The surprising, delightful, entertaining and inspiring members of the Young@Heart Chorus, a New England senior citizens chorus, have charmed audiences worldwide with their renditions of songs by everyone from the Clash to Coldplay. As Stephen Walker's critically acclaimed documentary begins, the retirees, led by their demanding musical director, are rehearsing their new show, struggling with Sonic Youth's dissonant rock anthem "Schizophrenia" and giving new meaning to James Brown's "I Feel Good." What ultimately emerges is a funny and unexpectedly moving testament to friendship, creative inspiration and expectations defied.

Shot over 11 years by renowned fashion photographer Steven Sebring, Patti Smith: Dream of Life is an intimate portrait of the legendary rocker, poet and artist. Following Smith's personal reflections over a decade, the film explores her many art forms and the friends and poets who inspired her - William Burroughs, Allen Ginsberg, Bob Dylan, Robert Mapplethorpe and Michael Stipe. She emerges as a crucial, contemporary link between the Beats, punks and today's music. Shot in lush, dark tones, featuring rare performance clips and narrated by the artist herself, Patti Smith: Dream of Life is an impressionistic journal of a multi-faceted artist that underscores her unique place in American culture. Winner of the 2008 Sundance Film Festival Excellence in Cinematography Award: Documentary. A production of Clean Socks and THIRTEEN. Produced by Steven Sebring, Margaret Smilow and Scott Vogel.

Episode Title: Louisa May Alcott: The Woman Behind Little Women
Length: 90 minutes
Airdate: 1/2/2010 9:00:00 PM
O.B. Date: 12/28/2009 9:00:00 PM
Service: PBS
Format: Documentary
Segment Length: 01:26:46

The author of Little Women is an almost universally recognized name. Her reputation as a morally upstanding New England spinster, reflecting the conventional propriety of late 19th-century Concord, is firmly established. However, raised among reformers, Transcendentalists and skeptics, the intellectual protégé of Emerson and Hawthorne and Thoreau, Alcott was actually a free thinker with democratic ideals and progressive ideas about women - a worldly careerist of sorts. Most surprising is that she led, under the pseudonym A.M. Barnard, a literary double life, undiscovered until the 1940s. As Barnard, Alcott penned scandalous, sensational works with characters running the gamut from murderers and revolutionaries to cross-dressers and opium addicts - a far cry from her familiar fatherly mentors, courageous mothers and appropriately impish children.

Sam Cooke put the spirit of the Black church into popular music -- creating a new sound and setting into motion a chain of events that forever altered the course of popular music and race relations in America. With "You Send Me" in 1957, Cooke became the first African American artist to reach #1 on both the R&B and the pop charts. It was groundbreaking. It was also risky for this young gospel performer to alienate his fans by embracing "the devil's music" -- but he proved, with his pop/gospel hybrid, that it was, indeed, possible to win over white teenage listeners and keep his faithful church followers intact.

The Haitian Revolution was the only successful slave insurrection in history. Its leaders grasped the full meaning of French revolutionary ideas and used them to create the world's first black republic. The event elevated a black general, Toussaint Louverture, to such international fame that admirers ranked him on par with George Washington. The movement has been called the birth moment of universal human rights. Vaguely remembered today, the Haitian Revolution was a hurricane at the turn of the 19th century, traumatizing Southern planters and inspiring U.S. slaves. ÉGALITÉ FOR ALL explores this history through music, voodoo ritual, powerful re-creations and the comments of insightful writers and historians.

This film is a portrait of the conservationist and Pulitzer Prize-winning author Wallace Stegner. He was many things: teacher, historian and environmentalist but, above all, Wallace Stegner was a writer. Considered by many to be the "Dean" of western writers, he was a Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist and non-fiction author, with more than thirty full-length works and countless essays addressing the landscape, humankind's footprint and the evolution of a region and nation. Award-winning producer John Howe has captured the tremendous influence Stegner has been on the lives of generations of readers and students.

Happy New Year, but before we look ahead, we take a look back, tonight on Washington Week. A thwarted attempt to blow a plane from the sky revives old fears about terrorism and the tradeoffs we make to feel safe. President Barack Obama said, "This was a serious reminder of the dangers that we face and the nature of those who threaten our homeland." Rep. Pete Hoekstra (R-MI) said, "The threat to the United States is real. I think this administration has downplayed it. They need to recognize it." At the end of the year and the end of a decade, a new scare. Michael Duffy of Time Magazine provides context. Then, a roundtable with three Washington Week panelists whose books tell us much about the year just passed and the year to come. Dan Balz, author of "The Battle for America 2008," the story of the election. Joan Biskupic, author of "American Original," a biography of Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia. And David Sanger, author of "The Inheritance," a look at the challenges of our foreign policy.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been peopled for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

Saving American Journalism. A radical plan to save journalism in America. Is good journalism going extinct? Fractured audiences and tight budgets have downsized or sunk many of the fourth estate's major battleships, including this very program. This week, NOW's David Brancaccio talks to professor Bob McChesney and journalist John Nichols about the perils of a shrinking news media landscape, and their bold proposal to save journalism with government subsidies. Their new book is "The Death and Life of American Journalism: The Media Revolution that Will Begin the World Again." Should journalism get the next government bailout?

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

Happy New Year, but before we look ahead, we take a look back, tonight on Washington Week. A thwarted attempt to blow a plane from the sky revives old fears about terrorism and the tradeoffs we make to feel safe. President Barack Obama said, "This was a serious reminder of the dangers that we face and the nature of those who threaten our homeland." Rep. Pete Hoekstra (R-MI) said, "The threat to the United States is real. I think this administration has downplayed it. They need to recognize it." At the end of the year and the end of a decade, a new scare. Michael Duffy of Time Magazine provides context. Then, a roundtable with three Washington Week panelists whose books tell us much about the year just passed and the year to come. Dan Balz, author of "The Battle for America 2008," the story of the election. Joan Biskupic, author of "American Original," a biography of Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia. And David Sanger, author of "The Inheritance," a look at the challenges of our foreign policy.

Missed cues, intelligence failures, political upheaval, and health-care deal making. Welcome to a busy new year tonight on Washington Week, now in HD. President Barack Obama said, "Ultimately the buck stops with me. As president, I have a solemn responsibility to protect our nation and our people. And when the system fails, it is my responsibility." John Brennan said, "I told the president today, I let him down. I told him that I will do better and we will do better as a team." At the end of the week, one thing's clear. There is plenty of blame to go around as officials search for explanations at the White House, in a Detroit courtroom, on Capitol Hill, and at the Central Intelligence Agency, mourning the loss of seven of its own in Afghanistan. On the domestic front, politics rules the day as leading Democrats leave the fray. Sen. Chris Dodd (D-CT) said, "There are moments for each elected public official to step aside and let someone else step up. This is my moment to step aside." And health care negotiations go behind closed doors. Sen. Harry Reid (D-NV) said, "Mr. President, I'm sorry to say that for first time in American history, for the first time in American history a political party has chosen to stand on the sidelines." Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-UT) said, "I don't think we're on the sidelines in any way, shape, or form." Partisanship hard at work. We cover the week with Peter Baker of the New York Times, Tom Gjelten of National Public Radio, James Barnes of National Journal, and Ceci Connolly of the Washington Post.

The Haitian Revolution was the only successful slave insurrection in history. Its leaders grasped the full meaning of French revolutionary ideas and used them to create the world's first black republic. The event elevated a black general, Toussaint Louverture, to such international fame that admirers ranked him on par with George Washington. The movement has been called the birth moment of universal human rights. Vaguely remembered today, the Haitian Revolution was a hurricane at the turn of the 19th century, traumatizing Southern planters and inspiring U.S. slaves. ÉGALITÉ FOR ALL explores this history through music, voodoo ritual, powerful re-creations and the comments of insightful writers and historians.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been peopled for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

In the second program, Alan Alda joins researchers studying our fellow simians - mainly chimpanzees, our closest living relatives - to discover both what we share with them and what new skills humans evolved since we went our separate ways. By watching - and participating in - experiments comparing chimps with children, he learns that human uniqueness lies in our ability to reason about things we can't observe, especially the content of others' minds, and to employ this skill in the collaborative enterprise we call civilization.

This film is a portrait of the conservationist and Pulitzer Prize-winning author Wallace Stegner. He was many things: teacher, historian and environmentalist but, above all, Wallace Stegner was a writer. Considered by many to be the "Dean" of western writers, he was a Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist and non-fiction author, with more than thirty full-length works and countless essays addressing the landscape, humankind's footprint and the evolution of a region and nation. Award-winning producer John Howe has captured the tremendous influence Stegner has been on the lives of generations of readers and students.

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

The author of Little Women is an almost universally recognized name. Her reputation as a morally upstanding New England spinster, reflecting the conventional propriety of late 19th-century Concord, is firmly established. However, raised among reformers, Transcendentalists and skeptics, the intellectual protégé of Emerson and Hawthorne and Thoreau, Alcott was actually a free thinker with democratic ideals and progressive ideas about women - a worldly careerist of sorts. Most surprising is that she led, under the pseudonym A.M. Barnard, a literary double life, undiscovered until the 1940s. As Barnard, Alcott penned scandalous, sensational works with characters running the gamut from murderers and revolutionaries to cross-dressers and opium addicts - a far cry from her familiar fatherly mentors, courageous mothers and appropriately impish children.

The first episode looks at the importance of relationships and why they are central to our emotional well-being. What are the cognitive and neurological processes underpinning our everyday interactions, and can they help us to understand why some relationships flourish and others fail? We meet a young boy adopted from a Russian orphanage, whose story illustrates how a lack of attachment in infancy fundamentally shapes his ability to build relationships for years to come. We meet the young parents of newborn twins; a couple in therapy for a troubled marriage; a teenager who was bullied with tragic consequences; two women grappling with the stress of workplace conflicts; and other characters - all to better understand the importance of social connections and relationships.

On Canada's remote Ellesmere Island, where June is spring, July is summer and August is already autumn, the race is on for two remarkable species to raise their families. The white gyrfalcon is enormous, the largest and most powerful falcon in the world. Yet last summer, the nesting falcon pair on the island failed to raise any young. The rare Arctic wolves rely on every member of the pack to chase and bring down the prey that keep them alive. Last year was good for them and they raised three cubs. But for the wolves and the falcons, as well as the snowy owls, musk oxen, lemmings, Arctic foxes and hares who share this fragile ecosystem with them, fortunes are always precarious. What will happen this year?

The Drakensberg Mountains are southern Africa's Alps, rising more than 11,000 feet into the sky. But beneath their shimmering beauty lies an incredibly hostile environment for the creatures that manage to live there. Each Spring, drenching rains destroy the grasslands at the base of the mountains, and those who would survive must climb up sheer cliffs of volcanic rock, through gauntlets of storms and snow, to reach the carpets of new grass on the plateau. The baboons that make their home halfway up the heights may have the advantage of agility, but eland, the world's largest antelope, have long, spindly legs and heavy bodies, which make their climb to the top all but unbelievable. All have babies at their sides. And the vultures circle overhead.

PBS presents a preview of the new Ken Burns film NATIONAL PARKS: AMERICA'S BEST IDEA. The 12-hour, six-part documentary series, directed by Burns and co-produced with his longtime colleague, Dayton Duncan, who also wrote the script, is the story of an idea as uniquely American as the Declaration of Independence and just as radical: that the most special places in the nation should be preserved, not for royalty or the rich, but for everyone.

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

The first episode looks at the importance of relationships and why they are central to our emotional well-being. What are the cognitive and neurological processes underpinning our everyday interactions, and can they help us to understand why some relationships flourish and others fail? We meet a young boy adopted from a Russian orphanage, whose story illustrates how a lack of attachment in infancy fundamentally shapes his ability to build relationships for years to come. We meet the young parents of newborn twins; a couple in therapy for a troubled marriage; a teenager who was bullied with tragic consequences; two women grappling with the stress of workplace conflicts; and other characters - all to better understand the importance of social connections and relationships.

Missed cues, intelligence failures, political upheaval, and health-care deal making. Welcome to a busy new year tonight on Washington Week, now in HD. President Barack Obama said, "Ultimately the buck stops with me. As president, I have a solemn responsibility to protect our nation and our people. And when the system fails, it is my responsibility." John Brennan said, "I told the president today, I let him down. I told him that I will do better and we will do better as a team." At the end of the week, one thing's clear. There is plenty of blame to go around as officials search for explanations at the White House, in a Detroit courtroom, on Capitol Hill, and at the Central Intelligence Agency, mourning the loss of seven of its own in Afghanistan. On the domestic front, politics rules the day as leading Democrats leave the fray. Sen. Chris Dodd (D-CT) said, "There are moments for each elected public official to step aside and let someone else step up. This is my moment to step aside." And health care negotiations go behind closed doors. Sen. Harry Reid (D-NV) said, "Mr.

President, I'm sorry to say that for first time in American history, for the first time in American history a political party has chosen to stand on the sidelines." Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-UT) said, "I don't think we're on the sidelines in any way, shape, or form." Partisanship hard at work. We cover the week with Peter Baker of the New York Times, Tom Gjelten of National Public Radio, James Barnes of National Journal, and Ceci Connolly of the Washington Post.

Sam Cooke put the spirit of the Black church into popular music -- creating a new sound and setting into motion a chain of events that forever altered the course of popular music and race relations in America. With "You Send Me" in 1957, Cooke became the first African American artist to reach #1 on both the R&B and the pop charts. It was groundbreaking. It was also risky for this young gospel performer to alienate his fans by embracing "the devil's music" -- but he proved, with his pop/gospel hybrid, that it was, indeed, possible to win over white teenage listeners and keep his faithful church followers intact.

The Haitian Revolution was the only successful slave insurrection in history. Its leaders grasped the full meaning of French revolutionary ideas and used them to create the world's first black republic. The event elevated a black general, Toussaint Louverture, to such international fame that admirers ranked him on par with George Washington. The movement has been called the birth moment of universal human rights. Vaguely remembered today, the Haitian Revolution was a hurricane at the turn of the 19th century, traumatizing Southern planters and inspiring U.S. slaves. ÉGALITÉ FOR ALL explores this history through music, voodoo ritual, powerful re-creations and the comments of insightful writers and historians.

Targeting the Taliban. Fighting the Afghanistan War...in Pakistan. A dangerous, inside look at the conflict's true front line. President Obama is sending as many as 30,000 more troops to combat Taliban and al Qaeda forces in Afghanistan this year, but are we missing the true target? This week, NOW reports directly from Pakistan's dangerous and pivotal border with Afghanistan, where Pentagon war planners acknowledge many of the enemy fighters and their leaders are based. The U.S. has been relying on Pakistan to act against Taliban militants there, but the Pakistani army's commitment is in question. NOW takes you to the true front lines for an eye-opening, inside look you haven't seen before, and won't soon forget.

Happy New Year, but before we look ahead, we take a look back, tonight on Washington Week. A thwarted attempt to blow a plane from the sky revives old fears about terrorism and the tradeoffs we make to feel safe. President Barack Obama said, "This was a serious reminder of the dangers that we face and the nature of those who threaten our homeland." Rep. Pete Hoekstra (R-MI) said, "The threat to the United States is real. I think this administration has downplayed it. They need to recognize it." At the end of the year and the end of a decade, a new scare. Michael Duffy of Time Magazine provides context. Then, a roundtable with three Washington Week panelists whose books tell us much about the year just passed and the year to come. Dan Balz, author of "The Battle for America 2008," the story of the election. Joan Biskupic, author of "American Original," a biography of Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia. And David Sanger, author of "The Inheritance," a look at the challenges of our foreign policy.

Missed cues, intelligence failures, political upheaval, and health-care deal making. Welcome to a busy new year tonight on Washington Week, now in HD. President Barack Obama said, "Ultimately the buck stops with me. As president, I have a solemn responsibility to protect our nation and our people. And when the system fails, it is my responsibility." John Brennan said, "I told the president today, I let him down. I told him that I will do better and we will do better as a team." At the end of the week, one thing's clear. There is plenty of blame to go around as officials search for explanations at the White House, in a Detroit courtroom, on Capitol Hill, and at the Central Intelligence Agency, mourning the loss of seven of its own in Afghanistan. On the domestic front, politics rules the day as leading Democrats leave the fray. Sen. Chris Dodd (D-CT) said, "There are moments for each elected public official to step aside and let someone else step up. This is my moment to step aside." And health care negotiations go behind closed doors. Sen. Harry Reid (D-NV) said, "Mr. President, I'm sorry to say that for first time in American history, for the first time in American history a political party has chosen to stand on the sidelines." Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-UT) said, "I don't think we're on the sidelines in any way, shape, or form." Partisanship hard at work. We cover the week with Peter Baker of the New York Times, Tom Gjelten of National Public Radio, James Barnes of National Journal, and Ceci Connolly of the Washington Post.

