THIS WEEK ON U.S. FARM REPORT

EPISODE # 2043

OCTOBER 6-7, 2012

JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. The bizarre narrative of this crop year continues with a bewildering harvest. For many of us our usual harvest sequence was reversed. Corn baked to an early finish, while soybeans seem to get their second wind after August rains. Now we are finally getting into our beans, we've discovered some surprises. First, there are more beans than we thought on the later-maturing varieties. However, they are every size imaginable - from bb's to marbles. Setting the combine properly is a challenge to say the least. And while the pods are ready, the stems think it's July, not October. Looking from behind it's hard to decide whether it's a combine or silage chopper.

HEADLINES:

Thanks, John and hello everyone. With the World Dairy Expo taking place this week in Madison, Wisconsin, dairy policy took center stage. The expired Farm Bill took along with it a safety net for producers. One dairy group, however, says it's not a big loss. Meanwhile, exports of U.S. dairy products are one of the few bright spots of the industry. Our partners at dairy today say even with the tight production margins, exports are a key reason prices are in the 18 to 20 dollar per hundredweight range for most of the country. However, exports could be changing in 2013. Rabobank analysts say the global dairy market appears to be heading for a period of renewed supply scarcity in the next year. The AG-lender says the reductions could happen not only in the U.S., but in other big dairy exporters like Australia and New Zealand. The most recent weekly U.S. Crop Progress report shows harvest continues to race along. But it's more than just corn making a quick departure this season. According to USDA, corn and soybean harvest is both double the average pace. Peanuts, sorghum, sugar beets and sunflower harvest are all higher than the five year average pace. Cotton is the only crop lagging its average, and that's only by 1% point. In the western cornbelt, Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota are all past the half-way point in corn harvest. A western Iowa farmer told AgDay, yields are all across the board. Avoca, Iowa farmer Lance Scott says considering the dry and hot weather that set in during the middle of June, yields are surprising this year.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week...

ROUNDTABLE:

Al joins us to talk markets with Mark Gold and Thomas Grisafi.

JOHN'S WORLD:

I have always been ambivalent about Columbus Day. Stepping back from the calendar is just looks like a convenient excuse for a federal holiday smack dab between Labor Day and Halloween. And sure enough, we've wangled it into a three-day weekend for most, and four days for school kids with the suspicious teacher's training day on the preceding Friday. But to be fair, Columbus did set foot in the new world on October 12, 1492 and literally changed the world. But in his superb book, 1491, historian Charles Manning describes the western hemisphere as it was just before that moment. It is great reading for farmers, especially those of us in the fertile plains and savannahs of the Midwest. We often overlook how Native Americans essentially made our farms the breadbasket they are today. With the use of fire to retard the growth of forests, Indians encouraged the development of vast swaths of grasslands in what would have been dense forest. The repeated burning also laid down much of the organic matter for our soil. It was agriculture on a continental scale. Debate still rages over the indigenous population total in 1491 - somewhere between 2 and 20 million. Regardless, European diseases soon killed over 95%. Bringing the breadbasket of America under cultivation was a monumental task of back-breaking work for settlers. But without the actions of pre-Columbian Americans it could have been enormously more difficult.

2ND HALF

JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. The time delay between crop failures and food prices can be deceptive. This is all the more true with meats, as herds are thinned to cut feeding costs which sends more supply to the market and lowers consumer prices. For a while. The protein sector will be a market to watch. As American producers sell more product overseas, it could reshape our livestock cycles. Perhaps the net effect will be lower consumption at home and larger share for exports as a permanent feature. Regardless, for all of agriculture, the importance of increasing global trade should be a rising priority.

HEADLINES:

Stronger dairy and meat prices helped push the U.N.'s food price index higher last month. According to the U.N. Food and agriculture organization, the price index rose 3 points from August to September. That's after two months of stable prices. A well-known animal activist has announced he's running for a board seat at the world's second largest meat company. The humane society of the United States president Wayne Pacelle says he's filed paperwork as a candidate for election to Tyson Foods board of directors. Pacelle - who is a vegetarian - says his main goal to ensure a definite timeline is set for Tyson's producers to phase out the use of gestation stalls. The drought could have a lasting impact on more than just meat supply next year. It could also impact a movie favorite-- popcorn.

SPIRIT OF THE HEARTLAND:

FFA members in Elizabethtown Kentucky have learned hunger is closer than many of us think.

So the central Hardin chapter is stepping-up to face that challenge at home. But their work is also being felt on the other side of the world. Their efforts are part of a new program called FFA food for all. With support from farmers feeding the world and the Howard G. Buffett foundation, the national FFA organization has provided 140 grants to FFA chapters nationwide to fight hunger. Tyne Morgan has the story.

DAIRY EXPO:

The dairy industry gathered this week for its annual pilgrimage to Wisconsin. The 2012 World Dairy Expo saw a large number of producers and industry representatives in Madison. This show is considered the world's largest dairy-focused event. Much of the conversation focused on feed and credit challenges. On a lighter note - each year the world dairy expo honors dairy producers who have made a difference in the industry. This year's dairy woman of the year is Mary Shank Creek from Hagerstown, Maryland. Clinton Griffiths caught-up with Mary shortly after she was showing her Ayrshires at the expo. The 2012 dairyman of the year is John Fiscalini from Modesto, California. John owns Fiscalini Farms and Farmstead Cheese company. They have 15-hundred dairy cows.

TRACTOR TALES:

What do you have for us this week Al? John we're off to big sky country to check out a classic piece of iron.

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to Lost Island Lutheran Church located in Palo Alto County, Iowa. This year the congregation is celebrating 140 years of ministry. A group of Norwegian settlers first met in a sod hut to organize the church. Eventually they built a wooden structure, using the skilled craftsmen who were members of the flock. That building was destroyed by fire in 1934. Despite facing the economic hardships of the great depression, they built a new church which still stands today. Congratulations to Lost Island Lutheran Church of Palo Alto County, Iowa.

MAILBAG:

Time now for our weekly look inside the Farm Report mailbag. In keeping with this week's political events, we have this email from Larry Coffin. The hunt for hidden symbols is popular theme which sells conspiracy theories and mystery novels. But I struggle to see how advocating the end of AG subsidies can be interpreted as being more for the government. Regardless, our brains are designed to look for patterns, and for making inferences when we think we see similarities. Just wait until every new person you meet reminds you of someone you already know.

As always, we want to hear from you, send comments to mailbag@usfarmreport.com or leave us a voice mail at 800-792-4329.

THIS WEEK ON U.S. FARM REPORTEPISODE # 2044*OCTOBER 13-14, 2012*JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. When things aren't going as well as hoped on our farm, we often expect trouble to pile on from outside. Consequently, I was mildly surprised by the October crop report. Tyne has the numbers in a minute, but when I got up the nerve to see the figures it at least didn't make my day worse. This is an unfortunate problem with our brains. Under stress, we tend to see the clouds behind every silver lining. This will pass of course, but I'm guessing that will occur when the last pass of the combine is made.

HEADLINES:

For the fourth straight month, USDA has reduced the size of the 2012 corn crop. As far as the supply-demand tables. USDA pegs 2012-13 corn ending stocks to fall to 619 million bushels, the smallest since 1995. USDA also lowered export projections by 100-million bushels, based on slow sales and strong competition from Brazil. Despite some weather and pest challenges, it appears China may have a big corn crop this year. That's the forecast from the U.S. Grains Council which just concluded its annual tour of China's corn harvest. Meanwhile, a strong warning from the World Bank that growth in Asia may continue it's slow down came this week. This sent the price of oil down sharply Monday. Emerging markets like China and India kept oil consumption high throughout the global recession.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week...

ROUNDTABLE:

Now Al takes over to talk markets with Mike North and Chip Nellinger.

JOHN'S WORLD:

A recent report on obesity trends in the United States has no good news concerning this alarming trend. According to several recent studies, nearly half of all Americans will have a body mass index - BMI - over 30 by 2030. In thirteen states in the south and Midwest it could reach 60%. Talking about obesity is tricky, so we don't much. The odds of offending a listener are obviously very high. But I think this health trend will soon exert itself as an economic factor. Already obesity is cancelling out the health cost gains from less smoking. Incredibly, heavier passengers are likewise frustrating efforts by car makers to improve mileage by using lighter materials in autos. Obesity is often seen as a failure of personal willpower, especially by the non-obese. If true, something unusual must have happened to American character shortly after 1990 when the obesity rate was just 10%. Because we are reluctant to assign or take the blame personally, I think more criticism will be aimed at our food supply, and that will be felt all the way down on the farm. The recent troubles for high fructose corn syrup could just be the beginning of efforts to change our food system. Blaming food may not be fair or even the best way to attack this problem, but it's easier than angering customers. Above all with obesity rates highest among low income citizens, maybe we should rethink our strategy of cheap food being our answer for all our policy arguments.

