, interviewing top scientists in the field and following what could be a paradigm shift in the way we think about inheritance and genes.

How about a hot dog for lunch? "A Hot Dog Program" is an All-American celebration of those fabulous and phenomenally popular little sausages in their soft little buns. From a Fourth of July hot-dog eating contest at Coney Island to a gourmet reindeer-dog vendor at the start of the Iditarod dog-sled race, we visit some of the country's coolest hot dog places. During the one-hour documentary we find out what makes a Chicago-style dog, go inside a giant hot-dog shaped building, stop at some crazy late-night stands and see how hot dogs are made.

Can the quality of healthcare in developing nations be transformed by the same principle that makes fast food such a success here? This week NOW travels to Kenya to continue ongoing coverage of an enterprising idea: franchising not burger and donut shops, but health services and drugs in rural Africa. American businessmen have been teaming with African entrepreneurs to spread for-profit clinics around the country in the hopes of providing quality, affordable medical care to even Kenya's poorest people. In this show, NOW chronicles how the Kenyan facilities weathered recent violent unrest, as well as the program's expansion into Rwanda. This show is part of Enterprising Ideas, NOW's continuing spotlight on social entrepreneurs working to improve the world through self-sustaining innovation.

WIDE ANGLE reports from the front lines of the staggering refugee crisis that is unfolding in the Middle East as Iraqis flee their war-torn country at the rate of up to 50,000 people per month. Since the war began in 2003, more than four million Iraqi civilians have fled their homes - half of them becoming exiles in neighboring countries and the rest dislocated within Iraq's borders. While headlines are dominated by the deadly sectarian violence engulfing Iraq, the refugee crisis - the biggest in the Middle East since the displacement of the Palestinians in 1948 - is all but ignored. WIDE ANGLE goes to the heart of the crisis - to Syria and Jordan, which harbor the vast majority of uprooted Iraqis - and explores the displaced Iraqi community in Syria, from the middle class suburbs where Iraqis have sent housing prices soaring to the cramped Damascus slums where one out of three residents is Iraqi-born. WIDE ANGLE follows aid workers from the Syrian-Iraqi Red Crescent as they help refugees cope with their new surroundings amid government pressure and rising resentment from the local population whose health, education and housing resources are being stretched to the limit. Anchor Aaron Brown speaks in Jordan with regional leaders about the impact of this catastrophe on the Middle East and what the future holds for Iraq's lost generation.

With Barack Obama officially nominated as the Democrat's Presidential nominee, is it time to re-think affirmative action? This week, NOW on PBS looks at some state ballot measures that would eliminate race or gender considerations in public hiring, contracting and education programs. The controversial initiatives are being spearheaded by Ward Connerly, a long-time affirmative action opponent who some are accusing of ballot fraud. "I think that in some quarters, many parts of the country, a white male is really disadvantaged," Connerly, who considers himself multi-racial, tells NOW. "Because we have developed this notion of women and minorities being so disadvantaged and we have to help them, that we have, in many cases, twisted the thing so that it's no longer a case of equal opportunity. It's a case of putting a fist on the scale."

Barack Obama picks a vice president, but we don't know who it is. It's making us crazy, but we're on the case here in Denver, tonight on "Washington Week." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "Here's what I do want for my vice president. I want somebody who has integrity, independent, somebody who is capable of being president." All eyes on Barack Obama. As he arrives in Denver to accept his party's nomination, many questions loom. Who will be his running mate? Will that choice help or hurt? Can the party emerge united? And can Democrats figure out a way this time to win. We preview next week's convention from Denver with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, James Barnes of National Journal, Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, and Karen Tumulty of Time magazine.

John McCain's VP pick shocks the political world. Who is Sarah Palin? And how did Barack Obama do in Denver? We are on the case here in Minnesota, tonight on "Washington Week." A history-making week. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "With profound gratitude and great humility, I accept your nomination for the presidency of the United States." Two newly minted vice presidential candidates, two key Democrats on board. Sen. Hillary Clinton (D-NY) said, "Barack Obama is my candidate and he must be our president." Pres. Bill Clinton said, "Barack Obama is ready to be president of the United States." A couple of memorable introductions. Michelle Obama said, "All of us driven by the simple belief that the world as it is just won't do, that we have an obligation to fight for the world as it should be. And you see, that is why I love this country." As John McCain and the Republicans get ready for their big convention. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "In these tough, changing times, after all you've done for our country, you want your government to understand what you're going through, to stand on your side and fight for you. And that's what I intend to do." Covering the remarkable week: John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Michael Duffy of Time magazine, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Michele Norris of National Public Radio.

With Barack Obama officially nominated as the Democrat's Presidential nominee, is it time to re-think affirmative action? This week, NOW on PBS looks at some state ballot measures that would eliminate race or gender considerations in public hiring, contracting and education programs. The controversial initiatives are being spearheaded by Ward Connerly, a long-time affirmative action opponent who some are accusing of ballot fraud. "I think that in some quarters, many parts of the country, a white male is really disadvantaged," Connerly, who considers himself multi-racial, tells NOW. "Because we have developed this notion of women and minorities being so disadvantaged and we have to help them, that we have, in many cases, twisted the thing so that it's no longer a case of equal opportunity. It's a case of putting a fist on the scale."

Barack Obama picks a vice president, but we don't know who it is. It's making us crazy, but we're on the case here in Denver, tonight on "Washington Week." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "Here's what I do want for my vice president. I want somebody who has integrity, independent, somebody who is capable of being president." All eyes on Barack Obama. As he arrives in Denver to accept his party's nomination, many questions loom. Who will be his running mate? Will that choice help or hurt? Can the party emerge united? And can Democrats figure out a way this time to win. We preview next week's convention from Denver with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, James Barnes of National Journal, Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, and Karen Tumulty of Time magazine.

John McCain's VP pick shocks the political world. Who is Sarah Palin? And how did Barack Obama do in Denver? We are on the case here in Minnesota, tonight on "Washington Week." A history-making week. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "With profound gratitude and great humility, I accept your nomination for the presidency of the United States." Two newly minted vice presidential candidates, two key Democrats on board. Sen. Hillary Clinton (D-NY) said, "Barack Obama is my candidate and he must be our president." Pres. Bill Clinton said, "Barack Obama is ready to be president of the United States." A couple of memorable introductions. Michelle Obama said, "All of us driven by the simple belief that the world as it is just won't do, that we have an obligation to fight for the world as it should be. And you see, that is why I love this country." As John McCain and the Republicans get ready for their big convention. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "In these tough, changing times, after all you've done for our country, you want your government to understand what you're going through, to stand on your side and fight for you. And that's what I intend to do." Covering the remarkable week: John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Michael Duffy of Time magazine, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Michele Norris of National Public Radio.

