Casey Cooper from Cooper's Nursery in Columbia, SC will also be joining the panel with some plant's ideal for shade and then later in the show for containers.

Our first featured segment will be a visit to Denver Downs Farm in Anderson, SC. We toured this agritourism family farm a few weeks ago in the middle of their Fall Festival to see their corn maze and other fun and games they have. Amanda talked with Catherine Garrison to learn more about the current operation, her father T. Ed Garrison, and about the history of the farm that dates back to 1869. Our second featured segment are highlights from the recent Tony Melton Garden Dedication at the Pee Dee Research and Education Center. We hear remarks from Pee Dee District Director Michael McManus, Tommy Taylor from Taylor Garden and Gift Shop, Clemson Horticulture Program Team Director Cory Tanner, Director of Cooperative Extension Dr. Thomas Dobbins, Director of The Pee Dee REC Dr. Matt Smith, and of course from Tony Melton himself. As always, we will be streaming on “Making It Grow” Facebook, so you can view the show there and join the conversations and ask questions with Terasa and Clemson Agent Vicky Bertagnolli.

DECEMBER

Join us for "Making It Grow" December 14 at 7pm on SCETV for our brand-new Holiday Special. Host and Clemson Extension Agent

Amanda McNulty along with Terasa Lott, Clemson Extension State Coordinator of the SC Master Gardener Program, will pitch to several segments to get you in the holiday spirit. First, Terasa shares a “Garden of the Week” montage that features plants that viewers are using to decorate their homes. Then, Terasa shares with Amanda how pinecones can be used to create tabletop Christmas trees. Next, Amanda is joined by Clemson Extension Agent Mary Vargo who creates Ikebana-inspired floral arrangements that can be used for the holidays and winter months. Next, Amanda is joined by Clemson Extension Water Resources Agent Katie Collins and her sister Bridget Altman who turn recycled oyster shells into Santa Claus ornaments. Then, Amanda talks with Clemson Extension Agent Stephanie Turner who shares her family recipe of an Italian dessert that has been passed down for generations - Struffoli. To end the show, it is Amanda’s turn to make a floral arrangement and she quickly shows Mary Vargo how to create a non-traditional holiday arrangement that looks amazing as a centerpiece anywhere. We will be streaming on “Making It Grow” Facebook, so you can view the show there and join the conversations and ask questions with Terasa and Clemson Extension Agent Vicky Bertagnolli.