2ND HALFJOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. I said goodbye to an old friend recently. Warren and I grew up 2 miles from each other, spent 12 years together in a tiny country school, and farmed adjacent to each other all our careers. Warren was 13 days older than me - you remember these things when your school class was about the size of a family. He was a very good farmer - not exactly what you want right next to you. But he was also a very good neighbor. Warren was a talker, and when he and I stopped in the middle of a country road, an hour could fly by as we chattered away. Good farmers leave a lasting mark on their farms. They also leave wonderful memories in the hearts of their friends.

HEADLINES:

There's new ammunition in the argument over ethanol mandates and the impact on U.S. corn prices. The study conducted by the Food and Agricultural Policy Research Institute - or 'FAPRI', supports the pro-ethanol crowd. Meanwhile, The National Chicken Council is urging the a full one year waiver of the RFS mandate on behalf of U.S. poultry producers. The council says farms are being forced out of business or filing bankruptcy because the price of feed is just too high. A new study by the council looked at the economic impact of a full waiver of the RFS by the EPA. The calculations show the price of corn would fall by more than 2 dollars per bushel. More drought relief is expected to hit the Midwest this week. NOAA projects states like Missouri and Illinois will receive as much as 3 inches of rain through the end of next week, including some severe weather. This could stall the record harvest pace in some areas. An eastern Illinois farmer, however, says harvest is so far ahead, he's not too worried.

CHAMPS OF CHANGE:

The efforts of FFA and 4H members to make a difference are getting recognized by the White House. Twelve chapter and club members from across the country were each named as a "Champion of Change" during a ceremony this week in Washington. The honorees devote a lot of their time and effort to their communities. They were invited to the White House to share their stories.

FOOD FOR ALL OKLAHOMA:

One of them is Ridge Howell who is President of the Checotah Oklahoma FFA. Ridge was recognized because of the chapter's anti-hunger campaign. That initiative is part of National FFA's food for all project. Tyne Morgan takes us to that small Oklahoma community with a diverse population of students who are eager to learn and grow. Next week we're off to central Michigan to meet a collector of "Americana". His impressive assortment really helps document farm life in the wolverine state.

BAXTER BLACK:

A trip to Barnes and Noble these days can be overwhelming...almost too much to choose from. But when it comes to "barnyard best sellers", leave it to Baxter Black to come up with the list. He joins us now from his Arizona ranch.

TRACTOR TALES:

Al where are we headed this week for tractor tales? We're headed to the Pacific Northwest.

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to Saint Boniface Catholic Church in Wimbledon, North Dakota. St. Boniface has been serving the region for 140 years. In 1895 the congregation decided to move the church from the country into town. They used a sleigh and a team of 20 horses to do the job. They decided to build a larger church in 1907. It was destroyed by fire that same year. But the faithful membership built once again. That church building still stands today. It's now under the watchful eye of Father John Ejike. Our thanks to Pam Clemens for sharing the history of St. Boniface.

MAILBAG:

THIS WEEK ON U.S. FARM REPORT
EPISODE # 2045
OCTOBER 20-21, 2012

As always, we want to hear from you, send comments to mailbag@usfarmreport.com or leave us a voice mail at 800-792-4329.

JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. Along with other disappointing crops, our pumpkin haul this year was pathetic. The addition of grandchildren to our farm has made this a bigger deal that it used to be, so I have started noticing the way pumpkins have achieved fad status lately. There is more pumpkin-flavored food on menus than perhaps we need. As financial reporter Felix Salmon noted pumpkin latte and pumpkin bagels are threatening to make pumpkins the new bacon. It's everywhere. This is truly weird. Pumpkins actually have little flavor - we just load this mix up with cinnamon, nutmeg, clove, and oodles of sugar. Still - pumpkin martinis? C'mon... Moving on - here's Al Pell with the news.

HEADLINES:

Thank you John. Farmers are planting the winter wheat crop in a timely manner, but dryness is impacting how quickly that crop is coming out of the ground. USDA's crop progress report shows just 36% has emerged, eight points behind average. USDA says extremely dry conditions persist across the northwestern half of the plains. And it's being seen in the winter wheat sprouting numbers. Colorado is 21 points behind, Montana is 28 behind and Nebraska is 30 points behind in crop emergence. Meanwhile 79% of the corn crop is now harvested. That's easily double the five year average. In the heart of the cornbelt, farmers are anywhere from 35-to-55% points ahead. And nearly three quarters of the soybean crop is completed. Two of the nation's largest commodity trading floors say they're joining forces. The CME group announced its plans to buy the Kansas City Board of Trade for 126 million dollars in cash. The move combines hard red winter wheat contracts with the current soft red winter wheat contracts already being traded at the CME. Because of improved grazing in the nation's top beef-producing state, Texas ranchers are a bit more optimistic this fall than last year. But according to economists at Texas Agri-life extension, those livestock producers remain cautious when it comes to rebuilding herds.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week...

ROUNDTABLE:

Al takes over to talk markets with Darren Frye and Mike Hogan.

JOHN'S WORLD:

Everything in Washington is essentially on hold until the elections, but the drama - real or imagined - continues over the "fiscal cliff". Depending on who wins the Presidency, the resolution of this package of tax increases and spending cuts could take different forms, but from my perspective none of them look promising for the farm program. Lost in all the hysteria is how we got to this point. The primary cause is of course the bush tax cuts. They were set to expire next year in a clever accounting trick that allowed the total cost to be scored lower by the cbo. That gimmick helped get it passed, but most thought congress would have addressed this issue before now. The second event was the government-debt limit deal last summer. Although signed by both sides, the massive cuts looming for defense has some leaders wanting to renege. Meanwhile economists have offered differing scenarios about what might happen if taxes increase and spending is slashed. Most are not optimistic the recovery will survive. For farmers, there is little reason to imagine good news for any farm subsidy. Especially if republicans take control, crop insurance expansion, as well as other programs are clearly endangered. Right wing think tanks like the American enterprise institute are waging all-out war on them. But farmers are polling strongly for Romney. I wonder: should we pay attention what farmers say they believe or what farmers do?

2ND HALFJOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. The 2012 crop is sooo yesterday. All the buzz is about 2013. I have been bugging an AG economist I know about trend line yields. If the USDA could arbitrarily ignore the 2011 corn yield last year for their 2012 projections I can't wait to see what they do with this year's wretched number. Could they call a double-mulligan?

In fact, as Ohio state economist Carl Zulauf pointed out the trend line for corn since 2003 is flat. While 9-year plateaus like this are not unusual, adding in this year could really stretch this anomaly out. An even larger question is whether a straight line is the best fit for yield data. What if nature is throwing a curve?

HEADLINES:

For farmers who saw their crops shrivel this summer, the fact that it was a hot one comes as no surprise. This week government weather-casters released their recap of the "warm season" that's the six month period from April to September. Unfortunately, it does not appear the central United States will get much relief this fall and winter. Much of that region remains in a severe drought. The holiday season brings a big demand for walnuts. And with harvest now underway in California, it appears there'll be no shortage this year.

MICHIGAN MUSEUM:

Collecting and trading antiques is a big part of our culture. Some of us enjoy tractors, specific tools and old signs. For one Michigan man, collecting is more than just a hobby, it defines who he is.

TIGER TRASH:

In college towns across the country, tons of trash is generated each weekend during football tailgating season. But how much of that trash ends up in the recycling bin? In this report from the University of Missouri, Kent Faddis visits with a group of students who are looking to answer that question. Kent tells us Mizzou is on pace to top last season's recycling efforts of more than 14 tons. Following the first three home games this fall, more than 11-tons had already been recycled.

TRACTOR TALES:

Al is back - what do you have for us this week? John, this week's antique tractor comes to us from northwest Montana.

