Diagnosing Back Pain The symptoms of back pain can easily be treated. But fixing the underlying problem can be tricky because the diagnosis is so complex. Does the pain stem from the bones, nerves, muscles, or in rare cases a tumor? We'll check it out.

FotoFacial RF Doctors are using a combination of intense pulsed light treatment with radio frequency energy to give patients smoother, younger-looking skin. We show you how it works.

Macular Degeneration Gene Scientists in Oregon have found the first gene believed to be responsible for the degenerative eye disease macular degeneration. We'll meet a member of the family that helped doctors make the discovery...and tell you how it could, one day, mean a cure.

Pancreatic Cancer Study Doctors are testing a new drug that combined with chemotherapy may help pancreatic cancer patients live longer. We talk to one of the researchers and a study participant.

Urinary Reflux in Kids An advanced new treatment for children with urinary reflux can correct the problem without surgery. We talk to the doctor who developed the new endoscopic procedure and visit a young patient.

WEEK OF JANUARY 12 - 16, 2004

Collarbone Repair There are varying degrees of shoulder separation injury. The most severe is the most difficult to treat. Now there's a new procedure, performed arthroscopically, that uses two screws and some rope to reconstruct the collarbone back to good as new.

Forestalling Frailty Some experts say a female baby boomer can expect to live into her 80's. But whether or not those years will be "golden" could depend on what she's doing to prevent frailty now.

Practical Anatomy Ever wish you went to school to be a doctor? We'll show you some middle school kids who have a unique opportunity to see what it would be like first hand. It's an anatomy class where doctors dissect human cadavers while students watch in 3-D.

Rejecting Rejection A new study finds the drug declizumab usually used to improve organ function after a kidney transplant can also help children getting liver transplants. We talk to a transplant surgeon and one of his young patients.

Women's Cancer A new study has sparked a dramatic increase in requests for genetic testing. The study reinforced the extremely high risk of breast and ovarian cancer in women who inherit one of two defective genes. We'll talk to a genetic counselor and woman with the gene who took a drastic preventative step - surgery.

WEEK OF JANUARY 19 – 23, 2004

Crohn's Relief Crohn's disease is debilitating. Symptoms of the inflammatory bowel disease include recurrent pain, diarrhea, fever, and weight loss. Now a novel approach at treating the disease may offer hope for patients. The drug has been around for a while and works the opposite of most treatments for Crohn's.

Depression and Brain Size A new study shows that depression can shrink a vital part of the brain. And researchers say the findings could explain why there is a link between depressed people and Alzheimer's disease. A change in brain size was not a factor in people who were taking anti-depressants.

Featherlift Facelift The trend towards less invasive, "mini" cosmetic surgery procedures continues. Those trying to avoid major facelifts can now turn to specially designed threads. We'll introduce you to the new "featherlift" facelift and show how these threads might give you the lift you need.

Sextant Spinal Surgery Traditional back surgery can mean weeks in the hospital and months of recovery. Now a new procedure that's much less invasive has patients up and at 'em quicker. The secret is a tool mariners use to navigate the seas.

Embracing Fragile X A look at Fragile X, the most common form of hereditary mental impairment. We'll check out the latest research and visit a Fragile X family.

Week of January 26 ~ 30, 2004

Bloodless Knee Surgery Joint replacement surgery can be bloody and patients often bank their own blood before having it done. But a new study suggests the practice of donating your blood before surgery may actually create the need for a blood transfusion after surgery. We'll show you what doctors are doing instead.

HeartSTAT Chest pains are not created equal. Some signal a heart attack, while the majority mean something else - or something not even heart-related. Now a new process is in place at some hospitals to help doctors determine, faster than ever before, if the patient's chest pain is really a heart attack or if the patient can go home.

Pre/Probiotics When we talk about bacteria, it usually isn't good but putting good bacteria in your body can actually improve your health. Many people suffer intestinal troubles that "friendly" bacteria could cure.

Food Sensitivities Food sensitivities can be grouped into two categories: allergies and intolerances. The difference between the two is that an allergy involves the immune system, an intolerance does not. We'll show you why you need to know the difference.

Support Group for Kids When a parent gets sick, children often don't know where to turn. We'll show you a special program designed to help kids coping with chronic illness in the family.

Week of February 2 – 6, 2004

Autofocus Lens Replacement Soon you may be able to throw away your bifocals. Researchers are working on a lens replacement material that is so humanlike, it can focus automatically so eyeglass wearers can see close up and far away without help.

Corkscrew Stroke Treatment Current stroke treatments have limits. The faster you treat, the more brain you save. Now a new, experimental device is generating a buzz amongst stroke researchers. We'll show the MERCI Retriever and see how researchers are using this "corkscrew" to save lives.

Perfect Fit Diet Every diet works for somebody but one size doesn't fit all. We talk to a doctor who researched hundreds of diets to find a way to tailor eating and exercise strategies for her patients. She's put her methods into a book to help everyone devise a plan that's the perfect fit for them.

Active for Life Can you turn your couch potato kid into someone that will stay active for life? Researchers are doing their best to figure out whether we develop our "athletic identities" in childhood...and what it means to us as adults.

Transplant Rejection Test Doctors are testing a new ultrasound technology that can detect signs of a child rejecting their transplanted heart up to a year before the organ actually fails. The technology may help cut down on the number of painful, invasive follow-up biopsies kids now endure.