NOVA presents a minute-by-minute eyewitness account of the Hurricane Katrina disaster, exploring why the flood defenses and disaster relief planning failed to match Katrina's fury. What made this storm so deadly? How accurately did scientists predict its impact? And why are powerful hurricanes like Katrina likely to strike more often? The program will investigate the immense challenges posed by rebuilding New Orleans, and why - despite all the knowledge of the peril faced by its citizens - the city was so tragically unprepared when the long-feared disaster finally struck.

As the Nimitz makes its final transit from Hawaii to California, the sailors and Marines on board prepare to return to their homes and families. For those still on board, the "Tiger Cruise" provides a buffer, but there's no such transition for those who fly home early from Hawaii. As the Nimitz returns to her home port of San Diego, sailors and Marines reflect on the deployment and take stock of what they've achieved. Was the mission accomplished? There are tearful, joyful reunions at the pier.

With Barack Obama officially nominated as the Democrat's Presidential nominee, is it time to re-think affirmative action? This week, NOW on PBS looks at some state ballot measures that would eliminate race or gender considerations in public hiring, contracting and education programs. The controversial initiatives are being spearheaded by Ward Connerly, a long-time affirmative action opponent who some are accusing of ballot fraud. "I think that in some quarters, many parts of the country, a white male is really disadvantaged," Connerly, who considers himself multi-racial, tells NOW. "Because we have developed this notion of women and minorities being so disadvantaged and we have to help them, that we have, in many cases, twisted the thing so that it's no longer a case of equal opportunity. It's a case of putting a fist on the scale."

"Objects and Memory" examines the response to items recovered or offered after 9/11 and other national tragedies. The film uses objects and accounts of people whose lives were affected, interviews with historians and poignant, powerful photographic images. Why do people value objects? What is it about a piece of paper, a chunk of metal or a small coin that provokes such powerful memories? Without the objects, the stories would lack vibrancy; without the stories, the objects would lack significance. Taken together, images of these objects, the memories they evoke and the accounts of their collection lead viewers on a path where the commonplace is transformed into the remarkable and the stuff of history is highly personalized. The program, set to the music of Philip Glass, is narrated by Frank Langella.

This program, by Jamie Stobie and Janet Cole, takes a new look at disability through the lens of technology. The experiences of a group of unforgettable people let viewers re-examine ideas about ability and disability grounded in culture and attitudes. Engineers, designers and users challenge barriers inherent in built environments and reveal the gap between the promises of the 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act and everyday reality for the 54 million Americans with disabilities. Whether mainstream technology or extraordinary inventions such as stair-climbing wheelchairs, "Freedom Machines" reveals both the power and limitations of technology to change lives.

This program travels across the country to celebrate ice cream, the people who make it and the places where you can buy it. Stops include a shop in San Francisco where they specialize in tea-flavored ice cream; a giant-sized cone shop in Panama City; and Penn State University, where they have been teaching people how to make ice cream for over 100 years. This program not only offers viewers a visual taste of ice cream, but provides a nostalgic glimpse into an American tradition.

This program, by Jamie Stobie and Janet Cole, takes a new look at disability through the lens of technology. The experiences of a group of unforgettable people let viewers re-examine ideas about ability and disability grounded in culture and attitudes. Engineers, designers and users challenge barriers inherent in built environments and reveal the gap between the promises of the 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act and everyday reality for the 54 million Americans with disabilities. Whether mainstream technology or extraordinary inventions such as stair-climbing wheelchairs, "Freedom Machines" reveals both the power and limitations of technology to change lives.

McCain-Palin pushes. Obama-Biden pushes back. Plus markets in turmoil and warfare seven years after 9/11, tonight on "Washington Week." Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Change is coming and real change is coming to Washington, D.C." Sen. Joe Biden (D-DE) said, "John must have been the last guy in American politics to know this is about change." Gov. Sarah Palin (R-AK) said, "It's going to be a hard fought contest also, but John McCain and I - we are ready and with your help, we are going to win." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I love this country too much to let them take over another election with lies and phony outrage and swift-boat politics. Enough is enough." Energy, outrage, engagement, and some downright silliness. Sen. Obama said, "Lipstick on a pig." Sen. McCain said, "Lipstick on a pig." While the candidates squabbled, the mortgage crisis spreads. Sec. Henry Paulson said, "It is necessary to take action." And the Pentagon said U.S. troops would start leaving Iraq but head to Afghanistan. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I'm not convinced we're winning it in Afghanistan. I am convinced we can." We look at what's really at stake this election year with the reporters covering the week: John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Karen Tumulty of Time magazine, Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

The story of the sycamore fig and its tiny pollinator describes one of the most remarkable relationships in the natural world - between a tree and a wasp. It is a relationship of utter dependency and a triumph of co-evolution. The detailed behavioral intrigue of the wasps that live hidden inside each fig contrasts with the tree's prominence in the African bush, where it is central to the lives of many animals - from elephants and ants, to birds and crocodiles. It provides for all, in ways which are diverse yet connected. Ultra-macro photography makes it possible to tell a wildlife story which has never been told before.

Are tactical mistakes by Obama going to cost him the election? Maybe, says psychologist and Democratic political consultant Drew Westen. The author of "The Political Brain," talks to NOW's David Brancaccio about how appealing to voters' emotions reaps bigger electoral rewards than hammering home policy proposals. Westen is a Professor of Psychology at Emory University and the founder of Westen Strategies, LLC, a political and corporate consulting firm. Also, are evangelicals ready to bolt from the Republican Party? The Republican Party has long used wedge issues like abortion, gun control, and gay rights to its advantage in rallying conservative voters, but a shifting agenda amongst political evangelicals might be changing the game. David Brancaccio discusses these issues and their implications with Bishop Harry Jackson, Jr. Bishop Jackson, an influential voice among the nation's 60 million evangelicals, has shown a willingness to open his mind to opposing views, especially on climate change.