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

Sam Cooke put the spirit of the Black church into popular music -- creating a new sound and setting into motion a chain of events that forever altered the course of popular music and race relations in America. With "You Send Me" in 1957, Cooke became the first African American artist to reach #1 on both the R&B and the pop charts. It was groundbreaking. It was also risky for this young gospel performer to alienate his fans by embracing "the devil's music" -- but he proved, with his pop/gospel hybrid, that it was, indeed, possible to win over white teenage listeners and keep his faithful church followers intact.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been peopled for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

In the second program, Alan Alda joins researchers studying our fellow simians - mainly chimpanzees, our closest living relatives - to discover both what we share with them and what new skills humans evolved since we went our separate ways. By watching - and participating in - experiments comparing chimps with children, he learns that human uniqueness lies in our ability to reason about things we can't observe, especially the content of others' minds, and to employ this skill in the collaborative enterprise we call civilization.

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

Happy New Year, but before we look ahead, we take a look back, tonight on Washington Week. A thwarted attempt to blow a plane from the sky revives old fears about terrorism and the tradeoffs we make to feel safe. President Barack Obama said, "This was a serious reminder of the dangers that we face and the nature of those who threaten our homeland." Rep. Pete Hoekstra (R-MI) said, "The threat to the United States is real. I think this administration has downplayed it. They need to recognize it." At the end of the year and the end of a decade, a new scare. Michael Duffy of Time Magazine provides context. Then, a roundtable with three Washington Week panelists whose books tell us much about the year just passed and the year to come. Dan Balz, author of "The Battle for America 2008," the story of the election. Joan Biskupic, author of "American Original," a biography of Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia. And David Sanger, author of "The Inheritance," a look at the challenges of our foreign policy.

Missed cues, intelligence failures, political upheaval, and health-care deal making. Welcome to a busy new year tonight on Washington Week, now in HD. President Barack Obama said, "Ultimately the buck stops with me. As president, I have a solemn responsibility to protect our nation and our people. And when the system fails, it is my responsibility." John Brennan said, "I told the president today, I let him down. I told him that I will do better and we will do better as a team." At the end of the week, one thing's clear. There is plenty of blame to go around as officials search for explanations at the White House, in a Detroit courtroom, on Capitol Hill, and at the Central Intelligence Agency, mourning the loss of seven of its own in Afghanistan. On the domestic front, politics rules the day as leading Democrats leave the fray. Sen. Chris Dodd (D-CT) said, "There are moments for each elected public official to step aside and let someone else step up. This is my moment to step aside." And health care negotiations go behind closed doors. Sen. Harry Reid (D-NV) said, "Mr. President, I'm sorry to say that for first time in American history, for the first time in American history a political party has chosen to stand on the sidelines." Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-UT) said, "I don't think we're on the sidelines in any way, shape, or form." Partisanship hard at work. We cover the week with Peter Baker of the New York Times, Tom Gjelten of National Public Radio, James Barnes of National Journal, and Ceci Connolly of the Washington Post.

NOVA joins an exclusive dive beneath the waters of Pearl Harbor to trace new clues to the historic sinking of the USS Arizona. 1,177 crewmembers perished in the dramatic 1941 sinking of the storied battleship--the greatest loss of life in United States naval history. For decades, it has been thought that the Arizona was brought down by fire from Japanese aircraft. But the discovery of a Japanese "midget sub" far from the scene of the battle raises new questions about the Arizona's final hours. Severed into three pieces and dropped in 1,200-foot-deep water outside of the harbor, the sub matches four other vessels discovered in shallower water closer to the harbor entrance. Each of the four vessels were equipped with a pair of torpedoes--but only the torpedoes of the fifth sub are still missing, apparently fired at an unknown target. What was that submarine's mission? Why was it laid to rest so far from the harbor? What was the fate of its two-man crew? With unprecedented access to the Arizona wreckage, NOVA teams up with the Hawaii Undersea Research Lab to use manned deep submersibles in an attempt to resurrect the fifth midget submarine. Using eyewitness testimony and reports from after the attack, this program examines the possibility that this mysterious midget submarine may have been a key Japanese weapon in what became known as the day of infamy.

Happy New Year, but before we look ahead, we take a look back, tonight on Washington Week. A thwarted attempt to blow a plane from the sky revives old fears about terrorism and the tradeoffs we make to feel safe. President Barack Obama said, "This was a serious reminder of the dangers that we face and the nature of those who threaten our homeland." Rep. Pete Hoekstra (R-MI) said, "The threat to the United States is real. I think this administration has downplayed it. They need to recognize it." At the end of the year and the end of a decade, a new scare. Michael Duffy of Time Magazine provides context. Then, a roundtable with three Washington Week panelists whose books tell us much about the year just passed and the year to come. Dan Balz, author of "The Battle for America 2008," the story of the election. Joan Biskupic, author of "American Original," a biography of Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia. And David Sanger, author of "The Inheritance," a look at the challenges of our foreign policy.

Missed cues, intelligence failures, political upheaval, and health-care deal making. Welcome to a busy new year tonight on Washington Week, now in HD. President Barack Obama said, "Ultimately the buck stops with me. As president, I have a solemn responsibility to protect our nation and our people. And when the system fails, it is my responsibility." John Brennan said, "I told the president today, I let him down. I told him that I will do better and we will do better as a team." At the end of the week, one thing's clear. There is plenty of blame to go around as officials search for explanations at the White House, in a Detroit courtroom, on Capitol Hill, and at the Central Intelligence Agency, mourning the loss of seven of its own in Afghanistan. On the domestic front, politics rules the day as leading Democrats leave the fray. Sen. Chris Dodd (D-CT) said, "There are moments for each elected public official to step aside and let someone else step up. This is my moment to step aside." And health care negotiations go behind closed doors. Sen. Harry Reid (D-NV) said, "Mr. President, I'm sorry to say that for first time in American history, for the first time in American history a political party has chosen to stand on the sidelines." Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-UT) said, "I don't think we're on the sidelines in any way, shape, or form." Partisanship hard at work. We cover the week with Peter Baker of the New York Times, Tom Gjelten of National Public Radio, James Barnes of National Journal, and Ceci Connolly of the Washington Post.

The author of Little Women is an almost universally recognized name. Her reputation as a morally upstanding New England spinster, reflecting the conventional propriety of late 19th-century Concord, is firmly established. However, raised among reformers, Transcendentalists and skeptics, the intellectual protégé of Emerson and Hawthorne and Thoreau, Alcott was actually a free thinker with democratic ideals and progressive ideas about women - a worldly careerist of sorts. Most surprising is that she led, under the pseudonym A.M. Barnard, a literary double life, undiscovered until the 1940s. As Barnard, Alcott penned scandalous, sensational works with characters running the gamut from murderers and revolutionaries to cross-dressers and opium addicts - a far cry from her familiar fatherly mentors, courageous mothers and appropriately impish children.

The first episode looks at the importance of relationships and why they are central to our emotional well-being. What are the cognitive and neurological processes underpinning our everyday interactions, and can they help us to understand why some relationships flourish and others fail? We meet a young boy adopted from a Russian orphanage, whose story illustrates how a lack of attachment in infancy fundamentally shapes his ability to build relationships for years to come. We meet the young parents of newborn twins; a couple in therapy for a troubled marriage; a teenager who was bullied with tragic consequences; two women grappling with the stress of workplace conflicts; and other characters - all to better understand the importance of social connections and relationships.

He has been portrayed in countless movies and television shows by some of Hollywood's greatest actors, including Henry Fonda, Jimmy Stewart and, more recently, Kevin Costner, but these popular fictions belie the complexities and flaws of a man whose life is a lens on politics, justice and economic opportunity on the American frontier. As a young man, Wyatt Earp was a caricature of the Western lawman, spending his days drinking in saloons, gambling, visiting brothels and gaining notoriety as the legendary gunman in the shootout at the OK Corral in Tombstone, Arizona. Shortly after his death in 1929, distressed Americans down on their luck transformed Wyatt Earp into a folk hero: a central figure in the American narrative of how the West was won, a man who took control of his own destiny.

The Haitian Revolution was the only successful slave insurrection in history. Its leaders grasped the full meaning of French revolutionary ideas and used them to create the world's first black republic. The event elevated a black general, Toussaint Louverture, to such international fame that admirers ranked him on par with George Washington. The movement has been called the birth moment of universal human rights. Vaguely remembered today, the Haitian Revolution was a hurricane at the turn of the 19th century, traumatizing Southern planters and inspiring U.S. slaves. ÉGALITÉ FOR ALL explores this history through music, voodoo ritual, powerful re-creations and the comments of insightful writers and historians.

Arguably the oldest black neighborhood in America and the birthplace of jazz, Faubourg Tremé was home to the largest community of free black people in the Deep South during slavery and a hotbed of political ferment. Here, black and white, free and enslaved, rich and poor cohabitated, collaborated and clashed to create America's first civil rights movement and a unique American culture. FAUBOURG TREMÉ: THE UNTOLD STORY OF BLACK NEW ORLEANS is a tale of heartbreak, hope and resiliency - all set to a soundtrack of fabulous New Orleans music.

At the end of the American Revolution, thousands of African-American slaves risked everything to fight for the British in exchange for a promise of freedom. John Clarkson, a young Royal Navy lieutenant, was sent to North America by British abolitionists to fulfill that promise. According to plan, each slave would be resettled in Nova Scotia. However, when that frigid, rocky terrain proved inhospitable to those who had worked the cotton fields of the Deep South, Clarkson arranged for them to be transported across the Atlantic to Sierra Leone. Using journals, diaries and autobiographical accounts, writer-narrator Simon Schama (SIMON SCHAMA'S POWER OF ART) reconstructs this epic journey. Gripping dramatizations transport viewers from the slave plantations of Georgia to the bone-chilling cold of Nova Scotia to the trim parlors of Georgian England and finally to sweltering Sierra Leone, where Clarkson's dreams of a haven for former slaves would come to a tragic end.

Filmmaker Byron Hurt, a life-long hip-hop fan, was watching rap music videos on BET when he realized that each video was nearly identical. Guys in fancy cars threw money at the camera while scantily clad women danced in the background. As he discovered how stereotypical rap videos had become, Hurt, a former college quarterback turned activist, decided to make a film about the gender politics of hip-hop, the music and the culture that he grew up with. "The more I grew and the more I learned about sexism and violence and homophobia, the more those lyrics became unacceptable to me," he says. "And I began to become more conflicted about the music that I loved." The result is "HIP-HOP: Beyond Beats and Rhymes," a riveting documentary that tackles issues of masculinity, sexism, violence and homophobia in today's hip-hop culture.

Saving American Journalism. A radical plan to save journalism in America. Is good journalism going extinct? Fractured audiences and tight budgets have downsized or sunk many of the fourth estate's major battleships, including this very program. This week, NOW's David Brancaccio talks to Professor Bob McChesney and journalist John Nichols about the perils of a shrinking news media landscape, and their bold proposal to save journalism with government subsidies. Their new book is "The Death and Life of American Journalism: The Media Revolution that Will Begin the World Again." Should journalism get the next government bailout?

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here.

Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

As credit card companies face rising public anger, new regulation from Washington, and a potential perfect storm of economic bad news, FRONTLINE correspondent Lowell Bergman examines the future of the massive consumer loan industry and its impact on a fragile national economy. In a joint project with the New York Times--a follow-up to the Secret History of the Credit Card-Bergman and the Times talk to industry insiders, lobbyists, politicians, and consumer advocates as they square off over new regulation and the possible creation of a consumer finance protection agency. How are the credit, debit, and pre-paid card industries repositioning themselves to maintain high profits under the new rules? The stakes couldn't be higher as many fear the consumer loan industry could be at the center of the next crisis.

Computers, software and even cell phones have radically altered our relationship to mass culture and technology, providing consumers with the tools to become producers, or "remixers," of their own media. But long before everyday people began posting their video mash-ups on the Web, hip-hop musicians perfected the art of audio montage through a sport they called "sampling." "Copyright Criminals," a documentary by Benjamin Franzen and Kembrew McLeod, examines the creative and commercial value of musical sampling, including the ongoing debates about artistic expression, copyright law and (of course) money.

He has been portrayed in countless movies and television shows by some of Hollywood's greatest actors, including Henry Fonda, Jimmy Stewart and, more recently, Kevin Costner, but these popular fictions belie the complexities and flaws of a man whose life is a lens on politics, justice and economic opportunity on the American frontier. As a young man, Wyatt Earp was a caricature of the Western lawman, spending his days drinking in saloons, gambling, visiting brothels and gaining notoriety as the legendary gunman in the shootout at the OK Corral in Tombstone, Arizona. Shortly after his death in 1929, distressed Americans down on their luck transformed Wyatt Earp into a folk hero: a central figure in the American narrative of how the West was won, a man who took control of his own destiny.

Computers, software and even cell phones have radically altered our relationship to mass culture and technology, providing consumers with the tools to become producers, or "remixers," of their own media. But long before everyday people began posting their video mash-ups on the Web, hip-hop musicians perfected the art of audio montage through a sport they called "sampling." "Copyright Criminals," a documentary by Benjamin Franzen and Kembrew McLeod, examines the creative and commercial value of musical sampling, including the ongoing debates about artistic expression, copyright law and (of course) money.

Chaos on the Potomac, the Supreme Court guts campaign finance limits. Massachusetts elects a Republican senator, health care reform's on life support, plus we bring you an eye witness report on Haiti, tonight on Washington Week. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Let the American people decide how much money is enough. Sunshine really does work if you allow it to." Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-NY) said, "The Roberts court has turned back the clock on our democracy by over a century." In one major decision the Supreme Court rolls back decades of campaign finance limits. While political upheaval of another kind rocks the capital after Massachusetts voters picked Republican Scott Brown. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I think they sent a very, very powerful message that business as usual is not going to be the way we do it." How much will the 41st Republican senator weaken the president's agenda? President Barack Obama said, "It's just nice being out of Washington. Let me say. There're some nice people in Washington, but they can drive you crazy." And amid aftershocks and confusion, the world copes with the devastation in Haiti. Covering the week, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Alexis Simendinger of National Journal, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

The Haitian Revolution was the only successful slave insurrection in history. Its leaders grasped the full meaning of French revolutionary ideas and used them to create the world's first black republic. The event elevated a black general, Toussaint Louverture, to such international fame that admirers ranked him on par with George Washington. The movement has been called the birth moment of universal human rights. Vaguely remembered today, the Haitian Revolution was a hurricane at the turn of the 19th century, traumatizing Southern planters and inspiring U.S. slaves. ÉGALITÉ FOR ALL explores this history through music, voodoo ritual, powerful re-creations and the comments of insightful writers and historians.

Filmmaker Byron Hurt, a life-long hip-hop fan, was watching rap music videos on BET when he realized that each video was nearly identical. Guys in fancy cars threw money at the camera while scantily clad women danced in the background. As he discovered how stereotypical rap videos had become, Hurt, a former college quarterback turned activist, decided to make a film about the gender politics of hip-hop, the music and the culture that he grew up with. "The more I grew and the more I learned about sexism and violence and homophobia, the more those lyrics became unacceptable to me," he says. "And I began to become more conflicted about the music that I loved." The result is "HIP-HOP: Beyond Beats and Rhymes," a riveting documentary that tackles issues of masculinity, sexism, violence and homophobia in today's hip-hop culture.

As credit card companies face rising public anger, new regulation from Washington, and a potential perfect storm of economic bad news, FRONTLINE correspondent Lowell Bergman examines the future of the massive consumer loan industry and its impact on a fragile national economy. In a joint project with the New York Times--a follow-up to the Secret History of the Credit Card--Bergman and the Times talk to industry insiders, lobbyists, politicians, and consumer advocates as they square off over new regulation and the possible creation of a consumer finance protection agency. How are the credit, debit, and pre-paid card industries repositioning themselves to maintain high profits under the new rules? The stakes couldn't be higher as many fear the consumer loan industry could be at the center of the next crisis.

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

The State of the Union, divided, united, anxious, worried, or all of the above? We consider all the options tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "We don't quit. I don't quit." The president's big speech casts a spotlight on a critical political dilemma. President Obama said, "We have to recognize that we face more than a deficit of dollars right now. We face a deficit of trust." He took on Washington. President Obama said, "What frustrates the American people is a Washington where every day is Election Day." But blamed his own failings on poor communication. President Obama said, "I take my share of the blame for not explaining it more clearly to the American people." And today the president took his complaint directly to his most consistent detractors, House Republicans. Rep. Jason Chaffetz (R-UT) said, "I am one of 22 House freshmen. We didn't create this mess, but we are here to help clean it up." So what happens now? On job creation? On health care? On bipartisanship? Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "We're going to look for common ground, but we're not going to roll over on our principles." After a year of modest successes and setbacks, we assess the State of the Union with the reporters covering the week: Peter Baker of the New York Times, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Gloria Borger of CNN, and John Harris of Politico.

Saving American Journalism. A radical plan to save journalism in America. Is good journalism going extinct? Fractured audiences and tight budgets have downsized or sunk many of the fourth estate's major battleships, including this very program. This week, NOW's David Brancaccio talks to Professor Bob McChesney and journalist John Nichols about the perils of a shrinking news media landscape, and their bold proposal to save journalism with government subsidies. Their new book is "The Death and Life of American Journalism: The Media Revolution that Will Begin the World Again." Should journalism get the next government bailout?