WEEK OF FEBRUARY 9 – 13, 2004

Cancer Technology Study A major new clinical study will enroll thousands of women to decide how best to use new breast imaging technologies. The three-part program will evaluate how well digital mammogram, ultrasound and M-R-I work in detecting, diagnosing and staging treatment for breast cancer. We talk to the principal investigator and a study participant.

Centering Pregnancy Group prenatal care is getting high marks from doctors. It's a way for them to spend more time preparing their patients for a healthy pregnancy and birth experience. We visit a group meeting to see how it works.

Seeing Better Simple tips to improve your vision

Is it really organic? People concerned about the environment are going organic. But there's a big difference between an organic pear and an organic shampoo. For one, the government has set standards on organic food items. Not so with organic cosmetics. We'll tell you what that means and what to look for if you want to go organic, too.

Updated Heart Freezing Cox-Maze is a surgical procedure to restore a normal heart beat in patients with atrial fibrillation. Now new variations of this traditionally open-heart procedure allow sicker patients who cannot withstand major surgery to benefit.

WEEK OF FEBRUARY 16 – 20, 2004

Celebrity Smiles You've seen smile makeovers on TV. Now with computer technology you can preview your own dazzling Hollywood-style smile before one tooth is touched. We visit a cosmetic dentist to see how it's done.

Healthy Kids' Meals Quick and healthy food recipes for kids.

Home Health Monitor Sick patients who need daily attention can now get it in the privacy of their own homes. Nurses can check vital signs and monitor patients' well-being through wireless technology. This saves on trips to the hospital and gives comfort to caregivers.

Newborn Surgery Trial Clinical trials for surgical procedures are relatively rare for adults. Now researchers for the first time are conducting a trial to compare two operations for the same early childhood condition. We talk to the lead investigator and a young mother who had to choose whether to enroll her sick baby in a study.

Pocket Protector Remember those plastic pocket protectors that keep ink from leaking onto your shirt? Well this isn't anything like that. This Pocket Protector is actually a breast implant device - a type of bladder that houses the actual breast implant. The doctor/inventor says the device makes implants safer for patients.

WEEK OF FEBRUARY 23 – 27, 2004

Cold Sores Cold sores are common. They're caused by the herpes simplex virus. The nasty looking, fluid-filled blisters often force many into hiding. So what can you do if you feel one coming on? Can you avoid them altogether? We'll ask a skin expert.

Express Workouts Getting an intense workout in half the time.

Growing Prosthesis Kids who have bones surgically removed because of cancer can get a replacement bone. The problem is, as kids grow, that artificial bone has to be adjusted for length. And that means multiple surgeries. Now a new expandable prosthesis grows with the child without additional surgery.

Insulin for Non-Diabetics People in the hospital often develop higher than average blood sugar from illness, infection or surgery. Such patients are more likely to die of a critical illness. Yale researchers have found a new way to help these ICU patients with intravenous insulin.

Laser for Stretch Marks According to the American Academy of Dermatology, 90 percent of pregnant women develop stretch marks. Now there's a way to zap them away for good.

WEEK OF MARCH 1 – 5, 2004

Mad Cow Feed Testing The thought of mad cow disease is frightening. Now one company has developed a simple new test to keep beef lovers a little bit safer. The FeedChek™ kit detects the presence of animal remains in cattle feed. It's one more step farmers can take to ensure their cattle and the consumer stay disease free.

Really Dreamy Can dreams affect your health?

Rubella's Lasting Impact Like polio and smallpox, Rubella/German Measles has virtually disappeared in the U.S. Now some adults who were "rubella babies" in the last U-S outbreak 40 years ago are experiencing late on-set health problems that may be related to congenital rubella syndrome. We talk to one of these adults and a researcher about a project to definitively diagnose the condition.

Stroke Pump Neurologists in Texas are testing a surgically implantable pump designed to help stroke patients left with rigid, spastic muscles. The pump releases baclofen, a drug designed to loosen muscles and stop the often crippling pain.

The Starlight Room A trip to the hospital is difficult enough for adults. For kids it can be terrifying. Now hospitals around the country are trying to make the experience easier. We visit one hospital in Memphis where young patients can forget their fear thanks to puppets, toys, and a ceiling full of stars.

Week of March 8 – 12, 2004

Community Mental Health Clubhouse Community clubhouses all over the country are helping people with serious mental illness reintegrate into society. We visit the original clubhouse, Fountain House, that's a model for the rest.

Framing Broken Bones Many broken bones demand a frame to heal properly. A new one, called the Taylor Spatial Frame, gradually pulls the bone back into the proper position, with the help of a high tech computer and the active participation of the patient. We'll show you how it works.

Kidney Cancer Test A urine test may detect kidney cancer earlier than ever before. Usually symptoms of the disease don't show up until the tumor has grown. And then if doctors suspect kidney cancer, they need a biopsy to check for cancer cells. A urine test can be done early in the disease and doesn't require surgery.

Radiance for the Face And yet another new wrinkle filler. But the results of this one last two to five years instead of several months like other anti-wrinkle products. Called Radiance, it's a synthetic form of a material found in bones and teeth.

Snoring Cure A new treatment for chronic snoring

Week of March 15 – 19, 2004

INVEST/Diabetes Doctors investigating high blood pressure treatments made a surprising discovery. One of the treatments may help prevent diabetes. We talk to a study participant and the President of the American College of Cardiology about what the findings mean.

