Human Right to Water Act - California	Local News	1/1/2023	7:30pm	n/a	Monika Kelly speaks with Jennifer Clary, California State Director for Clean Water Action about the Human Right to Water Act enacted in 2012. It gives every Californian the right to have access to clean drinking and bathing water. Water is a human right and necessary for our public health, but currently one million Californians do not have access to clean drinking water. Many families have to purchase bottled water for drinking and bathing or are forced to use contaminated drinking water. The pandemic has impacted communities across the state and has exacerbated the issue of water access & affordability. Clean Water Action advocates for short & long-term solutions to #KeepTheWaterFlowing for all Californians. Jennifer Clary also addressed the lack of drought restrictions, wildfire impact on drinking water and the particular impact on black and brown communities where lack of access to clean water is what she termed the result of institutional racism.
