What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

Long before the days of giant theme parks, the United States had many, many amusement parks where families gathered for a cool escape on a hot summer day. This program celebrates these pre-Disney parks, visiting places like Playland in Rye, New York; Holiday World in Santa Claus, Indiana; and California's Santa Cruz Beach Boardwalk, where vacationers can still reach for the brass ring on the merry-go-round. The special also checks out some old wooden roller coasters and other classic rides.

It is the summer of 1982 and Ronald Reagan has decided to replace his Secretary of State. The man he has chosen for the job is George Shultz. A brief biography introduces us to this remarkable man who has been a respected academic, a corporate leader and Secretary of the Treasury. In 1982 the world is in turmoil as the new Secretary takes over. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger openly opposes Shultz' initiatives for a peace-keeping force. In this first episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" one crisis after another boils over from the Middle East to news that the CIA is secretly aiding Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Despite strenuous opposition from many of Reagan's advisors, Shultz secretly arranges for Regan to meet the Soviet Ambassador to the United States. This episode ends as the successes of Shultz' skillful negotiations are shattered with the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon.

The most memorable symbol of the revolution that swept across Europe two decades ago is the November 1989 opening of the Berlin Wall after 28 years. The Wall--A World Divided tells those dramatic events from the perspective of ordinary East Germans whose lives were caught up in the wheels of Cold War politics. And it presents the lesser-known story of how the autumn of 1989 set the stage for three world leaders--George Bush, Mikhail Gorbachev, and Helmut Kohl--to come together and guide the completely unanticipated spiraling series of events that ended the Cold War.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies."

Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies." Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapierre, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout -- one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

What made America? What makes us? These two questions are at the heart of this series. Harvard scholar Henry Louis Gates, Jr., turns to the latest tools of genealogy and genetics to explore the family histories of 11 renowned Americans. Looking beyond the black experience to the wider immigrant experience, Professor Gates unravels the American tapestry, following the threads of his guests' lives back to their earliest origins around the globe. Along the way, the many stories he uncovers -- of displacement and homecoming, of material success and dispossession, of assimilation and discrimination -- illuminate the American experience. Professor Gates' guests include poet Elizabeth Alexander, who composed and read the poem at President Barack Obama's inauguration, chef Mario Batali, comedian Stephen Colbert, novelist Louise Erdrich, writer Malcolm Gladwell, cellist Yo-Yo Ma, director Mike Nichols, Her Royal Highness Queen Noor, actress Eva Longoria Parker, actress Meryl Streep, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, and Martha's Vineyard fisherman William "Buddy" Vanderhoop, who will have his family history researched alongside the series' well-known guests.

It is the summer of 1982 and Ronald Reagan has decided to replace his Secretary of State. The man he has chosen for the job is George Shultz. A brief biography introduces us to this remarkable man who has been a respected academic, a corporate leader and Secretary of the Treasury. In 1982 the world is in turmoil as the new Secretary takes over. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger openly opposes Shultz' initiatives for a peace-keeping force. In this first episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" one crisis after another boils over from the Middle East to news that the CIA is secretly aiding Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Despite strenuous opposition from many of Reagan's advisors, Shultz secretly arranges for Regan to meet the Soviet Ambassador to the United States. This episode ends as the successes of Shultz' skillful negotiations are shattered with the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies." Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

The sixth inning leads off with the baseball season of 1941, one of the most exciting of all time. Joe DiMaggio hit in 56 straight games, the longest hitting streak in history. Ted Williams becomes the last man to hit .400. The Brooklyn Dodgers win their first pennant in 20 years. Then the war intervenes and baseball's best players become soldiers. On their return, the game--and the entire country--are changed forever: Branch Rickey integrates baseball on April 15, 1947, when Jackie Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers takes the field. Baseball finally becomes what it had always claimed to be: America's national pastime.

NOVA presents a gripping investigation of what went wrong when two Boeing 747 airliners collided in thick fog on the runway at a tiny airport in the Canary Islands, killing 583 passengers and crew - the worst loss of life in any air disaster. With heart-breaking survivor interviews, re-enactments and a detective story approach, NOVA pieces together the clues that led to a fatal take-off decision by the highly experienced captain of the KLM 747, who couldn't see the Pan Am 747 still parked on the runway, lost in the fog ahead of him. The disaster led to fundamental improvements in air safety, but experts worry that a repeat of the Tenerife disaster could still happen.

The most memorable symbol of the revolution that swept across Europe two decades ago is the November 1989 opening of the Berlin Wall after 28 years. The Wall--A World Divided tells those dramatic events from the perspective of ordinary East Germans whose lives were caught up in the wheels of Cold War politics. And it presents the lesser-known story of how the autumn of 1989 set the stage for three world leaders--George Bush, Mikhail Gorbachev, and Helmut Kohl--to come together and guide the completely unanticipated spiraling series of events that ended the Cold War.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies." Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

Good Fortune is a provocative exploration of how massive international efforts to alleviate poverty in Africa may be undermining the very communities they aim to benefit. In Kenya's rural countryside, Jackson's farm is being flooded by an American investor who hopes to alleviate poverty by creating a multimillion-dollar rice farm. Across the country in Nairobi, Silva's home and business in Africa's largest shantytown are being demolished as part of a U.N. slum-upgrading project. The gripping stories of two Kenyans battling to save their homes from large-scale development present a unique opportunity see foreign aid through eyes of the people it is intended to help.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

A ceremonial welcome greets George Shultz and Ronald Reagan as the second episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" opens in Japan. After a successful trade negotiation the scene quickly shifts to the Philippines where dissident Nimoy Aquino is assassinated and the island nation is thrown into turmoil. The first weapons in the still secret arms for hostages deal arrive in Iran and Reagan is sworn in for his second term. Shultz begins to set up a summit meeting with the new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, although others in the administration are opposed. Shultz perseveres and a pre-summit is held in Geneva. As successful negotiations come to a close, the Philippines boils over and despite White House staff objections Shultz persuades Reagan to abandon the dictator Ferdinand Marcos and recognize the democratically elected Cory Aquino as the new Philippine leader.