Knee Osteoarthritis About 21 million Americans have osteoarthritis. Now a major study may finally lead to better treatments that not only relieve pain, but prevent the disease from developing in the first place.

Men Only Fitness "Curves" is an exercise program just for women. Now men have an option, too. The new men-only franchise called "Cuts" is sprouting up around the country. We'll see what men have to say about it.

Money Mania We all know money, or the lack of it, can be a source of stress. But did you know that using money to acquire "things" can be an addiction? We'll show you how some people are stopping their money mania and opting for a more simple life.

Neurostimulator for Angina Doctors are studying an implanted device to reduce the recurrent chest pain of angina. The small pacemaker-like device uses mild electrical stimulation to block pain impulses before they reach the brain. We talk to the researchers and a study participant.

WEEK OF MARCH 22 - 26, 2004

Ecstatic Dance If you don't like attending exercise classes because you can't keep step, try this! Ecstatic Dance is a workout where you can move at your own speed - and in your own style! Based on primitive spiritual rituals, it's all about listening to your body.

Healthy Tanning A healthy alternative to the traditional suntan.

How to quit smoking An estimated one out of every three smokers is killed by their habit but no one knows who will die from smoking. But the health benefits from quitting are well known and guaranteed. The National Cancer Institute recently adopted a series of booklets called "Forever Free" and made them available online. We talk to the man who developed the materials at Tampa's Moffitt Cancer Center and an ex-smoker who uses them to stay quit.

Needle Anxiety It's difficult enough for new parents to watch their babies get immunizations. Imagine if your child has a disease and you have to give him painful injections every day. Now a new study is making shot time less traumatic.

Prostate Cancer Hot Flashes Prostate cancer is the most common cancer in men. Hormone therapy is often used to treat it but there can be side effects, like hot flashes. We'll tell you about a brand new study designed to treat the heat.

WEEK OF MARCH 29 - APRIL 2, 2004

Calorie Restriction Movement Animal studies suggest that calorie restriction can lead to a longer, healthier life. And even though human studies have just begun, some people are wasting no time getting started.

Deaf-Talk A video-conferencing device called Deaf-Talk helps deaf patients who use sign language communicate with doctors who don't. Used in emergency departments and labor rooms, the device takes minutes to set up compared to the hours it can take for an interpreter to arrive at the hospital.

Exercise and Your Brain Researchers in Oregon are monkeying around with an interesting theory about exercise. Can it help both your body and brain perform better?

Stress-Free Stretching Tips and benefits on stretching the correct way.

Varicose Vein Foam A treatment considered the gold standard when it comes to getting rid of spider veins, has now shown to be effective for larger varicose veins. Microfoam sclerotherapy is quick, cheaper than lasers, and can be done right in the doctor's office without anesthesia.

DANGEROUS SUPPLEMENTS

They might seem helpful and harmless but there are new concerns tonight about the safety of supplements. The Food and Drug Administration estimates there are more than 30,000 different dietary supplements on the market. The promise everything from helping you lose weight, to giving you energy, to improving your love life. Consumer Reports says ingredients like aristolochic acid should be off the market. It causes kidney failure and is a potential carcinogen that can cause cancer. But supplements with this ingredient don't even warn of these potential risks and it may not be listed on the label. Some labels may list it under a different name like wild ginger. Consumer Reports says if you think the FDA is watching over dietary supplements, but in reality the government has very little control. Unlike over the counter drugs, supplements do not require the same safety standards – they do not have to prove their effectiveness, side effects are not listed, and no safety warning is required. While the supplement industry says current regulations are adequate, Consumer Reports says even though most supplements are probably benign, with so little government oversight, people should avoid them.

PAYCHECK SCAM

The target of the check-cashing scam - construction companies. Con artists steal blank checks and take forged payroll checks into banks and walk out with cash. But a few have been caught with the help of tellers on the lookout. Check scams are common, but this scheme caught on bank cameras is unique. A group of people have been applying for jobs at construction companies sizing up their office then going back and stealing payroll checks. Plaster Construction was hit, a few men came in looking for work and days later the bank noticed that people were cashing their checks – 96 of them were missing. 11 checks for $1000 were forged and cashed. Banks have reported a group of people passing stolen checks in Joplin, Carthage, Neosho and Springfield and more than $50,000 has been stolen. Bank fraud investigators worry there may be more victims out there, and say any companies that have anything to do with manual labor are the targets.

ON-LINE CALLING

At this time about 150,000 people use this service, but experts believe that number will jump significantly as more and more companies get into the business, including AT&T, Cox communications, Quest, and Time Warner Cable. People can use the service – no matter how long they use are on the line, it won't cost a dime, they use a program they downloaded free from the internet called MSN Messenger. With this system, both parties have to be logged onto the same program at the same time. Consumer Reports looked at another type of internet phone service that lets you call on your regular phone to anyone, anywhere. This type of service is not free, but the rates are lower than a regular phone. It costs about $40 a month for unlimited local and long distance calls in North America. With the service Consumer Reports tested, you plug your phone and high speed internet connection into an adapter. This particular system is from a company called Vonage. The adapter routes your call over the internet as a piece of data, not a voice. At the other end of the call, it goes back into the local phone system. So the person you're calling just needs an ordinary phone. This service will not work during power outages, and may not allow 911 operators to pinpoint your location during the outage. And even with a free service like Weinberg's you need a high speed internet connection and that will cost about $40 a month.