McCain-Palin pushes. Obama-Biden pushes back. Plus markets in turmoil and warfare seven years after 9/11, tonight on "Washington Week." Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Change is coming and real change is coming to Washington, D.C." Sen. Joe Biden (D-DE) said, "John must have been the last guy in American politics to know this is about change." Gov. Sarah Palin (R-AK) said, "It's going to be a hard fought contest also, but John McCain and I - we are ready and with your help, we are going to win." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I love this country too much to let them take over another election with lies and phony outrage and swift-boat politics. Enough is enough." Energy, outrage, engagement, and some downright silliness. Sen. Obama said, "Lipstick on a pig." Sen. McCain said, "Lipstick on a pig." While the candidates squabbled, the mortgage crisis spreads. Sec. Henry Paulson said, "It is necessary to take action." And the Pentagon said U.S. troops would start leaving Iraq but head to Afghanistan. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I'm not convinced we're winning it in Afghanistan. I am convinced we can." We look at what's really at stake this election year with the reporters covering the week: John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Karen Tumulty of Time magazine, Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Former presidential and vice-presidential candidates review their debate triumphs and failures in this sequel to "Debating Our Destiny: 40 years of Presidential Debates," which aired on PBS in 2000. After a brief recap of the original program, the sequel picks up where the original left off, beginning with the first Bush-Gore debate in the fall of 2000. The special features some of the most compelling debate exchanges in recent history, as well as exclusive interviews with the candidates. Respected journalist Jim Lehrer, who has moderated 10 presidential debates in the past five elections, interviews President Bush, Vice President Cheney and Senators Joseph Lieberman and John Kerry to get their perspectives on the debates.

The field is set. Now the final lap begins. We set the stage for the amazing race to come, tonight on "Washington Week." Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Fight with me. Fight with me. Fight for what's right for our country." John McCain makes his case and introduces a shiny new partner. Gov. Sarah Palin (R-AK) said, "Here's a little newsflash for those reporters and commentators: I'm not going to Washington to seek their good opinion, I'm going to Washington to serve the people of this great country." Wow, was she talking about us, or just changing the subject? Sarah Palin under the microscope. Democrats under attack. Sen. Fred Thompson (R-TN) said, "The Democrats present a history-making nominee for president, history making in that he's the most liberal, most inexperienced nominee to ever run for president." Mr. Rudy Giuliani said, "Change is not a destination, just as hope is not a strategy." Is this the shape of things to come? We take a look back at the Republican National Convention and a look ahead to the general election with the reporters covering it: David Broder of the Washington Post, Peter Baker of the New York Times, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

Are tactical mistakes by Obama going to cost him the election? Maybe, says psychologist and Democratic political consultant Drew Westen. The author of "The Political Brain," talks to NOW's David Brancaccio about how appealing to voters' emotions reaps bigger electoral rewards than hammering home policy proposals. Westen is a Professor of Psychology at Emory University and the founder of Westen Strategies, LLC, a political and corporate consulting firm. Also, are evangelicals ready to bolt from the Republican Party? The Republican Party has long used wedge issues like abortion, gun control, and gay rights to its advantage in rallying conservative voters, but a shifting agenda amongst political evangelicals might be changing the game. David Brancaccio discusses these issues and their implications with Bishop Harry Jackson, Jr. Bishop Jackson, an influential voice among the nation's 60 million evangelicals, has shown a willingness to open his mind to opposing views, especially on climate change.

Are tactical mistakes by Obama going to cost him the election? Maybe, says psychologist and Democratic political consultant Drew Westen. The author of "The Political Brain," talks to NOW's David Brancaccio about how appealing to voters' emotions reaps bigger electoral rewards than hammering home policy proposals. Westen is a Professor of Psychology at Emory University and the founder of Westen Strategies, LLC, a political and corporate consulting firm. Also, are evangelicals ready to bolt from the Republican Party? The Republican Party has long used wedge issues like abortion, gun control, and gay rights to its advantage in rallying conservative voters, but a shifting agenda amongst political evangelicals might be changing the game. David Brancaccio discusses these issues and their implications with Bishop Harry Jackson, Jr. Bishop Jackson, an influential voice among the nation's 60 million evangelicals, has shown a willingness to open his mind to opposing views, especially on climate change.

The field is set. Now the final lap begins. We set the stage for the amazing race to come, tonight on "Washington Week." Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Fight with me. Fight with me. Fight for what's right for our country." John McCain makes his case and introduces a shiny new partner. Gov. Sarah Palin (R-AK) said, "Here's a little newsflash for those reporters and commentators: I'm not going to Washington to seek their good opinion, I'm going to Washington to serve the people of this great country." Wow, was she talking about us, or just changing the subject? Sarah Palin under the microscope. Democrats under attack. Sen. Fred Thompson (R-TN) said, "The Democrats present a history-making nominee for president, history making in that he's the most liberal, most inexperienced nominee to ever run for president." Mr. Rudy Giuliani said, "Change is not a destination, just as hope is not a strategy." Is this the shape of things to come? We take a look back at the Republican National Convention and a look ahead to the general election with the reporters covering it: David Broder of the Washington Post, Peter Baker of the New York Times, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

McCain-Palin pushes. Obama-Biden pushes back. Plus markets in turmoil and warfare seven years after 9/11, tonight on "Washington Week." Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Change is coming and real change is coming to Washington, D.C." Sen. Joe Biden (D-DE) said, "John must have been the last guy in American politics to know this is about change." Gov. Sarah Palin (R-AK) said, "It's going to be a hard fought contest also, but John McCain and I - we are ready and with your help, we are going to win." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I love this country too much to let them take over another election with lies and phony outrage and swift-boat politics. Enough is enough." Energy, outrage, engagement, and some downright silliness. Sen. Obama said, "Lipstick on a pig." Sen. McCain said, "Lipstick on a pig." While the candidates squabbled, the mortgage crisis spreads. Sec. Henry Paulson said, "It is necessary to take action." And the Pentagon said U.S. troops would start leaving Iraq but head to Afghanistan. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I'm not convinced we're winning it in Afghanistan. I am convinced we can." We look at what's really at stake this election year with the reporters covering the week: John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Karen Tumulty of Time magazine, Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Also, are evangelicals ready to bolt from the Republican Party? The Republican Party has long used wedge issues like abortion, gun control, and gay rights to its advantage in rallying conservative voters, but a shifting agenda amongst political evangelicals might be changing the game. David Brancaccio discusses these issues and their implications with Bishop Harry Jackson, Jr. Bishop Jackson, an influential voice among the nation's 60 million evangelicals, has shown a willingness to open his mind to opposing views, especially on climate change.

This program, by Jamie Stobie and Janet Cole, takes a new look at disability through the lens of technology. The experiences of a group of unforgettable people let viewers re-examine ideas about ability and disability grounded in culture and attitudes. Engineers, designers and users challenge barriers inherent in built environments and reveal the gap between the promises of the 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act and everyday reality for the 54 million Americans with disabilities. Whether mainstream technology or extraordinary inventions such as stair-climbing wheelchairs, "Freedom Machines" reveals both the power and limitations of technology to change lives.