On the 4th of July, 1986 Ronald Reagan is at the peak of his popularity. Yet John Poindexter and others in the White House are up to no good. Shultz is left out of the loop as the Iran Contra scandal festers. George Shultz remains focused on what he sees as the highest priority: a summit meeting in Reykjavik between his president and Mikhail Gorbachev. Although the summit is a tremendous breakthrough in superpower relations, Reagan and Gorbachev miss the chance to eliminate all nuclear weapons. As Shultz arrives home the Iran Contra scandal becomes embarrassingly public and on CBS's "Face the Nation" Shultz risks his job by telling the truth. Still his major goal remains a nuclear free world to which Reagan and Gorbachev move one step closer with a record cut of nuclear weapons. In 1989 George Shultz leaves the State Department where he has earned accolades as one of America's ablest Secretaries of State. We follow the Secretary back home to the world of ideas and his position as a Fellow at the Hoover Institution. As this final episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" concludes, George Shultz continues to travel the world seeking an end to nuclear weapons.

Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burris (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Imagine being picked up off the street, told you have committed a murder you know nothing about and then finding yourself sentenced to 20 years in jail. In December 2005 this happened to Toño Zúñiga in Mexico City and, like thousands of other innocent people, he was wrongfully imprisoned. The award-winning Presumed Guilty is the story of two young lawyers and their struggle to free Zúñiga. With no background in film, Roberto Hernández and Layda Negrete set about recording the injustices they were witnessing, enlisting acclaimed director Geoffrey Smith (The English Surgeon, POV 2009) to tell this dramatic story.

Imagine being picked up off the street, told you have committed a murder you know nothing about and then finding yourself sentenced to 20 years in jail. In December 2005 this happened to Toño Zúñiga in Mexico City and, like thousands of other innocent people, he was wrongfully imprisoned. The award-winning Presumed Guilty is the story of two young lawyers and their struggle to free Zúñiga. With no background in film, Roberto Hernández and Layda Negrete set about recording the injustices they were witnessing, enlisting acclaimed director Geoffrey Smith (The English Surgeon, POV 2009) to tell this dramatic story.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burris (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Covering these stories this week: John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, and Dana Priest of the Washington Post.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Imagine being picked up off the street, told you have committed a murder you know nothing about and then finding yourself sentenced to 20 years in jail. In December 2005 this happened to Toño Zúñiga in Mexico City and, like thousands of other innocent people, he was wrongfully imprisoned. The award-winning Presumed Guilty is the story of two young lawyers and their struggle to free Zúñiga. With no background in film, Roberto Hernández and Layda Negrete set about recording the injustices they were witnessing, enlisting acclaimed director Geoffrey Smith (The English Surgeon, POV 2009) to tell this dramatic story.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

It is the summer of 1982 and Ronald Reagan has decided to replace his Secretary of State. The man he has chosen for the job is George Shultz. A brief biography introduces us to this remarkable man who has been a respected academic, a corporate leader and Secretary of the Treasury. In 1982 the world is in turmoil as the new Secretary takes over. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger openly opposes Shultz' initiatives for a peace-keeping force. In this first episode of "Turmoil and Triumph," one crisis after another boils over from the Middle East to news that the CIA is secretly aiding Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Despite strenuous opposition from many of Reagan's advisors, Shultz secretly arranges for Regan to meet the Soviet Ambassador to the United States. This episode ends as the successes of Shultz' skillful negotiations are shattered with the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon.

A ceremonial welcome greets George Shultz and Ronald Reagan as the second episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" opens in Japan. After a successful trade negotiation the scene quickly shifts to the Philippines where dissident Nimoy Aquino is assassinated and the island nation is thrown into turmoil. The first weapons in the still secret arms for hostages deal arrive in Iran and Reagan is sworn in for his second term. Shultz begins to set up a summit meeting with the new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, although others in the administration are opposed. Shultz perseveres and a pre-summit is held in Geneva. As successful negotiations come to a close, the Philippines boils over and despite White House staff objections Shultz persuades Reagan to abandon the dictator Ferdinand Marcos and recognize the democratically elected Cory Aquino as the new Philippine leader.

On the 4th of July, 1986 Ronald Reagan is at the peak of his popularity. Yet John Poindexter and others in the White House are up to no good. Shultz is left out of the loop as the Iran Contra scandal festers. George Shultz remains focused on what he sees as the highest priority: a summit meeting in Reykjavik between his president and Mikhail Gorbachev. Although the summit is a tremendous breakthrough in superpower relations, Reagan and Gorbachev miss the chance to eliminate all nuclear weapons. As Shultz arrives home the Iran Contra scandal becomes embarrassingly public and on CBS's "Face the Nation" Shultz risks his job by telling the truth. Still his major goal remains a nuclear free world to which Reagan and Gorbachev move one step closer with a record cut of nuclear weapons. In 1989 George Shultz leaves the State Department where he has earned accolades as one of America's ablest Secretaries of State. We follow the Secretary back home to the world of ideas and his position as a Fellow at the Hoover Institution. As this final episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" concludes, George Shultz continues to travel the world seeking an end to nuclear weapons.

Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burris (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Covering these stories this week: John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, and Dana Priest of the Washington Post.

And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." Know Thyself Episode Four takes up the search for the guests' ancestries where the historical record leaves off and links their distinctive family histories to the broader history of the family of man. Combining the documented stories of some of the guests' last known ancestors with DNA evidence, the series travel backward through time to reveal both distant relatives and surprising shared ancestral connections. Elizabeth Alexander learns that she is a direct descendent of Charlemagne, and that her paternal roots are not only European, but Jewish. Meryl Streep and Mike Nichols discover that they are distant cousins, as do Yo-Yo Ma and Eva Longoria. Interwoven with these stories and others is the journey of the host, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. as he and his father and brother undertake an historic project to have their entire genomes mapped, and thereby to learn everything they possibly can about their own family. This episode offers a compelling and thought-provoking meditation on the importance of ancestry, the meaning of family and the role of both in creating identity.

On April 21st, 1918, Manfred von Richthofen, Germany's most feared fighter ace, known as the "Red Baron," took off on patrol over the Somme valley with his notorious red-painted "Flying Circus." What happened next has divided historians and air buffs for decades. NOVA's exciting new investigation of the Red Baron's death presents newly discovered documents that overturn the conventional theory of von Richthofen's demise. In accounting for the Baron's singular success, NOVA explores the origins of the first fighter planes and the evolution of aerial tactics. The show features thrilling re-enactments of hair-raising duels between the fragile fighters of World War I.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

In 1947, a B-29, on a secret reconnaissance mission over Russia, became lost over the North Pole. The pilot made an emergency landing in Greenland, and the crew was rescued. This program follows pilot Darryl Greenamyer as he heads an expedition into the Arctic to rescue the downed B-29. Battling unpredictable weather, an unforgiving landscape, limited equipment, illness and fatigue, his team rushes to refurbish the plane before the harsh winter sets in. The second half of the program focuses on the Titanic's sister ship, the Britannic. Few people realize that the Titanic had two nearly identical sister ships, the Olympic and the Britannic. The Olympic had a successful career as a liner until she broke up in 1935, but the Britannic met a fate almost as unlucky as the Titanic's. Serving as a hospital ship in the Aegean, it was either torpedoed or struck a mine on November 21, 1916, and sank within an hour, yet only thirty of the crew of 1,100 died. Nova joins the search for the wreck of the Britannic and explores the evidence of its dramatic end.

