ISSUE:	Community Outreach & Development
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 10-11-15 15 minutes 6:35 to 6:50am National Sight Week – In conversation with One Sight’s Mony Iyer - Sr Director, Strategy and Global Sustainable Operations. For those without vision problems, the ability to see clearly is something that can often be taken for granted. Being able to see clearly affects everything from the ability to learn, to productivity at work and earning potential. Yet, for 1 in 7 people around the world, access to an eye exam and a pair of glasses is not a reality. In advance of World Sight Day on Thursday, October 8th - a global day of awareness that seeks to focus attention on blindness and visual impairment. Mony Iyer will discuss the global vision care crisis and the world-changing mission of OneSight – a World Sight Day partner and independent nonprofit committed to providing vision resources to those in need globally – and explore what viewers can do to get involved and help make a difference. 	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 10-18-15 15 minutes 6:20 to 6:35am Justin McCarthy. Director for Smile Train, an international children’s charity that repairs cleft lip and palate for children in the developing world. I am the first representative for Smile Train to be based on the West Coast and work with individual donors, schools, community organizations, corporations and foundations across the West to fund the surgeries and change lives forever. I am coming to Seattle to meet with donors and partners and would like to be part of your public affairs programs (I think you are responsible for four public affairs radio shows) to share information about Smile Train, some of the physical and social issues related to cleft AND update about what people in Seattle and Washington ARE doing and can do to change the life of a child forever. Last year Smile Train teams repaired 125,000 smiles and just a year ago we celebrated our one millionth smile repair for a 6 year old boy from Tanzania named Osawa Owiti. Our model is based on the “teach a man to fish” philosophy whereby we partner with local medical facilities in the developing world, train their teams to perform the surgery, and then pay for the surgeries which are roughly $250 in the developing world. Additional Issue: Health
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:35 to 6:50am 10-18-15 Nicole Ward, Executive Director of Team Backpack of Tacoma. “I started this project back in 2012. It all stemmed from 1 Facebook post made by a counselor friend of mine. It read ‘If anyone is looking for a charity to help with this holiday season, Lincoln High has a lot of homeless at risk youth in our school that could use some help with food cards to eating establishment, movie passes, Starbucks card, and so on. If you would open your hearts and help our school, it would be a blessing.’ From that, "TeamBackpack of Tacoma" was born! Now we are on our 4th year of doing some pretty amazing things for our community! Since 2012 we have raised over $43,100.00 that helped provide over 400 teens in our high schools with a backpack of necessities and comfort supplies. My personal history of being an at risk youth, becoming part of the health and welfare system, foster-care, at a young age is a side of the tracks my shoes have walked 100’s of miles in. This is very real for me. Somedays it’s the best feeling in the world for me, while others bring me great sadness of a time that was a very hurtful part in my life! I have plenty of regrets, as well as so much to be thankful for. We are evolving and changing lives 1 backpack at a time! Additional Issue: Minorities and Cultural Awareness

	Community Matters with Lee Callahan  20 minutes 6:00 - 6:20am  11-1-15  Mark Bott Operation of Kidsafe International - The Operation Kidsafe system, procedure and layout were developed using consultants from the FBI, Police Officials and fingerprinting experts. Using the latest all digital systems we capture the fingerprints of each hand along with a full digital head and shoulder photograph. The above information is then printed on hard copy and handed to parent for safe keeping. There is an area on the document for parents to update with a current photo. Should a child become lost, or even worse, kidnapped, the parent would call 911 and let law enforcement know they have an Operation Kidsafe document. The Police Department will know how to handle it from there. Don't forget that the focus of this event is education. With the Operation Kidsafe safety tips, children can avoid many compromising situations. It is the perfect time for parents to cover these tips with their children and start a family safety action plan
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan  15 minutes 6:20 to 6:35am  11-8-15  Jennifer Iacovelli - Simple Giving: Easy Ways to Give Every Day  Jennifer Iacovelli has focused her careers around the concept of giving back, and would be a great expert resource for coverage on philanthropy and giving this holiday season. We sent you a finished copy of her new release Simple Giving: Easy Ways to Give Every Day, which shares 40 ideas to help make the world a better place. Chapters include six giving models, exploring the many ways in which we can give. A perfect pick for holiday giving coverage, Iacovelli explores ways we can all make an immediate impact, as well as how we can think about philanthropy in the long term to make sustainability and social good a part of our business models and shopping habits. By being more mindful of how our actions impact others and taking steps toward positive change, we also live happier, more fulfilled lives.