What happens when two great predators come face to face in Yellowstone? The grizzly and the wolf. They couldn't be more different. The bear is a loner, ranging far and wide in search of a rich variety of resources. The wolf hunts to survive and finds its strength in speed and teamwork. Their strategies have taken them to the very top of Yellowstone, and it's no simple matter when they meet. In every encounter, the opposition must be measured, strengths must be tested, and risks must be carefully weighed. Each time, one of them will have a tactical advantage -- but which one, and when? What emerges as each remarkable scene unfolds, is the keen awareness that runs through all of Yellowstone. Elk and eagle, coyote and raven, otter and owl, every creature must assess, decide, and act. To fight or to flee? It's all in knowing your own strengths and limitations in the heat of the moment in Yellowstone.

The Balkan Peninsula is notorious for being one of the great battlegrounds of history. And yet, it possesses another side unknown to many, where ancient forests and vast wetlands harbor pristine wilderness, and sheer cliff walls and desolate plateaus preserve a seemingly unchanged past. Surveying these striking and stark landscapes, one might think they've ventured into the Middle-earth of J.R.R. Tolkien's Lord of the Rings. Indeed the Balkan Peninsula is home to a variety of regions that border on mythical. In Croatia's Kopacki Rit Wetlands, land mines keep people away, but enable native wildlife to thrive. Further south, Montenegro's Tara River carves through Europe's longest and deepest canyon, and neighboring forests provide refuge to rare animals such as the Balkan Lynx. To the east, millions of birds flock to the Danube Delta to feast on swarms of mosquitoes. And at the west of the Balkans is Skadar Lake, a remarkable landscape of peaks and water.

Saving Haiti's Mothers. On the ground in Haiti, working to save the lives of mothers during childbirth. Haiti's catastrophic earthquake, in addition to leaving lives and institutions in ruin, also exacerbated a longtime lethal risk in Haiti: Dying during childbirth. The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

Chaos on the Potomac, the Supreme Court guts campaign finance limits. Massachusetts elects a Republican senator, health care reform's on life support, plus we bring you an eye witness report on Haiti, tonight on Washington Week. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Let the American people decide how much money is enough. Sunshine really does work if you allow it to." Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-NY) said, "The Roberts court has turned back the clock on our democracy by over a century." In one major decision the Supreme Court rolls back decades of campaign finance limits. While political upheaval of another kind rocks the capital after Massachusetts voters picked Republican Scott Brown. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I think they sent a very, very powerful message that business as usual is not going to be the way we do it." How much will the 41st Republican senator weaken the president's agenda? President Barack Obama said, "It's just nice being out of Washington. Let me say. There're some nice people in Washington, but they can drive you crazy." And amid aftershocks and confusion, the world copes with the devastation in Haiti. Covering the week, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Alexis Simendinger of National Journal, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

While great strides are being made with global health issues like HIV/AIDS, maternal mortality figures worldwide have seen virtually no improvement in 20 years. Worldwide, over 500,000 women die each year during pregnancy. This week, a NOW team that had been working in Haiti during the earthquake reports on this deadly but correctable trend. They meet members of the Haitian Health Foundation (HHF), which operates a network of health agents in more than 100 villages, engaging in pre-natal visits, education, and emergency ambulance runs for pregnant women.

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

Chaos on the Potomac, the Supreme Court guts campaign finance limits. Massachusetts elects a Republican senator, health care reform's on life support, plus we bring you an eye witness report on Haiti, tonight on Washington Week. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Let the American people decide how much money is enough. Sunshine really does work if you allow it to." Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-NY) said, "The Roberts court has turned back the clock on our democracy by over a century." In one major decision the Supreme Court rolls back decades of campaign finance limits. While political upheaval of another kind rocks the capital after Massachusetts voters picked Republican Scott Brown. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I think they sent a very, very powerful message that business as usual is not going to be the way we do it." How much will the 41st Republican senator weaken the president's agenda? President Barack Obama said, "It's just nice being out of Washington. Let me say. There're some nice people in Washington, but they can drive you crazy." And amid aftershocks and confusion, the world copes with the devastation in Haiti. Covering the week, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Alexis Simendinger of National Journal, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

The State of the Union, divided, united, anxious, worried, or all of the above? We consider all the options tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "We don't quit. I don't quit." The president's big speech casts a spotlight on a critical political dilemma. President Obama said, "We have to recognize that we face more than a deficit of dollars right now. We face a deficit of trust." He took on Washington. President Obama said, "What frustrates the American people is a Washington where every day is Election Day." But blamed his own failings on poor communication. President Obama said, "I take my share of the blame for not explaining it more clearly to the American people." And today the president took his complaint directly to his most consistent detractors, House Republicans. Rep. Jason Chaffetz (R-UT) said, "I am one of 22 House freshmen. We didn't create this mess, but we are here to help clean it up." So what happens now? On job creation? On health care? On bipartisanship? Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "We're going to look for common ground, but we're not going to roll over on our principles." After a year of modest successes and setbacks, we assess the State of the Union with the reporters covering the week: Peter Baker of the New York Times, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Gloria Borger of CNN, and John Harris of Politico.

This program is an illuminating account of events too often relegated to footnotes in U.S. history - the black urban rebellions of the 1960s. Focusing on the six-day Newark, New Jersey, outbreak in mid-July, "Revolution '67" reveals how the disturbance began as spontaneous revolts against poverty and police brutality and ended as fateful milestones in America's struggles over race and economic justice. Voices from across the spectrum - activist Tom Hayden, journalist Bob Herbert, Mayor Sharpe James and other officials, National Guardsmen and Newark citizens - recall lessons as hard-earned then as they have been easy to neglect since. To some, he was one of America's greatest heroes: a brave and loyal guide who laid out a path for the westward-moving nation, an Indian tracker who could follow any trail, and a fearless warrior featured in dozens of best-selling novels. But to others, Christopher "Kit" Carson was a villain who waged a merciless crusade against Native Americans. In the end, his contradictions would define his legacy -- and tell the true story of how the West was won. American Experience premieres "Kit Carson," from Emmy Award-winning director Stephen Ives (New Orleans, Las Vegas: An Unconventional History, Seabiscuit). The 90-minute documentary draws upon rich archival materials, original recreations, and interviews with authors Hampton Sides and Sally Denton, Western historian Paul Hutton, Navajo historian Harry Walters, and more, to reveal the many facets of a complex and controversial figure who became a legend in his own lifetime.

"The Wonderful One," "The Trouble Man," "The Prince of Soul" -- he was the Motown star who challenged and changed the face of black music, embodying its evolution from roots in gospel, jazz and rhythm and blues to sophisticated pop and sexually, politically charged soul. Extensive performance footage and insight from Mary Wilson, Smokey Robinson, Gladys Knight, Mos Def, among many others, capture the tone and texture of a career that still leaves an indelible mark on the musical landscape.

The Haitian Revolution was the only successful slave insurrection in history. Its leaders grasped the full meaning of French revolutionary ideas and used them to create the world's first black republic. The event elevated a black general, Toussaint Louverture, to such international fame that admirers ranked him on par with George Washington. The movement has been called the birth moment of universal human rights. Vaguely remembered today, the Haitian Revolution was a hurricane at the turn of the 19th century, traumatizing Southern planters and inspiring U.S. slaves. ÉGALITÉ FOR ALL explores this history through music, voodoo ritual, powerful re-creations and the comments of insightful writers and historians.

A hundred years ago, in communities across the U.S., white residents forced thousands of black families to flee their homes. Even a century later, these towns remain almost entirely white. "Banished" tells the story of three of these communities and their black descendants, who return to learn their shocking histories. By investigating this little-known chapter in American history, the film takes a contemporary look at the legacy of racial cleansing. Through conversations with current residents and the descendants of those who were driven out, "Banished" contemplates questions of privilege, responsibility, denial, healing, reparations and identity. What can be done to redress past injustices? What is the ongoing impact of the expulsions on families and communities today? In the stories of black families whose land and livelihood were stolen, the film illustrates the limits of the American legal system and the need for creative forms of repair.

At the end of the American Revolution, thousands of African-American slaves risked everything to fight for the British in exchange for a promise of freedom. John Clarkson, a young Royal Navy lieutenant, was sent to North America by British abolitionists to fulfill that promise. According to plan, each slave would be resettled in Nova Scotia. However, when that frigid, rocky terrain proved inhospitable to those who had worked the cotton fields of the Deep South, Clarkson arranged for them to be transported across the Atlantic to Sierra Leone. Using journals, diaries and autobiographical accounts, writer-narrator Simon Schama (SIMON SCHAMA'S POWER OF ART) reconstructs this epic journey. Gripping dramatizations transport viewers from the slave plantations of Georgia to the bone-chilling cold of Nova Scotia to the trim parlors of Georgian England and finally to sweltering Sierra Leone, where Clarkson's dreams of a haven for former slaves would come to a tragic end.

As credit card companies face rising public anger, new regulation from Washington, and a potential perfect storm of economic bad news, FRONTLINE correspondent Lowell Bergman examines the future of the massive consumer loan industry and its impact on a fragile national economy. In a joint project with the New York Times--a follow-up to the Secret History of the Credit Card-Bergman and the Times talk to industry insiders, lobbyists, politicians, and consumer advocates as they square off over new regulation and the possible creation of a consumer finance protection agency. How are the credit, debit, and pre-paid card industries repositioning themselves to maintain high profits under the new rules? The stakes couldn't be higher as many fear the consumer loan industry could be at the center of the next crisis.

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

Chaos on the Potomac, the Supreme Court guts campaign finance limits. Massachusetts elects a Republican senator, health care reform's on life support, plus we bring you an eye witness report on Haiti, tonight on Washington Week. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Let the American people decide how much money is enough. Sunshine really does work if you allow it to." Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-NY) said, "The Roberts court has turned back the clock on our democracy by over a century." In one major decision the Supreme Court rolls back decades of campaign finance limits. While political upheaval of another kind rocks the capital after Massachusetts voters picked Republican Scott Brown. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I think they sent a very, very powerful message that business as usual is not going to be the way we do it." How much will the 41st Republican senator weaken the president's agenda? President Barack Obama said, "It's just nice being out of Washington. Let me say. There're some nice people in Washington, but they can drive you crazy." And amid aftershocks and confusion, the world copes with the devastation in Haiti. Covering the week, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Alexis Simendinger of National Journal, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

The State of the Union, divided, united, anxious, worried, or all of the above? We consider all the options tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "We don't quit. I don't quit." The president's big speech casts a spotlight on a critical political dilemma.

President Obama said, "We have to recognize that we face more than a deficit of dollars right now. We face a deficit of trust." He took on Washington. President Obama said, "What frustrates the American people is a Washington where every day is Election Day." But blamed his own failings on poor communication. President Obama said, "I take my share of the blame for not explaining it more clearly to the American people." And today the president took his complaint directly to his most consistent detractors, House Republicans. Rep. Jason Chaffetz (R-UT) said, "I am one of 22 House freshmen. We didn't create this mess, but we are here to help clean it up." So what happens now? On job creation? On health care? On bipartisanship? Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "We're going to look for common ground, but we're not going to roll over on our principles." After a year of modest successes and setbacks, we assess the State of the Union with the reporters covering the week: Peter Baker of the New York Times, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Gloria Borger of CNN, and John Harris of Politico.

In 1851, word spreads across the country of a beautiful area of California's Yosemite Valley, attracting visitors who wish to exploit the land's scenery for commercial gain and those who wish to keep it pristine. Among the latter is a Scottish-born wanderer named John Muir, for whom protecting the land becomes a spiritual calling. In 1864, Congress passes an act that protects Yosemite from commercial development for "public use, resort and recreation" - the first time in world history that any government has put forth this idea - and hands control of the land to California. Meanwhile, a "wonderland" in the northwest corner of the Wyoming territory attracts visitors to its bizarre landscape of geysers, mud pots and sulfur pits. In 1872, Congress passes an act to protect this land as well. Since it is located in a territory, rather than a state, it becomes America's first national park: Yellowstone.

PBS presents a preview of the new Ken Burns film NATIONAL PARKS: AMERICA'S BEST IDEA. The 12-hour, six-part documentary series, directed by Burns and co-produced with his longtime colleague, Dayton Duncan, who also wrote the script, is the story of an idea as uniquely American as the Declaration of Independence and just as radical: that the most special places in the nation should be preserved, not for royalty or the rich, but for everyone.

Sam Cooke put the spirit of the Black church into popular music -- creating a new sound and setting into motion a chain of events that forever altered the course of popular music and race relations in America. With "You Send Me" in 1957, Cooke became the first African American artist to reach #1 on both the R&B and the pop charts. It was groundbreaking. It was also risky for this young gospel performer to alienate his fans by embracing "the devil's music" -- but he proved, with his pop/gospel hybrid, that it was, indeed, possible to win over white teenage listeners and keep his faithful church followers intact.

In the second program, Alan Alda joins researchers studying our fellow simians -- mainly chimpanzees, our closest living relatives -- to discover both what we share with them and what new skills humans evolved since we went our separate ways. By watching -- and participating in -- experiments comparing chimps with children, he learns that human uniqueness lies in our ability to reason about things we can't observe, especially the content of others' minds, and to employ this skill in the collaborative enterprise we call civilization.

In the third program, viewers literally peer into Alda's head with a variety of high-tech imaging techniques, looking for his human spark. The unique circuitry that provides us with our most prized ability, language, is closely tied to another unique human skill, our ability to make and use complex tools. In his own brain, Alda finds the site of his ability to figure out what others are thinking. And in perhaps the biggest surprise, he discovers that the essential human spark, our ability to build alternative worlds in our heads - to imagine - lies in a brain region closely related to that used when thinking about others' minds - and that fires most fiercely when we are doing nothing at all.

Computers, software and even cell phones have radically altered our relationship to mass culture and technology, providing consumers with the tools to become producers, or "remixers," of their own media. But long before everyday people began posting their video mash-ups on the Web, hip-hop musicians perfected the art of audio montage through a sport they called "sampling." "Copyright Criminals," a documentary by Benjamin Franzen and Kembrew McLeod, examines the creative and commercial value of musical sampling, including the ongoing debates about artistic expression, copyright law and (of course) money.

Filmmaker Byron Hurt, a life-long hip-hop fan, was watching rap music videos on BET when he realized that each video was nearly identical. Guys in fancy cars threw money at the camera while scantily clad women danced in the background. As he discovered how stereotypical rap videos had become, Hurt, a former college quarterback turned activist, decided to make a film about the gender politics of hip-hop, the music and the culture that he grew up with. "The more I grew and the more I learned about sexism and violence and homophobia, the more those lyrics became unacceptable to me," he says. "And I began to become more conflicted about the music that I loved." The result is "HIP-HOP: Beyond Beats and Rhymes," a riveting documentary that tackles issues of masculinity, sexism, violence and homophobia in today's hip-hop culture.

Saving Haiti's Mothers. On the ground in Haiti, working to save the lives of mothers during childbirth. Haiti's catastrophic earthquake, in addition to leaving lives and institutions in ruin, also exacerbated a longtime lethal risk in Haiti: Dying during childbirth. Challenges in transportation, education, and quality health care contribute to Haiti having the highest maternal mortality rate in the Western Hemisphere, a national crisis even before the earthquake struck. While great strides are being made with global health issues like HIV/AIDS, maternal mortality figures worldwide have seen virtually no improvement in 20 years. Worldwide, over 500,000 women die each year during pregnancy. This week, a NOW team that had been working in Haiti during the earthquake reports on this deadly but correctable trend. They meet members of the Haitian Health Foundation (HHF), which operates a network of health agents in more than 100 villages, engaging in pre-natal visits, education, and emergency ambulance runs for pregnant women.

The disaster in Haiti, the challenges of the past, the present, and the future, plus, populist politics at the White House and maybe in Massachusetts, too, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "To the people of Haiti we say clearly and with conviction you will not be forsaken. You will not be forgotten. In this, your hour of greatest need, America stands with you." A terrible earthquake. AMB. Raymond Alcide Joseph said, "It's a major catastrophe for Haiti." A devastating death toll. We need more people down here. Grief and uncertainty everywhere. President Bill Clinton said, "The most urgent thing we can do now is get them through the next week, eight to 10 days. We have to find the living and the dead and we have to take care of both." Can Haiti, plagued by decades of deprivation, survive? In Washington, the president talks tough to bankers paying themselves big bonuses. President Obama said, "We want our money back and we're going to get it." But will taxpayers still pay in the end? And in Massachusetts, a potential political upset that could undo Ted Kennedy's legacy. Covering the week, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, and Dan Balz of the Washington Post. Plus, a special report from ABC's Martha Raddatz on the ground in Haiti.