"Objects and Memory" examines the response to items recovered or offered after 9/11 and other national tragedies. The film uses objects and accounts of people whose lives were affected, interviews with historians and poignant, powerful photographic images. Why do people value objects? What is it about a piece of paper, a chunk of metal or a small coin that provokes such powerful memories? Without the objects, the stories would lack vibrancy; without the stories, the objects would lack significance. Taken together, images of these objects, the memories they evoke and the accounts of their collection lead viewers on a path where the commonplace is transformed into the remarkable and the stuff of history is highly personalized. The program, set to the music of Philip Glass, is narrated by Frank Langella.

McCain-Palin pushes. Obama-Biden pushes back. Plus markets in turmoil and warfare seven years after 9/11, tonight on "Washington Week." Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Change is coming and real change is coming to Washington, D.C." Sen. Joe Biden (D-DE) said, "John must have been the last guy in American politics to know this is about change." Gov. Sarah Palin (R-AK) said, "It's going to be a hard fought contest also, but John McCain and I - we are ready and with your help, we are going to win." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "I love this country too much to let them take over another election with lies and phony outrage and swift-boat politics. Enough is enough." Energy, outrage, engagement, and some downright silliness. Sen. Obama said, "Lipstick on a pig." Sen. McCain said, "Lipstick on a pig." While the candidates squabbled, the mortgage crisis spreads. Sec. Henry Paulson said, "It is necessary to take action." And the Pentagon said U.S. troops would start leaving Iraq but head to Afghanistan. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I'm not convinced we're winning it in Afghanistan. I am convinced we can." We look at what's really at stake this election year with the reporters covering the week: John Dickerson of Slate magazine, Karen Tumulty of Time magazine, Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Everybody's heard of it, but what does the world's most famous equation, $E=mc^2$, really mean? NOVA dramatizes the stories of the men and women whose innovative thinking across four centuries led finally to Einstein's bold breakthrough. Based on David Bodanis' bestseller, $E=mc^2$, "Einstein's Big Idea" celebrates the ingenuity and chronicles the human conflicts that ultimately unleashed the power of the atom, helping viewers gain a better understanding of the equation by tracking its history and the myriad ways it has changed the world. This engrossing docudrama from the award-winning producers of NOVA brims with stories of triumph and failure, love and politics, bitter rivalries and revenge, all drawn from the lives and times of the scientists who intersected with the equation. Ultimately, "Einstein's Big Idea" is the story of young, ambitious scientists caught up by the huge forces of nature they seek to understand. The film stars Aidan McArdle ("Not Only But Also", "Ella Enchanted") as Einstein, Shirley Henderson ("Harry Potter" and "Bridget Jones" franchises) as his wife, Mileva, and Emily Woof ("Oliver Twist," "The Woodlanders") as Lise Meitner.

Technique is a tool without which no artist can survive. Yet too much of it on display gets in the way of inspiration. Is a thorough control over the instrument enough to satisfy a listening audience? It is a good start, but more is needed. Viewers find out how performers make the leap from technical prowess to artistic mastery with the help of conductor James Conlon, pianist Menahem Pressler and the young pianists who competed in the Twelfth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, held in Fort Worth, Texas, in the spring of 2005. Musical excerpts and rehearsals feature Sa Chen and the Takács Quartet.

The $1 trillion bailout. What does it mean for our global standing, our bank accounts, our politics, tonight on "Washington Week." Pres. George Bush said, "This is a pivotal moment for America's economy." Treasury Sec. Henry Paulson said, "We must now take further decisive action to fundamentally and comprehensively address the root cause of our financial system's stresses." Rep. Michelle Bachman (R-MN) said, "First we were told that Bear Stearns was too big to fail, then we're told that Freddie, Fannie were too big to fail, then we were told that AIG was too big too fail. What's next - Starbucks too big to fail?" One thing is clear: This week's economic news is too big to ignore. And apparently, not so big that blame cannot be assessed. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "My friends, this is the problem with Washington. People like Senator Obama have been too busy gaming the system and haven't ever done a thing to actually challenge the system." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "We are in the most serious financial crisis in generations, yet Senator McCain stood up yesterday and said that the fundamentals of the economy are strong." Yet, this economic meltdown may well provide the answer to the question, who will be our next president? Covering the week, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, John Maggs of National Journal, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Charles Babington of the Associated Press.

The $1 trillion bailout. What does it mean for our global standing, our bank accounts, our politics, tonight on "Washington Week." Pres. George Bush said, "This is a pivotal moment for America's economy." Treasury Sec. Henry Paulson said, "We must now take further decisive action to fundamentally and comprehensively address the root cause of our financial system's stresses." Rep. Michelle Bachman (R-MN) said, "First we were told that Bear Stearns was too big to fail, then we're told that Freddie, Fannie were too big to fail, then we were told that AIG was too big too fail. What's next - Starbucks too big to fail?" One thing is clear: This week's economic news is too big to ignore. And apparently, not so big that blame cannot be assessed. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "My friends, this is the problem with Washington. People like Senator Obama have been too busy gaming the system and haven't ever done a thing to actually challenge the system." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "We are in the most serious financial crisis in generations, yet Senator McCain stood up yesterday and said that the fundamentals of the economy are strong." Yet, this economic meltdown may well provide the answer to the question, who will be our next president? Covering the week, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, John Maggs of National Journal, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Charles Babington of the Associated Press.

Humans have had a unique relationship with raptors, nature's aerial killing machines, for more than four thousand years, first through the ancient sport of falconry, and, more recently, as scientists and engineers have turned to these mighty birds -- from golden eagles, red-tailed hawks, and turkey vultures, to great gray owls and the peregrine falcon -- as the inspiration for the latest in aircraft design. Using the tricks and tactics of raptors as their model, engineers have devised fighter jets with unprecedented maneuverability and stealth.

When brothers Armando and Carlos Peña set off to carry their mother's ashes to south Texas, their road trip turns into a quest for answers about a strangely veiled past. As they reunite with five other brothers, the two men try to piece together their family's shattered history. Why was their mother cast out by her family? What happened to their father, who disappeared during the notorious 1954 U.S. deportation program Operation Wetback? "Calavera Highway" is a sweeping story of seven Mexican-American men grappling with the meaning of masculinity, fatherhood and a legacy of rootless beginnings.