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan  15 minutes 6:20 to 6:35am  11-22-15 Carrie Swanson, Gifts Catalog Director for World Vision. World Vision is a Christian humanitarian organization dedicated to working with children, families, and their communities worldwide to reach their full potential by tackling the root causes of poverty and injustice. Working in nearly 100 countries around the world, we serve all people, regardless of religion, race, ethnicity, or gender. One in eight people in the world do not have enough to eat. Many poor farmers are unable to grow enough food to feed their own families, much less sell for additional income. That's why we partner with communities to address immediate food needs — but also to grow sustainable food for the future. Concerned people can help by donating money to go to a goat for a family in need. Additional Issue: Minorities and Cultural Awareness
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan  15 minutes 6:00 to 6:20am  12-6-15  Al Jazeera America's Allen Shaufler reports on The Allen Institute for Brain Science opening in Seattle this week. It is a cutting edge non-profit medical research organization dedicated to accelerating understanding of how the human brain works. Begun with $100 million in seed money from philanthropist Paul Allen (of Microsoft) in 2003, the Institute tackles projects that are at the intersection of biology and technology. The resulting data is free and publicly available, and helps researchers. Al Jazeera America's Allen Schauffler is in Seattle and looks at some of the projects the Institute is working on and how they are going about giving away their data. Additional Issue: Health

	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 25 minutes 6:30- 6:55am 10-4-15 Drunk Mom: A Memoir by Jowita Bydlowska. Three years after giving up drinking, Jowita Bydlowska found herself throwing back a glass of champagne like it was ginger ale. It was a special occasion: a party celebrating the birth of her first child. It also marked Bydlowska's immediate, full-blown return to crippling alcoholism. In the gritty and sometimes grimly comic tradition of the bestselling memoirs Lit by Mary Karr and Smashed by Koren Zailckas, Drunk Mom is Bydlowska's account of the ways substance abuse took control of her life- the binges and blackouts, the humiliations, the extraordinary risk-taking- as well as her fight toward recovery as a young mother. This courageous memoir brilliantly shines a light on the twisted logic of an addicted mind and the powerful, transformative love of one's child. Ultimately it gives hope, especially to those struggling in the same way. Additional Issue: Health
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 20 minutes 6am-6:20 10-18-15 Margaret Cho Three time Grammy and Emmy nominee, comedian Margaret Cho has announced she will embark on a national U.S. run in support of The psyCHO Tour this fall. From singlehood to Boko Haram to Caitlyn Jenner's transition to female empowerment, Margaret tackles difficult subjects with sensitivity and razor sharp insight. A pioneer amongst women in comedy, Margaret doesn't take anything for granted. "It's a wonderful thing to be known as a 'safe haven' for people who feel disenfranchised. The audience at my shows don't necessarily consider themselves traditional comedy fans. I seem to be a secure alternative for people who don't think they're being represented in society. They come because my point of view satisfies a lot of what needs to be said out there, and that makes me really proud." Additional Issue: Arts
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:20 to 6:35am 11-1-15 Brandi Chastain is travelling with the US Women's National team and stopped by to tell us some amazing stories of the 91ers, 99ers and 2015ers. Millions of viewers will watch women's soccer on television, and even start to recognize players by their first names. Some might wonder why audiences only see these world-class players, like Abby Wambach, who holds the international goal-scoring record—for women and men—for a few weeks every two years at the World Cup or the Olympics. But most, even those who care about equality for women, won't consider how different these athletes' careers are compared to those of men who do the exact same thing for a living. Today, the gap between men's and women's wages, the tiny fraction of female CEOs at Fortune 500 companies, and the lack of respect for Hollywood actresses and directors receive regular and impassioned coverage in both the mainstream and feminist media. The gender inequities in sports are just as vast as those faced by women in corporate offices and on movie sets, but for some reason they fail to incite the same level of outrage.