At the end of the American Revolution, thousands of African-American slaves risked everything to fight for the British in exchange for a promise of freedom. John Clarkson, a young Royal Navy lieutenant, was sent to North America by British abolitionists to fulfill that promise. According to plan, each slave would be resettled in Nova Scotia. However, when that frigid, rocky terrain proved inhospitable to those who had worked the cotton fields of the Deep South, Clarkson arranged for them to be transported across the Atlantic to Sierra Leone. Using journals, diaries and autobiographical accounts, writer-narrator Simon Schama (SIMON SCHAMA'S POWER OF ART) reconstructs this epic journey. Gripping dramatizations transport viewers from the slave plantations of Georgia to the bone-chilling cold of Nova Scotia to the trim parlors of Georgian England and finally to sweltering Sierra Leone, where Clarkson's dreams of a haven for former slaves would come to a tragic end.

Filmmaker Byron Hurt, a life-long hip-hop fan, was watching rap music videos on BET when he realized that each video was nearly identical. Guys in fancy cars threw money at the camera while scantily clad women danced in the background. As he discovered how stereotypical rap videos had become, Hurt, a former college quarterback turned activist, decided to make a film about the gender politics of hip-hop, the music and the culture that he grew up with. "The more I grew and the more I learned about sexism and violence and homophobia, the more those lyrics became unacceptable to me," he says. "And I began to become more conflicted about the music that I loved." The result is "HIP-HOP: Beyond Beats and Rhymes," a riveting documentary that tackles issues of masculinity, sexism, violence and homophobia in today's hip-hop culture.

Saving Haiti's Mothers. On the ground in Haiti, working to save the lives of mothers during childbirth. Haiti's catastrophic earthquake, in addition to leaving lives and institutions in ruin, also exacerbated a longtime lethal risk in Haiti: Dying during childbirth. Challenges in transportation, education, and quality health care contribute to Haiti having the highest maternal mortality rate in the Western Hemisphere, a national crisis even before the earthquake struck. While great strides are being made with global health issues like HIV/AIDS, maternal mortality figures worldwide have seen virtually no improvement in 20 years. Worldwide, over 500,000 women die each year during pregnancy. This week, a NOW team that had been working in Haiti during the earthquake reports on this deadly but correctable trend. They meet members of the Haitian Health Foundation (HHF), which

Democrats and the New Politics of Abortion. Has the Democratic Party abandoned support of reproductive rights? To gain their historic control of Congress, Democrats fielded moderate candidates who didn't always follow the party line, especially when it came to abortion. Now that the Democratic Party has the legislative upper hand, are they willing to negotiate away reproductive rights for other political gains? This week, NOW goes to Allentown, Pennsylvania to ask: Are abortion rights now in jeopardy at the very hands of the party that has historically protected them? Among those interviewed are pro-life Democratic U.S. Representative Bart Stupak and former DNC Chairman Howard Dean.

On September 1, 1939 -- the first day of World War II in Europe -- President Franklin D. Roosevelt appealed to the warring nations to "under no circumstances undertake the bombardment from the air of civilian populations." Just six years later, British and American Allied forces had carried out a bombing campaign of unprecedented might over Germany's cities, claiming the lives of nearly half a million civilians. From International Emmy Award and Peabody Award-winning producer Zvi Dor-Ner (Israel's Next War, House of Saud) comes "The Bombing of Germany" a film that examines the defining moments of the offensive that led the U.S. across a moral divide. Weaving together interviews with WWII pilots and historians, and archival footage of the bombing and its aftermath, the film is a reminder of the dilemma imposed by war's civilian casualties, a topic that continues to resonate as America enters the eighth year of fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan.

From time immemorial, Native Americans have regarded the lands now called Yellowstone and Glacier as significant and sacred. Today, nearly 30 tribal nations maintain official ties to these national parks, and many tribal leaders consider ongoing Native involvement in these areas necessary to the long-term health of America's endangered indigenous cultures. In BEFORE THERE WERE PARKS: YELLOWSTONE AND GLACIER THROUGH NATIVE EYES, narrated by N. Scott Momaday, more than a dozen of these leaders and experts from across the region offer a respectful introduction to the knowledge that tribal people here have passed down for at least the past 12,000 years. Viewers discover why Glacier and Yellowstone are so important to American Indians -- for reasons far beyond their recent status as National Parks.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

IN DREAMS is the climactic and inspiring life and times - and music - of first generation Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame inductee Roy Orbison. This major one-hour documentary film deals with the saga of pop's most enigmatic and often underappreciated pioneer. For Orbison, whose rock and roll career spanned the 1950's through the 80's, ambition and stardom always took a back-seat to the purity and essence of his art, which history has judged to be a cornerstone of 20th century popular music. Heartbreak was no stranger to Orbison, who lost his first wife Claudette in a motorcycle accident in June of '66, and again only a year later lost two of their sons in a tragic fire. The melancholy in his songs resonated with listeners of all ages, but especially heartsick teenagers who knew how it felt to lose in love. He mesmerized an entire generation of fans in America - and more importantly, enduringly, through the U.K. and Europe with such classics as: "Only The Lonely," "Crying," "Oh, Pretty Woman," "Blue Bayou," and "You Got It" all of which are performed throughout the course of IN DREAMS. With this release, a wider audience than ever can now look, listen and learn what the legend of Roy Orbison was all about.

Blueprint America: Beyond the Motor City examines how Detroit, a symbol of America's diminishing status in the world, may come to represent the future of transportation and progress in America. Detroit is the crucible in which the nation's ability to move toward a modern 21st century transportation infrastructure is put to the test. The documentary shows how investments in the past--beginning with the construction of canals in the 18th century--profoundly shaped Detroit's physical layout, population growth and economic development. Before being dubbed the Motor City, Detroit was once home to the nation's most extensive streetcar system. In fact, it was that vast network of streetcars that carried workers to the area's many car factories. And it was the cars made in those factories that would soon displace the streetcars in Detroit--and in every major American city. Detroit's engineers went on to design the nation's first urban freeways and inspired much of America's 20th century transportation infrastructure system--from traffic signals to gas stations--that became the envy of the world. But over the last 30 years, much of the world has moved on, choosing faster, cleaner, more modern transportation and leaving America--and Detroit--behind. Viewers are taken on a journey beyond Detroit's blighted urban landscape to Spain, home to one of the world's most modern and extensive transit systems; to California, where voters recently said yes to America's first high speed rail system; and to Washington, where Congress will soon decide whether to finally push America's transportation into the 21st century.

One year after the deadliest domestic airline accident in seven years, FRONTLINE investigates the crash of Continental 3407 in Buffalo, NY, and discovers a dramatically changed airline industry, where regional carriers now account for half of the nation's daily departures. The rise of the regionals and arrival of low-cost carriers have been a huge boon to consumers, and the industry insists that the skies remain safe. But many insiders are worried that now, thirty years after airline deregulation, the aviation system is being stretched beyond its capacity to deliver service that is both cheap and safe.

Deficits and priorities, the beginning and the end of bipartisanship, gays in the military, and the politics of terror, tonight on Washington Week. Peter Orszag said, "One of the lingering problems in our financial markets, however, is access to credit for small businesses. That's why in this budget..." Sen. Judd Gregg (R-NH) said, "No, no, no, you can't make that type of statement with any legitimacy." Fireworks at a budget hearing? Fresh signs of broad disagreements in Washington, over spending and debt. President Barack Obama said, "We simply cannot continue to spend as if debts just don't have consequences." Over the balance of power and politics. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I'm hopeful that there'll be bipartisan negotiations. That's part of the problem, the fact that there is--it was always 60-40, 60-40. Over who gets to serve his or her country. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I cannot escape being troubled by the fact that we have in place a policy which forces young men and women to lie about who they are in order to defend their fellow citizens." And over who gets prosecuted for terrorism and how. Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC) said, "I believe it is inappropriate to give the mastermind of 9/11 full constitutional rights of an American citizen." Washington at war. We sort through it all with the reporters covering the week: Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Pete Williams of NBC News.

One year after the deadliest domestic airline accident in seven years, FRONTLINE investigates the crash of Continental 3407 in Buffalo, NY, and discovers a dramatically changed airline industry, where regional carriers now account for half of the nation's daily departures. The rise of the regionals and arrival of low-cost carriers have been a huge boon to consumers, and the industry insists that the skies remain safe. But many insiders are worried that now, thirty years after airline deregulation, the aviation system is being stretched beyond its capacity to deliver service that is both cheap and safe.

Democrats and the New Politics of Abortion. Has the Democratic Party abandoned support of reproductive rights? To gain their historic control of Congress, Democrats fielded moderate candidates who didn't always follow the party line, especially when it came to abortion. Now that the Democratic Party has the legislative upper hand, are they willing to negotiate away reproductive rights for other political gains? This week, NOW goes to Allentown, Pennsylvania to ask: Are abortion rights now in jeopardy at the very hands of the party that has historically protected them? Among those interviewed are pro-life Democratic U.S. Representative Bart Stupak and former DNC Chairman Howard Dean.

Deficits and priorities, the beginning and the end of bipartisanship, gays in the military, and the politics of terror, tonight on Washington Week. Peter Orszag said, "One of the lingering problems in our financial markets, however, is access to credit for small businesses. That's why in this budget..." Sen. Judd Gregg (R-NH) said, "No, no, no, you can't make that type of statement with any legitimacy." Fireworks at a budget hearing? Fresh signs of broad disagreements in Washington, over spending and debt. President Barack Obama said, "We simply cannot continue to spend as it if debts just don't have consequences." Over the balance of power and politics. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I'm hopeful that there'll be bipartisan negotiations. That's part of the problem, the fact that there is--it was always 60-40, 60-40. Over who gets to serve his or her country. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I cannot escape being troubled by the fact that we have in place a policy which forces young men and women to lie about who they are in order to defend their fellow citizens." And over who gets prosecuted for terrorism and how. Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC) said, "I believe it is inappropriate to give the mastermind of 9/11 full constitutional rights of an American citizen." Washington at war. We sort through it all with the reporters covering the week: Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Pete Williams of NBC News.

From time immemorial, Native Americans have regarded the lands now called Yellowstone and Glacier as significant and sacred. Today, nearly 30 tribal nations maintain official ties to these national parks, and many tribal leaders consider ongoing Native involvement in these areas necessary to the long-term health of America's endangered indigenous cultures. In BEFORE THERE WERE PARKS: YELLOWSTONE AND GLACIER THROUGH NATIVE EYES, narrated by N. Scott Momaday, more than a dozen of these leaders and experts from across the region offer a respectful introduction to the knowledge that tribal people here have passed down for at least the past 12,000 years. Viewers discover why Glacier and Yellowstone are so important to American Indians -- for reasons far beyond their recent status as National Parks.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

Over a single generation, the Web and digital media have remade nearly every aspect of modern culture, transforming the way we work, learn, and connect in ways that we're only beginning to understand. FRONTLINE producer Rachel Dretzin (Growing up Online) teams up with one of the leading thinkers of the digital age, Douglas Rushkoff (The Persuaders, Merchants of Cool), to continue to explore life on the virtual frontier. The film is the product of a unique collaboration with visitors to the Digital Nation Web site, who for the past year have been able to react to the work in progress and post their own stories online. Dretzin and her team report from the front lines of digital culture--from love affairs blossoming in virtual worlds, to the thoroughly wired classrooms of the future, to military bases where the Air Force is fighting a new form of digital warfare. Along the way, they begin to map the critical ways that technology is transforming us, and what we may be learning about ourselves in the process.

Deficits and priorities, the beginning and the end of bipartisanship, gays in the military, and the politics of terror, tonight on Washington Week. Peter Orszag said, "One of the lingering problems in our financial markets, however, is access to credit for small businesses. That's why in this budget..." Sen. Judd Gregg (R-NH) said, "No, no, no, you can't make that type of statement with any legitimacy." Fireworks at a budget hearing? Fresh signs of broad disagreements in Washington, over spending and debt. President Barack Obama said, "We simply cannot continue to spend as if debts just don't have consequences." Over the balance of power and politics. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I'm hopeful that there'll be bipartisan negotiations. That's part of the problem, the fact that there is--it was always 60-40, 60-40. Over who gets to serve his or her country. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I cannot escape being troubled by the fact that we have in place a policy which forces young men and women to lie about who they are in order to defend their fellow citizens." And over who gets prosecuted for terrorism and how. Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC) said, "I believe it is inappropriate to give the mastermind of 9/11 full constitutional rights of an American citizen." Washington at war. We sort through it all with the reporters covering the week: Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Pete Williams of NBC News.

Democrats and Republicans jockey for position in Washington, while Americans at home grow increasingly disenchanted with the spectacle. We look at the fallout, tonight on Washington Week. Pres. Barack Obama said, "I understand that McConnell and Reid are out doing snow angels on the South Lawn together." Well, not exactly. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Why are we going to talk about a bill that can't pass?" Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "What we need to do is start over." Bipartisanship remains elusive on the issues of the day, including how to fix health care and how to create jobs. Sen. Harry Reid (D-NV) said, "We feel that the American people need a message. The message that they need is that we're doing something about jobs." But as Americans clearly lose patience with their government, some are lining up to capitalize on that discontent. Former Gov. Sarah Palin said, "How's that hokey, changey stuff working out for you?" While discontent of another type roils Iran. We look at the week with the reporters covering the stories: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Janet Hook of the Los Angeles Times, and David Sanger of the New York Times.

From time immemorial, Native Americans have regarded the lands now called Yellowstone and Glacier as significant and sacred. Today, nearly 30 tribal nations maintain official ties to these national parks, and many tribal leaders consider ongoing Native involvement in these areas necessary to the long-term health of America's endangered indigenous cultures. In BEFORE THERE WERE PARKS: YELLOWSTONE AND GLACIER THROUGH NATIVE EYES, narrated by N. Scott Momaday, more than a dozen of these leaders and experts from across the region offer a respectful introduction to the knowledge that tribal people here have passed down for at least the past 12,000 years. Viewers discover why Glacier and Yellowstone are so important to American Indians -- for reasons far beyond their recent status as National Parks.

The Balkan Peninsula is notorious for being one of the great battlegrounds of history. And yet, it possesses another side unknown to many, where ancient forests and vast wetlands harbor pristine wilderness, and sheer cliff walls and desolate plateaus preserve a seemingly unchanged past. Surveying these striking and stark landscapes, one might think they've ventured into the Middle-earth of J.R.R. Tolkien's Lord of the Rings. Indeed the Balkan Peninsula is home to a variety of regions that border on mythical. In Croatia's Kopacki Rit Wetlands, land mines keep people away, but enable native wildlife to thrive. Further south, Montenegro's Tara River carves through Europe's longest and deepest canyon, and neighboring forests provide refuge to rare animals such as the Balkan Lynx. To the east, millions of birds flock to the Danube Delta to feast on swarms of mosquitoes. And at the west of the Balkans is Skadar Lake, a remarkable landscape of peaks and water.

Filmmaker John Grabowska presents a lyrical interpretation of the sweeping geologic story of Yellowstone, the world's first and most famous national park. Formation of glaciers, mountain ranges and the gigantic caldera of a supervolcano provide the saga of this special place. Filmed over two years through all seasons, the film delves deeply into the significance behind the scenery and illuminates the intimate bonds between the landscape and biology - how Yellowstone's geology influences where life exists and how it evolves. A short concluding film, "Yellowstone's Cascade Corner," features the portion of Yellowstone extending across the southwestern border of Montana into Idaho.

Democrats and Republicans jockey for position in Washington, while Americans at home grow increasingly disenchanted with the spectacle. We look at the fallout, tonight on Washington Week. Pres. Barack Obama said, "I understand that McConnell and Reid are out doing snow angels on the South Lawn together." Well, not exactly. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Why are we going to talk about a bill that can't pass?" Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "What we need to do is start over." Bipartisanship remains elusive on the issues of the day, including how to fix health care and how to create jobs. Sen. Harry Reid (D-NV) said, "We feel that the American people need a message. The message that they need is that we're doing something about jobs." But as Americans clearly lose patience with their government, some are lining up to capitalize on that discontent. Former Gov. Sarah Palin said, "How's that hopey, changey stuff working out for you?" While discontent of another type roils Iran. We look at the week with the reporters covering the stories: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Janet Hook of the Los Angeles Times, and David Sanger of the New York Times.

Deficits and priorities, the beginning and the end of bipartisanship, gays in the military, and the politics of terror, tonight on Washington Week. Judd Gregg (R-NH) said, "No, no, no, you can't make that type of statement with any legitimacy." Fireworks at a budget hearing? Fresh signs of broad disagreements in Washington, over spending and debt. President Barack Obama said, "We simply cannot continue to spend as if debts just don't have consequences." Over the balance of power and politics. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I'm hopeful that there'll be bipartisan negotiations. That's part of the problem, the fact that there is--it was always 60-40, 60-40. Over who gets to serve his or her country. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I cannot escape being troubled by the fact that we have in place a policy which forces young men and women to lie about who they are in order to defend their fellow citizens." And over who gets prosecuted for terrorism and how. Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC) said, "I believe it is inappropriate to give the mastermind of 9/11 full constitutional rights of an American citizen." Washington at war. From time immemorial, Native Americans have regarded the lands now called Yellowstone and Glacier as significant and sacred. Today, nearly 30 tribal nations maintain official ties to these national parks, and many tribal leaders consider ongoing Native involvement in these areas necessary to the long-term health of America's endangered indigenous cultures. In BEFORE THERE WERE PARKS: YELLOWSTONE AND GLACIER THROUGH NATIVE EYES, narrated by N. Scott Momaday, more than a dozen of these leaders and experts from across the region offer a respectful introduction to the knowledge that tribal people here have passed down for at least the past 12,000 years. Viewers discover why Glacier and Yellowstone are so important to American Indians -- for reasons far beyond their recent status as National Parks.