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to Zion Lutheran church of Auburn, Michigan. The congregation is celebrating 125 years of ministry. In the late 1800's, the growing population of German immigrants - near Saginaw - was looking for a common place to worship. A Lutheran missionary arrived from Germany to help to provide for their spiritual need. By 1885, a small church was built. It took two more years before the congregation was formally incorporated. Because of the growth, a new church was built in the early 1900's. The original church was converted into a school. Zion Lutheran is a member of the Missouri Synod. A big celebration is planned for next weekend. Reverend Michael Buckhorn leads the congregation.

MAILBAG:

Time now for our weekly look inside the Farm Report mailbag. A viewer thinks my comments on our food system taking the blame for the obesity epidemic are off the mark.

THIS WEEK ON U.S. FARM REPORTEPISODE # 2046*OCTOBER 27-28, 2012*JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. Those wacky farmers in Iowa just set another mind-boggling record for farmland prices this week - $21,900 per acre. And I'm not sure how long that record will stand. The corn belt is moving north and west, and the market is showing exactly where good results have been happening and more importantly, where buyers think the best production conditions will be. The premiere prices of central Illinois have faded as extra degree-days have moved the sweet-spot for corn production. This is why arguing about the effect of climate change is a waste of time. It's no longer academic debate - it's an economic opportunity.

HEADLINES:

It was a tough week on Wall Street as earnings reports from several major companies were less than positive. Chemical makers - Dow and DuPont - both announced major job cuts. At the same time, however, both said their agriculture divisions were one of the few highlights of a poor-financial picture.

Meanwhile, DuPont Pioneer says its agricultural sales increased four % in the third quarter. The company says profits in their AG division jumped - crediting a strong start to the southern hemisphere planting season. Dupont Pioneer says it's now tracking to finish the year on target. There's no "tumble" in harvest as it's quickly coming to an end for many farmers in the cornbelt. As of Monday, 87% of the nation's corn crop is harvested. The five year average is 49%. Soybeans are not too far behind with 80% in the bin. Minnesota and the Dakotas have finished those fields. Widespread drought in the United States receded slightly for the fourth week in a row. But the latest U.S. drought monitor map also shows the area in exceptional drought - centered over Nebraska - is unchanged. Nearly all of that state is under an extreme or exceptional drought. And about half of the country is still considered in a severe drought or worse, very little improvement from last week. Japan is set to enter the final phase of easing restrictions on beef imports from the United States and other western nations. Meanwhile, agricultural trade with Panama could see a dramatic shift starting this week. The long-sought free trade agreement with Panama will enter into force on Wednesday. The FTA means the removal of some tariffs and other trade barriers on U.S. made products. The National Cattlemen's Beef association says implementation of the FTA immediately eliminates the 30% tariff on prime and choice beef cuts.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week is a three-state swing.

ROUNDTABLE:

Our ever-popular marketing roundtable. This week's guests include Joe Vaclavik and Gregg Hunt.

JOHN'S WORLD:

A startling, but somewhat misleading news headline recently announced the unthinkable prediction the U.S. could replace Saudi Arabia as the world's leading oil producer by 2020. This projection is true only if you include liquid hydrocarbons such as propane and butane, but the overall idea is still valid. Only a few years ago, the U.S. imported 60% of its oil, producing 40% domestically. Today those figures are reversed. More importantly, nobody - and I mean nobody - predicted this rapid change. While I have spoken before about the natural gas boom, that market seems to be in enormous oversupply, so that drilling rigs are switching to oil - and using the same fracking techniques to bring new supplies online. This is clearly good news for our economy, generating jobs and more importantly, greater immunity to oil price shocks. Keep in mind too; the oil we do still import is overwhelmingly from the western hemisphere. This bonanza is less helpful for the struggling alternative energy business, especially wind and solar. In fact, wind energy could hit the doldrums as cheap electricity from natural gas and federal subsidy cutbacks impact their bottom line. Coupled with the equally impressive efficiency gains in all kinds of engines, our energy picture is looking markedly brighter than just months ago. This is happening just in time, too - we need every dollar we can find right here at home.

2ND HALF

JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. I have been watching the stories about Google and their autonomous car development. What was once a page 12 curiosity is actually starting to look like something that could happen. There are clearly many issues to be solved, but they don't look to be beyond our technology. One tip-off has been the handful of states working on legislation to permit self-driving cars. There are enormous possible impacts from this technology. One that rural America needs to keep in mind is this: if your commuting time could be spent reading or working, how much farther would you live from work? Sprawl could get a second wind.

HEADLINES:

Are there more health benefits to your children if you feed them organic food? Not necessarily according to the American Academy of Pediatrics. The group of doctors said this week it's less clear whether spending the extra money on organic foods will bring a significant benefit to children's health.

The 'real' seal has been around for years. It let shoppers distinguish real dairy or cheese products from processed imitations. But currently it's being used very little, even while competition in the food aisle increases. Kozak says there are also plans to start stacking the real seal with other images or phrases similar to the popular 'Made in America' icon. One of the nation's largest grocers has pulled fresh sprouts from its produce aisle and has no plans to replace them. FFA members are taking a hands-on approach to fight hunger in this country. And they proved it this week during the national convention in Indianapolis.

TENNESSEE WITCH:

A word of caution should you visit Adams, Tennessee. It's in that small town where you'd better beware of the spirit Kate - more famously known as "the Bell Witch." But as Chuck Denney reports, some local farmers say the Bell Witch is good for their business.

BAXTER BLACK:

This week Baxter Black shares a story from heart. It's a love story - that only a cowboy might understand.

TRACTOR TALES:

Al, what's on tap for tractor tales this week?" John, I'd like to introduce you to Carl and his Case VAS.

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to French Creek Lutheran Church in Ettrick, Wisconsin. It was founded by seven families who emigrated from Norway. The congregation was founded in 1862. The settlers believed the church as the most important factor in building their community. They met in the homes of their members. But in 1878 they built their first church. The church was first served by Doctor Lauritz Larson. Pastor Anna Sorenson leads the congregation today. Congratulations to French Creek Lutheran on their 150th anniversary.

EPISODE # 2047
NOVEMBER 3-4, 2012

As always, we want to hear from you, send comments to mailbag@usfarmreport.com or leave us a voice mail at 800-792-4329.

JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. farm report, I'm John Phipps. There is something traditional about finishing harvest by Halloween in my area. It may date back to 2000, I think, when it began to rain Halloween night and the next thing we knew it was mid-December before the combines got rolling again. Now that's scary. It is also the time to get farm bookwork up to date. Strangely, much fewer bushels did not reduce that chore. It also often turns out the running estimates of our financial position we had been keeping in our heads during this anxiety-filled season were about as accurate as our yield estimates.

HEADLINES:

Because of a massive storm called Sandy, USDA was forced to close its doors earlier this week. That meant the NASS held off releasing the weekly crop progress report until Wednesday. The yield zapping nuisance known as palmer amaranth is making its way further north. Purdue University weed specialists have confirmed the weed in five northern Indiana counties.

Archer Daniels Midland reported first quarter profits for its AG business fell 30%. The company says that's largely due to the smaller harvest in the U.S. As a whole, the company reported profits fell 60%, mainly because of a planned sale of a Mexican food company. Meanwhile, Bayer says third quarter sales spiked 11% while net income dropped 17% on the year. The company attributes the strong quarterly numbers to both its cropscience and pharmaceuticals business. Bayer says legal claims and restructuring caused the lower net income numbers. The drought has impacted many sectors of AG this year, including a hike in borrowing. The Federal Reserve System's agricultural finance databook says in the second quarter, farm operating loans rose at their fastest pace in five years. Operating loan demand from farmers shot up as input costs rose. At the same time, livestock operations were looking for help to cover a spike in feed costs.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week.

ROUNDTABLE:

Al takes over to talk markets with Mike Florez and Brian Basting.

JOHN'S WORLD:

Tuesday brings to an end the record long and astonishingly expensive political campaign season. During which we've been told the fate of the nation depends on the outcome. Such overwrought rhetoric, often complete with apocalyptic prophesies of downwards spirals or national calamities, has been especially fulsome this time. And to be sure, there will be consequences from our choices. But stepping back, we could be losing the larger picture of where the stability of our nations originates. Any political system where the selection of one leader makes all the difference hardly seems like one that would have survived, not to mention thrived, for three hundred years. The United States have had some great Presidents. We know their stories and build schools named after them. But then there were James Buchanon, Franklin Pierce, and Warren Harding. We somehow survived their legendary incompetence. The durability of our republic is not dependent solely on our choice of leadership. In fact, often we move forward despite their best efforts, not because of them. The collective actions of our citizens, in my opinion, can overpower or undermine any political scheme. The fate of our nation does hang in the balance, as it does every day. But it is a fate of our own construction, not one imposed by a few. Anxiety over election outcomes is not new. But history clearly predicts what Americans will be facing the morning after Election Day: Wednesday.