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:35 to 6:50am 11-1-15 Every Heart Has a Story to Tell By Corey Hudson Form Corey: "The message I am giving in "Every Heart Has a Story to Tell" is that someone cares, that your life matters, and that just by sharing your story and being who you are you can help someone else—someone you have never met and may never meet. I believe this concept helps us as a society to break down stereotypes and be less judgmental and more compassionate to each other and ourselves. It is my hope that this becomes a tool to help each of us remember that we are not alone, that there is support and there is hope. Changing the world starts with having courage to be vulnerable, with having compassion for ourselves and others, and with establishing meaningful connections with each other. We are all in this together. We can each be someone's hero by sharing our story. Over the years I have suffered bouts of depression, anxiety, and addiction, and have been hospitalized for becoming

	suicidal twice. I faced challenges as a teenager with accepting my sexuality and dealing with my parents' divorce. I dropped out of school during my second year in high school to begin working and supporting myself. I spent many years pursuing a culinary career that was unfulfilling to me, only to convince myself that money and security were enough to make me happy. It wasn't until I picked up the camera almost five years ago that my life and the way I see the world around me began to change."
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan  10 minutes 6:30 to 6:40am  12-6-15  Amos Kamil's book Great Is The Truth: Secrecy, Scandal, and the Quest for Justice at the Horace Mann School. The book is based on Amos' investigative reporting in a 2012 cover story for the New York Times Magazine. It has an important social justice message — not just the obviously urgent need for us to create a culture in which abuse does not happen, and in which survivors are supported to report abuse. But also the need to change public policy so that justice prevails, even long after the crimes have been committed. Amos is interesting in exploring cultures that either breed or ignore sexual abuse of minors.
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan  50 minutes 6:00 to 6:50am  12-20-15 Hand to Mouth: Living in Bootstrap America, by Linda Tirado. The real-life Nickel and Dimed—the author of the wildly popular "Poverty Thoughts" essay tells what it's like to be working poor in America. As the haves and have-nots grow more separate and unequal in America, the working poor don't get heard from much. Now they have a voice—and it's forthright, funny, and just a little bit furious. Here, Linda Tirado tells what it's like, day after day, to work, eat, shop, raise kids, and keep a roof over your head without enough money. She also answers questions often asked about those who live on or near minimum wage: Why don't they get better jobs? Why don't they make better choices? Why do they smoke cigarettes and have ugly lawns? Why don't they borrow from their parents? Enlightening and entertaining, Hand to Mouth opens up a new and much-needed dialogue between the people who just don't have it and the people who just don't get it.
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan  25 minutes 6:00 to 6:25am  12-27-15 Orange Is the New Black: My Year in a Women's Prison by Piper Kerman. With a career, a boyfriend, and a loving family, Piper Kerman barely resembles the reckless young woman who delivered a suitcase of drug money ten years before. But that past has caught up with her. Convicted and sentenced to fifteen months at the infamous federal correctional facility in Danbury, Connecticut, the well-heeled Smith College alumna is now inmate #11187-424—one of the millions of people who disappear "down the rabbit hole" of the American penal system. From her first strip search to her final release, Kerman learns to navigate this strange world with its strictly enforced codes of behavior and arbitrary rules. She meets women from all walks of life, who surprise her with small tokens of generosity, hard words of wisdom, and simple acts of acceptance. Heartbreaking, hilarious, and at times enraging, Kerman's story offers a rare look into the lives of women in prison—why it is we lock so many away and what happens to them when they're there.