One year after the deadliest domestic airline accident in seven years, FRONTLINE investigates the crash of Continental 3407 in Buffalo, NY, and discovers a dramatically changed airline industry, where regional carriers now account for half of the nation's daily departures. The rise of the regionals and arrival of low-cost carriers have been a huge boon to consumers, and the industry insists that the skies remain safe. But many insiders are worried that now, thirty years after airline deregulation, the aviation system is being stretched beyond its capacity to deliver service that is both cheap and safe.

Democrats and the New Politics of Abortion. Has the Democratic Party abandoned support of reproductive rights? To gain their historic control of Congress, Democrats fielded moderate candidates who didn't always follow the party line, especially when it came to abortion. Now that the Democratic Party has the legislative upper hand, are they willing to negotiate away reproductive rights for other political gains? This week, NOW goes to Allentown, Pennsylvania to ask: Are abortion rights now in jeopardy at the very hands of the party that has historically protected them? Among those interviewed are pro-life Democratic U.S. Representative Bart Stupak and former DNC Chairman Howard Dean.

Deficits and priorities, the beginning and the end of bipartisanship, gays in the military, and the politics of terror, tonight on Washington Week. Peter Orzsag said, "One of the lingering problems in our financial markets, however, is access to credit for small businesses. That's why in this budget..." Sen. Judd Gregg (R-NH) said, "No, no, no, you can't make that type of statement with any legitimacy." Fireworks at a budget hearing? Fresh signs of broad disagreements in Washington, over spending and debt. President Barack Obama said, "We simply cannot continue to spend as if debts just don't have consequences." Over the balance of power and politics. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I'm hopeful that there'll be bipartisan negotiations. That's part of the problem, the fact that there is--it was always 60-40, 60-40. Over who gets to serve his or her country. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I cannot escape being troubled by the fact that we have in place a policy which forces young men and women to lie about who they are in order to defend their fellow citizens." And over who gets prosecuted for terrorism and how. Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC) said, "I believe it is inappropriate to give the mastermind of 9/11 full constitutional rights of an American citizen." Washington at war. We sort through it all with the reporters covering the week: Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Pete Williams of NBC News.

Democrats and Republicans jockey for position in Washington, while Americans at home grow increasingly disenchanted with the spectacle. We look at the fallout, tonight on Washington Week. Pres. Barack Obama said, "I understand that McConnell and Reid are out doing snow angels on the South Lawn together." Well, not exactly. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Why are we going to talk about a bill that can't pass?" Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "What we need to do is start over." Bipartisanship remains elusive on the issues of the day, including how to fix health care and how to create jobs. Sen. Harry Reid (D-NV) said, "We feel that the American people need a message. The message that they need is that we're doing something about jobs." But as Americans clearly lose patience with their government, some are lining up to capitalize on that discontent. Former Gov. Sarah Palin said, "How's that hopey, changey stuff working out for you?" While discontent of another type roils Iran. We look at the week with the reporters covering the stories: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Janet Hook of the Los Angeles Times, and David Sanger of the New York Times.

Over a single generation, the Web and digital media have remade nearly every aspect of modern culture, transforming the way we work, learn, and connect in ways that we're only beginning to understand. FRONTLINE producer Rachel Dretzin (Growing up Online) teams up with one of the leading thinkers of the digital age, Douglas Rushkoff (The Persuaders, Merchants of Cool), to continue to explore life on the virtual frontier. The film is the product of a unique collaboration with visitors to the Digital Nation Web site, who for the past year have been able to react to the work in progress and post their own stories online. Dretzin and her team report from the front lines of digital culture--from love affairs blossoming in virtual worlds, to the thoroughly wired classrooms of the future, to military bases where the Air Force is fighting a new form of digital warfare. Along the way, they begin to map the critical ways that technology is transforming us, and what we may be learning about ourselves in the process.

Blueprint America: Beyond the Motor City examines how Detroit, a symbol of America's diminishing status in the world, may come to represent the future of transportation and progress in America. Detroit is the crucible in which the nation's ability to move toward a modern 21st century transportation infrastructure is put to the test. The documentary shows how investments in the past--beginning with the construction of canals in the 18th century--profoundly shaped Detroit's physical layout, population growth and economic development. Before being dubbed the Motor City, Detroit was once home to the nation's most extensive streetcar system. In fact, it was that vast network of streetcars that carried workers to the area's many car factories. And it was the cars made in those factories that would soon displace the streetcars in Detroit--and in every major American city. Detroit's engineers went on to design the nation's first urban freeways and inspired much of America's 20th century transportation infrastructure system--from traffic signals to gas stations--that became the envy of the world. But over the last 30 years, much of the world has moved on, choosing faster, cleaner, more modern transportation and leaving America--and Detroit--behind. Viewers are taken on a journey beyond Detroit's blighted urban landscape to Spain, home to one of the world's most modern and extensive transit systems; to California, where voters recently said yes to America's first high speed rail system; and to Washington, where Congress will soon decide whether to finally push America's transportation into the 21st century.

One year after the deadliest domestic airline accident in seven years, FRONTLINE investigates the crash of Continental 3407 in Buffalo, NY, and discovers a dramatically changed airline industry, where regional carriers now account for half of the nation's daily departures. The rise of the regionals and arrival of low-cost carriers have been a huge boon to consumers, and the industry insists that the skies remain safe. But many insiders are worried that now, thirty years after airline deregulation, the aviation system is being stretched beyond its capacity to deliver service that is both cheap and safe.

Blueprint America: Beyond the Motor City examines how Detroit, a symbol of America's diminishing status in the world, may come to represent the future of transportation and progress in America. Detroit is the crucible in which the nation's ability to move toward a modern 21st century transportation infrastructure is put to the test. The documentary shows how investments in the past--beginning with the construction of canals in the 18th century--profoundly shaped Detroit's physical layout, population growth and economic development. Before being dubbed the Motor City, Detroit was once home to the nation's most extensive streetcar system. In fact, it was that vast network of streetcars that carried workers to the area's many car factories. And it was the cars made in those factories that would soon displace the streetcars in Detroit--and in every major American city. Detroit's engineers went on to design the nation's first urban freeways and inspired much of America's 20th century transportation infrastructure system--from traffic signals to gas stations--that became the envy of the world. But over the last 30 years, much of the world has moved on, choosing faster, cleaner, more modern transportation and leaving America--and Detroit--behind. Viewers are taken on a journey beyond Detroit's blighted urban landscape to Spain, home to one of the world's most modern and extensive transit systems; to California, where voters recently said yes to America's first high speed rail system; and to Washington, where Congress will soon decide whether to finally push America's transportation into the 21st century.

On September 1, 1939 -- the first day of World War II in Europe -- President Franklin D. Roosevelt appealed to the warring nations to "under no circumstances undertake the bombardment from the air of civilian populations." Just six years later, British and American Allied forces had carried out a bombing campaign of unprecedented might over Germany's cities, claiming the lives of nearly half a million civilians. From International Emmy Award and Peabody Award-winning producer Zvi Dor-Ner (Israel's Next War, House of Saud) comes "The Bombing of Germany" a film that examines the defining moments of the offensive that led the U.S. across a moral divide. Weaving together interviews with WWII pilots and historians, and archival footage of the bombing and its aftermath, the film is a reminder of the dilemma imposed by war's civilian casualties, a topic that continues to resonate as America enters the eighth year of fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Deficits and priorities, the beginning and the end of bipartisanship, gays in the military, and the politics of terror, tonight on Washington Week. Peter Orszag said, "One of the lingering problems in our financial markets, however, is access to credit for small businesses. That's why in this budget..." Sen. Judd Gregg (R-NH) said, "No, no, no, you can't make that type of statement with any legitimacy." Fireworks at a budget hearing? Fresh signs of broad disagreements in Washington, over spending and debt. President Barack Obama said, "We simply cannot continue to spend as if debts just don't have consequences." Over the balance of power and politics. Sen. Scott Brown (R-MA) said, "I'm hopeful that there'll be bipartisan negotiations. That's part of the problem, the fact that there is--it was always 60-40, 60-40. Over who gets to serve his or her country. Adm. Mike Mullen said, "I cannot escape being troubled by the fact that we have in place a policy which forces young men and women to lie about who they are in order to defend their fellow citizens." And over who gets prosecuted for terrorism and how. Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC) said, "I believe it is inappropriate to give the mastermind of 9/11 full constitutional rights of an American citizen." Washington at war. Democrats and the New Politics of Abortion. Has the Democratic Party abandoned support of reproductive rights? To gain their historic control of Congress, Democrats fielded moderate candidates who didn't always follow the party line, especially when it came to abortion. Now that the Democratic Party has the legislative upper hand, are they willing to negotiate away reproductive rights for other political gains? This week, NOW goes to Allentown, Pennsylvania to ask: Are abortion rights now in jeopardy at the very hands of the party that has historically protected them? Among those interviewed are pro-life Democratic U.S. Representative Bart Stupak and former DNC Chairman Howard Dean.

On August 25, 2008, just two months after undergoing surgery for a malignant brain tumor, "The Lion of the Senate" and the Kennedy family's lone male survivor -- Edward M. Kennedy -- surprised attendees with an unscheduled speech at the Democratic National Convention in Denver, Colorado. "As I look ahead, I am strengthened by family and friendship. So many of you have been with me in the happiest days and the hardest days. Together we have known success and seen setbacks, victory and defeat," Kennedy said. The Kennedy story is unlike any other: a saga of ambition, wealth, family loyalty and personal tragedy. From patriarch Joseph Kennedy's rise on Wall Street and frustrations in politics, John Kennedy's march to the White House, Robert Kennedy's near-certain presidential victory, preempted only by his tragic death, through Edward Kennedy's withdrawal from the 1980 Presidential race following the scandal of Chappaquiddick, the family legacy continues to influence politics.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

You want to know what really happened at the big health care summit, whether the economy is turning the corner, if your Toyota is safe? We'll answer your questions tonight on Washington Week. Rep. Joe Barton (R-TX) said, "Never have so many members of the House and Senate behaved so well for so long before so many television cameras." They did behave well, but they did not agree. Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "The solution to that is to put that on the shelf and to start over with a blank piece of paper." Sen. Max Baucus (D-MT) said, "The gaps in my judgment are not that great." Honest differences of opinion or rank partisanship. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Both of us during the campaign promised change in Washington." President Barack Obama said, "Let me just make this point, John, because we're not campaigning anymore. The election's over." Sen. McCain replied, "I'm reminded of that every day." One almost certain casualty: bipartisanship. But is there room for cross party cooperation on another key issue? The yeas are 70. The nays are 28. The Senate passes a jobs bill. And one of the world's most powerful businessmen receives a congressional scolding. Rep. Edolphus Towns (D-NY) said, "If the Camry and the Prius were airplanes, they would be grounded." Trouble at Toyota. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine, John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, and David Shepardson of the Detroit News.

Angry Voters. Will angry voters toss out the incumbents this fall? From the raucous Tea Party rallies to the painful sacrifices families are making behind closed doors, voter angst and anger are sweeping the country like a storm. Directly in its path: the 2010 midterm elections. This week, NOW examines the strong impact this groundswell has already had on electoral politics, and what we can expect in November. Our investigation uncovers what motivates people who've come together under the Tea Party banner, and how a larger national voter dissatisfaction spells trouble for incumbents in both parties.

In the devastating aftermath of the economic meltdown, FRONTLINE sifts the ashes for clues about why it happened and examines critical moments when it might have gone much differently. Looking back into the 1990s, producer/director Michael Kirk (Inside the Meltdown, Breaking the Bank) discovers early warnings of the crash, reveals an intense battle among high-ranking members of the Clinton administration, and uncovers a concerted effort not to regulate the emerging, highly complex, and lucrative derivatives markets, which would become the ticking time-bomb within the American economy.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

Is Washington broken? And if it is, who's supposed to fix it? How an Indiana senator shook up the capital, what it means for Democrats, Republicans, and for you, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Evan Bayh (D-IN) said, "We've got a lot of good people in Congress, but they're trapped in a dysfunctional system." If Congress is indeed dysfunctional, is the answer to flee? Rep. Lincoln Diaz-Balart (R-FL) said, "I will not seek a 10th term in the United States Congress this November." Rep. Patrick Kennedy (D-RI) said, "My life has taken a new direction and I will not be a candidate for reelection this year." With the White House agenda on the ropes, the President searches for the bright side. Pres. Barack Obama said, "One year later, it is largely thanks to the Recovery Act that a second depression is no longer a possibility." But has the opposition finally found its voice? Mitt Romney said, "The gold medal that was won last night by American Lindsey Vonn has been stripped. Yes, it was determined that President Obama has been going downhill faster than she has." (Laughter.) As Democrats and Republicans retreat to their corners, is the middle ground forever a lost? You want to know what really happened at the big health care summit, whether the economy is turning the corner, if your Toyota is safe? We'll answer your questions tonight on Washington Week. Rep. Joe Barton (R-TX) said, "Never have so many members of the House and Senate behaved so well for so long before so many television cameras." They did behave well, but they did not agree. Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "The solution to that is to put that on the shelf and to start over with a blank piece of paper." Sen. Max Baucus (D-MT) said, "The gaps in my judgment are not that great." Honest differences of opinion or rank partisanship. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Both of us during the campaign promised change in Washington." President Barack Obama said, "Let me just make this point, John, because we're not campaigning anymore. The election's over." Sen. McCain replied, "I'm reminded of that every day." One almost certain casualty: bipartisanship. But is there room for cross party cooperation on another key issue? The yeas are 70. The nays are 28. The Senate passes a jobs bill. And one of the world's most powerful businessmen receives a congressional scolding. Rep. Edolphus Towns (D-NY) said, "If the Camry and the Prius were airplanes, they would be grounded." Trouble at Toyota. MINE tells the poignant and powerful story of animals left behind during Katrina, and of the struggles of hurricane victims to reunite with their beloved pets. A meditation on the essential bond between humans and animals - MINE is an equally compelling story of race and class, and the power of compassion, in contemporary America. This film is shown with the short film HOME. HOME is a touching portrayal of the essence of home and the feeling of loss that occurs when home becomes a memory. Director Matthew Faust conveys his themes through a bittersweet, evocative archive of his family house in Chalmette, Louisiana that was flooded by Hurricane Katrina.

As the first wolves reintroduced into Yellowstone, the Druids are the most celebrated wolf pack in North America. Pioneers in the wilderness, they were at the heart of a massive scientific experiment to restore an entire ecosystem that began to break down without its wolves. Emmy Award-winning filmmaker Bob Landis spent more than three years with the these remarkable wolves, creating a spectacularly dramatic and intimate record of their lives, their great battles with rival wolf packs and the changing fortunes of the coyotes and foxes who share their home range in Yellowstone's beautiful Lamar Valley.

Florida's Everglades National Park is one of the last great wildlife refuges in the United States, home to numerous unique and endangered mammals, trees, plants, birds and turtles, as well as half a million alligators. However, the Everglades is also the dumping ground for many animal invaders more than 15 species of parrot, 75 kinds of fish and 30 different reptiles from places as far away as Africa, Asia and the Caribbean. All of the intruders found their way into the park either by accidental escape from pet owners or intentional release by people no longer wishing to care for an exotic species. Add to the mix tens of thousands of giant pythons, snakes that can grow to 20 feet and weigh nearly 300 pounds, some released into the wild by irresponsible pet owners, some escapees from almost 200 wildlife facilities destroyed by Hurricane Andrew in 1992. The predatory pythons slithered into this protected wilderness and thrived, and the refuge has consequently become less a haven than a killing ground every day since then.

In collaboration with National Geographic, NOVA follows the exploits of acclaimed photojournalist James Balog and a scientific team as they deploy time-lapse cameras in risky, remote locations in the Arctic, Alaska, and the Alps. Grappling with blizzards, fickle technology, and climbs up craggy precipices, the team must anchor cameras capable of withstanding sub-zero temperatures and winds up to 170 mph. The goal of Balog's team's perilous expedition: to create a unique photo archive of melting glaciers that could provide a key to understanding their runaway behavior and their potential to drive rising sea levels. Some models now project a one-meter sea level rise over the next century, which could displace millions of people everywhere from Florida to Bangladesh and require trillions of dollars in new coastal infrastructure investments. But, alarmingly, these models don't reflect recent findings that glaciers in Greenland and Antarctica are melting at an ever-faster rate. What explains this alarming acceleration, and just how do you figure out what's happening inside a gigantic wall of ice? In this high-action scientific adventure, NOVA investigates the mystery of the mighty ice sheets that will affect the fate of coastlines around the world.