MEGAPIXEL CAMERAS

Consumer Reports tested more than 60 digital camera, prices ranging from $200-$900. Testers found that 2 or 3 megapixel cameras are good for casual photographers who print mostly 4x6 photos. But cropping and enlarging pictures requires a 4 or 5 megapixel camera and prices for those have been dropping. If you are worried about getting your photos off of your camera, there is new technology that's making it easier. One feature testers are seeing more of is PictBridge. It lets you send the pictures straight to the Printer, bypassing the computer altogether. Other cameras have a docking system that makes it easier to download photos right into the computer. You plug it in, set your camera in the cradle and the job is done. If you are planning to crop and enlarge your digital photos, Consumer Reports recommends the 4 megapixel Kodak EasyShare DX 6490. It costs $500; this camera has a docking station and offers great picture quality.

CAR DINGS

Many of us have parked in a parking lot and got a ding or dent. Some "As Seen on TV" products think they have a cheap fix. At $20, the Ding King costs a fraction of what an autobody shop charges. Consumer Reports just tested a similar dent removal kit – the $35 DentOut. Testers checked to see how easy these do-it yourself kits are to use and what kind of result you can expect. They had staffers try them out on their own cars. The products work the same way, both kits use glue and a screwing mechanism to pull the dent out of your car. First you have to clean the area around the dent with special solution to remove dirt and wax. Then you attach the tab with adhesive and let it set for three to five minutes. Once the glue sets, you put on the crowbar and screw on the wing nut turning until the metal begins to pull out. While neither kit did as good a job as a professional repair shop, most staffers found some improvement. So if you are not looking for perfection, Consumer Reports says either DentOut or the Ding King is worth trying.

PAYING TO VOTE

Coming soon to a fax machine near you, the election 2004 poll. It asks the penetrating question – at this stage who would you elect for president – Kerry or Bush. But before you make your selection – the vote will cost you $4.00 to $8.00 depending on the speed of your fax machine. In past reports KY3 has shown how this type of poll uses emotional subjects to hook you into action. Everything from genetically processed food to using Viagra, to health of Princess Anne's dog and who could not forget colonizing the moon and dealing with bullies. A company spokesman says public service results are forwarded to the principles, politicians and the price is clearly stated.

RECYCLED CRIBS

Sandra Gordon, author of the new Consumer Reports Best Baby Products, says if your old crib was made before 1999, it's not safe. Newer is really better because cub safety standards are improving all the time. Consumer Reports tested 13 cribs, prices ranging from $100 to more than $500. It turns out simpler designs are the safest. Fancy decorations can catch a child's clothing at the neck and that is a potential strangulation hazard. Along with safety, testers checked to see how easy the cribs are to use. Some have sides that don't drop down, and if you are short it can be hard to lift your child out. Cribs that let you lower one or both sides make it easier. When all the tests were done, Consumer Reports found you don't have to pay a lot of money to get a good crib. The Delta Luv Jenny Lind model 4750-1 is easy to assemble and is just $110 and is Consumer Reports Best Buy.

INSURANCE NEWS

Lots of insurance claims were filed a year ago after the May tornado. Many people were relieved to have protection, and many possessions were replaced. But filing a claim puts many homeowners at risk. There is some good news for homeowners, there were few complaints about how insurance handled tornado claims, but the bad news a few policies were canceled and anyone who filed a claim, might be one step closer to getting dropped. Some families said the insurance company was really good after the tornado as far as paying; however some were told they would not be renewed. Many insurance companies call it non-renewal, it means you need to search for a new policy and it will probably cost you more. Insurance companies say the usual reason for non-renewal is not just one claim, its frequency or loss history. Despite legislative efforts to protect those facing weather-related claims, insurance companies can still deem you high-risk and chose not to renew the policy.

HYBRID HYPE

The new Toyota Prius gets a whopping 44 gallons per mile better than any other 5-passenger sedan Consumer Reports has ever tested. David Champion, Director of Auto Testing, says the Prius is so fuel-efficient because it's a hybrid with both a gas engine and electric motor. It runs on one or the other or both depending on what's most efficient. The gauge on the dashboard shows what's powering the car at any particular moment. With all the technology, you might expect the Prius to have some reliability problems. But Consumer Reports has found this is not the case. They surveyed hundreds of thousands of Consumer Reports subscribers about any problems they have encountered with their cars. And the first generation Prius has proven to be one of the most reliable cars. Consumer Reports expects the redesigned Prius will also prove reliable. It has some advantages over the first generation Prius, better mileage, better handling and quicker acceleration and it's roomier. Consumer Reports rates the Toyota Prius as a top pick.

CARB LABELING

Low-carb labeled products have become a big business. But if you are trying to take the pounds off, some experts believe these foods might not be the way to go. Low-carb used to mean giving up lots of foods, but manufactures are flooding the market with low-carb alternatives in response to diets like Atkins and South Beach. Consumer Reports says the truth is, there's no agreed upon definition of low carb or net carb. Until the government comes up with regulations, low carb labels will continue to be a source of confusion. Take products touting "net carbs" manufacturers subtract fiber and sugar alcohol from the total carbohydrates, claiming they are digested differently and don't count. But Consumer Reports say you should not focus exclusively on the carb count. Many of these low carb foods have plenty of fat and calories. For example, a low carb ice cream has twice the calories and fat as some regular ice creams. A low carb diet can work because you are cutting out certain foods and cutting back on calories. When you bring these foods back, even in a low-carb version you can undermine the diet. Far better if you are watching your carb intake, fill your carb quota with things like whole grains, veggies and fruit.