A ceremonial welcome greets George Shultz and Ronald Reagan as the second episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" opens in Japan. After a successful trade negotiation the scene quickly shifts to the Philippines where dissident Nimoy Aquino is assassinated and the island nation is thrown into turmoil. The first weapons in the still secret arms for hostages deal arrive in Iran and Reagan is sworn in for his second term. Shultz begins to set up a summit meeting with the new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, although others in the administration are opposed. Shultz perseveres and a pre-summit is held in Geneva. As successful negotiations come to a close, the Philippines boils over and despite White House staff objections Shultz persuades Reagan to abandon the dictator Ferdinand Marcos and recognize the democratically elected Cory Aquino as the new Philippine leader.

George Shultz remains focused on what he sees as the highest priority: a summit meeting in Reykjavik between his president and Mikhail Gorbachev. Although the summit is a tremendous breakthrough in superpower relations, Reagan and Gorbachev miss the chance to eliminate all nuclear weapons. As Shultz arrives home the Iran Contra scandal becomes embarrassingly public and on CBS's "Face the Nation" Shultz risks his job by telling the truth. Still his major goal remains a nuclear free world to which Reagan and Gorbachev move one step closer with a record cut of nuclear weapons. In 1989 George Shultz leaves the State Department where he has earned accolades as one of America's ablest Secretaries of State. We follow the Secretary back home to the world of ideas and his position as a Fellow at the Hoover Institution. Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burris (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Covering these stories this week: John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, and Dana Priest of the Washington Post.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

On call 24 hours a day for the past five years, a group of senior citizens has made history by greeting nearly 800,000 American troops at a tiny airport in Bangor, Maine. "The Way We Get By" is an intimate look at three of these greeters as they confront the universal losses that come with aging and rediscover their reason for living. Bill Knight, Jerry Mundy and Joan Gaudet find the strength to overcome their personal battles and transform their lives through service. This inspirational and surprising story shatters the stereotypes of today's senior citizens as the greeters redefine the meaning of community.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been peopled for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

Political broadcasts, Pentagon costs cutting, and this debatable question:--is Washington broken--we'll talk about it all tonight on Washington Week. Linda McMahon, Connecticut Republican GOP Senate Candidate, said, "They don't want to send the same politicians to Washington and get the same politics out of Washington. Ken Buck, Colorado Republican Senate Candidate said, "It is time Republicans started acting like Republicans." Outsiders rule. Political novices and upstarts carry the day in the latest round of primaries, as running against Washington becomes all the rage. Will a presidential endorsement help or hurt in the fall? Senator Michael Bennet (D-CO) said, "We'll have to see. We'll obviously do what's right for the campaign." Or do polls and tea partiers prove the pox is on both houses? In Washington, Pentagon Chief Robert Gates proposes slashing military spending. And not everybody's happy about it. Representative Randy Forbes (R-VA) said, "What we're witnessing is the piecemeal auctioning off of the greatest military the world has ever known." Does all this mean that Washington is broken? And if it is, why is everybody still trying to get here? Covering the week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats, headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been peopled for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

By watching -- and participating in -- experiments comparing chimps with children, he learns that human uniqueness lies in our ability to reason about things we can't observe, especially the content of others' minds, and to employ this skill in the collaborative enterprise we call civilization.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats, headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

The hurricane season of 2004 is categorized as one of the most active on record. It begins with an uneventful June and July then suddenly turns violent in August. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami are confronted with satellite images showing a steady stream of tropical storms spinning across the Atlantic from Africa. Combining their experience with the latest technology, they focus on making the most accurate predictions. As Hurricane Specialist Jack Bevens says, "If you get it wrong you can get a lot of people killed." No one wants to risk a wrong forecast. Anatomy of a Hurricane goes behind the scenes at the National Hurricane Center to see forecasters on a mission to save lives and property. It is a look at the stressful work of a dedicated staff as they track Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne - all major hurricanes with unexpected challenges. It is also a look at the complicated dynamics of the atmosphere - why these hurricanes form and where they go.

Every so often a giant emerges on the stage of science, someone who transcends the narrow boundaries of a particular line of research and alters our perspective on the world. E.O. Wilson is such a man. In "Lord of the Ants," NOVA profiles this soft-spoken Southerner renowned for his scientific study of ants that led to his 1975 book "Sociobiology: The New Synthesis," where he put forth the notion that evolutionary principles could explain social behavior throughout the animal kingdom, including in humans. Though sociobiology was a controversial new discipline at the time, today experimental science shows that genes do play a role in aspects of human behavior. E.O. Wilson is an icon of our times: a lord of the ants who sought to explain nature on earth and who now fights for its survival through his worldwide conservation efforts. Actor and environmentalist Harrison Ford narrates this engaging portrait of a ceaselessly active scientist and eloquent writer, who has accumulated two Pulitzer Prizes among his many other honors.

The world's oceans are in trouble. Warming seas and man-made pollutants are combining to unleash toxic algae blooms that are decimating whales, sea lions and other marine mammals. In a high-action film, NOVA explores this crisis through the exploits of Dr. Frances Gulland, a San Francisco veterinarian who runs the equivalent of a West Coast ER for marine mammals. On a typical day, listless sea lions flop on their sides, too exhausted to lift their heads. Others are agitated. Another chews obsessively on a flipper. They are all victims of a marine neurotoxin made by an organism that feeds on algae. Dr. Gulland is committed to saving these sick animals one at a time, but she is also desperately trying to figure out what's killing them.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