How have women in politics changed America and the world? Given the hoopla surrounding Sarah Palin and Hillary Clinton's historical political ascendance, why does the U.S. rank only 69th in the world in percentage of women holding political positions? This week, in a one-hour special, NOW's Maria Hinojosa talks to women leaders around the world and here in the United States for an intimate look at the high-stakes risks, triumphs, and setbacks for women leaders of today and tomorrow. Among these women are President Michelle Bachelet of Chile, the first woman leader in Latin America who did not have a husband precede her as President, and former New Hampshire Governor Jeanne Shaheen, now in a tight race for a seat in the U.S. Senate. We also travel to Rwanda, where, 14 years after a horrific massacre left nearly one million people dead, women make up nearly half of parliament; and to Manhattan, where ambitious high school girls are competing in a high-stakes debate tournament. "Women, Power and Politics" is also about the personal journey of mother and award-winning journalist Maria Hinojosa as she strives to answer the question: What does it mean to be a woman in power?

The $1 trillion bailout. What does it mean for our global standing, our bank accounts, our politics, tonight on "Washington Week." Pres. George Bush said, "This is a pivotal moment for America's economy." Treasury Sec. Henry Paulson said, "We must now take further decisive action to fundamentally and comprehensively address the root cause of our financial system's stresses." Rep. Michelle Bachman (R-MN) said, "First we were told that Bear Stearns was too big to fail, then we're told that Freddie, Fannie were too big to fail, then we were told that AIG was too big too fail. What's next - Starbucks too big to fail?" One thing is clear: This week's economic news is too big to ignore. And apparently, not so big that blame cannot be assessed. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "My friends, this is the problem with Washington. People like Senator Obama have been too busy gaming the system and haven't ever done a thing to actually challenge the system." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "We are in the most serious financial crisis in generations, yet Senator McCain stood up yesterday and said that the fundamentals of the economy are strong." Yet, this economic meltdown may well provide the answer to the question, who will be our next president? Covering the week, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, John Maggs of National Journal, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Charles Babington of the Associated Press.

In 1988, after two terms in office, Ronald Wilson Reagan left the White House, one of the most popular presidents of the twentieth century -- and one of the most controversial. A failed actor, Reagan became a passionate ideologue who preached a simple gospel of lower taxes, less government and anti-Communism. One by one, his opponents underestimated him; one-by-one, Reagan surprised them, rising to become a president who always preferred to see America as a shining city on a hill.

How have women in politics changed America and the world? Given the hoopla surrounding Sarah Palin and Hillary Clinton's historical political ascendance, why does the U.S. rank only 69th in the world in percentage of women holding political positions? This week, in a one-hour special, NOW's Maria Hinojosa talks to women leaders around the world and here in the United States for an intimate look at the high-stakes risks, triumphs, and setbacks for women leaders of today and tomorrow. Among these women are President Michelle Bachelet of Chile, the first woman leader in Latin America who did not have a husband precede her as President, and former New Hampshire Governor Jeanne Shaheen, now in a tight race for a seat in the U.S. Senate. We also travel to Rwanda, where, 14 years after a horrific massacre left nearly one million people dead, women make up nearly half of parliament; and to Manhattan, where ambitious high school girls are competing in a high-stakes debate tournament. "Women, Power and Politics" is also about the personal journey of mother and award-winning journalist Maria Hinojosa as she strives to answer the question: What does it mean to be a woman in power?

The $1 trillion bailout. What does it mean for our global standing, our bank accounts, our politics, tonight on "Washington Week." Pres. George Bush said, "This is a pivotal moment for America's economy." Treasury Sec. Henry Paulson said, "We must now take further decisive action to fundamentally and comprehensively address the root cause of our financial system's stresses." Rep. Michelle Bachman (R-MN) said, "First we were told that Bear Stearns was too big to fail, then we're told that Freddie, Fannie were too big to fail, then we were told that AIG was too big too fail. What's next - Starbucks too big to fail?" One thing is clear: This week's economic news is too big to ignore. And apparently, not so big that blame cannot be assessed. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "My friends, this is the problem with Washington. People like Senator Obama have been too busy gaming the system and haven't ever done a thing to actually challenge the system." Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) said, "We are in the most serious financial crisis in generations, yet Senator McCain stood up yesterday and said that the fundamentals of the economy are strong." Yet, this economic meltdown may well provide the answer to the question, who will be our next president? Covering the week, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, John Maggs of National Journal, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Charles Babington of the Associated Press.

Humans have had a unique relationship with raptors, nature's aerial killing machines, for more than four thousand years, first through the ancient sport of falconry, and, more recently, as scientists and engineers have turned to these mighty birds -- from golden eagles, red-tailed hawks, and turkey vultures, to great gray owls and the peregrine falcon -- as the inspiration for the latest in aircraft design. Using the tricks and tactics of raptors as their model, engineers have devised fighter jets with unprecedented maneuverability and stealth.

Everybody's heard of it, but what does the world's most famous equation, $E=mc^2$, really mean? NOVA dramatizes the stories of the men and women whose innovative thinking across four centuries led finally to Einstein's bold breakthrough. Based on David Bodanis' bestseller, $E=mc^2$, "Einstein's Big Idea" celebrates the ingenuity and chronicles the human conflicts that ultimately unleashed the power of the atom, helping viewers gain a better understanding of the equation by tracking its history and the myriad ways it has changed the world. This engrossing docudrama from the award-winning producers of NOVA brims with stories of triumph and failure, love and politics, bitter rivalries and revenge, all drawn from the lives and times of the scientists who intersected with the equation. Ultimately, "Einstein's Big Idea" is the story of young, ambitious scientists caught up by the huge forces of nature they seek to understand. The film stars Aidan McArdle ("Not Only But Also", "Ella Enchanted") as Einstein, Shirley Henderson ("Harry Potter" and "Bridget Jones" franchises) as his wife, Mileva, and Emily Woof ("Oliver Twist," "The Woodlanders") as Lise Meitner.

When Ronald Reagan's first term reached its halfway point, he was challenged with tremendous economic strife, the recession and unemployment had battered Reaganomics. As the Pentagon spent $34 million per hour on building up U.S. military forces and nuclear weapons, the deficit increased. However, an economic transformation in 1983 and the slow return of Americans to work secured a second term for Reagan -- a term that would afford him his greatest triumphs and his most difficult blows. "The American Experience" chronicles Reagan's last four years in office -- from the loss of his closest advisors and the Iran-Contra scandal, to the dawning of the fall of Communism in Europe.