SCHOOL VENDING STUDY

A survey of more than 1400 school vending machines finds most are packed with sugary sodas, candy and chips a nutritional nightmare according to the Center for Science in the Public Interest. Margo Wootan, CSPI Director of Nutrition Policy says the high prevalence of junk food in vending machines undermines students' ability to make healthy choices, and it undermines parents' ability to feed their children well. Iowa Senator Tom Harkin agrees, he is still pressing for passage of a bill that would help remove the junk from the nation's public school snack machines. He says the bottom line must be to protect children's health and insuring good nutrition at school. Harkin's bill would give the Department of Agriculture the authority to regulate sales of junk food at schools, and provide grants to help fund healthier food alternatives. Harkin says this authority is needed to solve the problem of healthy foods in the school lunchroom but junk food outside the school hallways. And while nobody is disputing the push for better nutrition, critics argue that schools not the government should decide what goes inside the machines and the addition of nutrition education programs to help students make healthy choices is a better approach than taking away the treats.

FAKE HEALTH INSURANCE

The cost of health insurance has been on the rise for the last four years and has gone up 68%. That has forced many employers and individuals to shop for cheaper health policies and supplemental or discount reports. There are some "bargain" health plans that don't pay up when you need them. Many people find themselves racking up high medical bills for a short stay in the hospital and then find their insurance will not pay for what was expected. Some employers don't provide insurance, so people are forced to look outside for coverage, some purchase plans called "a non-insurance solution" offer a low price for coverage but are not regulated by any insurance commission. KY3 spoke the Cappella Group who provided coverage to a woman struggling with cancer. They released a statement saying the program was "not insurance" and that she would be responsible for the payment of her healthcare costs after they applied the discount that is offered. The company claims she did not submit a claim for repricing. Unlicensed insurance and health discount plans may or may not have providers at your doctor's office, so you could be paying monthly for a discount and your doctor won't cover it. Many doctors will only deal with plans they have a contract with. The Missouri Department of Insurance says many people buy into supplemental plans, because they are often priced so much lower than well-known insurance companies and sometimes people believe it is insurance. Experts advise shoppers to question everything and to deal with companies that you know and make sure you are being offered a reasonable rate.

WATERCRAFT INSURANCE

Insuring your boats and other watercraft soon will cost you more. Boats that go over 25 miles per hour are not covered by your homeowner's insurance policy. Because of boat accidents, weather damage and theft; many boat owners are seeing the prices of their insurance creep up. But they have seen even bigger increases in personal watercraft coverage like jet skis and wave runners. In order to get discounts on your boat insurance ask about deductions for fire extinguishers on board, boating courses, a claim-free history and a multi-purpose policy with the same insurer for your car, house, and boat.

BOGUS MEDICARE CARDS

The new Medicare discount drug program takes effect in June. Critics charge the program has plenty of drawbacks. With the high cost of medicine, a new government program is supposed to help cut prescription costs for seniors who have no other drug coverage. Consumer Reports says before the program gets underway, phony Medicare drug cards have started showing up. There have been reports across the country of people going door to door or calling and selling "Medicare approved" discount cards, they are all scams. In fact it is illegal to sell any Medicare product over the phone or door to door. When the Medicare cards do come out, you'll be able to check if they are legitimate at the government's website medicare.gov. The program allows you to pay an annual fee of up to $30 and you may get discounts on certain Rx of 10-25%. Low-income families will get a more generous benefit. Consumers will have to choose from an array of different cards, and Consumer Reports says the Medicare drug program has other drawback. Not all drugs are covered by each card; prices for drugs will vary depending on which card you choose and prices can change without notification.

PHOTO SOFTWARE

Consumer Reports compared ten software programs that are intended for amateur digital photographers. They are priced anywhere from $50 to $130. The software programs let you correct the less than perfect images such as red eye or allow you to touch up old photos. Among the more advanced programs, Consumer Reports recommends Microsoft Digital Image Suite Nine for $130. It makes changing your digital pics very easy.

JUNE

SATELLITE RADIO

There are now two companies offering satellite radio – XM and Sirius the provide virtually commercial free music and other programming like cable tv shows. Consumer Reports wanted to see what all the buzz is about and tested both companies and the newest coast-to-coast radio service. Each offers about 100 channels of music, news, sports and entertainment. They found the audio quality was good with both services and each has hardware that is relatively easy to install and use, but reception is a problem. There are dead zones if you drive through tunnels or if you are driving down streets with tall buildings or overhead trees. Reception can also vary from room to room in your home. To asses whether satellite radios are for you, start by checking their programming line up on their web sites. This is where you'll find the biggest differences between the services. Each service requires you to pay an activation fee as well as a monthly subscription fee. Then you have to buy your equipment, you will need a portable receiver and separate set-up for each location you want to have satellite radio. That could be in your car, at your home or outdoors, this is where your costs start to add up. The portable XM receiver, the Delphi SkiFi is $130, the XM home and car kits each cost $69. The portable Sirius receiver, and Audiovox goes for about $100, another car kit will run between $30-$50 and a home kit will be $50.