Political broadcasts, Pentagon costs cutting, and this debatable question--is Washington broken--we'll talk about it all tonight on Washington Week. Linda McMahon, Connecticut Republican GOP Senate Candidate, said, "They don't want to send the same politicians to Washington and get the same politics out of Washington. Ken Buck, Colorado Republican Senate Candidate said, "It is time Republicans started acting like Republicans." Outsiders rule. Political novices and upstarts carry the day in the latest round of primaries, as running against Washington becomes all the rage. Will a presidential endorsement help or hurt in the fall? Senator Michael Bennet (D-CO) said, "We'll have to see. We'll obviously do what's right for the campaign." Or do polls and tea partiers prove the pox is on both houses? In Washington, Pentagon Chief Robert Gates proposes slashing military spending. And not everybody's happy about it. Representative Randy Forbes (R-VA) said, "What we're witnessing is the piecemeal auctioning off of the greatest military the world has ever known." Does all this mean that Washington is broken? And if it is, why is everybody still trying to get here? Covering the week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

The hurricane season of 2004 is categorized as one of the most active on record. It begins with an uneventful June and July then suddenly turns violent in August. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami are confronted with satellite images showing a steady stream of tropical storms spinning across the Atlantic from Africa. Combining their experience with the latest technology, they focus on making the most accurate predictions. As Hurricane Specialist Jack Bevens says, "If you get it wrong you can get a lot of people killed." No one wants to risk a wrong forecast. Anatomy of a Hurricane goes behind the scenes at the National Hurricane Center to see forecasters on a mission to save lives and property. It is a look at the stressful work of a dedicated staff as they track Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne - all major hurricanes with unexpected challenges. It is also a look at the complicated dynamics of the atmosphere - why these hurricanes form and where they go.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been peopled for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

In the second program, Alan Alda joins researchers studying our fellow simians -- mainly chimpanzees, our closest living relatives -- to discover both what we share with them and what new skills humans evolved since we went our separate ways. By watching -- and participating in -- experiments comparing chimps with children, he learns that human uniqueness lies in our ability to reason about things we can't observe, especially the content of others' minds, and to employ this skill in the collaborative enterprise we call civilization.

In the third program, viewers literally peer into Alda's head with a variety of high-tech imaging techniques, looking for his human spark. The unique circuitry that provides us with our most prized ability, language, is closely tied to another unique human skill, our ability to make and use complex tools. In his own brain, Alda finds the site of his ability to figure out what others are thinking. And in perhaps the biggest surprise, he discovers that the essential human spark, our ability to build alternative worlds in our heads - to imagine - lies in a brain region closely related to that used when thinking about others' minds - and that fires most fiercely when we are doing nothing at all.

Every so often a giant emerges on the stage of science, someone who transcends the narrow boundaries of a particular line of research and alters our perspective on the world. E.O. Wilson is such a man. In "Lord of the Ants," NOVA profiles this soft-spoken Southerner renowned for his scientific study of ants that led to his 1975 book "Sociobiology: The New Synthesis," where he put forth the notion that evolutionary principles could explain social behavior throughout the animal kingdom, including in humans. Though sociobiology was a controversial new discipline at the time, today experimental science shows that genes do play a role in aspects of human behavior. E.O. Wilson is an icon of our times: a lord of the ants who sought to explain nature on earth and who now fights for its survival through his worldwide conservation efforts. Actor and environmentalist Harrison Ford narrates this engaging portrait of a ceaselessly active scientist and eloquent writer, who has accumulated two Pulitzer Prizes among his many other honors.

The mission really kicks off when the Nimitz arrives in the Gulf. The conditions are extreme: flight deck personnel endure temperatures hovering around 120 degrees, while the pilots undertake grueling six-hour missions over Iraq. The F-18s are mounted with infrared cameras, enabling them to serve as the "eyes in the sky" to support the troops on the ground. Some of the pilots are frustrated that they're not dropping bombs because, as they describe it, that's what they've been trained to do. The aircraft carrier's role and effectiveness in this particular war are questioned. Meanwhile, the strike group searches for terrorists on small dhows and intercepts cargo ships to search for weapons and bomb-making materials.

On April 21st, 1918, Manfred von Richthofen, Germany's most feared fighter ace, known as the "Red Baron," took off on patrol over the Somme valley with his notorious red-painted "Flying Circus." What happened next has divided historians and air buffs for decades. NOVA's exciting new investigation of the Red Baron's death presents newly discovered documents that overturn the conventional theory of von Richthofen's demise. In accounting for the Baron's singular success, NOVA explores the origins of the first fighter planes and the evolution of aerial tactics. The show features thrilling re-enactments of hair-raising duels between the fragile fighters of World War I.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats, headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Political broadcasts, Pentagon costs cutting, and this debatable question:--is Washington broken--we'll talk about it all tonight on Washington Week. Linda McMahon, Connecticut Republican GOP Senate Candidate, said, "They don't want to send the same politicians to Washington and get the same politics out of Washington. Ken Buck, Colorado Republican Senate Candidate said, "It is time Republicans started acting like Republicans." Outsiders rule. Political novices and upstarts carry the day in the latest round of primaries, as running against Washington becomes all the rage. Will a presidential endorsement help or hurt in the fall? Senator Michael Bennet (D-CO) said, "We'll have to see. We'll obviously do what's right for the campaign." Or do polls and tea partiers prove the pox is on both houses? In Washington, Pentagon Chief Robert Gates proposes slashing military spending. And not everybody's happy about it. Representative Randy Forbes (R-VA) said, "What we're witnessing is the piecemeal auctioning off of the greatest military the world has ever known." Does all this mean that Washington is broken? And if it is, why is everybody still trying to get here? Covering the week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. This feature documentary traces the life and work of American sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens (1848-1907) from his birth in Dublin, Ireland, to his work in New York City and Paris to his death in Cornish, New Hampshire. Trained in Paris and Rome, Saint-Gaudens is considered America's premier sculptor of the 19th and early 20th centuries. During a career that spanned three decades, Saint-Gaudens created nearly 150 works of art, including a number of major public monuments to heroes of the Civil War. The story of his personal life is woven around in-depth studies of five of his major works of art, including the contemplative Standing Lincoln in Lincoln Park, Chicago; the moving Shaw Memorial on Boston Common; the powerful Sherman Monument in Central Park; the serene Diana in the Philadelphia Museum of Art; and the stirring Adams Memorial in Washington, DC. Actor Victor Garber narrates.

Churchill fell in love with the United States of America, the land of his mother's birth, during his first visit there in 1894. It was an unlikely match, but it endured, culminating in the special relationship between him and President Roosevelt, which was the bedrock of Allied victory during the Second World War. During this middle period of his life, Sandys focuses on Churchill's growing gift with words and his deepening passion for painting, both of which help illustrate the inner man. Sandys travels extensively throughout the United States and to Egypt, which seemed to lure Churchill to the banks of the Nile at crucial moments in his life.

