Manager's Memo

James Davie
Station Manager PBS Utah

There is so much to celebrate in November, from Native American Heritage Month to Veteran's Day and Thanksgiving. But one of the main reasons we love this month at PBS Utah is the annual Reading Marathon. Each November, we invite children to read at least 20 minutes each day and to submit their number of minutes read on our website. Those who have met the goal of 600 minutes receive an Adventure Pass with tickets and coupons to their favorite museums, zoos, and other activities. Last year, a record 25,612 students throughout the state read over 20,000,000 minutes! And this year, we hope to set a new record. For more information on this amazing program, please visit pbsutah.org/reading.

If you're looking for something else to celebrate this month, we're so excited to announce that the long-awaited tenth and final season of Doc Martin is available on Passport beginning November 1. Season 10 will broadcast beginning in December, but qualifying members of PBS Utah who have activated their Passport benefit can binge right away.

Another great show premiering a new season early on Passport is Royal Flying Doctor Service. If you missed the first season of this gripping drama, set in the Australian outback, you can catch up now before the second season arrives on November 23.

Passport is one of our favorite ways we have to thank you for being a member of PBS Utah, along with this guide, of course. To check your eligibility, or for help in activating that benefit, please email membership@pbsutah.org. Your support is what makes all of our great shows, community engagement events, and educational programs and events for kids, like the Reading Marathon, possible. Thank you!

SPONSOR PROFILE

In 1916, Reuben C. (Ruby) Syrett brought his family to the wilds of Southern Utah, establishing a ranch near the present site of Ruby's Inn. A few weeks after his arrival, another nearby rancher told Ruby of the canyon called Bryce. Ruby and his family made a Sunday visit to the canyon rim. They were so impressed by what they saw that they not only took full advantage to tell people of the canyon's beauties, but they also became hosts to its visitors. By 1919 they had obtained permission from the state to build a lodge, the "Tourist Rest", near the brink of the canyon.

In 1923, when Bryce Canyon became a National Monument, Ruby moved his "Tourist Rest" to the location of his ranch and named it Ruby's Inn. The Post Office established services at the inn and still serves the area throughout the year. Ruby's reputation grew as the National Monument grew to a National Park, and soon Ruby's Inn became a large business operation.

Originating as simple tent accommodations and a dining area, Ruby's Inn laid the foundation for the contemporary amenities catering to Bryce Canyon visitors today. Committed to offering every traveler an affordable escape from their bustling routines, Ruby's Inn ensures their guests' needs are not only met but exceeded, creating enduring memories. This passion for Bryce Canyon has transcended generations, and today, visitors continue to enjoy the genuine Western hospitality and warm service upheld by Ruby's great-grandchildren.

Ruby's Inn provides diverse accommodations, spanning RV parks to luxurious lodges, ensuring options for every budget. Engage in various activities, such as horseback riding, mountain biking, and guided ATV tours. As winter approaches, enjoy snowshoeing, snowmobile adventures, and the new ice ribbon. Explore these offerings and plan your winter getaway stay at the official website. Visit rubysinn.com for more information and reservations.