BARBQUE BLUNDERS

Before you fire up the grill, check out the six blunders that can cause problems with your next barbecue and what you can do to avoid them. Number one is not preheating the grill on high for at least ten minutes, causing food to stick. The second way to botch a barbecue is not searing the meat properly, the grill has to be hot enough to lock in juices and let steaks and burgers develop a flavorful crust. Mistake number three – grilling thick cuts on high heat. If you don't turn down the heat after you sear, the meat can be ruined. It will come out burnt on the outside and raw on the inside. Mistake number four – keeping the lid open. If you leave the lid open the heat escapes and you can't sear and if you cook on low heat it can take forever to cook something. Mistake number five – guessing when your food is done, a far better idea is using an instant thermometer to make sure the food is done. Mistake number six – cooking on a dirty grill, food sticks and picks up off tastes. It is easiest to clean a grill while it's still hot. Use a wet cloth on coated grates or a wire brush on stainless steel grates. That way, the next time you want to barbecue, your grill will be ready. Avoid these six blunder and your barbecue is bound to be great!

MOBILE HOME LAW

There have been 67 complaints in recent years at the Better Business Bureau against companies that sell manufactured homes. Some homeowners say they welcome more regulation and protection. Governor Holden just signed a bill to establish the Manufactured Home Installation Act that requires manufactured home installers to have a license. It also establishes a commission to regulate installers and adopts uniform standards for the proper installation of a manufactured home. To protect yourself when buying a manufactured home, check installers, training, complaint history, references and make sure they have liability insurance, plus consider shopping for your own financing.

CREDIT REPORTS

It is helpful to see where you stand before applying for a loan by obtaining a free annual credit report. But there are several companies trying to sell you a credit report or credit protection membership along with the free report. One company has generated hundreds of complaints doing just that. There are many companies out there that ask for credit card information in order to obtain the free report – consumerinfo.com, creditmatters.com and freecreditreport.com are just a few. The Better Business Bureau rates Consumerinfo.com as unsatisfactory based on a pattern of complaints alleging unauthorized credit card charges. They have received 1877 reports against them and the BBB says they use questionable marketing methods with their cancellation process. The Federal Trade Commission is trying to make it easier to get that free credit report under the Fair Credit Reporting Act. Over the next year, the FTC will set up one agency to help you get the report.

CONSIGNMENT RECALLS

Every year 300 products are recalled, many of these can be dangerous to children. While new items can be pulled off the shelf, the Consumer Product Safety Commission has a warning to all those who buy toys at consignment shops. In 1999, the Consumer Product Safety Commission conducted a nationwide study of resale and thrift stores and found that 69% were selling products that had been recalled or banned and did not meet current safety standards. For example, unsafe cribs result in 20 deaths and 11,000 injuries each year. When shopping at resale shops, check with the owner or manager to see if they their products against recall information.

GOURMET GRILLS

Consumer Reports recently tested gourmet grills and found the Thermos grill is $400 at Target and the Vermont Castings is $400 at Home Depot. Besides being stainless steel, they have other benefits. They have the two best grates for searing and keeping temperatures even. The Vermont Casting's grates are coated with cast iron; Themom's grates are stainless steel. An electronic igniter on the Thermos makes start-up easy and they offer a ten-year warranty on the burners. In addition the Thermos grill has a side burner that can be handy for keeping food warm or cooking up mushrooms or side dishes. The Thermos earned very good scores for grilling and evenness of heating. As for the Vermont Castings grill – it did an excellent job of grilling and even heat distribution. Consumer Reports named both grills Best Buys at $400 they cost far less than most other stainless steel grills. The Vermont Castings grill is available at Home Depot – model number CF9030LP and the Thermos grill is available at Target – model number 461246804.

MAMMOGRAMS

In health news, too many American women are skipping mammograms and the test is becoming harder to get because of a growing shortage of providers according to a new report. But the Institute of Medicine still says that mammography, with all its faults will be the best hope for breast cancer detection. Doctors say we need to address the impending crisis on our capacity to deliver this important service. It is a crisis doctors say because a combination of malpractice suits and low reimbursement fees are keeping young doctors from entering the specialty. In some places women have to wait for months to get an appointment. The report urged non-physicians to be trained to help read the scans and it also urged for more outreach programs and funding for women without health insurance. More public education to increase the number of mammograms for women at high risks especially older women. According to government inspection records, the number of mammography facilities has dropped by about 9% over the last four years.

INSIST ON SAFETY

When you buy a new car, two important safety features should be kept in mind – anti-lock brakes and stability control – they don't always come standard. Sometimes dealers, anxious to sell whatever vehicles are on their lot, may question whether you really need these safety features. If you think you don't need anti-lock brakes, this Consumer Reports test should convince you. At 50 miles an hour with anti-lock brakes, this Mitsubishi Evolution stops great on wet pavement. Unfortunately, some of the lower line models ABS is still optional and many of the dealers actually don't stock vehicles with ABS brakes. ABS is one of the great safety features you should definitely look for. If the car starts to slide one way or the other on ice or snow or even in wet or greasy conditions it helps to bring the car back into line and helps the driver keep control. Consumer Reports insists that every car it tests has anti-lock brakes and stability control if they are offered.