In this, the third chapter of Churchill's life, Celia Sandys travels to Morocco and to the South of France in search of those places that gave Churchill particular pleasure. He called Morocco "the most beautiful place on earth." Here, even during the turmoil of the Second World War, he found time to travel with Roosevelt and indulge in his favorite relaxation -- painting. Towards the end of his life, travel, friends and the solace he found in painting and writing became more and more important to him. As CHASING CHURCHILL comes to its conclusion in the beautiful setting of the Cote d'Azur, Sandys reflects on the life of the man she knew: a life that began on the battlefields of the world, blossomed through remarkable qualities of leadership and inspiration, but then began to fade into the melancholy of old age.

"Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" explores the critical role that Miami played in the evolution of one of the most significant cultural figures of our time: Muhammad Ali (né Cassius Clay). The film chronicles Cassius Clay's arrival in Miami in the fall of 1960 (fresh from earning a gold medal in the Rome Olympics), his life in Overtown -- a neighborhood that was considered "Harlem South" and a vibrant center of black entertainment and commerce -- and his affiliation with the famed Fifth Street Gym in Miami Beach. Over the course of the next few years -- coinciding with the height of the national civil rights movement -- Clay evolved both professionally and politically, piling up victories in the ring and adopting the black separatist teachings of the Nation of Islam. As "Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" makes clear, it was in this period that Cassius Clay became Muhammad Ali.

Five years after the devastation of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, Louisiana's recovery is far from over. Building on the 2006 documentary, WASHING AWAY, this new program follows six survivors to reveal successes and setbacks as their coastline and culture continue to give way to the gulf and face disastrous new threats. Emmy-winning and Academy Award-nominated actress Patricia Clarkson, a native of New Orleans, narrates.

This feature documentary traces the life and work of American sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens (1848-1907) from his birth in Dublin, Ireland, to his work in New York City and Paris to his death in Cornish, New Hampshire. Trained in Paris and Rome, Saint-Gaudens is considered America's premier sculptor of the 19th and early 20th centuries. During a career that spanned three decades, Saint-Gaudens created nearly 150 works of art, including a number of major public monuments to heroes of the Civil War. The story of his personal life is woven around in-depth studies of five of his major works of art, including the contemplative Standing Lincoln in Lincoln Park, Chicago; the moving Shaw Memorial on Boston Common; the powerful Sherman Monument in Central Park; the serene Diana in the Philadelphia Museum of Art; and the stirring Adams Memorial in Washington, DC. Actor Victor Garber narrates.

Length: 60 minutes
Airdate: 8/23/2010 10:00:00 PM

Segment Length: 00:56:46

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

Churchill fell in love with the United States of America, the land of his mother's birth, during his first visit there in 1894. It was an unlikely match, but it endured, culminating in the special relationship between him and President Roosevelt, which was the bedrock of Allied victory during the Second World War. During this middle period of his life, Sandys focuses on Churchill's growing gift with words and his deepening passion for painting, both of which help illustrate the inner man. Sandys travels extensively throughout the United States and to Egypt, which seemed to lure Churchill to the banks of the Nile at crucial moments in his life.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been inhabited for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

Behind the enduring images of heroic rescues undertaken by the New Orleans Police Department in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, there is another story of law enforcement in crisis, even out of control. "Law & Disorder," a year-long, ongoing collaboration among FRONTLINE, ProPublica and the New Orleans Times-Picayune, investigates charges that NOPD officers inappropriately used lethal force against New Orleans citizens and then tried to cover up their actions. Airing days before the fifth anniversary of one of the deadliest hurricanes in U.S. history and drawing from reports published in a real-time online investigation, FRONTLINE takes a fresh look at how the NOPD performed when the rules of civilized society collapsed.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been inhabited for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

The hurricane season of 2004 is categorized as one of the most active on record. It begins with an uneventful June and July then suddenly turns violent in August. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami are confronted with satellite images showing a steady stream of tropical storms spinning across the Atlantic from Africa. Combining their experience with the latest technology, they focus on making the most accurate predictions. As Hurricane Specialist Jack Bevens says, "If you get it wrong you can get a lot of people killed." No one wants to risk a wrong forecast. Anatomy of a Hurricane goes behind the scenes at the National Hurricane Center to see forecasters on a mission to save lives and property. It is a look at the stressful work of a dedicated staff as they track Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne - all major hurricanes with unexpected challenges. It is also a look at the complicated dynamics of the atmosphere - why these hurricanes form and where they go.

Behind the enduring images of heroic rescues undertaken by the New Orleans Police Department in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, there is another story of law enforcement in crisis, even out of control. "Law & Disorder," a year-long, ongoing collaboration among FRONTLINE, ProPublica and the New Orleans Times-Picayune, investigates charges that NOPD officers inappropriately used lethal force against New Orleans citizens and then tried to cover up their actions. Airing days before the fifth anniversary of one of the deadliest hurricanes in U.S. history and drawing from reports published in a real-time online investigation, FRONTLINE takes a fresh look at how the NOPD performed when the rules of civilized society collapsed.

Long ago in the age of dinosaurs, a volcano in eastern China erupted and buried a host of strange creatures in ash, creating exquisite fossils that preserved a big surprise - many dinosaurs were covered in feathers. In "The Four-Winged Dinosaur," NOVA investigates the most bizarre of these feathered dinosaurs, which has rekindled a fierce, decades-long debate over the origin of bird flight. The central character in this drama is a strange little dinosaur with wings on its legs as well as its arms. The pigeon-sized Microraptor is the smallest adult dinosaur ever found, perhaps the first known tree-dweller. But could it really fly? NOVA assembles a team of top paleontologists, aeronautical engineers, and paleo-artists to reconstruct Microraptor and build a sophisticated model for a wind tunnel experiment. The results have surprising implications for long-accepted ideas about how winged flight began.

What is it like to be torn from your Chinese foster family, put on a plane with strangers and wake up in a new country, family and culture? Stephanie Wang-Breal's Wo Ai Ni (I Love You) Mommy is the story of Fang Sui Yong, an 8-year-old orphan, and the Sadowskys, the Long Island Jewish family that travels to China to adopt her. Sui Yong is one of 70,000 Chinese children now being raised in the United States. Through her eyes, we witness her struggle with a new identity as she transforms from a timid child into someone that no one --neither her new family nor she could have imagined.

"Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" explores the critical role that Miami played in the evolution of one of the most significant cultural figures of our time: Muhammad Ali (né Cassius Clay). The film chronicles Cassius Clay's arrival in Miami in the fall of 1960 (fresh from earning a gold medal in the Rome Olympics), his life in Overtown -- a neighborhood that was considered "Harlem South" and a vibrant center of black entertainment and commerce -- and his affiliation with the famed Fifth Street Gym in Miami Beach. Over the course of the next few years -- coinciding with the height of the national civil rights movement -- Clay evolved both professionally and politically, piling up victories in the ring and adopting the black separatist teachings of the Nation of Islam. As "Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" makes clear, it was in this period that Cassius Clay became Muhammad Ali.

A fresh try for Middle East peace; stepping back in Iraq; drumming up campaign money; and the politics of Islam--tonight, on Washington Week. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "I've invited Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and Palestinian Authority President Abbas to meet on September 2nd in Washington, D.C." The Obama administration dives head first back into the thorny and historically difficult Middle East peace process. What's different this time? U.S. troops celebrate the long promised pullout from Iraq. U.S. SOLDIER: We won. It's over. America, we brought democracy to Iraq. But events there, in Afghanistan and in Pakistan show it's more complicated than that. At home, Democrats and Republicans raise money hand over fist for the midterm elections. Tim Kaine, Chairman, Democratic National Committee, said, "We'll be able to put more money into the midterms by far than we've ever put in, probably north of $50 million. And the presidential events are huge." And as the president steps into the debate about a New York mosque, saying, "The answer is no regrets." A secondary discussion builds. Gov. Chris Christie (R-NJ) said, "It's being used as a political football by both parties." How do Americans view Islam? And why do so many think their president is Muslim? Franklin Graham, Evangelist, said, "I think the president's problem is that he was born a Muslim." Really? Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

"Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" explores the critical role that Miami played in the evolution of one of the most significant cultural figures of our time: Muhammad Ali (né Cassius Clay). The film chronicles Cassius Clay's arrival in Miami in the fall of 1960 (fresh from earning a gold medal in the Rome Olympics), his life in Overtown -- a neighborhood that was considered "Harlem South" and a vibrant center of black entertainment and commerce -- and his affiliation with the famed Fifth Street Gym in Miami Beach. Over the course of the next few years -- coinciding with the height of the national civil rights movement -- Clay evolved both professionally and politically, piling up victories in the ring and adopting the black separatist teachings of the Nation of Islam. As "Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" makes clear, it was in this period that Cassius Clay became Muhammad Ali.

The hurricane season of 2004 is categorized as one of the most active on record. It begins with an uneventful June and July then suddenly turns violent in August. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami are confronted with satellite images showing a steady stream of tropical storms spinning across the Atlantic from Africa. Combining their experience with the latest technology, they focus on making the most accurate predictions. As Hurricane Specialist Jack Bevens says, "If you get it wrong you can get a lot of people killed." No one wants to risk a wrong forecast. Anatomy of a Hurricane goes behind the scenes at the National Hurricane Center to see forecasters on a mission to save lives and property. It is a look at the stressful work of a dedicated staff as they track Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne - all major hurricanes with unexpected challenges. It is also a look at the complicated dynamics of the atmosphere - why these hurricanes form and where they go.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been inhabited for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

In the second program, Alan Alda joins researchers studying our fellow simians -- mainly chimpanzees, our closest living relatives -- to discover both what we share with them and what new skills humans evolved since we went our separate ways. By watching -- and participating in -- experiments comparing chimps with children, he learns that human uniqueness lies in our ability to reason about things we can't observe, especially the content of others' minds, and to employ this skill in the collaborative enterprise we call civilization.

In the third program, viewers literally peer into Alda's head with a variety of high-tech imaging techniques, looking for his human spark. The unique circuitry that provides us with our most prized ability, language, is closely tied to another unique human skill, our ability to make and use complex tools. In his own brain, Alda finds the site of his ability to figure out what others are thinking. And in perhaps the biggest surprise, he discovers that the essential human spark, our ability to build alternative worlds in our heads - to imagine - lies in a brain region closely related to that used when thinking about others' minds - and that fires most fiercely when we are doing nothing at all.

Long ago in the age of dinosaurs, a volcano in eastern China erupted and buried a host of strange creatures in ash, creating exquisite fossils that preserved a big surprise - many dinosaurs were covered in feathers. In "The Four-Winged Dinosaur," NOVA investigates the most bizarre of these feathered dinosaurs, which has rekindled a fierce, decades-long debate over the origin of bird flight. The central character in this drama is a strange little dinosaur with wings on its legs as well as its arms. The pigeon-sized Microraptor is the smallest adult dinosaur ever found, perhaps the first known tree-dweller. But could it really fly? NOVA assembles a team of top paleontologists, aeronautical engineers, and paleo-artists to reconstruct Microraptor and build a sophisticated model for a wind tunnel experiment. The results have surprising implications for long-accepted ideas about how winged flight began.

Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

Churchill fell in love with the United States of America, the land of his mother's birth, during his first visit there in 1894. It was an unlikely match, but it endured, culminating in the special relationship between him and President Roosevelt, which was the bedrock of Allied victory during the Second World War. During this middle period of his life, Sandys focuses on Churchill's growing gift with words and his deepening passion for painting, both of which help illustrate the inner man. Sandys travels extensively throughout the United States and to Egypt, which seemed to lure Churchill to the banks of the Nile at crucial moments in his life.

In this, the third chapter of Churchill's life, Celia Sandys travels to Morocco and to the South of France in search of those places that gave Churchill particular pleasure. He called Morocco "the most beautiful place on earth." Here, even during the turmoil of the Second World War, he found time to travel with Roosevelt and indulge in his favorite relaxation -- painting. Towards the end of his life, travel, friends and the solace he found in painting and writing became more and more important to him. As CHASING CHURCHILL comes to its conclusion in the beautiful setting of the Cote d'Azur, Sandys reflects on the life of the man she knew: a life that began on the battlefields of the world, blossomed through remarkable qualities of leadership and inspiration, but then began to fade into the melancholy of old age.