2ND HALF

JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. While we have had enough to keep us occupied here, farmers around the world are equally busy. Our cousins in Europe are having about as much success reforming their AG policy as we are with ours. South American competitors are struggling with too much rain and too little - kind of like Ohio and Nebraska. And Chinese farmers are waiting to see who their new leaders will be, and what they might do. Regardless, agriculture around the globe is advancing in both capability and potential. It is one reason for well-founded optimism.

HEADLINES:

From our update file - lawyers for ABC news are asking a judge to throw-out a billion dollar defamation lawsuit filed by South Dakota-based meat processor, BPI. As the demand for more nuts grows with people wanting healthier diets, it's impacting more than just growers. It's also creating a greater need among commercial plant nurseries. Speaking of high demand, someone has stolen thousands of pounds of walnuts in California. Authorities say a 40 thousand pound truckload of walnuts was shipped out from north California to Florida, but the truck never arrived. This is the second large walnut theft in just a few weeks. In total, 80 thousand pounds of walnuts have disappeared. The price tag for the stolen goods is estimated around 300 thousand dollars. Hope for wetter cooler winter in the southern plains is fizzling. According to the Texas Agrilife Extension Service, new reports suggest El Niño's strength in the pacific is fading. That means it's less likely to be a wet winter. State climatologists say the odds are beginning to point toward the redevelopment of La Nina again next year.

SPIRIT OF THE HEARTLAND:

As urban sprawl encroaches on rural America, historic farmsteads become hidden treasures. Tyne Morgan shows us why each year during national FFA convention, changing out of their official FFA apparel and putting on their work clothes has become quite the treat for FFA members across the country.

DAIRY POLICY:

Even before the expiration of the farm bill, U.S. Dairy policy was at a crossroads. The National Milk Producers Federation created a reform package that is now part of the proposed farm bill. One element of the Dairy Security Act is a provision that would allow the government to impose limits in milk production. Producers who violate the levels could be penalized. There's also an alternative measure. Michelle rook has details.

TRACTOR TALES:

Al Pell joins us this weekend with tractor tales. John, we met a very dedicated tractor club in central Montana.

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to Grace United Church of Christ of Conesville, Iowa. The congregation is celebrating its 140th anniversary this year. In 1872 the first church building went-up. It was named the German reform church. About 20 years later, a local farmer named Shakespeare Mc-Kee donated 40 acres of wheat, which helped pay for a new church. That building still stands today. Over the years, church names have changed, but one thing has remained consistent - - service to the ministry! And a special hello to church member Isabelle Buser. At 101, she's the oldest member. She's attended for 96 years! Our thanks to Janet Vincent for sharing the story.

MAILBAG:

Time now for our weekly look inside the Farm Report mailbag. Nancy Whitaker was one of several viewers to respond to my comments about the contradiction of supporting Mr. Romney and farm subsidies at the same time.

THIS WEEK ON U.S. FARM REPORT
EPISODE # 2048
NOVEMBER 10-11, 2012JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. I had the privilege to spend a day with some of America's best dairy farmers at the Elite Producer Business Conference held by our sister publication, Dairy Today. I left with an even higher respect for the people in the U.S. dairy industry. Despite a litany of formidable challenges - feed costs, milk consumption, immigration, dairy policy, and more - I heard no whining, blaming or demanding. Just a sober, realistic appraisal of a harsh reality. I frankly don't know how this sector will weather the storm of problems it faces, but I do know if anyone can do it, it will be the men and women I met that day. I'll bet on them any day.

HEADLINES:

The Ag Department says we grew a little bit more this year and we'll have a little more left over. The November crop production figures for corn nudged higher. Meanwhile demand for U.S. Ag exports remains strong. The Commerce Department released its latest export figures which show the trade deficit narrowing to 41 and a half billion dollars in September. That's more than 5% lower than the month before. A look behind the numbers reveals, a massive surge in soybean exports, up 32% for the month. Heavy machinery sales also bolstered U.S. exports. Total exports were up 3% to an all-time high of 187 billion dollars. While it may be good news, the expectation is that it won't last. A sputtering global economy is likely to temper demand. It has been nearly 2 months since parts of Oklahoma have seen a quarter of an inch of rain in one day. Almost half of the wheat crop is rated in fair condition, and another 30% is poor to very poor. Conditions of pasture and range continued to be rated mostly poor to very poor. Growth of winter grasses and pasture is limited. Winter wheat pastures continue to struggle under a lack of rainfall. Emergence has been poor and there's worry of crop failures heading into the winter months. In Oklahoma, water is starting to become an issue. Many ponds are drying up and it could mean a flurry of liquidations later in the season.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week looks at benefits of double-cropping.

ROUNDTABLE:

Al takes over to talk markets with Andy Shissler and Bill Biedermann.

JOHN'S WORLD:

In the 2012 election no decision was as clear-cut as the result of the competition between Psephologist and pundits. I know, I hadn't heard the word before either. A Psephologist is a political statistician - a number nerd, to be crude. It turned out several of the computer modelers were almost perfect - and the most widely followed - Nate Silver of 538.com - called every state correct and came within .3% of the national vote for President. Comparing those predictions with the talking heads was simply no contest. Veteran observers like George Will, Michael Barone, and Karl Rove were blown out of the water. I am sure political bloviating is not about to be replaced with small digital readouts in the corner of your screen, but I think we will see less attention paid to free-range opinions unsupported by numerical research. Add political forecaster to a growing list of jobs now handled better by a computer and a math expert such as: airplane pilot, travel agent, financial derivatives trader, and more. Dairy producers are debating robot milkers this week, and I watched more video of autonomous tractors and cars. I trade on markets dominated by black box orders. The computer revolution didn't end when we all got one. It just started. I think the gains in productivity will put many more occupations on the endangered list. Farmers need to constantly ask what they are doing a computer couldn't do better. You can bet political pundits are thinking about it.

2ND HALFJOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. As strange as it seems, I don't think many in Washington were able to plan meaningfully beyond the election. Statements from congressional leadership have been vague or confusing. The White House agenda is also a matter of great speculation. Farmers had been hoping for a window of opportunity to at least make some progress toward longstanding policy issues, but the lame duck session looks positively crippled right now. For all the complaints about the status quo, we still haven't found any ways to change it, despite a brutal election process. Making plans for next year will not be easy.

HEADLINES:

One of the benchmarks of the nation's economy is the financial health of fast-food giant McDonald's.

The big burger maker caught a chill this month. To put a thanksgiving dinner on the table this year, it will cost American's slightly more this year. For the past 27 years, the American Farm Bureau federation has estimated the retail cost of menu items for a classic Thanksgiving dinner. Two state ballot initiatives of particular interest to agriculture were defeated on Election Day. After surviving the worst drought in 50 years...farmers are adding up their losses. But for many, a miserable summer is merely a precursor a very difficult winter. Linda Russell from affiliate KYTV in Springfield Missouri revisits a family farm to see how things have changed.

SPIRIT OF THE HEARTLAND:

Spirit of the heartland this week takes us to Ohio to see how cancer-fighting foods are being built from the ground up. In this report from the James Cancer Hospital, Clark Powell shows us what scientists are doing to make the foods you eat more potent.

BAXTER BLACK:

Welcome back. For ranchers, calving season can be an adventure...for some, the adventure can be one to forget. Baxter Black joins us now from his Arizona ranch to explain.

TRACTOR TALES:

Al, what's on tap for tractor tales this week?" John, we've got a classic tractor that was in production for less than two years!

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to First Lutheran Church of Allen, Nebraska. The congregation is celebrating its centennial this year. Town folks first met in June of 1912. They convened in the Allen town hall where the water-tower served as a beacon, of sorts. Within a month, 66 people signed a church constitution to create the church. Eight months later their new church building was constructed and ready for its first service. Barely a year passed and the congregation decided to build a parsonage for the pastor. Our thanks to church member Jean Morgan for sharing the information about First Lutheran Church of Allen Nebraska.