SOY LABEL CONFUSION

Soy is big business – sales will reach almost five billion dollars this year. But the labels on soy products don't tell you everything you need to know. A large body of evidence shows that soy can be good for many people and health benefits are linked to two ingredients. Soy proteins and Isoflavones which help to lower cholesterol and reduce the risk of heart attack. They also help to reduce the symptoms of menopause, fight osteoporosis and reduce certain types of cancer. But Consumer Reports says while soy proteins are labeled on most products, isoflavones are another matter altogether. Most soy foods don't label isoflavones, and even if they do, it can still be hard to tell what you are getting. Consumer Reports tested dozens of products for isoflavone levels and many of them did not have as much as the manufacturer claimed. Another problem - no government standards for how soy isoflavones are labeled. Researchers are still trying to determine how much soy food or supplements provide relief of hot flashes and night sweats. Even slight relief is welcome news given the recent research exposing risks in hormone-replacement therapy.

BICYCLE HELMETS

Every year, more than 60,000 bike riders wind up in emergency rooms with head injuries. Wearing a helmet is the best way to protect yourself. The Safety Council of the Ozarks found only about 2% of kids on bikes are wearing helmets in Springfield. A top priority is to get kids to wear a bike helmet and find one that is safe. Consumer Reports tested dozens of helmets for kids and adults. They tested how a helmet performs on impact and also the strength of the straps and buckle. Consumer Reports does not recommend the Trek Little Dipper or the Specialized Telluride and the Bell Influx. But Consumer Reports found plenty of good helmets - for adults the $45 Louis Garneau Zen is top rated, for children a good choice is the $30 Specialized Airwave Mega, for toddlers the Bell Boomerang is rated high at only $30.

WALMART LAWSUIT

The lawsuit says Wal-Mart discriminates against women employees in pay and promotion. The more than one and a half million women suing Walmart include former and current employees. The case has been pending since 2001, anticipating that a judge would give the suit a class action status, Walmart says it is ready to appeal. The suit alleges Wal-Mart has a consistent pattern of underpaying women compared to men and has denied women promotion opportunities that were routinely available to men. Wal-Mart maintains there is no company policy that sexually discriminates and if discrimination occurs it is completely accidental in some stores. Attorneys for the plaintiffs have not said how much money they are seeking. They expect the case to go to trial several months. Walmart has developed a new job classification and pay scale for hourly employees and a spokesman says Walmart is evaluating its employment practices.

FOOD DATING

If you are stumped by some of the dates you are finding on food in the grocery store you are not alone. You might be surprised to learn the federal government does not require dates on most foods. The exception – baby formula, which must have a use by date. Using formula by this date assures it meets nutritional and quality standards. Poultry also has to be marked when it was packed, or with a sell-by date. You want to look for the sell by date to be sure it has not passed. Once purchased, plan on cooking chicken, or freezing it within two days. Dates on other foods are a little less clear – for the most part manufacturers have initiated product dating. Here is how to decode what you see – milk and yogurt have sell by dates – that is the last day a store can sell an item and it still be safe to eat. With milk you can drink it as long as it is refrigerated correctly and it looks and smells good. There's another date you see a lot from cereal to taco dinner kits. Best or Better if used by dates are the last date the manufacturer considers the product to have its peak flavor. While quality might start to deteriorate its still safe to eat these foods past these dates. As for many of the other food dates you see, you can figure most are there to help with recalls or to let the grocery store know when to rotate products off the shelf.

INTERNET LONG DISTANCE

A new cellular technology making long distance phone calls easier from home. The invention that makes this technology work is a converter box with broadband. Customers can have any phone number with any area code they choose. If there is an internet hook up – there is a phone service. Competition among smaller companies offer a cost efficient service. Most companies offering this service aren't the big giants; in fact many say they are taking a wait-and-see approach on the technology. Even with all the plusses there are drawbacks as well – 911 is still an issue, because it's more difficult to locate a caller over the internet. Another problem is if your internet service goes out- so does your phone.

GEICO SAVES SOMETIMES

Consumer Reports checked out Geico and asked staffers to call them to see what kind of bargains they offered and to see if they could offer a quote in 15 minutes. GEICO did deliver quotes in about 15 minutes or so, but only four of the 14 people who called would save by switching to GEICO. The others would actually end up paying more. Consumer Reports Money Advisor, Lisa Freeman says you may not save with GEICO, but the idea of shopping around for insurance is right on the money. They recommend calling several companies -- you may end up saving yourself hundreds of dollars. GEICO says its survey of new clients shows people have saved an average of more than 15% on their auto insurance. But the survey includes only those who have switched to GEICO. It does not include people who called by didn't get a lower rate.

NIXA ELECTION

Nixa students face losing two million dollars in classroom money. Voters there today are deciding a property tax levy to offset that. Kleinsmith has already promised a list of cuts he calls this his "ugly list" and he says the district will stick by it if this levy fails. Now the district promised these cuts, several teaching positions are up in the air like computers, teachers, nurses and librarians. Also, vocational programs, Junior ROTC, gifted early childhood education, and many more programs will either be cut or eliminated if the levy fails. Now voters have been at the polls today, but they were also at the polls a few months ago when Nixa voters passed a bond issue to help pay for the schools building expenses among other things. So the districts voters are basically being hit twice this year.