"You Ain't Heard Nothin' Yet (1923-1935)": Episode one introduces the four Youngstown, Ohio, brothers (Harry, Albert, Sam and Jack L. Warner) who officially incorporated their new motion picture company on April 4, 1923. Rin Tin Tin may have put them on the map, but soon gave way to a unique hard-boiled, hard-times cinema ethos. Tough guys James Cagney and Edward G. Robinson dominated the new gangster genre, tough dame Barbara Stanwyck headlined racy melodramas and even the chorus kids in the dazzling musicals were one bad break away from the streets. Key interviews: Busby Berkeley, Edward G. Robinson, Alfred Hitchcock and William Wellman. Key films: "The Jazz Singer," "Public Enemy," "42nd Street," "Baby Face" and "Little Caesar." "Good War, Uneasy Peace (1935-1950)": Warner Bros. becomes home to celebrated stars Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Errol Flynn and more. The studio - like the world - faces the twin catastrophes of the Depression and World War II. Warner answers with films that reflect a deep and defiant belief in the courage of common people. But after the war, on-screen noir reflects the off-screen anxiety of blacklists and political witch-hunts. Key interviews: James Cagney, Ronald Reagan, Howard Hawks and Alexis Smith. Key films: "Casablanca," "Now," "Voyager," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "Kings Row" and "White Heat."

"A New Reality (1950-1970)": What the Depression, wireless and war couldn't do, "talking furniture" perhaps could: TV arrives. Warner Bros. fights back with new technology (CinemaScope, 3-D, Eastman Color) and new stars (girl-next-door Doris Day and teen icon James Dean). And a showdown between Harry and Jack Warner leads to a daring new spirit at the studio that releases breakthrough films like "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" and "Bonnie and Clyde." Key interviews: Warren Beatty, Elia Kazan, Kim Hunter, Arthur Penn and Carroll Baker. Key films: "A Streetcar Named Desire," "East of Eden," "Cool Hand Luke," "A Face in the Crowd" and "My Fair Lady." "Woodstock Notions (1970-1989)": What the 1960s start, the 70s bring to flower. The film Woodstock signals a new era, while new talent (including Clint Eastwood, Martin Scorsese and Stanley Kubrick) and management spark a return to taking chances and setting trends. The past, meanwhile, becomes prologue: the tough authenticity of the 30s and 40s is re-imagined in "Dog Day Afternoon," "All the President's Men," "Dirty Harry" and other pivotal hits. Key interviews: Clint Eastwood, Robert Redford, Dustin Hoffman and Jack Nicholson. Key films: "The Shining," "Mean Streets," "Superman: The Movie," "The Exorcist" and "Body Heat."

The world changed on October 4, 1957, when the U.S. public heard the shocking news that the Soviet Union had successfully launched the first satellite, Sputnik I. Why didn't the U.S. beat the Soviets in this first crucial round of the space race? NOVA reveals an astonishing behind-the-scenes story of the politics and personalities that collided over the earliest efforts to get America into space long before the founding of NASA. Anticommunist witch-hunts drove some of the nation's most talented rocketry pioneers out of the country even as we welcomed Wernher von Braun and his former Nazi colleagues. With help from Walt Disney, von Braun's vision of future space travel swiftly captivated U.S. TV watchers. But even as he became the first media star of the space age, von Braun's attempts to build space probes were hobbled by inter-service rivalries. NOVA details the previously untold story of the technological and political missteps that made the U.S. lose out to the Soviets' bleeping electronic basketball.

"A New Reality (1950-1970)": What the Depression, wireless and war couldn't do, "talking furniture" perhaps could: TV arrives. Warner Bros. fights back with new technology (CinemaScope, 3-D, Eastman Color) and new stars (girl-next-door Doris Day and teen icon James Dean). And a showdown between Harry and Jack Warner leads to a daring new spirit at the studio that releases breakthrough films like "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" and "Bonnie and Clyde." Key interviews: Warren Beatty, Elia Kazan, Kim Hunter, Arthur Penn and Carroll Baker. Key films: "A Streetcar Named Desire," "East of Eden," "Cool Hand Luke," "A Face in the Crowd" and "My Fair Lady." "Woodstock Notions (1970-1989)": What the 1960s start, the 70s bring to flower. The film Woodstock signals a new era, while new talent (including Clint Eastwood, Martin Scorsese and Stanley Kubrick) and management spark a return to taking chances and setting trends. The past, meanwhile, becomes prologue: the tough authenticity of the 30s and 40s is re-imagined in "Dog Day Afternoon," "All the President's Men," "Dirty Harry" and other pivotal hits. Key interviews: Clint Eastwood, Robert Redford, Dustin Hoffman and Jack Nicholson. Key films: "The Shining," "Mean Streets," "Superman: The Movie," "The Exorcist" and "Body Heat."

"Tradition is the last bad performance." Thus spoke the great conductor Arturo Toscanini. But tradition is perhaps one of the most important elements in the performances of classical music. Maestro James Conlon explores the roles of tradition and novelty in this look back at the Twelfth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, held in Fort Worth, Texas, in the spring of 2005. Musical excerpts and rehearsals feature Sa Chen and the Takács Quartet.

"You Ain't Heard Nothin' Yet (1923-1935)": Episode one introduces the four Youngstown, Ohio, brothers (Harry, Albert, Sam and Jack L. Warner) who officially incorporated their new motion picture company on April 4, 1923. Rin Tin Tin may have put them on the map, but soon gave way to a unique hard-boiled, hard-times cinema ethos. Tough guys James Cagney and Edward G. Robinson dominated the new gangster genre, tough dame Barbara Stanwyck headlined racy melodramas and even the chorus kids in the dazzling musicals were one bad break away from the streets. Key interviews: Busby Berkeley, Edward G. Robinson, Alfred Hitchcock and William Wellman. Key films: "The Jazz Singer," "Public Enemy," "42nd Street," "Baby Face" and "Little Caesar." "Good War, Uneasy Peace (1935-1950)": Warner Bros. becomes home to celebrated stars Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Errol Flynn and more. The studio - like the world - faces the twin catastrophes of the Depression and World War II. Warner answers with films that reflect a deep and defiant belief in the courage of common people. But after the war, on-screen noir reflects the off-screen anxiety of blacklists and political witch-hunts. Key interviews: James Cagney, Ronald Reagan, Howard Hawks and Alexis Smith. Key films: "Casablanca," "Now," "Voyager," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "Kings Row" and "White Heat."