	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 25 minutes 6:00-6:25am 10-4-15 Kaitlin Roig, author of Choosing Hope. Kaitlin Roig-DeBellis is the courageous young teacher who saved the lives of fifteen first-grade students by piling them inside a tiny bathroom at the Sandy Hook Elementary School on December 14, 2012—a day we’ve come to know well. Yet her inspiring memoir is not solely about the events that occurred that fateful day in Newtown. “Pain is pain and sadness is sadness and loss is loss and we are all connected in this.” She has written her book with the aim of reaching even more people with this powerful message. What happened on December 14, 2012, at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Connecticut, where she hid fifteen first-grade students in a tiny bathroom and ultimately saved their lives. In Choosing Hope, Kaitlin Roig-DeBellis candidly and compassionately addresses one of the most difficult questions each of us must face in life—how to cope with true tragedy and suffering, whether our own or someone else’s. Offering guidance to those who are struggling, she assures readers enduring hardship that they are not alone and that when you choose hope in dark times, you re-establish personal control and lay the groundwork for positive action that heals you as you help others. 	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:35 to 6:50am 10-25-15 In Fearsome Creatures Of The Lumberwoods: 20 Chilling Tales from the Wilderness author Hal Johnson introduces readers (ages 9 to 12) to the scariest and most supernatural beasts in American folklore, brought to life by the wonderfully creepy illustrations of Tom Mead. Hodags and hugags, squonks and wapaloosim, wassets and whintossers—when you venture into the wilderness, there’s no telling what horrors you may meet. Each chapter is illustrated in ghastly detail, some with glow-in-the-dark ink, making the book perfect for under-the-covers reading. These are the stories kids love—spooky, fantastical, gripping, gory, and surprisingly cheeky.
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:50 to 6:50am 11-29-15 Terrell Dorsey, founder of Unleash the Brilliance. (UTB) is a vibrant and exciting group that offers an amazing alternative to truancy, bullying, negative peer pressure, drug related activity and so much more. Unleash The Brilliance can change and has changed the lives of apathetic, at-risk youth and young adults through the use of dance, music, theater and personal testimonies. UTB uses the talents, motivations and inspirations of students and young people. Unleash The Brilliance provides support through positive influence and allows participation to promote healthy goals and behaviors which lead to better life choices and decision making. Unleash the Brilliance works with The King County School District, The King County Prosecuting Attorney’s office and The BECCA Task Force. Additional Issue: Community Outreach

	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:20 to 6:35am 10-25-15 Habitat for Humanity and the Veterans Build initiative. Lynn Scherer, Director of Corporate Relations and Ali Shebani, Family Selection Manager. Veteran Home Ownership Program, Habitat for Humanity's fast-track home ownership program specifically for low-income vets. The program itself is year-round and geared toward vets, military families, and people in active service. Veterans can apply for their own Habitat home, or volunteer with Veterans Build, to donate time and skills in building another veteran's home. Additional Issue: Community Outreach
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 25 minutes 6:00 to 6:25am 11-15-15 Folds of Honor is an amazing non-profit that provides educational financial assistance for the family members of soldiers who have died or been wounded in war. Of the one million-plus dependents adversely affected by deployments, nearly nine out of 10 do not qualify for federal scholarship assistance. Since 2007, the Folds of Honor has carried forth this singular, noble mission. To close the gap, providing educational support to spouses and children of America's fallen and wounded soldiers. CBS radio has produced this program on Folds Of Honor.