MAILBAG:

Time now for our weekly look inside the Farm Report mailbag. We received a letter of concern from a former NASS employee who worries reorganization plans for that agency will hurt its mission. THIS WEEK ON U.S. FARM REPORTEPISODE # 2049*NOVEMBER 17-18, 2012*JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. Consider this headline: a national banking system is staggering under the weight of farm loans gone sour as farmland prices drop 30% over four years. It seems bankers were lending based on asset values rather than repayment capacity. For those of us of a certain age it sounds like an echo of the 80's in the U.S. But this is a Bloomberg report from this week about the situation in Denmark. While I do not think this is harbinger for American agriculture, it is surprising that bankers anywhere still fall into this trap, let alone a nation as savvy as Denmark. There is something about a bubble that overrides our brains, I guess.

HEADLINES:

The 2012 drought is having an impact on credit conditions, but it's apparently not impacting the demand for good farmland. That's the bottom line of a report from two key districts of the Federal Reserve Bank. Breaking it down by states, Iowa had the highest year-over-year increase in the Chicago fed district. And Nebraska was the highest in the Kansas City district. Despite some shrinking farm incomes. Tractor sales were strong last month according to the latest data from the association of equipment manufacturers. Their monthly flash report shows total tractor sales were up 29% from the same month last year. Year to date, they're up 10% over 2011. A House panel says former MF global CEO Jon Corzine caused most of the problems that caused the collapse of the brokerage firm.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week.

ROUNDTABLE:

Al is in to talk markets with Joe Vaclavik and Iowa farmer Chris Barron.

JOHN'S WORLD:

As we head into Thanksgiving, many of you are facing the challenge of hosting family and friends, and surprise visitors in your home. And while menu planning and food preparation takes top importance, those of us who are now forbidden to enter the kitchen have our own plans to make.

At the top of the list is avoiding possible conversational awkwardness or outright acrimony by guiding the conversation onto relatively safe topics. My suggestion is to go with food. You will be busy overeating, after all, and food is something we farmers should frankly know a little more about. To begin with, you can't go wrong by asking the cook how any particular dish was prepared. My experience is this unexpected opportunity to recount the considerable effort required for special dishes will earn you mucho points, and may help you skip out on cleanup. It's like asking a golfer about his latest game, and will also give you time to concentrate on eating before the under twenty crowd cleans out your favorites. Food is also a path to happy recollection, as Aunt Mildred's special sage dressing triggers warm remembrance of a loved one. It will require some homework, so you can dazzle with obscure knowledge like how mandarin oranges are peeled. Start Googling now. So when the conversation starts to drift toward the election or the deficit, simply exclaim loudly: "you know, candied yams aren't really yams."

2ND HALFJOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. China showed the world how to downsize government this week as they rolled out the new politburo standing committee. Instead of nine in the exclusive club, there are only seven at the top. The bad news is reform candidates did not do well in the secretive selection process, so issues like corruption, currency values and trade practices will probably change slowly, if at all. They do have one practice that is admirable, I think - a semi-official retirement age of 68. Also you have to admit the idea of changing leaders without any campaign commercials does have a certain appeal.

HEADLINES:

America's second most populous city is taking a position that alarms beef producers and farmers.

A group of governors issued a warning about the risk of losing tax breaks for wind energy. Governors representing both sides of the political aisle are urging congress to renew an expiring subsidy. Republican Iowa Governor Terry Branstad and Oregon

Governor John Kitzhaber, a democrat say additional jobs will be lost without the government money. The production tax credit expires at the end of the year. It costs the federal government about a billion dollars a year. With Republican lawmakers looking to further tighten the budget belt, supporters of this tax credit face an uphill battle. Despite concerns that it will further lower water levels on the Mississippi River, the Corps of Engineers will proceed with plans to reduce flow from a South Dakota reservoir. The Corps says it will reduce the flow by 40% later this month. A trade group representing towboat and barge operators says the reductions will have a significant impact to water levels between St. Louis and Cairo, Illinois. The American waterways council says barge traffic on the river could effectively come to a halt in early December. It was a tough year for many apple growers. An early spring warm up and subsequent freeze severely damaged many crops. Despite that, apple production nationwide remained strong.

VET'S ON CALL:

Some youngsters have a dream of being a cowboy. But sometimes reality gets in the way of those dreams. That's the case for Doctor Don Goodman - a Veterinarian from Navasota, Texas. He like's working with beef cows, but don admits - he just wasn't a very good cowboy, so he took another career path. And as you'll find out in this special report we call "Vets on Call" his clients are glad he did.

DEEP FRIED TURKEY:

Turkey time is getting close, while many of still get out the roasting pan, more and more Americans pull out a frier. But be careful if you. State farm says more cooking fires occur on Thanksgiving than any other day of the year. U.S. Fire departments respond to more than 1-thousand fires each year in which a deep frier is involved. That results in an estimated 15 million dollars in property damage.

SWEET POTATO HARVEST:

In casseroles and pies, sweet potatoes will share space with the turkey next Thursday. Louisiana farmers harvested a good crop of this Thanksgiving mainstay. Tobie Blanchard has details in this report provided by the LSU Agcenter.

TRACTOR TALES:

Al, as we both know not all green tractors are made by Deere. That's right. Oliver made some mighty fine machines. We met a young collector from western Missouri who has a real passion for them.

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to the United Methodist Church of Castleford, Idaho. Located in Idaho's magic valley, Castleford United Methodist is celebrating 100 years of ministry. The church started in September 1912. Back then, services were held on the second floor of the local mercantile store. It was obvious a church building was needed. In the late 1920's, the congregation built what they call a "basement" church. As the church grew, they decided to build a new sanctuary in 1960. Our thanks to Dean Kohntopp who shared the church history. He's been a member for 53 years.

MAILBAG:

Time now for our weekly look inside the Farm Report mailbag. Loyal viewer Steve Wisniewski of Athens, Michigan brings up a growing concern.

THIS WEEK ON U.S. FARM REPORTEPISODE # 2050*NOVEMBER 24-25, 2012*JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm Al Pell, in for John Phipps. John recently visited North Dakota where he talked with farmers about the oil boom in that state. It's obvious how "Texas tea" has impacted communities - both positively and negatively. John will share his thoughts later in the show. Time now for the headlines.....here's Tyne Morgan.

HEADLINES:

Severe dryness continues in the plains states. That has livestock producers worried about feed and pastures supplies during the coming winter and early spring. Meanwhile in the feedlot, the sterling beef profit tracker shows cattle feeding margins continue to decline. The most recent numbers put average feedyard losses at a whopping $93 per head. It also shows packer margins improved, but harvesters are losing about $83 per head. Pork producers tightened their belt to weather the financial storm this fall. And it's good news as losses haven't been as deep as originally forecast this fourth quarter. Purdue University economist Chris Hurt expects profitability to return earlier than anticipated. He is forecasting first quarter 2013 losses near $15 per head, but by the second and third quarters, pork producers could finally be in the green. He projects profitability in the $10 per head range. Many turkey producers also saw tight margins this year due to high feed costs.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week...

ROUNDTABLE:

Jim Hemminger of Top Third AG Marketing and Jim Bower from Bower Trading will look at the markets on this holiday-shortened week.

JOHN'S WORLD:

Even though John isn't here this weekend. He has some thoughts about the growing pains associated with the North Dakota oil boom. John. My recent visit in North Dakota gave me much to brood over. I have been there occasionally over the last 15 years and concur with sociologists who consider the state to have the highest social capital in nation. The people are warm and outgoing, the institutions honest and efficient, and there is a real sense of community everywhere. That happy picture is being tested by what can only be called excessive good fortune. Between the Bakken oil field drilling bonanza, a booming AG sector are the corn belt moves north and west, and a remarkably large financial industry, the economy of North Dakota is the envy of 49 other states. But this happy picture is marred by painful dislocations. Long-time residents have seen housing costs spiral out of sight as oil money buys up every available home and rents every apartment at nosebleed prices. The infrastructure - from roads to schools to law enforcement - is struggling to keep pace. Change on this scale - even positive change - is a challenge for us to embrace. The fabled resource curse is not just something that afflicts developing countries. More critically, extremely rapid change can exceed our ability to adapt, and even enormous wealth won't help. It will some time before North Dakotan's feel comfortable in their new state, I'm guessing. And this new state will not be like the old one. After our initial spasm of envy passes, I think all of us can spare a moment to wish them well as they grow into their future.