A fresh try for Middle East peace; stepping back in Iraq; drumming up campaign money; and the politics of Islam--tonight, on Washington Week. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "I've invited Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and Palestinian Authority President Abbas to meet on September 2nd in Washington, D.C." The Obama administration dives head first back into the thorny and historically difficult Middle East peace process. What's different this time? U.S. troops celebrate the long promised pullout from Iraq. U.S. SOLDIER: We won. It's over. America, we brought democracy to Iraq. But events there, in Afghanistan and in Pakistan show it's more complicated than that. At home, Democrats and Republicans raise money hand over fist for the midterm elections. Tim Kaine, Chairman, Democratic National Committee, said, "We'll be able to put more money into the midterms by far than we've ever put in, probably north of $50 million. And the presidential events are huge." And as the president steps into the debate about a New York mosque, saying, "The answer is no regrets." A secondary discussion builds. Gov. Chris Christie (R-NJ) said, "It's being used as a political football by both parties." How do Americans view Islam? And why do so many think their president is Muslim? Franklin Graham, Evangelist, said, "I think the president's problem is that he was born a Muslim." Really? Covering the week: Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Martha Raddatz of ABC News, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Her passport said she was Cha Jung Hee. She knew she was not. So began a 40-year deception for a Korean adoptee who came to the United States in 1966. Told to keep her true identity secret from her new American family, the eight-year-old girl quickly forgot she had ever been anyone else. But why had her identity been switched? And who was the real Cha Jung Hee? This is the search to find the answers, as acclaimed filmmaker Deann Borshay Liem (POV "First Person Plural," 2000) returns to her native Korea to find her "double," the mysterious girl whose place she took in America. A co-production of ITVS in association with the Center for Asian American Media and American Documentary|POV.

Lafayette: The Lost Hero is an historical detective story. Who was the Marquis de Lafayette? How and why did he come to America? This film tells the story of the life and legend of an intriguing, neglected and controversial figure, who left France at the age of 19 and fought courageously for the independence of the United States. Along the way, we discover the story of Lafayette's fascinating wife, Adrienne De Noailles, and the arranged marriage that became a great romance and a profound partnership in revolution. Lafayette: The Lost Hero also explores the ideals of the Enlightenment that Lafayette stood for - ideals that played out in the compelling narrative of his life and became a foundation for America's core values of equality and freedom. The film searches for the truth about this elusive personality, and why he matters today.

"Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" explores the critical role that Miami played in the evolution of one of the most significant cultural figures of our time: Muhammad Ali (né Cassius Clay). The film chronicles Cassius Clay's arrival in Miami in the fall of 1960 (fresh from earning a gold medal in the Rome Olympics), his life in Overtown -- a neighborhood that was considered "Harlem South" and a vibrant center of black entertainment and commerce -- and his affiliation with the famed Fifth Street Gym in Miami Beach. Over the course of the next few years -- coinciding with the height of the national civil rights movement -- Clay evolved both professionally and politically, piling up victories in the ring and adopting the black separatist teachings of the Nation of Islam. As "Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" makes clear, it was in this period that Cassius Clay became Muhammad Ali.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

What is it like to be torn from your Chinese foster family, put on a plane with strangers and wake up in a new country, family and culture? Stephanie Wang-Breal's Wo Ai Ni (I Love You) Mommy is the story of Fang Sui Yong, an 8-year-old orphan, and the Sadowskys, the Long Island Jewish family that travels to China to adopt her. Sui Yong is one of 70,000 Chinese children now being raised in the United States. Through her eyes, we witness her struggle with a new identity as she transforms from a timid child into someone that no one --neither her new family nor she could have imagined.

Off and Running tells the story of Brooklyn teenager Avery, a track star with a bright future. She is the adopted African-American child of white Jewish lesbians. Her older brother is black and Puerto Rican and her younger brother is Korean. Though it may not look typical, Avery's household is like most American homes until Avery writes to her birth mother and the response throws her into crisis. She struggles over her true identity, the circumstances of her adoption and her estrangement from black culture. Just when it seems as if her life is unraveling, Avery decides to pick up the pieces and make sense of her identity, with inspiring results.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Jobs Report for August Gives Mixed Reading for U.S. Economy. The August jobs report released Friday showed that the private sector added 67,000 jobs but jobless numbers still remain grim with the U.S. unemployment rate rising slightly to 9.6 percent. All the while, President Obama urges the public to be patient and insists his policies are working -- just slower than hoped.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie

Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

NOVA presents a comprehensive three-part, three-hour special-investigating explosive new discoveries that are transforming the picture of how we became human. The first program explores fresh clues about our earliest ancestors in Africa, including the stunningly complete fossil nicknamed "Lucy's Child." These three-million-year-old bones from Ethiopia reveal humanity's oldest and most telltale trait-upright walking rather than a big brain. The second program tackles the mysteries of how our ancestors managed to survive in a savannah teeming with vicious predators, and when and why we first left our African cradle to colonize every corner of the Earth. In the final program, NOVA probes a wave of dramatic new evidence, based partly on cutting-edge DNA analysis, that reveals new insights into how we became the creative and "behaviorally modern" humans of today, and what really happened to the enigmatic Neanderthals who faded into extinction. Shot "in the trenches" as discoveries were unearthed throughout Africa and Europe, each hour of Becoming Human unfolds with a forensic investigation into the life and death of a specific hominid ancestor, such as Lucy's Child. Dry bones spring back to vivid life with stunning animation, the product of a unique NOVA collaboration between top anthropologists and a talented team of movie animators.

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout -- one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

What is it like to be torn from your Chinese foster family, put on a plane with strangers and wake up in a new country, family and culture? Stephanie Wang-Breal's Wo Ai Ni (I Love You) Mommy is the story of Fang Sui Yong, an 8-year-old orphan, and the Sadowskys, the Long Island Jewish family that travels to China to adopt her. Sui Yong is one of 70,000 Chinese children now being raised in the United States. Through her eyes, we witness her struggle with a new identity as she transforms from a timid child into someone that no one --neither her new family nor she could have imagined.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