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 10 minutes 6:40 to 6:50am 12-6-15 CBS News, CBS Cares - "Combat Stress: Finding the Way Home," A CBS Radio News Production. The four authorities Kroft interviewed for the program all have vast experience with PTS and veterans affairs: Col. David Sutherland, U.S. Army (Ret.) Chairman of the Dixon Center for Military and Veterans Community Services, an organization within Easter Seals, and former combat brigade commander in the Iraq War; Ret. U.S. Army Col. Charles W. Hoge, a nationally recognized medical doctor who is an expert on PTSD; Ret. Capt. Shannon Meehan, author of Beyond Duty (Polity Press), which he wrote after recuperating from his own wounds suffered in an IED attack; and Steve Robinson, a retired non-commissioned officer and Gulf War vet who is recognized as a subject matter expert on a variety of veterans issues including mental health and the resiliency of the force. Sutherland, Meehan and Robinson have all dealt with the effects of PTSD and each found his own path to recovery and healing. Additional Issue: Health

	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:20 to 6:35am 10-11-15 Super-better: A Revolutionary Approach to Getting Stronger, Happier, Braver and More Resilient— Powered by the Science of Games. Jane McGonigal is a world-renowned designer of alternate reality games — or, as she likes to say, games that are designed to improve real lives and solve real problems. She has created and deployed award-winning games, sports and “secret missions” in more than 30 countries on six continents, specializing in games that challenge players to confront problems such as poverty, hunger and climate change, through collaboration. Now, McGonigal wants to challenge us to become healthier, stronger, more creative and happier through the power of games. Superbetter: A Revolutionary Approach to Getting Stronger, Happier, Braver and More Resilient— Powered by the Science of Games is an innovative guide to living game fully, based on the program that has already helped nearly half a million people achieve remarkable personal growth. Additional Issue: Education

ISSUE:	Environment
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:35 to 6:50am 11-8-15 Quantified: Redefining Conservation for the Next Economy with Freshwater Trust President Joe Whitworth, who argues that to solve the environmental problems of today, we have to rethink conservation on a major scale. Modern environmentalism is a lot more like a blackberry than the iPhone—despite initial success, it has lost nearly all its ground due to its inability to keep up with market trends. In his new book, Quantified: Redefining Conservation for the Next Economy, Freshwater Trust President Joe Whitworth argues that to solve the environmental problems of today, we have to rethink conservation on a major scale, applying 21st century tools and technologies to accelerate the pace and scale of conservation. Whitworth draws lessons from the world’s most tech-savvy, high-impact organizations – Google, Apple, Amazon and others – to show how we can make real gains for the environment.
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 25 minutes 6:25 to 6:50am 11-15-15 Satellites in the High Country: Searching for the Wild in the Age of Man with author Jason Mark. Can wild places compete with a planet of 7 billion people, global climate change, Amazon drones and Google chat almost everywhere? Called a “rebel with a cause” by Time, Bay Area author Jason Mark was intrigued by opinions in academia and among professional land managers that “wildness is dead, and we best get over it.” An environmental journalist, (covering “everything to do with the intersection between industrial civilization and wild nature”), Jason went looking for answers in some of the most rugged, remote, road less and unforgiving places in America. Satellites in the High Country: Searching for the Wild in the Age of Man is the resulting book. Jason Mark tracked Mexican gray wolves in the harsh Gila Wilderness of New Mexico, rafted through the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, and experienced the quietest place in the continental United States in the Hoh Rainforest. Topics covered: Why we need wildness now more than ever, the very definition of “wilderness” and how he was inspired to explore it and write about it. How there can still be “wildness” when wilderness areas are heavily managed to control visitors, control the wildlife, and put out wildfires. How government agencies and environmental and conservation organizations can approach managing wild places in the face of disruptions like global climate change.
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:50 to 6:50am 11-22-15 Robin Cook once again foreshadows serious issues within the US healthcare industry. In Host, something dark and unknown is happening at the hospital at Mason-Dixon University. Relatively young and seemingly healthy people are checking in for routine procedures—and they’re not checking out. Topics covered by Cook: Current issues with the healthcare industry (including Obamacare). What he foresees the pernicious relationship between medicine and business in the future. Hot topics covered in his past novels, including nanotechnology (in Nano), regenerative medicine (in Death Benefit), stem cells (in Cure), and the intersection of technology and medicine in Cell). The new arena of biologics, the current darlings of the pharmaceutical industry, and how it plays into the corporate mantra of short-term profits and maximizing returns. 	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 25 minutes 6:25 to 6:50am 12-27-15 The Great White Bear: A Natural and Unnatural History of the Polar Bear Hardcover by Kieran Mulvaney. When author Mulvaney joined an expedition on the icebreaker Arctic Sunrise, he planned to watch polar bears on the ice along the Alaskan shoreline, but most of the ice was gone. After days of searching, he finally saw an emaciated bear swimming far at sea. Such may be the fate of the species if global warming continues unabated, for the polar bear is a marine mammal that lives more on ocean ice than on land, hunting seals and scavenging beached whales. The author found more bears in Churchill, Manitoba, but they were stranded waiting

	longer each year for the ice to form on Hudson Bay. Mixing historical accounts, research data, and his own observations, Mulvaney skillfully describes the harsh nomadic life of polar bears. Readers who enjoy nature writing will appreciate this sympathetic report on the endangered state of the great white bear.