THIS WEEK ON U.S. FARM REPORTEPISODE # 2051*DECEMBER 1-2, 2012*JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. I'll have more to say about trade agreements later, but news this week that a free trade agreement with the EU is receiving renewed interest is noteworthy. Unlike other trade agreements the issues will not be so much tariffs, but regulations - from safety rules to drug approvals to Phytosanitary standards. This last category could finally bring agreement on AG issues like hormones and GMO's by being part of a bigger package. It will be worth the wait and effort.

HEADLINES:

After the summer drought decimated crops and forced livestock feed costs higher, the AG Department says net farm incomes saw a decline. According to the latest crop progress report, a little over a quarter of the country's winter wheat crop is poor to very poor. The story is worse in Texas as 40% of the state's crop is considered poor to very poor and 39% fair. According to the latest crop progress report, a little over a quarter of the country's winter wheat crop is poor to very poor. I spoke to a Texas farmer who says with little moisture, his wheat planted the first of September is struggling. Meanwhile, cotton acres could plummet next year. Many farmers in the area see grain prices as a more attractive option. Department of AG data shows of the 3.3 million U.S. Farm operators, about a third are women. Those women are looking for ways to improve the bottom line of the farming operation.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week.

ROUNDTABLE:

Our marketing roundtable hits the road this week. On Thursday, we took our cameras to the Executive Women in Agriculture conference held in Chicago. Tyne Morgan leads the conversation.

JOHN'S WORLD:

We often lose track of the consequences of events that command our attention for a few months and fade from the front page. Remember the great debate over NAFTA - the North American Free Trade Agreement, including the wild predictions like the NAFTA highway. Well, it's been almost 20 years and the result has been an amazing benefit to all three countries. The biggest change has been in Mexico, which is suddenly starting to contribute enormous impact on the North American economy. For example, it will soon surpass South Korea as the third largest car exporter. To be sure much of it has been the byproduct of oil trade, but Mexico's economy is no longer the weak sister in NAFTA. America's farmers are watching more of their products cross the Rio Grande as well. Canada and Mexico are now our two largest markets for U.S. exports, and after China, our largest sources for imports. The fears that certain industries would disappear has largely been dispelled. The boost to the Mexican economy has also helped reduce illegal immigration. Trade agreements like NAFTA can take decades to negotiate and fully implement, but there are few government efforts that can pay off as well. In a world where instantaneous results are barely fast enough, we often lose sight of the rewards of patience.

2ND HALFJOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. I am as tired of black Friday as many of you, but it did dawn on me this was another example of what I call score boarding - the real-time measurement of economic or social activity. We knew almost before the day was out how many much people spent or shopped online and countless other comparisons. Add this to a car mileage phone app, combine yield monitors, on-line banking, and overnight TV ratings and we are checking how we are doing. Measuring can be the first step to changing, but once you start watching the scoreboard, the change is constant.

HEADLINES:

Corn growers are sounding the alarm...something must be done quickly to improve water levels along the drought-plagued Mississippi River. Specifically, they have concerns about the ability to get adequate fertilizer supplies to the Midwest. The Illinois Corn Growers Association told AgDay that fertilizer prices could climb as much as 50-dollars a ton. The pork industry is defending itself after "consumer reports" magazine criticized the safety of pork chops and ground pork. USDA researchers have figured out the science behind the genetic make-up of bread wheat. While we are busy decking the halls at our home, our nation's capital is doing some Christmas decorating of its own. Be sure to tune in to our holiday special, Christmas in the Country. We'll be taking a closer look at the story behind this story, with a trip to the forest where the tree was harvested and we'll introduce you to the characters who cut it down. It's an episode you won't want to miss on the weekend before Christmas. Christmas in the country here on U.S. Farm Report.

WEATHER:

That's it for news...Meteorologist Mike Hoffman joins us now with the national forecast.

SPIRIT OF THE HEARTLAND:

Regular viewers of our show know that we like to pay tribute to churches, as they serve as the foundation for much of rural America. Typically we share a photo, but on occasion we like to take a camera to the church and bring the story to life. Tyne Morgan takes us to New Salem Church of the Brethren in Milford, Indiana.

BAXTER BLACK:

Based on a lifetime of experience, Baxter Black understands all too well the habits of ranchers. This weekend, he tells us how many start their days when the winter darkness sets in.

TRACTOR TALES:

Tractor tales this week takes us to big sky country.

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to the First Presbyterian Church of Elk Rapids, Michigan. The church was built in 1874. They are celebrating 138 years of ministry this year. Church member Don Reynolds sent us the photo and a note. He says the church is involved in many community programs, but they are especially fond of the "community cupboard" which helps feed a large number of low-income residents.

MAILBAG:

THIS WEEK ON U.S. FARM REPORTEPISODE # 2052*DECEMBER 8-9, 2012*JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. Call me old-fashioned, but I'm dreaming of a wet Christmas. The old-fashioned kind with cold, gray rains falling slowly for hours on unfrozen fields. Muddy tracks in the kitchen; dripping coats by the door, and gloomy afternoons that make winter days seem even shorter. Ah - happy memories. I've discovered nostalgia can be arranged to fit your mood, and I'm mood for liquid to replenish desiccated soils. Snow may be pretty, but it doesn't pack the moisture punch we need to lighten up the drought map. So when Bing Crosby and Rosemary Clooney appear on your TV this season, you sing along your words, I'll sing mine.

Headlines:

As the odds of passing a comprehensive farm bill look slim before the new year, disagreement over safety net particulars continues. Meanwhile, the animal ID system could be introduced in the next month. During our visit to the nation's capital, we visited with AG Secretary Tom Vilsack. He says traceability of animal diseases is important in negotiating with trade partners and USDA is currently finalizing the rules, which will be implemented soon. The CME group has finished its acquisition of the KC board of trade. That move combines CME's futures and options in soft red winter wheat with Kansas City's hard red winter wheat market.

CROP WATCH:

crop watch this week.

ROUNDTABLE:

Our weekly marketing roundtable. Mike North and Pete Meyer join us.

JOHN'S WORLD:

Along with buying the wrong gifts for family members and wrestling with year-end accounting, farmers suddenly have realized they have another urgent task this month. The looming fiscal cliff and soaring land values have combined to create an estate planning crisis that many producers have studiously ignored for too long, hoping it would somehow go away. So we have farmland appraisers and attorneys working like Santa's elves to take advantage of a tax-free gifting window that slams shut on new year's eve. While the AG media have been talking about this ad nauseas for two years, our fabled procrastination skills and deep attachment to our acres have many rushing to beat the clock. But it could be worth the hassle. I think the most optimistic outcome of fiscal cliff negotiations will leave even modest-sized farms with considerable tax exposure due to property values which have merely quadrupled in the last ten years. The estate tax also is scored by the CBO to generate about $100b over the next decade. Finding an offsetting spending cut or alternative revenue won't be easy. While the estate tax is not particularly good at preventing wealth concentration in agriculture, it is very progressive - only the wealthy pay it. As austerity gains popularity, easing or repealing it will be much harder, I think. If nothing else, this frantic accounting exercise has forced many more of us to finally admit that compared to most Americans, we are rich.

2ND HALFJOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. As Americans grow more aware of the jaw-dropping economic impact of the energy boom here in the U.S., the localized costs are also beginning to sink in. I talked with ranchers from the Bakken oil field area and heard how the bonanza is pretty narrowly distributed. Many farms had sold the mineral rights long ago, so farmers who are now coping with drilling traffic, construction crew invasions, and overburdened infrastructure enjoy none of the wealth. Meanwhile efforts to build pipelines and power lines will stir up farmers all over the country. Our nation will gain much from this energy surprise, but the cost will not be trivial.

HEADLINES:

Despite concerns about low-river levels on the Mississippi, a spokesman the Corps of Engineers says there's no immediate plans to close the river to barge traffic. When it comes to the apple crop this year, it appears the industry was able to overcome terrific weather challenges in the eastern United States. As we reported earlier this year, a spring freeze devastated the Michigan apple crop and took a bite in New York as well. Remember those Kansas farm boys who became famous when their "I'm farming and I grow it" video went viral? Well, they're at it again. Check this out.

WEATHER:

That's it for news...Meteorologist Mike Hoffman joins us now with the national forecast.

SPIRIT OF THE HEARTLAND:

Dairy operators are looking for creative ways to set them apart from other dairy producers. In this report from AgDay affiliate KY3 TV, Steve Grant tells us about one dairy farm family which found a wave to keep business from going sour.