A FLEA MARKET DOCUMENTARY travels from the gigantic Rose Bowl Market in Pasadena, California, to the busy but modest-sized Eastern Market in Washington, D.C., talking with organizers, vendors, food merchants and shoppers. This program is a celebration of the unusual people and the enticing things that can be found in parking lots, fairgrounds, drive-ins, sidewalks, and where else someone has posed a sign saying, "Flea Market." It's capitalism mixed with craziness. It's amazing old stuff, great salespeople, the ancient tradition of the open-air market, and the possibility of finding a bargain, all uniting shoppers across the nation.

The government's historic proposal to bail out the U.S. banking system is raising as many questions as it is offering solutions. Some in Congress are warning against reacting too quickly; others want conditions that protect homeowners, increase oversight, and limit the compensation of corporate executives. But the number one question on the minds of Americans: How will this affect me? This week, NOW on PBS goes inside the round-the-clock efforts in Washington to craft a bailout plan of monumental proportions. NOW's cameras follow Damon Silvers, an associate general counsel at the AFL-CIO, the nation's largest federation of labor unions, as he works to get help for working Americans in addition to bailing out financial firms in distress. Silvers, an architect of the major provisions Congressional Democrats are pushing for in the bill, provides key insight on the stake ordinary working Americans have in the fate of this proposal, and on what comes next.

When Ronald Reagan's first term reached its halfway point, he was challenged with tremendous economic strife, the recession and unemployment had battered Reaganomics. As the Pentagon spent $34 million per hour on building up U.S. military forces and nuclear weapons, the deficit increased. However, an economic transformation in 1983 and the slow return of Americans to work secured a second term for Reagan -- a term that would afford him his greatest triumphs and his most difficult blows. "The American Experience" chronicles Reagan's last four years in office -- from the loss of his closest advisors and the Iran-Contra scandal, to the dawning of the fall of Communism in Europe.

The government's historic proposal to bail out the U.S. banking system is raising as many questions as it is offering solutions. Some in Congress are warning against reacting too quickly; others want conditions that protect homeowners, increase oversight, and limit the compensation of corporate executives. But the number one question on the minds of Americans: How will this affect me? This week, NOW on PBS goes inside the round-the-clock efforts in Washington to craft a bailout plan of monumental proportions. NOW's cameras follow Damon Silvers, an associate general counsel at the AFL-CIO, the nation's largest federation of labor unions, as he works to get help for working Americans in addition to bailing out financial firms in distress. Silvers, an architect of the major provisions Congressional Democrats are pushing for in the bill, provides key insight on the stake ordinary working Americans have in the fate of this proposal, and on what comes next.

What happens if you fall sick and are one of 47 million people in America without health insurance? "Critical Condition" by Roger Weisberg ("Waging a Living," P.O.V. 2006) puts a human face on the nation's growing health care crisis by capturing the harrowing struggles of four critically ill Americans who discover that being uninsured can cost them their jobs, health, home, savings, even their lives. Filmed in vérité style, "Critical Condition" offers a moving and invaluable exposé at a time when the nation is debating how to extend health insurance to all Americans. Stress. It's always been there to save our lives. It's what made us run from predators and enabled us to take down prey. But today, humans are turning on that same stress response to deal with 30-year mortgages, difficult bosses, teenagers and traffic jams. Some of us are wallowing in corrosive hormones; for the first time, scientists can reveal just how measurable and dangerous that exposure can be. MacArthur "Genius Grant" recipient and Stanford University neurobiologist Robert Sapolsky and National Geographic search for answers to why stress seems to be killing us.

The world changed on October 4, 1957, when the U.S. public heard the shocking news that the Soviet Union had successfully launched the first satellite, Sputnik I. Why didn't the U.S. beat the Soviets in this first crucial round of the space race? NOVA reveals an astonishing behind-the-scenes story of the politics and personalities that collided over the earliest efforts to get America into space long before the founding of NASA. Anticommunist witch-hunts drove some of the nation's most talented rocketry pioneers out of the country even as we welcomed Wernher von Braun and his former Nazi colleagues. With help from Walt Disney, von Braun's vision of future space travel swiftly captivated U.S. TV watchers. But even as he became the first media star of the space age, von Braun's attempts to build space probes were hobbled by inter-service rivalries. NOVA details the previously untold story of the technological and political missteps that made the U.S. lose out to the Soviets' bleeping electronic basketball.

When Ronald Reagan's first term reached its halfway point, he was challenged with tremendous economic strife, the recession and unemployment had battered Reaganomics. As the Pentagon spent $34 million per hour on building up U.S. military forces and nuclear weapons, the deficit increased. However, an economic transformation in 1983 and the slow return of Americans to work secured a second term for Reagan -- a term that would afford him his greatest triumphs and his most difficult blows. "The American Experience" chronicles Reagan's last four years in office -- from the loss of his closest advisors and the Iran-Contra scandal, to the dawning of the fall of Communism in Europe.

"You Ain't Heard Nothin' Yet (1923-1935)": Episode one introduces the four Youngstown, Ohio, brothers (Harry, Albert, Sam and Jack L. Warner) who officially incorporated their new motion picture company on April 4, 1923. Rin Tin Tin may have put them on the map, but soon gave way to a unique hard-boiled, hard-times cinema ethos. Tough guys James Cagney and Edward G. Robinson dominated the new gangster genre, tough dame Barbara Stanwyck headlined racy melodramas and even the chorus kids in the dazzling musicals were one bad break away from the streets. Key interviews: Busby Berkeley, Edward G. Robinson, Alfred Hitchcock and William Wellman. Key films: "The Jazz Singer," "Public Enemy," "42nd Street," "Baby Face" and "Little Caesar." "Good War, Uneasy Peace (1935-1950)": Warner Bros. becomes home to celebrated stars Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Errol Flynn and more. The studio - like the world - faces the twin catastrophes of the Depression and World War II. Warner answers with films that reflect a deep and defiant belief in the courage of common people. But after the war, on-screen noir reflects the off-screen anxiety of blacklists and political witch-hunts. Key interviews: James Cagney, Ronald Reagan, Howard Hawks and Alexis Smith. The world changed on October 4, 1957, when the U.S. public heard the shocking news that the Soviet Union had successfully launched the first satellite, Sputnik I. Why didn't the U.S. beat the Soviets in this first crucial round of the space race? NOVA reveals an astonishing behind-the-scenes story of the politics and personalities that collided over the earliest efforts to get America into space long before the founding of NASA. Anticommunist witch-hunts drove some of the nation's most talented rocketry pioneers out of the country even as we welcomed Wernher von Braun and his former Nazi colleagues. With help from Walt Disney, von Braun's vision of future space travel swiftly captivated U.S. TV watchers. But even as he became the first media star of the space age, von Braun's attempts to build space probes were hobbled by inter-service rivalries. NOVA details the previously untold story of the technological and political missteps that made the U.S. lose out to the Soviets' bleeping electronic basketball.

