Topic: The Most Distant Object Ever Visited by a Spacecraft

A space rock named Ultima Thule is a billion miles on the other side of Pluto. The space rock is approximately twenty miles long by ten miles wide and seems to spin through space. The NASA spacecraft New Horizons is a tiny space probe that is flying through space in excess of 31,000 miles per hour and recently conducted a successful flyby of Ultima Thule. Over the next few days, scientists hope to receive photographs of the most distant object ever visited by a spacecraft.

Topic: Unsafe Sledding

Fox News reported, parts of Indiana received several inches of snow, many people grabbed their sleds and went for a little fun in the snow. But, one person called police, when they saw kids, sledding into a “dangerous area” in Noblesville. When officers arrived, they looked at the area and decided they needed to test the hill themselves. The kids said, “They were afraid they were in trouble when the officers arrived. But, the police tested it themselves, sledding down the hills, and told them as they left to stay safe.

Topic: Texas Church Pays Off School Lunch Debt

According to NBC 5, Royse City First United Methodist Church has a tradition of donating its Christmas Eve offerings to charity. After witnessing the impact the donation made in the previous year, the church decided to help the entire Royse City Independent School District in 2018. In an interview with NBC 5, the church’s pastor Chris Everson said that helping the community is what the church is called to do.

Topic: Big Decisions

Sometimes making decisions are no-brainers. You make your choice, and even if it's not the best decision, the consequences are rarely worth breaking a sweat. Then there are times you have to make hard decisions. The more you think about it, the more confused you feel. This confusion is so uncomfortable that we tend to completely avoid the big decisions. Ultimately, any decision involves a leap of faith.

Here are some helpful hints if you're facing a BIG decision today:

1. Evaluate the Pros and the Cons
2. Phone a Friend
3. Pray
4. Research and Experiment
5. Take the Leap & don't look back.

Topic: Daylight Savings Time Starts Sunday

On Sunday, March 10, at 2 am, daylight saving time begins. We'll set our clocks forward one hour, and the change will push sunsets later into the evening hours and sunrises later into the morning hours. The cost is that "springing forward" will temporarily disrupt the sleep of millions of Americans. Some states are now hoping to extend daylight saving time hours all year long.