FLORIDA CLAMMER:

Farming comes with its risks and rewards, no matter what you raise or grow. For clam farmers in Florida, low market prices are creating challenging times. Hope is in the horizon as clam farmers are gearing up for the holiday season and expect prices to be on the rise. Tyne Morgan takes us to Cedar Key, Florida to show us just what it takes to be a clammer.

TRACTOR TALES:

Al, I hear this week's collector has a special ear for certain tractors, is that right?" Absolutely John! But his ear likes a very particular sound.

CHURCH SALUTE:

And we're staying in the show-me state for our country church salute. The Timber Ridge Baptist church was formed in 1842. It was a 12-foot by 12-foot log building with six charter members. During the civil war, the battle of sand springs was fought near the church. Union soldiers were buried in the timber ridge cemetery. Because of growth, a new building was built in 1880's and again in 1920. And just this past June, they broke ground on yet another new structure. Church member Richard Mann says Timber Ridge has a vibrant children and youth ministry to continue help grow the church.

MAILBAG:

Time now to hear from you via the Farm Report mailbag. John Steffen asks if land prices are in a bubble or if there is another explanation.

JOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. Well, fellow cliff-dwellers, don't look down. I'm starting to wonder if the austerity crisis has been a little oversold. Wall Street seems curiously calm, and I think those guys don't wait until the last minute to prepare defenses. Farmers are realizing we have much at stake in the negotiations. But that should also trigger a realization we are among the fabled "takers". You can't lose entitlements you don't get. In about a week, I expect more detailed information about what the world looks like over the cliff. But I suspect it will be less dramatic but every bit as painful as we have heard.

HEADLINES:

Farmland prices hit a new high in the nation's top corn producing state - Iowa. They are up 24% from a year ago. Those are the results of data collected by Iowa State Extension economist Mike Duffy. The AG department released its December supply-demand figures. And there were no significant changes. Our partners at ProFarmer poured thru the data. Managing Editor Brian Grete notes the changes in the USDA forecast. There was little improvement in the drought monitor this week. The plains - from north to south remain - are getting little reprieve, impacting livestock and crops. In the next half hour, I'll look at efforts to keep barge traffic flowing on the drought impacted Mississippi River. Now back to John for "crop watch".

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week...

ROUNDTABLE:

Al Pell is joined by Gregg Hunt and Brian Basting for our weekly roundtable discussion.

JOHN'S WORLD:

Amid all the minute-by-minute coverage of the fiscal cliff, too little coverage was given to the historic policy change at the Federal Reserve. Chairman Bernanke set aside vague "fed-speak" for precise targeting for monetary policy. Basically, the fed is reweighting its dual responsibility of controlling inflation and battling unemployment. Until the jobless number drops below 6.5% or inflation consistently exceeds 2.5%, interest rates will be essentially flat at their historic lows. For critics who wring their hands over uncertainty, this should clear up one part of the picture. And for those who have been predicting runaway inflation triggered by these fed actions to increase the money supply, the shelf life on those dire forecasts have long since expired. Remember the Phipps rule of economic predictions: if it doesn't come true in two years, it's just wrong. While folks have written in to say there is serious inflation, citing everything from pickup prices to college tuition, we need to keep in mind that inflation is calculated from all the things people buy, not just what you buy. And it has averaged 2.6% for twenty years. Until we get more Americans to work and wages begin to rise for more than the upper class, inflation will not be a threat. The fed actions are a good, but not sufficient step to help that day arrive. The rest of the remedy is to avoid an austerity crisis with agreement on fiscal policy by Congress and the administration.

2ND HALFJOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. Every Christmas season I try to seek out an unfamiliar Christmas carol to add to my playlist at home. Thanks to modern music technology, I've unearthed Bavarian folksongs, Swedish tunes and 19th century American Christmas anthems to add to my collection. Last year I found "Jesus the Light of the World". It's now number three on my all time list. This year I'm adding "When a Child is Born" by the moody blues. Also some standards by tenor Jose Diego Florez. The only problem is my playlist is now roughly 28 hours long. But in my defense, you'll only hear "Little Drummer" boy once.

HEADLINES:

The Army Corps of Engineers says it has tentatively scheduled two private contractors to remove rock pinnacles on the Mississippi River next week. Those rock formations near southern Illinois are potentially hazardous to towboats on this important shipping channel. One of the tax cuts that could change - as part of the fiscal cliff - is the estate tax. It's levied on property when someone passes away. After much complaining and YouTube protests, the USDA has agreed to let schools feed kids more calories.

SPIRIT OF THE HEARTLAND:

Walnut harvest has wrapped-up in California, which grows just about all the walnuts in this country. Its important cash crop for Dax Kimmelshue and his wife Karen. But that's just a part of the success on their farm. Clinton Griffiths says creative ownership is also key.

BAXTER BLACK:

With Christmas just about a week away, Baxter Black joins us from his ranch with a story about a friend who is no longer with us. A friend who understood the reason for the season.

TRACTOR TALES:

Al joins us this morning, as we head to the Pacific Northwest for tractor tales. John, we've got a 1923 cross-motor Case 12-20.

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to Edinburg United Methodist Church in Edinburg, Illinois. They are celebrating 150 years of ministry. In 1863, the membership built a small wooden structure to hold services. It was known as "Gunns Chapel". It lasted until 19-hundred when the present building was completed. The picturesque church is adorned with exceptional stained glass windows in the sanctuary. Our thanks to the anniversary committee for sharing their news.

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. A good friend of mine once shared his opinion on taxes that has stuck with me. Once you pay your taxes, he said, you can keep everything that's left. At the time, I thought that was cute but not helpful, but the longer I live, the more futility I see in raising my blood pressure over percentage points of income. I can point to production and financial blunders of my own making that have had far more impact. Farmers have been beneficiaries of both public support and good economic times. Although my tax calculations for 2012 took my breath away, after I pay it, I can keep everything that's left. I can live with that.

HEADLINES:

As we count down the days until we ring in the new year, big changes in tax laws are in store for 2013. The outlook for cotton acres in 2013 doesn't look promising. National cotton council's chief economist Gary Adams says with a surplus of cotton in the world, the country really holding the destiny of cotton prices is China. EPA administrator Lisa Jackson announced she's resigning next month. Jackson was the first African American to lead the agency. The current Deputy Administrator will fill in until a successor is named. And that pre-Christmas snow storm that traveled from Colorado to the upper Midwest brought little drought relief. The drought monitor shows a nine-point improvement in Iowa, but no change in Nebraska. 96% of the state is in extreme or exceptional drought.

CROP WATCH:

Crop watch this week.

ROUNDTABLE:

Tommy Grisafi from Indiana Grain Company and Chip Nellinger from Blue Reef Agrimarketing are here to talk markets.

JOHN'S WORLD:

In 1811, French philosopher Joseph De Maistre wrote: "Every nation has the government it deserves." this cynical observation is not without a grain of truth, especially for democracies like ours. In many ways, the government which polls indicate we hold in very low esteem is largely the result of our own decisions. But I would suggest it may go farther than just blame. While we mutter our frustrations over inaction in Washington regarding the fiscal cliff or the farm bill, consider this: what if we simply assigned 535 randomly chosen American's from the appropriate locations to tackle the same issues? I struggle to imagine any more commitment to national goals or ability to compromise among that group. In fact, I could see even less. Perhaps our government is more representative than we think. Clearly I could be way off base, but as I notice how carefully I avoid many discussion topics, especially with strangers, it would seem to indicate at some level, I believe we have less common ground than we used to. Technology now enables us to build our own closed communities of shared values. We are no longer confined by our zip code. In a way, that's a shame. When we were essentially trapped by geography, we were more or less forced to learn to get along. Now we can live side by side and agree on very little. Another Frenchman, Louis the Fourteenth perhaps described the problem best when he quipped, "l'etat, c'est moi - the state, it is."

2ND HALFJOHN'S OPEN:

Hello and welcome to U.S. Farm Report, I'm John Phipps. While we have been worried about falling over the fiscal cliff, a few of us have only recently noticed commodities have been on a gentle glide downward. This is especially true for corn, and doubtless will be discussed in our roundtable later. That may turn out to be the larger problem with the now tiresome fiscal cliff - the distraction it has proved to be for our entire economy. When we do refocus our attention on other mundane matters, there could be some abrupt actions. The fiscal cliff has been a godsend for the media during what is normally a very slow news period. But it certainly makes many of us even more wistful about Christmas past.