The government's historic proposal to bail out the U.S. banking system is raising as many questions as it is offering solutions. Some in Congress are warning against reacting too quickly; others want conditions that protect homeowners, increase oversight, and limit the compensation of corporate executives. But the number one question on the minds of Americans: How will this affect me? This week, NOW on PBS goes inside the round-the-clock efforts in Washington to craft a bailout plan of monumental proportions. NOW's cameras follow Damon Silvers, an associate general counsel at the AFL-CIO, the nation's largest federation of labor unions, as he works to get help for working Americans in addition to bailing out financial firms in distress. Silvers, an architect of the major provisions Congressional Democrats are pushing for in the bill, provides key insight on the stake ordinary working Americans have in the fate of this proposal, and on what comes next.

What happens if you fall sick and are one of 47 million people in America without health insurance? "Critical Condition" by Roger Weisberg ("Waging a Living," P.O.V. 2006) puts a human face on the nation's growing health care crisis by capturing the harrowing struggles of four critically ill Americans who discover that being uninsured can cost them their jobs, health, home, savings, even their lives. Filmed in vérité style, "Critical Condition" offers a moving and invaluable exposé at a time when the nation is debating how to extend health insurance to all Americans. A separate 30-minute follow-up program, RX FOR CHANGE, completes the broadcast.

"A New Reality (1950-1970)": What the Depression, wireless and war couldn't do, "talking furniture" perhaps could: TV arrives. Warner Bros. fights back with new technology (CinemaScope, 3-D, Eastman Color) and new stars (girl-next-door Doris Day and teen icon James Dean). And a showdown between Harry and Jack Warner leads to a daring new spirit at the studio that releases breakthrough films like Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? and Bonnie and Clyde. Key interviews: Warren Beatty, Elia Kazan, Kim Hunter, Arthur Penn and Carroll Baker. Key films: "A Streetcar Named Desire," "East of Eden," "Cool Hand Luke," "A Face in the Crowd" and "My Fair Lady." "Woodstock Notions (1970-1989)": What the 1960s start, the 70s bring to flower. The film Woodstock signals a new era, while new talent (including Clint Eastwood, Martin Scorsese and Stanley Kubrick) and management spark a return to taking chances and setting trends. The past, meanwhile, becomes prologue: the tough authenticity of the 30s and 40s is re-imagined in "Dog Day Afternoon," "All the President's Men," "Dirty Harry" and other pivotal hits. Key interviews: Clint Eastwood, Robert Redford, Dustin Hoffman and Jack Nicholson. Key films: "The Shining," "Mean Streets," "Superman: The Movie," "The Exorcist" and "Body Heat."

From the tiniest Chihuahua to the largest St. Bernard, all dogs claim the wolf as their ancestor. But how did the wolf become the domesticated dog, and how did the hundreds of breeds we know today come to be so different? Using DNA analysis and other research, scientists have now pieced together the puzzle of canine evolution, creating a fascinating picture of how dogs became an indispensable part of our own history.

Astronomers are closing in on the proof they've sought for years that one of the most destructive objects in the universe -- a supermassive black hole -- is lurking right in the center of our own galaxy. Could it flare up and devour our entire galactic neighborhood? Join NOVA on a mind-bending investigation into one of the most bizarre corners of cosmological science: the truth about black holes. From supernova to event horizon, the dark secrets of supermassive black holes are revealed through stunning computer-generated imagery, including an extraordinary simulation of what it might look like to fall into the belly of such a beast.

The world changed on October 4, 1957, when the U.S. public heard the shocking news that the Soviet Union had successfully launched the first satellite, Sputnik I. Why didn't the U.S. beat the Soviets in this first crucial round of the space race? NOVA reveals an astonishing behind-the-scenes story of the politics and personalities that collided over the earliest efforts to get America into space long before the founding of NASA. Anticommunist witch-hunts drove some of the nation's most talented rocketry pioneers out of the country even as we welcomed Wernher von Braun and his former Nazi colleagues. With help from Walt Disney, von Braun's vision of future space travel swiftly captivated U.S. TV watchers. But even as he became the first media star of the space age, von Braun's attempts to build space probes were hobbled by inter-service rivalries. NOVA details the previously untold story of the technological and political missteps that made the U.S. lose out to the Soviets' bleeping electronic basketball.

When Ronald Reagan's first term reached its halfway point, he was challenged with tremendous economic strife, the recession and unemployment had battered Reaganomics. As the Pentagon spent $34 million per hour on building up U.S. military forces and nuclear weapons, the deficit increased. However, an economic transformation in 1983 and the slow return of Americans to work secured a second term for Reagan -- a term that would afford him his greatest triumphs and his most difficult blows. "The American Experience" chronicles Reagan's last four years in office -- from the loss of his closest advisors and the Iran-Contra scandal, to the dawning of the fall of Communism in Europe.

"You Ain't Heard Nothin' Yet (1923-1935)": Episode one introduces the four Youngstown, Ohio, brothers (Harry, Albert, Sam and Jack L. Warner) who officially incorporated their new motion picture company on April 4, 1923. Rin Tin Tin may have put them on the map, but soon gave way to a unique hard-boiled, hard-times cinema ethos. Tough guys James Cagney and Edward G. Robinson dominated the new gangster genre, tough dame Barbara Stanwyck headlined racy melodramas and even the chorus kids in the dazzling musicals were one bad break away from the streets. Key interviews: Busby Berkeley, Edward G. Robinson, Alfred Hitchcock and William Wellman. Key films: "The Jazz Singer," "Public Enemy," "42nd Street," "Baby Face" and "Little Caesar." "Good War, Uneasy Peace (1935-1950)": Warner Bros. becomes home to celebrated stars Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Errol Flynn and more. The studio - like the world - faces the twin catastrophes of the Depression and World War II. Warner answers with films that reflect a deep and defiant belief in the courage of common people. But after the war, on-screen noir reflects the off-screen anxiety of blacklists and political witch-hunts. Key interviews: James Cagney, Ronald Reagan, Howard Hawks and Alexis Smith. Key films: "Casablanca," "Now," "Voyager," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "Kings Row" and "White Heat."
