KTWU presents Call of the Mummy: Theater of the Mind, in partnership with Playwright, Phil Grecian. In these radio play dramas, the actors play multiple roles and employ vintage microphones to simulate radio's Golden Age. It's radio you can see! It's 1941, an archaeological party has discovered two mummies in the long sought after tomb of Hatshepsut, who ruled as pharaoh in 18th Dynasty. One of the mummies disappears and members of the discovery party are found strangled by apparently ancient and supernatural hands. The second mummy walks out of the museum, leaving the body of the curator behind. Ace reporter Margo Mason senses a story when her old nemesis James Salton is summoned by the museum to track down the mummies. When a young British chanteuse answers the call of the mummy and is kidnapped through arcane forces, the chase begins along a trail of murder and an ancient curse.

CLASSICALIA is an international music competition where the brightest young stars in the classical musical world get to shine. Hundreds of musical prodigies from around the world entered the competition, and after two preliminary rounds of judging, nine finalists were chosen to travel to Vienna and perform at the Konzaerthaus with the Vienna Opera Ball Orchestra. CLASSICALIA is hosted by singer, pianist, composer and actress Shelea Melody McDonald and conductor and teacher Maestro Alistair Willis. They are joined by a trio of judges: celebrated violin virtuoso Eszter Haffner, acclaimed concert pianist Jura Margulis, and Grammy Award-nominated keyboardist, session musician and musical director Greg Pillinganes. Each year, CLASSICALIA features a new cohort of award-winning young artists competing in three age categories: Junior (6-11), Intermediate (12-17) and Senior (18-25). The winners in each category are determined by three internationally renowned musicians, who offer each young finalist thoughtful and instructive feedback on their performances to guide their musical education and aspirations.

SANDRA DAY O'CONNOR: THE FIRST
01:00:00
Length: 01:56:46

When Ronald Reagan nominated Sandra Day O'Connor as the Supreme Court's first female justice in 1981, the announcement dominated the news. Time Magazine's cover proclaimed "Justice At Last," and she received unanimous Senate approval. Born in 1930 in El Paso, Texas, O'Connor grew up on a cattle ranch in Arizona in an era when women were expected to become homemakers. After graduating near the top of her class at Stanford Law School, she could not convince a single law firm to interview her, so she turned to volunteer work and public service. A Republican, she served two terms in the Arizona state senate, then became a judge on the state court of appeals. During her 25 years on the Supreme Court, O'Connor was the critical swing vote on cases involving some of the 20th century's most controversial issues, including abortion, affirmative action - and she was the tiebreaker on Bush v. Gore. Forty years after her confirmation, this biography recounts the life of a pioneering woman who both reflected and shaped an era.

Length: 00:28:55

Hacker plans to launch a new virus at Motherboard - one that will crash her hard drive once and for all so he can take over cyberspace. To stop the kids and Digit from getting in his way, he tricks them into a cybersite from which escape seems impossible. In a confounding juxtaposition of scale and size, the kids first find themselves in a land of giants - then become giants themselves in a land of little people. The kids must cope with these disparities in scale and size, and use their brainpower to escape and warn Motherboard before Hacker can launch his virus. The Big Idea: You can create an exact likeness of something-- though one that is a different size--by multiplying the size of every part of your original by the same number. Math Topic: Scale and Size; NCTM Links: Geometry, Algebra.

Length: 01:27:05

In this ultimately healing personal essay, a filmmaker and her diverse classmates confront the trauma brought on by their years at a behavior modification boarding school. "Pressing ahead to alleviate her crippling PTSD and shame about her time at a behavior modification boarding school, a high-school ice hockey star asks questions for which there most likely will be no answers, attempting to connect the dots of her disjointed memories. She speaks with her parents, former staff, and former classmates - a Latinx dancer; a young professional from NY; a Lakota youth activist; and a lawyer- and have their own varied memories. She questions what kind of youth deserves this treatment, if any. Through this process, like many with PTSD, she wonders if she will ever be a reliable narrator of her own story and if not, how much does that matter?"