Hunting Wolves, Saving Wolves. Is the Obama Administration breaking its promise to protect endangered species? Last year the Obama Administration removed federal protection from some of the wolves that had been restored to the northern Rockies under the Endangered Species Act. The move paved the way for controversial state-regulated wolf hunts. Wolf advocates strongly oppose the administration's decision saying the three states in the region, Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming need a cohesive management plan that allows for a much larger wolf population. "It was very disappointing when Secretary Salazar in the Obama Administration, signed off on this rushed-through Bush administration delisting package for wolves," said Doug Honnold, a lawyer with Earthjustice, who is representing conservation groups challenging the government's decision. The return of the gray wolf to the northern Rockies is considered to be the most successful wildlife reintroduction project in the history of the 27 year old Endangered Species Act. In 1995 and 1996, 66 gray wolves were relocated from Canada to Yellowstone National Park and central Idaho. Today there are more than 1,600 wolves in the region. For its part the federal government says that just 300 wolves are needed for legitimate recovery in the region. "Wolves are back and there's plenty of them in plenty of places. They're never really going anywhere," said Ed Bangs, the Northern Rockies Wolf Recovery Coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. More than a dozen conservation groups have sued the Interior Department to return federal protection to the northern Rockies wolves. Some believe the result of this legal debate is a litmus test for the Obama Administration's overall approach to wildlife issues and the Endangered Species Act.

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout -- one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

On August 25, 2008, just two months after undergoing surgery for a malignant brain tumor, "The Lion of the Senate" and the Kennedy family's lone male survivor -- Edward M. Kennedy -- surprised attendees with an unscheduled speech at the Democratic National Convention in Denver, Colorado. "As I look ahead, I am strengthened by family and friendship. So many of you have been with me in the happiest days and the hardest days. Together we have known success and seen setbacks, victory and defeat," Kennedy said. The Kennedy story is unlike any other: a saga of ambition, wealth, family loyalty and personal tragedy. From patriarch Joseph Kennedy's rise on Wall Street and frustrations in politics, John Kennedy's march to the White House, Robert Kennedy's near-certain presidential victory, preempted only by his tragic death, through Edward Kennedy's withdrawal from the 1980 Presidential race following the scandal of Chappaquiddick, the family legacy continues to influence politics.

You want to know what really happened at the big health care summit, whether the economy is turning the corner, if your Toyota is safe? We'll answer your questions tonight on Washington Week. Rep. Joe Barton (R-TX) said, "Never have so many members of the House and Senate behaved so well for so long before so many television cameras." They did behave well, but they did not agree. Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "The solution to that is to put that on the shelf and to start over with a blank piece of paper." Sen. Max Baucus (D-MT) said, "The gaps in my judgment are not that great." Honest differences of opinion or rank partisanship. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Both of us during the campaign promised change in Washington." President Barack Obama said, "Let me just make this point, John, because we're not campaigning anymore. The election's over." Sen. McCain replied, "I'm reminded of that every day." One almost certain casualty: bipartisanship. But is there room for cross party cooperation on another key issue? The yeas are 70. The nays are 28. The Senate passes a jobs bill. And one of the world's most powerful businessmen receives a congressional scolding. Rep. Edolphus Towns (D-NY) said, "If the Camry and the Prius were airplanes, they would be grounded." Trouble at Toyota. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine, John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, and David Shepardson of the Detroit News.

MINE tells the poignant and powerful story of animals left behind during Katrina, and of the struggles of hurricane victims to reunite with their beloved pets. A meditation on the essential bond between humans and animals - MINE is an equally compelling story of race and class, and the power of compassion, in contemporary America. This film is shown with the short film HOME. HOME is a touching portrayal of the essence of home and the feeling of loss that occurs when home becomes a memory. Director Matthew Faust conveys his themes through a bittersweet, evocative archive of his family house in Chalmette, Louisiana that was flooded by Hurricane Katrina.

Angry Voters. Will angry voters toss out the incumbents this fall? From the raucous Tea Party rallies to the painful sacrifices families are making behind closed doors, voter angst and anger are sweeping the country like a storm. Directly in its path: the 2010 midterm elections. This week, NOW examines the strong impact this groundswell has already had on electoral politics, and what we can expect in November. Our investigation uncovers what motivates people who've come together under the Tea Party banner, and how a larger national voter dissatisfaction spells trouble for incumbents in both parties.

Hunting Wolves, Saving Wolves. Is the Obama Administration breaking its promise to protect endangered species? Last year the Obama Administration removed federal protection from some of the wolves that had been restored to the northern Rockies under the Endangered Species Act. The move paved the way for controversial state-regulated wolf hunts. Wolf advocates strongly oppose the administration's decision saying the three states in the region, Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming need a cohesive management plan that allows for a much larger wolf population. "It was very disappointing when Secretary Salazar in the Obama Administration, signed off on this rushed-through Bush administration delisting package for wolves," said Doug Honnold, a lawyer with Earthjustice, who is representing conservation groups challenging the government's decision. The return of the gray wolf to the northern Rockies is considered to be the most successful wildlife reintroduction project in the history of the 27 year old Endangered Species Act. In 1995 and 1996, 66 gray wolves were relocated from Canada to Yellowstone National Park and central Idaho. Today there are more than 1,600 wolves in the region. For its part the federal government says that just 300 wolves are needed for legitimate recovery in the region. "Wolves are back and there's plenty of them in plenty of places. They're never really going anywhere," said Ed Bangs, the Northern Rockies Wolf Recovery Coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. More than a dozen conservation groups have sued the Interior Department to return federal protection to the northern Rockies wolves. Some believe the result of this legal debate is a litmus test for the Obama Administration's overall approach to wildlife issues and the Endangered Species Act.

Is Washington broken? And if it is, who's supposed to fix it? How an Indiana senator shook up the capital, what it means for Democrats, Republicans, and for you, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Evan Bayh (D-IN) said, "We've got a lot of good people in Congress, but they're trapped in a dysfunctional system." If Congress is indeed dysfunctional, is the answer to flee? Rep. Lincoln Diaz-Balart (R-FL) said, "I will not seek a 10th term in the United States Congress this November." Rep. Patrick Kennedy (D-RI) said, "My life has taken a new direction and I will not be a candidate for reelection this year." With the White House agenda on the ropes, the President searches for the bright side. Pres. Barack Obama said, "One year later, it is largely thanks to the Recovery Act that a second depression is no longer a possibility." But has the opposition finally found its voice? Mitt Romney said, "The gold medal that was won last night by American Lindsey Vonn has been stripped. Yes, it was determined that President Obama has been going downhill faster than she has." (Laughter.) As Democrats and Republicans retreat to their corners, is the middle ground forever a lost? Covering the week: Gloria Borger of CNN, Alexis Simendinger of National Journal, Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, and Eamon Javers of Politico.

You want to know what really happened at the big health care summit, whether the economy is turning the corner, if your Toyota is safe? We'll answer your questions tonight on Washington Week. Rep. Joe Barton (R-TX) said, "Never have so many members of the House and Senate behaved so well for so long before so many television cameras." They did behave well, but they did not agree. Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "The solution to that is to put that on the shelf and to start over with a blank piece of paper." Sen. Max Baucus (D-MT) said, "The gaps in my judgment are not that great." Honest differences of opinion or rank partisanship. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Both of us during the campaign promised change in Washington." President Barack Obama said, "Let me just make this point, John, because we're not campaigning anymore. The election's over." Sen. McCain replied, "I'm reminded of that every day." One almost certain casualty: bipartisanship. But is there room for cross party cooperation on another key issue? The yeas are 70. The nays are 28. The Senate passes a jobs bill. And one of the world's most powerful businessmen receives a congressional scolding. Rep. Edolphus Towns (D-NY) said, "If the Camry and the Prius were airplanes, they would be grounded." Trouble at Toyota. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine, John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, and David Shepardson of the Detroit News.

In collaboration with National Geographic, NOVA follows the exploits of acclaimed photojournalist James Balog and a scientific team as they deploy time-lapse cameras in risky, remote locations in the Arctic, Alaska, and the Alps. Grappling with blizzards, fickle technology, and climbs up craggy precipices, the team must anchor cameras capable of withstanding sub-zero temperatures and winds up to 170 mph. The goal of Balog's team's perilous expedition: to create a unique photo archive of melting glaciers that could provide a key to understanding their runaway behavior and their potential to drive rising sea levels. Some models now project a one-meter sea level rise over the next century, which could displace millions of people everywhere from Florida to Bangladesh and require trillions of dollars in new coastal infrastructure investments. But, alarmingly, these models don't reflect recent findings that glaciers in Greenland and Antarctica are melting at an ever-faster rate. What explains this alarming acceleration, and just how do you figure out what's happening inside a gigantic wall of ice? In this high-action scientific adventure, NOVA investigates the mystery of the mighty ice sheets that will affect the fate of coastlines around the world.

You want to know what really happened at the big health care summit, whether the economy is turning the corner, if your Toyota is safe? We'll answer your questions tonight on Washington Week. Rep. Joe Barton (R-TX) said, "Never have so many members of the House and Senate behaved so well for so long before so many television cameras." They did behave well, but they did not agree. Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "The solution to that is to put that on the shelf and to start over with a blank piece of paper." Sen. Max Baucus (D-MT) said, "The gaps in my judgment are not that great." Honest differences of opinion or rank partisanship. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Both of us during the campaign promised change in Washington." President Barack Obama said, "Let me just make this point, John, because we're not campaigning anymore. The election's over." Sen. McCain replied, "I'm reminded of that every day." One almost certain casualty: bipartisanship. But is there room for cross party cooperation on another key issue? The yeas are 70. The nays are 28. The Senate passes a jobs bill. And one of the world's most powerful businessmen receives a congressional scolding. Rep. Edolphus Towns (D-NY) said, "If the Camry and the Prius were airplanes, they would be grounded." Trouble at Toyota. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine, John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, and David Shepardson of the Detroit News.

This feature documentary traces the life and work of American sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens (1848-1907) from his birth in Dublin, Ireland, to his work in New York City and Paris to his death in Cornish, New Hampshire. Trained in Paris and Rome, Saint-Gaudens is considered America's premier sculptor of the 19th and early 20th centuries. During a career that spanned three decades, Saint-Gaudens created nearly 150 works of art, including a number of major public monuments to heroes of the Civil War. The story of his personal life is woven around in-depth studies of five of his major works of art, including the contemplative Standing Lincoln in Lincoln Park, Chicago; the moving Shaw Memorial on Boston Common; the powerful Sherman Monument in Central Park; the serene Diana in the Philadelphia Museum of Art; and the stirring Adams Memorial in Washington, DC. Actor Victor Garber narrates.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

In 1779, George Washington brought over ten thousand troops to Morristown, New Jersey, where they struggled to survive the worst winter in recorded history, with the American Revolution hanging in the balance. The Continental Army cleared two thousand acres of trees to build their huts in a place called Jockey Hollow, making it the fifth largest "city" in population at the time. There soldiers suffered through a long series of snow storms that sealed them off from supplies of food and clothing. Washington's army was falling apart as the British waited in New York to make their move. When the British attacked in the spring, these same soldiers who'd starved through the winter rallied with local militia to turn the British back. The Morristown story has never received the attention it deserves. Morristown: Where America Survived revisits that "Hard Winter" of 1780 when the entire eastern seaboard was hit by major snowfalls and unrelenting freezing temperatures. It follows the soldiers' experiences through the winter and into the springtime clashes with the British. Primary quotes flesh out the story, from the letters of George Washington to the recollections of Joseph Plumb Martin, who left one of the only detailed accounts of life for a young private at Morristown. The film is narrated award-winning actor Edward Herrmann.

"Objects and Memory" examines the response to items recovered or offered after 9/11 and other national tragedies. The film uses objects and accounts of people whose lives were affected, interviews with historians and poignant, powerful photographic images. Why do people value objects? What is it about a piece of paper, a chunk of metal or a small coin that provokes such powerful memories? Without the objects, the stories would lack vibrancy; without the stories, the objects would lack significance. Taken together, images of these objects, the memories they evoke and the accounts of their collection lead viewers on a path where the commonplace is transformed into the remarkable and the stuff of history is highly personalized. The program, set to the music of Philip Glass, is narrated by Frank Langella.

TIME TEAM AMERICA goes in search of our nation's mysterious roots at Roanoke Island. In 1586 the English sent the first group of hardy, hopeful colonists to make a go of it in the New World. But when English ships returned with supplies just three years later, they found the settlement empty and colonists gone. The colonists had left behind only one clue: the word Croatan carved in the gatepost of their fort. It took 20 years for the stunned English to establish another settlement in America. The fate of the Roanoke colonists remains one of the most chilling and maddening questions of American history. TIME

TEAM AMERICA spends three days at Fort Raleigh in hot pursuit of archaeological evidence that will put the ghost of Roanoke to rest, and establish where the first colony in America was actually located.

TIME TEAM AMERICA wades into the swamps of South Carolina to find the truth about North America's first human inhabitants. Experts debate about when people first came to this land. Did they follow big game across the continent 15,000 years ago or did they arrive much, much earlier? TIME TEAM AMERICA has just three days to search out evidence that could shed light on the controversy. What they find could rock the archaeological world. Along the way, they glimpse what life was like in North America 15,000 years ago, and what may have happened to the continent's first people.

TIME TEAM AMERICA digs for the remains of the first American town founded by former slaves. In 1836 "Free Frank" McWorter purchased his freedom from a Kentucky plantation owner and headed North. When he reached Illinois, he planted roots, started a town, and sold enough property to purchase the rest of his family out of slavery. Now a farmer's field covers this dramatic testament to victory over enslavement. The local landowners and the McWorter family want to uncover what remains of New Philadelphia to memorialize its history and the history of their ancestors. TIME TEAM joins in the search for the remains of the schoolhouse where New Philadelphia's black children learned to read and write in freedom.

This feature documentary traces the life and work of American sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens (1848-1907) from his birth in Dublin, Ireland, to his work in New York City and Paris to his death in Cornish, New Hampshire. Trained in Paris and Rome, Saint-Gaudens is considered America's premier sculptor of the 19th and early 20th centuries. During a career that spanned three decades, Saint-Gaudens created nearly 150 works of art, including a number of major public monuments to heroes of the Civil War. The story of his personal life is woven around in-depth studies of five of his major works of art, including the contemplative Standing Lincoln in Lincoln Park, Chicago; the moving Shaw Memorial on Boston Common; the powerful Sherman Monument in Central Park; the serene Diana in the Philadelphia Museum of Art; and the stirring Adams Memorial in Washington, DC. Actor Victor Garber narrates.

Food, Inc. Behind the food we love--Secrets that giant food companies don't want you to know. Americans have a longstanding love affair with food--the modern supermarket has, on average, 47,000 products. But do we really know what goes into making the products we so eagerly consume? This week, David Brancaccio talks with Robert Kenner, director of the Oscar-nominated documentary "Food, Inc.," which takes a hard look at the secretive and surprising journey food takes on the way from processing plants to our dinner tables. The two discuss why contemporary food processing secrets are so closely guarded, their impact on our health, and another surprising fact: how consumers are actually empowered to make a difference. Find out why you'll never look at dinner the same way.

Crazy consequential politics, a stew of ultimatum, accusation and policy prescription. We cover it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "No matter which approach you favor, I believe the United States Congress owes the American people a final vote on healthcare reform." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "The only thing that will be bipartisan about this proposal is the opposition to it."

Healthcare heads towards high noon. Will the president's plan to forge ahead without Republican support work? Should it? Plus, what are they putting in the political water? The House Ways and Means Committee chairman steps aside. Rep. Charles Rangel (D-NY) said, "I should not do anything that would impede the success of other Democrats." A freshman lawmaker quits under a cloud. New York's governor teeters on the edge of resignation. Gov. David Paterson (D-NY) said, "When the truth comes out, I'm confident that I'll be vindicated." And a retiring Republican holds the Senate hostage for days over a jobs bill. Sen. Jim Bunning (R-KY) said, "It's not a filibuster when you object." All in a week when the nation's unemployment rate remains stubbornly stuck at 9.7 percent. We explain the story behind the stories with Jeanne Cummings of Politico; Michael Duffy of Time magazine; and John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times.

Food, Inc. Behind the food we love--Secrets that giant food companies don't want you to know. Americans have a longstanding love affair with food--the modern supermarket has, on average, 47,000 products. But do we really know what goes into making the products we so eagerly consume? This week, David Brancaccio talks with Robert Kenner, director of the Oscar-nominated documentary "Food, Inc.," which takes a hard look at the secretive and surprising journey food takes on the way from processing plants to our dinner tables. The two discuss why contemporary food processing secrets are so closely guarded, their impact on our health, and another surprising fact: how consumers are actually empowered to make a difference. Find out why you'll never look at dinner the same way.