NOVA presents a comprehensive three-part, three-hour special-investigating explosive new discoveries that are transforming the picture of how we became human. The first program explores fresh clues about our earliest ancestors in Africa, including the stunningly complete fossil nicknamed "Lucy's Child." These three-million-year-old bones from Ethiopia reveal humanity's oldest and most telltale trait-upright walking rather than a big brain. The second program tackles the mysteries of how our ancestors managed to survive in a savannah teeming with vicious predators, and when and why we first left our African cradle to colonize every corner of the Earth. In the final program, NOVA probes a wave of dramatic new evidence, based partly on cutting-edge DNA analysis, that reveals new insights into how we became the creative and "behaviorally modern" humans of today, and what really happened to the enigmatic Neanderthals who faded into extinction. Shot "in the trenches" as discoveries were unearthed throughout Africa and Europe, each hour of Becoming Human unfolds with a forensic investigation into the life and death of a specific hominid ancestor, such as Lucy's Child. Dry bones spring back to vivid life with stunning animation, the product of a unique NOVA collaboration between top anthropologists and a talented team of movie animators.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Twenty kilometers a year: Need to Know features a dramatic video report from Sean Smith, a reporter for The Guardian in London, who embedded with U.S. soldiers on the front lines of battle in Afghanistan. Institutional corruption in Afghanistan: Tom Gregg of New York University's Center on International Cooperation speaks with Jon Meacham about the challenges the Obama administration faces in restoring security to Afghanistan. Cottage industry: An alternative to nursing homes, state-licensed "adult family homes" house up to six seniors in private homes in Washington State. But Seattle Times investigative reporter Michael Berens found the homes rife with abuse and neglect. Jon Meacham on 'Superlativism': As the midterm elections near, Jon Meacham cautions us against the belief that everything that happens in our time is the "most" this or the "worst" that, as some pundits would have us believe. The thin green line: A new report has found that, in spite of the recession, cities are investing in urban parks. Alison Stewart tours one such park — an old elevated rail line in New York City. Next week's news: The finale: Sadly, this is Andy Borowitz's last week on Need to Know. In this retrospective, Andy looks back at the best of his prognostications, and reveals his next career move.

Often thought of as the other Mexican muralist, beside his more flamboyant compatriot Diego Rivera, Orozco was a leader of the Mexican Renaissance. His bold, dynamic frescoes had a profound impact on American painters and inspired Franklin D. Roosevelt to put artists to work during the Great Depression. His most famous U.S. murals -- The Table of Universal Brotherhood, The Epic of American Civilization and Prometheus -- still convey their power in New York, New Hampshire and California. An iconoclastic personality, Orozco survived the loss of his left hand and destruction of more than half his early work

In the first decade of the 21st century, baseball is booming. In an age of home runs and power, Pedro Martinez and a handful of other superb pitchers still manage to dominate. The astonishingly talented right fielder Ichiro Suzuki becomes MLB's first Japanese position player and a hero back home. As America reels from the horror of the 9/11 attacks, baseball provides solace, and in an incredible World Series, gives the country something to cheer about. As the rivalry between the Yankees and the Red Sox reaches the boiling point, long-suffering Boston fans rejoice in their first World Series victory in 86 years, while Giants and Cubs fans endure devastating losses. Barry Bonds demolishes Mark McGwire's home-run record and sets his sights on Henry Aaron's revered all time mark. The game is more popular than ever, but revelations about steroids cast a shadow on many of the era's greatest stars and their historic accomplishments.

The pen is mightier than the sword. Case in point: a desperate, furtive plea smuggled to a New York reporter from deep within the impregnable confines of Western Australia's Fremantle Prison. It was a letter that launched not a thousand ships, but a single, humble American whaler that stood its watery ground against a heavily armed British steamer for the noble cause of freedom and independence. The whaler was the Catalpa, its captain was George Anthony and its precious human cargo consisted of six Irish political prisoners, who had languished and suffered at the Fremantle prison for a decade.

The Grammy winning bassist Israel "Cachao" Lopez died in Coral Gables, Florida, in March 2008, at almost 90 years of age. A maestro of legendary status on the world stage and ultimately considered one of the greatest Afro-Cuban musicians of all time, he had made his home in the United States for the past four decades. However, he continued playing the Havana clubs and dance halls with his brother Orestes. Together, they revolutionized the heart of Cuban music -- their spontaneous improvisations and innovations established the basis of, and the influence of, contemporary Latin jazz and salsa, rock 'n roll and rhythm and blues. The basis of this film is a sold-out 2005 concert at Bimbo's 365 Club, a famous San Francisco nightclub. Cachao's life and work are palpable. "Cachao: Uno Mas" is produced and narrated by actor Andy Garcia, a friend and ardent fan, who helped reinvigorate Cachao's career in the 1990s -- and who appears in this film playing the bongos.

Traveling around the Celtic world from Cornwall to Wales, Brittany, Ireland and Scotland, Wood uncovers the extraordinary story of how a shadowy Welsh freedom fighter - a Dark Age Che Guevara - became a medieval superman and, finally, the model of a Christian hero. On the way, viewers discover the real stories behind the Round Table, Excalibur and the Holy Grail itself: the unattainable, mystical cup of Christ, which has inspired poets, novelists and filmmakers from the Middle Ages right down to Indiana Jones, Monty Python and "The Da Vinci Code." In an intriguing piece of historical detective work, Wood offers a tantalizing glimpse of a historical Arthur - but in the unlikeliest of places.

In 1994, the national pastime faces its worst crisis in 70 years when a bitter and prolonged strike forces the cancellation of the World Series, infuriating fans dismayed by the athletes and teams they once worshipped. Baseball has to rebuild. And rebuild it does, with new stadiums, an infusion of new players from Latin America and the shattering of historic records previously considered unbreakable. Cal Ripken Jr. sets an amazing record of consecutive games played, helping rekindle the country's love of the game. Barry Bonds, son of the great right fielder Bobby Bonds, signs the most lucrative contract to date in baseball history and thrills San Francisco fans. Tom Glavine, John Smoltz and Greg Maddux pitch the Atlanta Braves to the pinnacle. Dazzlingly talented Latino players make an indelible mark on the game. The Yankees, led by manager Joe Torre, return to glory after two decades of disappointment. Bulked up sluggers Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa captivate the nation as they chase Roger Maris' single season home run record. Meanwhile, behind the scenes, more and more players are making life-altering decisions about how far they are willing to go to succeed.

In the first decade of the 21st century, baseball is booming. In an age of home runs and power, Pedro Martinez and a handful of other superb pitchers still manage to dominate. The astonishingly talented right fielder Ichiro Suzuki becomes MLB's first Japanese position player and a hero back home. As America reels from the horror of the 9/11 attacks, baseball provides solace, and in an incredible World Series, gives the country something to cheer about. As the rivalry between the Yankees and the Red Sox reaches the boiling point, long-suffering Boston fans rejoice in their first World Series victory in 86 years, while Giants and Cubs fans endure devastating losses. Barry Bonds demolishes Mark McGwire's home-run record and sets his sights on Henry Aaron's revered all time mark. The game is more popular than ever, but revelations about steroids cast a shadow on many of the era's greatest stars and their historic accomplishments.