BIOTERRORISM DRILL

It's all a part of a two-day exercise to prepare emergency response teams for a real thing. Three fake terrorist events took place in Springfield and though the set up was scripted the way emergency crews handled it seemed very realistic. It appears that a band of terrorists are waiting in an apartment building with hostages and chemical weapons. It should be a pretty good challenge. It is all part of a script a test to see how emergency crews will respond. It's certainly a big event for us bringing 300-400 people and coordinating the whole effort and making it go off without a hitch, certainly a big undertaking for us. First responders from Southwest Missouri are working together. You have a really fast sign up and really fast initial response, but when you get there you determine what you're dealing with there, it slows down because you have to do everything by the numbers. Evaluators were on site and responders will decide what worked and what didn't and then if needed they'll adjust their emergency plans.

JUNE LEVY

It's Springfield's turn at the ballot box in just two months. So what do the tax election results say about Springfield's future? In Tuesday's election neighboring school districts passed levies with flying colors. Republic 66%, Nixa 69%, Willard 61% - all saying yes. Springfield's superintendent says he feels good about his district's chances by he won't make firm predictions except to say that he does not think it will fail. Springfield looks like a lot of other districts but it also is a much bigger city and has an urban center and a lot of businesses, there there is a different political equation. Springfield wants a 25 cent increase over two years, that would add $47 more a year on a $100,000 home, that is less than a lot of districts who won at the ballot box. Ernst predicts businesses and others will support the levy.

TORNADO MONEY

Battlefield, Stockton, Pierce City all areas hit hard by the May 4 storms, everyone was looking for any help they could get 11 million dollars did go a long way. But we thought it was important to find out who got the money and who didn't. Hundreds of victims received money to help put their lives back together or at least that was the promise. FEMA stands behind the job it did but KY3 did an investigation and found FEMA dollars never made it into the pockets of most people who called for help. We crunched the numbers and found less than half of those who applied got money. In the Pierce City area, 40% got money and Stockton received just 30% and in Battlefield – just 17%. One official said it was not alarmingly low but another told us the number could not be right. FEMA said fewer people in Battlefield needed help – a lot of those effected were insured. Our investigation found the victims in some towns on average received more money than others. Pierce City again ended up on top. Victims there received an average of $6000 – Stockton's average was $4700 and Battlefield $3600 (more than 40% less than those in Pierce City) FEMA says they are not meant to be the first resource tapped, it's mean to be supplementary - $25,000 at the most.

A new state audit calls into question the State's emergency response teams – are they ready and is the state doing anything about it? There are 28 emergency teams covering the state, several are located in the Ozarks. Millions of federal dollars have poured in for new equipment, but the audit says some teams don't have enough people to do the job. McCaskill's investigation found the state agency that oversees the emergency response teams or SEMA lacked clear, written staffing requirement and that means some teams were understaffed. The audit went on to say that SEMA does not know ho much emergency equipment each team has or if it has enough. SEMA said it agrees with the audit's recommendations and is in the process of complying.

FAKE STRIP SEARCHES

A national scam has hit home in the Ozarks – someone is calling businesses pretending to be a police officer and instructing managers to do a strip search on employees and the manager of the Springfield fast food restaurant complied. The search went further than just having the employee remove her clothes – police say at some point they will pursue sexual assault charges on the caller that called the business. Assistant Greene County Prosecutor Jill Geary says in the Springfield case she sees both the manager and the employee as victims, but says people should think twice before they conform with a person who says they are a policeman with strange requests.

ROCKAWAY GAMBLING

A judge today dismissed a lawsuit seeking to throw out the statewide vote on whether a riverboat casino can float on the White River. The people who filed the lawsuit say they're standing up for what they believe most Taney County residents want. The group wanted to get the initiative off the ballot due to a technicality. The question on the ballot will say should the constitution be amended to allow gambling on Rockaway Beach on the White River. The group says it should have included all cities on the river. Even with today's decision this is an issue business owners throughout Taney County are watching closely. Residents like Darrel Schutt would like to see the economic growth, but would like to see it come from different means.

14

PHELPS CO. PROSECUTOR

The sheriff and prosecuting attorney are now battling it out through press releases. This all escalated when members of the Phelps Co Sheriff's department along with the St. James and Rolla police departments unanimously voted that they had lost confidence in prosecuting attorney Ken Clayton. Two men elected to work together can't stand to work with one another - but it's not just personal Phelps Co. Sheriff says Clayton isn't doing the job he was elected to do. In a news release, officers listed 8 cases where they say charges weren't filed but should have been or plea bargains resulted in criminals getting off with a slap on the wrist. With the problems now in the public eye, neither man knows what will happen next, but both say they'll continue to serve their constituents to the best of their ability.

RIFT VALLEY FEVER

Health department officials all across the country are being warned to be on the lookout for a new, deadlier type of mosquito born illness. Rift Valley Fever is on the Federal Health Departments list of emerging diseases. It is much like West Nile Virus but worse. It originated in Africa and has not been found in the US. But because of international trade, and travel health officials warn it could soon become part of the American landscape much like West Nile did. Health officials say illnesses like this can jump continents and it is a constant cause of concern. The symptoms associated with Rift Valley Fever are much like those of West Nile. Flu like symptoms, the virus is worrisome because at least 30 species of mosquitoes are capable of carrying it from cattle or sheep, far more than can carry West Nile.