On Thin Ice. Two men on a remarkable journey high in the Himalayas investigate threats to global water and food supply. Seventy-five percent of the world's fresh water is stored in glaciers, but scientists predict climate change will cause some of the world's largest glaciers to completely melt by 2030. What effect will this have on our daily lives, especially our water and food supply? With global warming falling low on a national list of American concerns, it's time to take a deeper look at what could be a global calamity in the making. This week, David Brancaccio and environmentalist Conrad Anker--one of the world's leading high altitude climbers--trek to the Gangotri Glacier in the Himalayan Mountains, the source of the Ganges River, to witness the great melt and its dire consequences first-hand. The two also visit Montana's Glacier National Park to see the striking effects of global warming closer to home and learn how melting glaciers across the world can have a direct impact on food prices in the U.S. Along the way, Brancaccio and Anker bathe in the River Ganges, view a water shortage calamity in India, and see with their own eyes and cameras the tangible costs of climate change. "We can't take climate change and put it on the back burner," warns Anker. "If we don't address climate change, we won't be around as humans."

Do we have the right to end our lives if life itself becomes unbearable, or when we enter the late-stages of painful, terminal illness? The questions, debated for centuries, have only grown more pressing in recent years as medical technology has allowed us to live longer lives, and several U.S. states have legalized physician-assisted suicide. With unique access to Dignitas, the Swiss non-profit that has helped over one thousand people die since 1998, Academy award-winning filmmaker John Zaritsky offers a revealing look a couple facing the most difficult decision of their lives--and lets us see for ourselves as one Chicago native makes the trip to Switzerland for what will become the last day of his life.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

"Objects and Memory" examines the response to items recovered or offered after 9/11 and other national tragedies. The film uses objects and accounts of people whose lives were affected, interviews with historians and poignant, powerful photographic images. Why do people value objects? What is it about a piece of paper, a chunk of metal or a small coin that provokes such powerful memories? Without the objects, the stories would lack vibrancy; without the stories, the objects would lack significance. Taken together, images of these objects, the memories they evoke and the accounts of their collection lead viewers on a path where the commonplace is transformed into the remarkable and the stuff of history is highly personalized. The program, set to the music of Philip Glass, is narrated by Frank Langella.

TIME TEAM AMERICA wades into the swamps of South Carolina to find the truth about North America's first human inhabitants. Experts debate about when people first came to this land. Did they follow big game across the continent 15,000 years ago or did they arrive much, much earlier? TIME TEAM AMERICA has just three days to search out evidence that could shed light on the controversy. What they find could rock the archaeological world. Along the way, they glimpse what life was like in North America 15,000 years ago, and what may have happened to the continent's first people.

TIME TEAM AMERICA heads to the picturesque and remote canyons of southern Utah to examine what remains of the Fremont Indians who vanished 1,000 years ago. The Fremont stashed their food in clay granaries high on the cliffs of these canyons. They entered their underground homes through a hole in the ceiling, and they decorated rock walls with petroglyphs that remain a mystery to this day. Utah's state archaeologist calls in TIME TEAM AMERICA to examine some of the most pristine and puzzling archaeology in the United States. The team probes the ground, scales the cliffs, and learns what life was like in these canyons a thousand years ago.

Crazy consequential politics, a stew of ultimatum, accusation and policy prescription. We cover it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "No matter which approach you favor, I believe the United States Congress owes the American people a final vote on healthcare reform." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "The only thing that will be bipartisan about this proposal is the opposition to it." Healthcare heads towards high noon. Will the president's plan to forge ahead without Republican support work? Should it? Plus, what are they putting in the political water? The House Ways and Means Committee chairman steps aside. Rep. Charles Rangel (D-NY) said, "I should not do anything that would impede the success of other Democrats." A freshman lawmaker quits under a cloud. New York's governor teeters on the edge of resignation. Gov. David Paterson (D-NY) said, "When the truth comes out, I'm confident that I'll be vindicated." And a retiring Republican holds the Senate hostage for days over a jobs bill. Sen. Jim Bunning (R-KY) said, "It's not a filibuster when you object." All in a week when the nation's unemployment rate remains stubbornly stuck at 9.7 percent. We explain the story behind the stories with Jeanne Cummings of Politico; Michael Duffy of Time magazine; and John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times.

In the animal world females often call the shots. But their decisions may be surprising. In an effort to understand the mating game, NATURE follows biologist Chadden Hunter, PhD, through the Simien Mountains of northern Ethiopia, as he observes a troop of geladas, close cousins of baboons. He found that in gelada society females make all the decisions about mating, even though males are twice their size. The males are evaluated on everything from body heat to baby sitting skills. And once selected, no male gelada can ever rest on his laurels. Another male is always auditioning for his job. You'll also see female barn swallows that choose a male by the color of his chest and encounter a robotic sage grouse that is helping researchers learn about this species' elaborate courtship displays.

The loneliest animals are the most endangered species on the planet. Collected and protected by dedicated scientists, these animals represent the end of the line for their species. In many cases, intensive captive breeding programs have been launched with the aim of sustaining these animals and the hope of returning them to the wild. Viewers are taken into high-security, high-tech labs where scientists attempt to breed new generations and into the field to discover what forces have led to the demise of entire species. Featured animals include Yangtze turtles under 24-hour surveillance; a baby Sumatran rhino; a special collection of lemurs; the Spix's macaw, a bird declared extinct in the wild in 2000; and "Lonesome George," a giant tortoise from the Galapagos, who is the last of his kind.

On Thin Ice. Two men on a remarkable journey high in the Himalayas investigate threats to global water and food supply. Seventy-five percent of the world's fresh water is stored in glaciers, but scientists predict climate change will cause some of the world's largest glaciers to completely melt by 2030. What effect will this have on our daily lives, especially our water and food supply? With global warming falling low on a national list of American concerns, it's time to take a deeper look at what could be a global calamity in the making. This week, David Brancaccio and environmentalist Conrad Anker--one of the world's leading high altitude climbers--trek to the Gangotri Glacier in the Himalayan Mountains, the source of the Ganges River, to witness the great melt and its dire consequences first-hand. The two also visit Montana's Glacier National Park to see the striking effects of global warming closer to home and learn how melting glaciers across the world can have a direct impact on food prices in the U.S. Along the way, Brancaccio and Anker bathe in the River Ganges, view a water shortage calamity in India, and see with their own eyes and cameras the tangible costs of climate change. "We can't take climate change and put it on the back burner," warns Anker. "If we don't address climate change, we won't be around as humans."

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout -- one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

Food, Inc. Behind the food we love--Secrets that giant food companies don't want you to know. Americans have a longstanding love affair with food--the modern supermarket has, on average, 47,000 products. But do we really know what goes into making the products we so eagerly consume? This week, David Brancaccio talks with Robert Kenner, director of the Oscar-nominated documentary "Food, Inc.," which takes a hard look at the secretive and surprising journey food takes on the way from processing plants to our dinner tables. The two discuss why contemporary food processing secrets are so closely guarded, their impact on our health, and another surprising fact: how consumers are actually empowered to make a difference. Find out why you'll never look at dinner the same way.

Crazy consequential politics, a stew of ultimatum, accusation and policy prescription. We cover it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "No matter which approach you favor, I believe the United States Congress owes the American people a final vote on healthcare reform." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "The only thing that will be bipartisan about this proposal is the opposition to it." Healthcare heads towards high noon. Will the president's plan to forge ahead without Republican support work? Should it? Plus, what are they putting in the political water? The House Ways and Means Committee chairman steps aside. Rep. Charles Rangel (D-NY) said, "I should not do anything that would impede the success of other Democrats." A freshman lawmaker quits under a cloud. New York's governor teeters on the edge of resignation. Gov. David Paterson (D-NY) said, "When the truth comes out, I'm confident that I'll be vindicated." And a retiring Republican holds the Senate hostage for days over a jobs bill. Sen. Jim Bunning (R-KY) said, "It's not a filibuster when you object." All in a week when the nation's unemployment rate remains stubbornly stuck at 9.7 percent. We explain the story behind the stories with Jeanne Cummings of Politico; Michael Duffy of Time magazine; and John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times.

We'll tell you how disgruntled Democrats, disaffected Republicans and disgraced congressman could make or break health care reform, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "Look, health care. (Laughter.) This health care debate has been hard on my health. I've got to tell you." It's been hard on the President's political health too. Everywhere he looks, there are fresh fires to be put out, threats from Republicans. Sen. Lamar Alexander (R-TN) said, "We believe that what the president is doing is asking House Democrats to hold hands, jump off cliff, and hope Harry Reid catches them." Threats from Democrats. Gov. Howard Dean said, "There are going to be 535 people that vote on this bill and we're going to check every single one of them and in November we're going to hold them accountable." And of course, distractions, especially the curious case of Eric Massa. Mr. Eric Massa said, "I'm collateral damage. I'm road kill. In 72 hours nobody is going to remember who I am, nor are they going to care." And the Capitol's fascination with the president's chief of staff. Covering the story behind the stories: Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

TIME TEAM AMERICA digs for the remains of the first American town founded by former slaves. In 1836 "Free Frank" McWorter purchased his freedom from a Kentucky plantation owner and headed North. When he reached Illinois, he planted roots, started a town, and sold enough property to purchase the rest of his family out of slavery. Now a farmer's field covers this dramatic testament to victory over enslavement. The local landowners and the McWorter family want to uncover what remains of New Philadelphia to memorialize its history and the history of their ancestors. TIME TEAM joins in the search for the remains of the schoolhouse where New Philadelphia's black children learned to read and write in freedom.

Crazy consequential politics, a stew of ultimatum, accusation and policy prescription. We cover it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "No matter which approach you favor, I believe the United States Congress owes the American people a final vote on healthcare reform." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "The only thing that will be bipartisan about this proposal is the opposition to it." Healthcare heads towards high noon. Will the president's plan to forge ahead without Republican support work? Should it? Plus, what are they putting in the political water? The House Ways and Means Committee chairman steps aside. Rep. Charles Rangel (D-NY) said, "I should not do anything that would impede the success of other Democrats." A freshman lawmaker quits under a cloud. New York's governor teeters on the edge of resignation. Gov. David Paterson (D-NY) said, "When the truth comes out, I'm confident that I'll be vindicated." And a retiring Republican holds the Senate hostage for days over a jobs bill. Sen. Jim Bunning (R-KY) said, "It's not a filibuster when you object." All in a week when the nation's unemployment rate remains stubbornly stuck at 9.7 percent. We explain the story behind the stories with Jeanne Cummings of Politico; Michael Duffy of Time magazine; and John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times.

We'll tell you how disgruntled Democrats, disaffected Republicans and disgraced congressman could make or break health care reform, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "Look, health care. (Laughter.) This health care debate has been hard on my health. I've got to tell you." It's been hard on the President's political health too. Everywhere he looks, there are fresh fires to be put out, threats from Republicans. Sen. Lamar Alexander (R-TN) said, "We believe that what the president is doing is asking House Democrats to hold hands, jump off cliff, and hope Harry Reid catches them." Threats from Democrats. Gov. Howard Dean said, "There are going to be 535 people that vote on this bill and we're going to check every single one of them and in November we're going to hold them accountable." And of course, distractions, especially the curious case of Eric Massa. Mr. Eric Massa said, "I'm collateral damage. I'm road kill. In 72 hours nobody is going to remember who I am, nor are they going to care." And the Capitol's fascination with the president's chief of staff. Covering the story behind the stories: Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

The loneliest animals are the most endangered species on the planet. Collected and protected by dedicated scientists, these animals represent the end of the line for their species. In many cases, intensive captive breeding programs have been launched with the aim of sustaining these animals and the hope of returning them to the wild. Viewers are taken into high-security, high-tech labs where scientists attempt to breed new generations and into the field to discover what forces have led to the demise of entire species. Featured animals include Yangtze turtles under 24-hour surveillance; a baby Sumatran rhino; a special collection of lemurs; the Spix's macaw, a bird declared extinct in the wild in 2000; and "Lonesome George," a giant tortoise from the Galapagos, who is the last of his kind.

Since its discovery in 1930, Pluto has held a warm place in the public imagination. So, when the American Museum of Natural History's Hayden Planetarium stopped calling Pluto a planet, director Neil deGrasse Tyson found himself at the center of a firestorm--a firestorm led by angry, Pluto-loving elementary school students. But what is it about this cold, distant rock that captures so many hearts? NOVA joins Tyson as he follows the amazing story of its discovery and the captivating science that surrounds this former planet, including the possibility of finding more Pluto-like planets in the mysterious Kuiper belt--an area of icy rocks at the edge of the solar system. From the scientists trying to classify Pluto to die-hard "Pluto-philes," Tyson meets a fascinating cast of characters with just one thing in common: strong opinions about Pluto. Based on Tyson's book of the same name, Pluto Files is an exciting and entertaining look at the solar system's best-loved non-planet.

On Thin Ice. Two men on a remarkable journey high in the Himalayas investigate threats to global water and food supply. Seventy-five percent of the world's fresh water is stored in glaciers, but scientists predict climate change will cause some of the world's largest glaciers to completely melt by 2030. What effect will this have on our daily lives, especially our water and food supply? With global warming falling low on a national list of American concerns, it's time to take a deeper look at what could be a global calamity in the making. This week, David Brancaccio and environmentalist Conrad Anker--one of the world's leading high altitude climbers--trek to the Gangotri Glacier in the Himalayan Mountains, the source of the Ganges River, to witness the great melt and its dire consequences first-hand. The two also visit Montana's Glacier National Park to see the striking effects of global warming closer to home and learn how melting glaciers across the world can have a direct impact on food prices in the U.S. Along the way, Brancaccio and Anker bathe in the River Ganges, view a water shortage calamity in India, and see with their own eyes and cameras the tangible costs of climate change. "We can't take climate change and put it on the back burner," warns Anker. "If we don't address climate change, we won't be around as humans."

When he reached Illinois, he planted roots, started a town, and sold enough property to purchase the rest of his family out of slavery. Now a farmer's field covers this dramatic testament to victory over enslavement. The local landowners and the McWorter family want to uncover what remains of New Philadelphia to memorialize its history and the history of their ancestors. TIME TEAM joins in the search for the remains of the schoolhouse where New Philadelphia's black children learned to read and write in freedom.

TIME TEAM AMERICA heads to the picturesque and remote canyons of southern Utah to examine what remains of the Fremont Indians who vanished 1,000 years ago. The Fremont stashed their food in clay granaries high on the cliffs of these canyons. They entered their underground homes through a hole in the ceiling, and they decorated rock walls with petroglyphs that remain a mystery to this day. Utah's state archaeologist calls in TIME TEAM AMERICA to examine some of the most pristine and puzzling archaeology in the United States. The team probes the ground, scales the cliffs, and learns what life was like in these canyons a thousand years ago.

In 1779, George Washington brought over ten thousand troops to Morristown, New Jersey, where they struggled to survive the worst winter in recorded history, with the American Revolution hanging in the balance. The Continental Army cleared two thousand acres of trees to build their huts in a place called Jockey Hollow, making it the fifth largest "city" in population at the time. There soldiers suffered through a long series of snow storms that sealed them off from supplies of food and clothing. Washington's army was falling apart as the British waited in New York to make their move. When the British attacked in the spring, these same soldiers who'd starved through the winter rallied with local militia to turn the British back. The Morristown story has never received the attention it deserves.

Morristown: Where America Survived revisits that "Hard Winter" of 1780 when the entire eastern seaboard was hit by major snowfalls and unrelenting freezing temperatures. It follows the soldiers' experiences through the winter and into the springtime clashes with the British. Primary quotes flesh out the story, from the letters of George Washington to the recollections of Joseph Plumb Martin, who left one of the only detailed accounts of life for a young private at Morristown. The film is narrated award-winning actor Edward Herrmann.

"Objects and Memory" examines the response to items recovered or offered after 9/11 and other national tragedies. The film uses objects and accounts of people whose lives were affected, interviews with historians and poignant, powerful photographic images. Why do people value objects? What is it about a piece of paper, a chunk of metal or a small coin that provokes such powerful memories? Without the objects, the stories would lack vibrancy; without the stories, the objects would lack significance. Taken together, images of these objects, the memories they evoke and the accounts of their collection lead viewers on a path where the commonplace is transformed into the remarkable and the stuff of history is highly personalized. The program, set to the music of Philip Glass, is narrated by Frank Langella.

Fans of health care overhaul in history. We'll tell you how it happened, what's in it, and why the fight's still not over, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "Today, after almost a century of trying, today, after over a year of debate, today, after all the votes have been tallied, health insurance reform becomes law in the United States of America." It was a fight to the finish complete with sore losers and astonished winners. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Hell no, you can't." Rep. Mike Pence (R-IN) said, "We will work in every way to repeal this legislation and start over." Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "I believe that this is what we came here to do." Changes to Medicare, extended coverage for young adults and the uninsured and for prescription drugs, plus a nearly billion dollar price tag. Also this week, big developments with old allies and former enemies, as tensions build between the U.S. and Israel over a settlement freeze. Sec. Hillary Clinton said, "It exposes daylight between Israel and the United States that others in the region hope to exploit." And the U.S. agrees to a nuclear deal with Russia. Covering the week: Ceci Connolly of the Washington Post, Alexis Simendinger of National Journal, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, and Paul Richter of the Los Angeles Times.

Every 48 years, the inhabitants of the remote Indian state of Mizoram suffer a horrendous ordeal known locally as mautam. An indigenous species of bamboo, blanketing 30 percent of Mizoram's 8,100 square miles, blooms once every half-century, spurring an explosion in the rat population which feeds off the bamboo's fruit. The rats run amok, destroying crops and precipitating a crippling famine throughout Mizoram. NOVA follows this gripping tale of nature's capacity to engender human suffering, and investigates the botanical mystery of why the bamboo flowers and why the rats attack with clockwork precision every half-century.