ISSUE:	Politics
	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:00 to 6:20am 11-29-15 Congressman Barney Frank on his book, Frank: A Life in Politics from the Great Society to Same-Sex Marriage is one man's account of the country's transformation—and the tale of a truly momentous career. Many Americans recall Frank's lacerating wit, whether it was directed at the Clinton impeachment ("What did the president touch, and when did he touch it?") or the pro-life movement (some people believe "life begins at conception and ends at birth"). But the contours of his private and public lives are less well-known. For more than four decades, he was at the center of the struggle for personal freedom and economic fairness. From the battle over AIDS funding in the 1980s to the debates over "big government" during the Clinton years to the 2008 financial crisis, the congressman from Massachusetts played a key role. In 2010, he coauthored the most far-reaching and controversial Wall Street reform bill since the era of the Great Depression, and helped bring about the repeal of Don't Ask, Don't Tell. Barney Frank represented the Fourth Congressional District of Massachusetts for more than three decades and chaired the House Financial Services Committee from 2007 to 2011. 	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 15 minutes 6:20 to 6:35am 11-29-15 Blaine Harden is the author of Africa: Dispatches from a Fragile Continent; A River Lost: The Life and Death of the Columbia; and Escape from Camp 14. His new book, The Great Leader And The Fighter Pilot, tells the riveting story of how Kim Il Sung grabbed power and plunged his country into war against the United States while No Kum Sok, the youngest fighter pilot in his air force, was playing a high-risk game of deception—and escape. The Great Leader And The Fighter Pilot is an important book that explains why North Korea is the way it is today, told through the story of Kim Il Sung's rise to power, and the brave North Korean fighter pilot who escaped the prison state and delivered the first MiG-15 into American hands. Using never-before-released government documents, Harden sheds new light on Mao and Stalin's pivotal involvement in the rise of Kim Il Sung, and reminds readers of the role the United States played in the creation of North Korea's propaganda machine. The United States brutally carpet-bombed North Korea during the Korean War, killing hundreds of thousands of civilians, which gave the Kim dynasty the fact-based narrative it uses today to inspire hatred of the United States and justify their endless spending on military hardware. 	Community Matters with Lee Callahan 25 minutes 6:25 to 6:50am 12-13-15 Eric Wechter, the editor of Fodor's Cuba, answers questions about traveling there during this unique moment in Cuba's history. With the relaxation of regulations on American travel to Cuba, the island is on many travelers' radars for the first time since sanctions were introduced in 1961. But with restrictions and developments changing quickly, understanding the revised rules and planning a trip to the Caribbean hot spot can be challenging. As U.S.-Cuba relations develop, many Americans are eager to experience what they have been missing for the past 50 years – salsa, sugar-sand beaches, world-class cigars and rum – and with its proximity to the United States, the International Monetary Fund is estimating that as many as 10 million American tourists per year will visit Cuba once all travel bans are lifted. Restrictions haven't been completely lifted yet, and until that happens, visiting Cuba from the U.S. legally can be confusing and involves a good amount of planning. Fodor's Travel has been keeping up with all the latest travel developments in Cuba. Fodor's Cuba is the go-to guidebook for everything CUBA! It contains all of the latest practical information on traveling to and around the island, making it a necessity for any traveler who is planning a trip.