It was hailed by the New York Times as "surgery of the soul," a groundbreaking medical procedure that promised hope to the most distressed mentally ill patients and their families. But what began as an operation of last resort was soon being performed at some fifty state asylums, often to devastating results. Little more than a decade after his rise to fame, Walter Freeman, the neurologist who championed the procedure, was decried as a moral monster, and lobotomy one of the most barbaric mistakes of modern medicine. American Experience presents "The Lobotomist," the gripping and tragic story of an ambitious doctor, the desperate families who sought his help, and the medical establishment that embraced him. From award-winning producers Barak Goodman and John Maggio (The Boy in the Bubble, The Fight), this one-hour film features interviews with Dr. Freeman's former patients and their families, his students, and medical historians, and offers an unprecedented look at one of the darkest chapters in psychiatric history.

John James Audubon - whose name became synonymous with American conservation - killed thousands of birds during his quest to create Birds of America, arguably the largest and most beautiful book of the 19th century. Audubon was at once entrepreneur, artist, scientist, husband, father, legend - and walking contradiction. Born in what is now Haiti, the illegitimate son of a French plantation owner and his mistress, Audubon ultimately became the quintessential American pioneer. On the frontier, he played the debonair European. In the drawing rooms of Europe, he acted the part of wild woodsman. Although faithful to his long-suffering wife, he nonetheless wrote her lengthy letters bursting with details of his encounters with other women. Jailed once for bankruptcy, he went on to dine at the White House. The self-taught artist and self-made man was praised by royalty, shunned by his in-laws and blackballed by the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences. AMERICAN MASTERS "John James Audubon: Drawn From Nature," details Audubon's epic adventures while capturing the full-scale beauty of his definitive book.

"Gasland." Will the boom in natural gas drilling contaminate America's water supply? In the debate over energy resources, natural gas is often considered a "lesser-of-evils". While it does release some greenhouse gases, natural gas burns cleaner than coal and oil, and is in plentiful supply--parts of the U.S. sit above some of the largest natural gas reserves on Earth. But a new boom in natural gas drilling, a process called "fracking," raises concerns about health and environmental risks. This week, NOW talks with filmmaker Josh Fox about "Gasland", his Sundance award-winning documentary on the surprising consequences of natural gas drilling. Fox's film--inspired when the gas company came to his hometown--alleges chronic illness, animal-killing toxic waste, disastrous explosions, and regulatory missteps.

When Elizabeth Arden and Helena Rubinstein started their businesses 100 years ago, makeup was worn mostly by prostitutes and performers, and businesses were run mostly by men. In a legendary 50-year rivalry, these two women changed that and transformed us. This program is based on the book "War Paint: Madame Helena Rubinstein & Miss Elizabeth Arden - Their Lives, Their Times, Their Rivalry by Lindy Woodhead." Jane Alexander narrates.

Now in his early 90s, I.M. Pei was invited to design a modern museum to house the antiquities of Suzhou. This film follows this personal and architectural journey from west to east, an expansive full-circle, a literal coming home -- a realization of Pei's lifelong dream. But also, his biggest challenge and, seven and a half years in the making, a work that he ultimately defines as "my biography." While Pei's perspective is always in the forefront, local residents, design specialists, Suzhou officials, architects, designers and scholars comment on Pei's life and work.

The ancient Maya civilization of Central America left behind an intricate and mysterious hieroglyphic script, carved on monuments, painted on pottery, and drawn in handmade bark-paper books. For centuries, scholars considered it too complex ever to understand -- until recently, when an ingenious series of breakthroughs finally cracked the code and unleashed a torrent of new insights into the Mayas' turbulent past. For the first time, NOVA presents the epic inside story of how the decoding was done -- traveling to the remote jungles of southern Mexico and Central America to investigate how the code was broken and what Maya writings now reveal.

TIME TEAM AMERICA heads to the picturesque and remote canyons of southern Utah to examine what remains of the Fremont Indians who vanished 1,000 years ago. The Fremont stashed their food in clay granaries high on the cliffs of these canyons. They entered their underground homes through a hole in the ceiling, and they decorated rock walls with petroglyphs that remain a mystery to this day. Utah's state archaeologist calls in TIME TEAM AMERICA to examine some of the most pristine and puzzling archaeology in the United States. The team probes the ground, scales the cliffs, and learns what life was like in these canyons a thousand years ago.

This documentary tells the story of the nation's best high school basketball coach, Bob Hurley, Sr. In his 36 years at St. Anthony's, he's won 23 state titles, three national championships with 957 career wins. The film reveals the coach's life-long struggle to inspire and motivate those around him to keep the doors open of a poor, inner-city Catholic High School in Jersey City, New Jersey. This is also the story about the teenage athletes fighting their way out of the poverty and desolation that surrounds them armed with little more than a basketball and the hard wisdom of a fierce, demanding coach.

"Gasland." Will the boom in natural gas drilling contaminate America's water supply? In the debate over energy resources, natural gas is often considered a "lesser-of-evils". While it does release some greenhouse gases, natural gas burns cleaner than coal and oil, and is in plentiful supply--parts of the U.S. sit above some of the largest natural gas reserves on Earth. But a new boom in natural gas drilling, a process called "fracking," raises concerns about health and environmental risks. This week, NOW talks with filmmaker Josh Fox about "Gasland", his Sundance award-winning documentary on the surprising consequences of natural gas drilling. Fox's film--inspired when the gas company came to his hometown--alleges chronic illness, animal-killing toxic waste, disastrous explosions, and regulatory missteps.

John James Audubon - whose name became synonymous with American conservation - killed thousands of birds during his quest to create Birds of America, arguably the largest and most beautiful book of the 19th century. Audubon was at once entrepreneur, artist, scientist, husband, father, legend - and walking contradiction. Born in what is now Haiti, the illegitimate son of a French plantation owner and his mistress, Audubon ultimately became the quintessential American pioneer. On the frontier, he played the debonair European. In the drawing rooms of Europe, he acted the part of wild woodsman. Although faithful to his long-suffering wife, he nonetheless wrote her lengthy letters bursting with details of his encounters with other women. Jailed once for bankruptcy, he went on to dine at the White House. The self-taught artist and self-made man was praised by royalty, shunned by his in-laws and blackballed by the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences. AMERICAN MASTERS "John James Audubon: Drawn From Nature," details Audubon's epic adventures while capturing the full-scale beauty of his definitive book.

An indigenous species of bamboo, blanketing 30 percent of Mizoram's 8,100 square miles, blooms once every half-century, spurring an explosion in the rat population which feeds off the bamboo's fruit. The rats run amok, destroying crops and precipitating a crippling famine throughout Mizoram. NOVA follows this gripping tale of nature's capacity to engender human suffering, and investigates the botanical mystery of why the bamboo flowers and why the rats attack with clockwork precision every half-century.

It was hailed by the New York Times as "surgery of the soul," a groundbreaking medical procedure that promised hope to the most distressed mentally ill patients and their families. But what began as an operation of last resort was soon being performed at some fifty state asylums, often to devastating results. Little more than a decade after his rise to fame, Walter Freeman, the neurologist who championed the procedure, was decried as a moral monster, and lobotomy one of the most barbaric mistakes of modern medicine. American Experience presents "The Lobotomist," the gripping and tragic story of an ambitious doctor, the desperate families who sought his help, and the medical establishment that embraced him. From award-winning producers Barak Goodman and John Maggio (The Boy in the Bubble, The Fight), this one-hour film features interviews with Dr. Freeman's former patients and their families, his students, and medical historians, and offers an unprecedented look at one of the darkest chapters in psychiatric history.

LOS NINOS EN SU CASA is a Spanish-language companion to the English-language series A PLACE OF OUR OWN. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

"Gasland." Will the boom in natural gas drilling contaminate America's water supply? In the debate over energy resources, natural gas is often considered a "lesser-of-evils". While it does release some greenhouse gases, natural gas burns cleaner than coal and oil, and is in plentiful supply--parts of the U.S. sit above some of the largest natural gas reserves on Earth. But a new boom in natural gas drilling, a process called "fracking," raises concerns about health and environmental risks. This week, NOW talks with filmmaker Josh Fox about "Gasland", his Sundance award-winning documentary on the surprising consequences of natural gas drilling. Fox's film--inspired when the gas company came to his hometown--alleges chronic illness, animal-killing toxic waste, disastrous explosions, and regulatory missteps.

We've said it before and we'll say it again. This weekend, this very weekend, we'll be the turning point on health care. We'll tell you why we might actually be right this time, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "We keep on going. We are going to get this done." The president is revved up. He also said, "The time for reform is right now, not a year from now, not five years from, not 10 years from now, not 20 years from. It's now. And in just a few days, a century-long struggle will culminate in a historic vote." But Republicans say the fight will continue to November. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "The American people do not want any part of this. And if anyone thinks the American people are going to forget this vote, just watch." Yet, one way or another, Congress is poised to act with some noes slowly turning to yes. Rep. Dennis Kucinich (D-OH) said, "I've decided to cast a vote in favor of the legislation." Rep. John Boccieri (D-OH) said, "Yes, I will be voting yes for the bill." Between now and Sunday, every arm will have been twisted, every possible dollar spent, and every rule invoked in a debate that spilled into the streets. Richard Ledford, small business owner: "It's not perfect, but it's a good step forward in reform efforts." Perette Godwin, opposes health care reform bill: "Healthcare now, let's pass a bill. I think the wrong decisions are being made. I think we're going the wrong direction." We look at the week with the reporters covering it: Peter Baker of the New York Times, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine.

Fans of health care overhaul in history. We'll tell you how it happened, what's in it, and why the fight's still not over, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "Today, after almost a century of trying, today, after over a year of debate, today, after all the votes have been tallied, health insurance reform becomes law in the United States of America." It was a fight to the finish complete with sore losers and astonished winners. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Hell no, you can't." Rep. Mike Pence (R-IN) said, "We will work in every way to repeal this legislation and start over." Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "I believe that this is what we came here to do." Changes to Medicare, extended coverage for young adults and the uninsured and for prescription drugs, plus a nearly billion dollar price tag. Also this week, big developments with old allies and former enemies, as tensions build between the U.S. and Israel over a settlement freeze. Sec. Hillary Clinton said, "It exposes daylight between Israel and the United States that others in the region hope to exploit." And the U.S. agrees to a nuclear deal with Russia. Covering the week: Ceci Connolly of the Washington Post, Alexis Simendinger of National Journal, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, and Paul Richter of the Los Angeles Times.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

You see the world differently when you work underground. That made Butte, Montana different right from the start as immigrants came from around the world to work the mines. But what they blasted out of the 10,000 miles of tunnels was more than just copper. It was the rise of unions and multinational corporations, and the seeds of the current debate over the environment.

LOS NINOS EN SU CASA is a Spanish-language companion to the English-language series A PLACE OF OUR OWN. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

This documentary tells the story of the nation's best high school basketball coach, Bob Hurley, Sr. In his 36 years at St. Anthony's, he's won 23 state titles, three national championships with 957 career wins. The film reveals the coach's life-long struggle to inspire and motivate those around him to keep the doors open of a poor, inner-city Catholic High School in Jersey City, New Jersey. This is also the story about the teenage athletes fighting their way out of the poverty and desolation that surrounds them armed with little more than a basketball and the hard wisdom of a fierce, demanding coach.

TIME TEAM AMERICA digs for the remains of the first American town founded by former slaves. In 1836 "Free Frank" McWorter purchased his freedom from a Kentucky plantation owner and headed North. When he reached Illinois, he planted roots, started a town, and sold enough property to purchase the rest of his family out of slavery. Now a farmer's field covers this dramatic testament to victory over enslavement. The local landowners and the McWorter family want to uncover what remains of New Philadelphia to memorialize its history and the history of their ancestors. TIME TEAM joins in the search for the remains of the schoolhouse where New Philadelphia's black children learned to read and write in freedom.

We've said it before and we'll say it again. This weekend, this very weekend, we'll be the turning point on health care. We'll tell you why we might actually be right this time, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "We keep on going. We are going to get this done." The president is revved up. He also said, "The time for reform is right now, not a year from now, not five years from, not 10 years from now, not 20 years from. It's now. And in just a few days, a century-long struggle will culminate in a historic vote." But Republicans say the fight will continue to November. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "The American people do not want any part of this. And if anyone thinks the American people are going to forget this vote, just watch." Yet, one way or another, Congress is poised to act with some noes slowly turning to yes. Rep. Dennis Kucinich (D-OH) said, "I've decided to cast a vote in favor of the legislation." Rep. John Boccieri (D-OH) said, "Yes, I will be voting yes for the bill." Between now and Sunday, every arm will have been twisted, every possible dollar spent, and every rule invoked in a debate that spilled into the streets. Richard Ledford, small business owner: "It's not perfect, but it's a good step forward in reform efforts." Perette Godwin, opposes health care reform bill: "Healthcare now, let's pass a bill. I think the wrong decisions are being made. I think we're going the wrong direction." We look at the week with the reporters covering it: Peter Baker of the New York Times, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Karen Tumulty of Time Magazine.

Fans of health care overhaul in history. We'll tell you how it happened, what's in it, and why the fight's still not over, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "Today, after almost a century of trying, today, after over a year of debate, today, after all the votes have been tallied, health insurance reform becomes law in the United States of America." It was a fight to the finish complete with sore losers and astonished winners. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, "Hell no, you can't." Rep. Mike Pence (R-IN) said, "We will work in every way to repeal this legislation and start over." Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "I believe that this is what we came here to do." Changes to Medicare, extended coverage for young adults and the uninsured and for prescription drugs, plus a nearly billion dollar price tag. Also this week, big developments with old allies and former enemies, as tensions build between the U.S. and Israel over a settlement freeze. Sec. Hillary Clinton said, "It exposes daylight between Israel and the United States that others in the region hope to exploit." And the U.S. agrees to a nuclear deal with Russia. Every 48 years, the inhabitants of the remote Indian state of Mizoram suffer a horrendous ordeal known locally as mautam. An indigenous species of bamboo, blanketing 30 percent of Mizoram's 8,100 square miles, blooms once every half-century, spurring an explosion in the rat population which feeds off the bamboo's fruit. The rats run amok, destroying crops and precipitating a crippling famine throughout Mizoram. NOVA follows this gripping tale of nature's capacity to engender human suffering, and investigates the botanical mystery of why the bamboo flowers and why the rats attack with clockwork precision every half-century.

This documentary tells the story of the nation's best high school basketball coach, Bob Hurley, Sr. In his 36 years at St. Anthony's, he's won 23 state titles, three national championships with 957 career wins. The film reveals the coach's life-long struggle to inspire and motivate those around him to keep the doors open of a poor, inner-city Catholic High School in Jersey City, New Jersey. This is also the story about the teenage athletes fighting their way out of the poverty and desolation that surrounds them armed with little more than a basketball and the hard wisdom of a fierce, demanding coach.

TIME TEAM AMERICA digs for the remains of the first American town founded by former slaves. In 1836 "Free Frank" McWorter purchased his freedom from a Kentucky plantation owner and headed North. When he reached Illinois, he planted roots, started a town, and sold enough property to purchase the rest of his family out of slavery. Now a farmer's field covers this dramatic testament to victory over enslavement. The local landowners and the McWorter family want to uncover what remains of New Philadelphia to memorialize its history and the history of their ancestors. TIME TEAM joins in the search for the remains of the schoolhouse where New Philadelphia's black children learned to read and write in freedom.

When Elizabeth Arden and Helena Rubinstein started their businesses 100 years ago, makeup was worn mostly by prostitutes and performers, and businesses were run mostly by men. In a legendary 50-year rivalry, these two women changed that and transformed us. This program is based on the book "War Paint: Madame Helena Rubinstein & Miss Elizabeth Arden - Their Lives, Their Times, Their Rivalry by Lindy Woodhead." Jane Alexander narrates.

Fans of health care overhaul in history. We'll tell you how it happened, what's in it, and why the fight's still not over, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "Today, after almost a century of trying, today, after over a year of debate, today, after all the votes have been tallied, health insurance reform becomes law in the United States of America." It was a fight to the finish complete with sore losers and astonished winners. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) said, " Hell no, you can't." Rep. Mike Pence (R-IN) said, "We will work in every way to repeal this legislation and start over." Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "I believe that this is what we came here to do." Changes to Medicare, extended coverage for young adults and the uninsured and for prescription drugs, plus a nearly billion dollar price tag. Also this week, big developments with old allies and former enemies, as tensions build between the U.S. and Israel over a settlement freeze. Sec. Hillary Clinton said, "It exposes daylight between Israel and the United States that others in the region hope to exploit." And the U.S. agrees to a nuclear deal with Russia. Covering the week: Ceci Connolly of the Washington Post, Alexis Simendinger of National Journal, Helene Cooper of the New York Times, and Paul Richter of the Los Angeles Times.