HEADLINES:

Without a deal being struck in Congress for fiscal policy and a new farm bill, speculation surfaced among economists this week, including the possibility of milk prices doubling next year.

We talked to Dairy Today Editor Jim Dickrell and he says there's a slim possibility of that happening. Without a farm bill, we'll revert back to 1949 law that requires USDA to support dairy prices 75 to 90% of parity. Dickrell says with current prices, that's four times the current support price level. Meanwhile, demand growth for dairy may slow in 2013, but won't preclude a price recovery in the dairy industry next year. That's according to a new report by Rabobank. The company says dairy consumption worldwide remains weaker than anticipated and expects milk production growth in key export regions to continue to fall during the first half of 2013. Commerce along the Mississippi River could come to a halt earlier than expected south of St. Louis. That's according to the American Waterways Organization. The energy boom in the country could be impacting more than just job growth. According to the latest state population estimates from the U.S. census bureau, it could be benefitting population growth, as well.

WEATHER:

Meteorologist Frank Waugh joins us now with the national forecast.

HORSE THERAPY:

Gifts come in many forms. For some, it's a package under a tree wrapped in shiny paper and a bow. But for children with special needs - the gift comes in the form of caring volunteers who help those kids achieve milestones one step - or in this case - one trot - at a time.

Lyndall Stout from Oklahoma State's Sun-Up has more on this everlasting gift.

HEALTHY U:

'Tis the season to be merry and jolly and - in some cases - to overindulge. But meet a group who refuse to surrender to the holiday pounds. In this report provided by the University of Missouri, Kent Faddis has more on a program called Healthy 'U'.

TRACTOR TALES:

Al, where are we off to this week for tractor tales?" John, we met a collector in central Montana with a classic Minneapolis Moline.

CHURCH SALUTE:

Today's country church salute goes to the Angelica United Methodist Church in Pulaski, Wisconsin which is celebrating its 125th year of ministry. While the church was officially formed in 1887, religious services date back to 1871. Back then pioneers and some members of the Menominee Indian tribe met in a log cabin schoolhouse. In 1891, church trustees received a deed for the land where the church and parsonage now stand. The present church was built in 1922. This country church is now comprised of 77 faithful members, many of whom are descendants of the founding members. Congratulations to Angelica United Methodist Church of Pulaski, Wisconsin.

| 10/31/2012 | Head Lice | 1:46 | 5pm | Just hearing the words are enough to make you start itching. But a new medicine appears to be highly effective in the treatment of head lice. K-y-3's Lisa Rose joins us now with the family health watch. getting rid of lice requires doing multiple loads of laundry, buying a special shampoo and then keeping kids still while you painstakingly comb through their hair looking for nits. You've heard about the five second rule-- Doctors say don't believe it--- especially when it comes to baby pacifiers. K-y-3's Lisa Rose joins us now with the family health watch. Pacifiers can offer solace to a crying baby. But they can so be covered with bacteria. Researchers at Oklahoma State University did a small study of ten used infant pacifiers. They looked clean. But under a microscope, the scientists found mold and staph bacteria. The doctor leading the study says pacifiers may look solid, but they really function like a sponge. Experts agree pacifiers should be re-placed at least once a month, even if they are routinely cleaned and sterilized after every use. |
| 11/5/2012 | Dirty Pacifiers | 2:07 | 5pm | In family health watch.....A Kansas City hospital plans to start the new year by breaking old habits. |------------|----------------------|------|-----|--|
| | | | | K-y-3's Lisa Rose has details in the family health watch. The march of dimes is out with its annual report on babies born too soon. The report says the premature birth rate has dropped in the U-S overall for the fifth consecutive year. The March of Dimes says not only does that translate into healthier babies, but a potential savings of roughly three billion dollars in health care and other economic costs. Still, the agency gives the U-S a grade of "C" ... Saying more needs to be done to prevent pre-term births. Missouri-- also scored a grade of C. 11 and a half percent of babies born last year were born at least three weeks early. Arkansas scored a grade of "D" ... With just over 13-percent of the births last year coming too soon. The march of dimes is trying to get that number under ten percent by the year 20-20. |

| 11/23/2012 | Fit Friday Gift Ideas | 5:12 | Ozarks Today | In our family health watch.... gift ideas for those wanting to be healthier. Paul shows us the do's and don't's of picking the right gift. They can provide hours of fun-- if it doesn't wind up in a trip to the emergency room. KY3's Lisa Rose has your Family Health Watch. We're talking about bounce houses-- those inflatable structures that have become staples at all kids of kids events. New numbers from a children's hospital show more than 64-thousand kids have had to go to the emergency room due to bounce house injuries in the last 20 years. In recent years, those injuries have averaged some 30 a day. Broken bones and arm and leg sprains are the most common. The bounce house industry says users should follow safety rules-- such as always having adult supervision, observing limits on how many children can play at one time, and not mixing different sized children in the bounce house at the same time. More on this story, tonight on N-B-C nightly news at 5-30. |
| 11/26/2012 | Bounce House Injuries | 2:14 | 5pm | a food normally associated with good health may be dangerous for some people. KY3's Lisa Rose has your Family Health Watch. People eat grapefruit for the healthful vitamins and low calories. But the fruit could be a dangerous mix with certain prescription medications. Canadian researchers say there are now 85 drugs that may interact with grapefruit. About half of those can have serious side effects -- or even cause sudden death. the fruit contains a chemical that can either accelerate the effects of certain drugs or block the absorption of others. |

| | | | | Some of the commonly prescribed drugs that may have a bad interaction with grapefruit include Iipitor, zocor, plavix and oxycodone. Cigarette makers.. again the target. This time of of a federal judge. She's ordering them to advertise the dangers of their product. K-y-3's Lisa Rose has the story in the family health watch. The ruling from the judge orders tobacco companies to publish statements that they have quote "deliberately deceived the American public about the health effects of smoking. The judge wants the advertisements to include facts such as smoking is to blame for the deaths of 12-hundred people every day-- and there is no such thing as a safe cigarette. Tobacco makers are suppose to start discussing how they will implement the order... But that could be delayed if the companies decide to appeal. In our family healthwatch... it's won the Nobel Prize for technology. And is being called the biggest advance in imaging for the spine since the invention of x-rays in 18-90. KY3's Lisa Rose reports on the breakthrough. Turns out Missouri is not alone when it comes to higher than average cases of the flu. I hope I don't have it. Here's K-y-3's Lisa Rose joins us now with the family health watch. Last week we told you there were already 21-hundred confirmed cases of the flu statewide in Missouri. That's ten times what is typical for this point in the flu season. The centers for disease control says flu season nationwide is off to its earliest start in ten years. The primary strain circulating is the one that tends to cause more severe illness, especially in the elderly. The good news is-- the government says this year's flu vaccine is well matched to the strains of flu seen so far. |

K-y-3's Lisa Rose joins us now with the family health watch. Patients who undergo cancer treatments often have to deal with extreme fatigue which can last for months, or even years. Doctors typically recommend rest for patients. but researchers in Great Britain found adding some aerobic activity helped patients feel less tired and helped reduce muscle loss. Other forms of exercise such as resistance training did not show an added benefit for patients. Researchers say it is important to deal with fatigue, because patients who suffer from it may be less willing to continue their cancer treatments. |

| 12/11/2012 | Smoking Sudden Death | 2:06 | 5pm | Think one cigarette can't hurt? Some new medical research may make you think again. KY3s Lisa Rose joins us now with the family health watch. Researchers in Canada followed more than one hundred thousand women-- some who smoked as little as one cigarette a day. the experts found those women still had two times the risk of sudden death-- compared to women who did not smoke. Sudden death is defined as when the heart abruptly stops working. The good news is -- researchers say women who quit smoking saw their risk of sudden death go down within five years. |
| 12/19/2012 | Holiday Party Tips | 3:18 | 5pm | In our family healthwatch... With less than a week until Christmas -- all those holiday parties and family get-togethers can lead to over-eating. But there are a few things you can do... To avoid regrets later when you step on the scale. |

| 12/25/2012 | Goodbye Dry Eye | 3:21 | 5pm | In our family healthwatch... dry eye makes millions of people miserable. It's caused by a variety of things...and standard treatment usually means medications, daily eye drops and ointments. As Lisa Rose reports...there's a new eye opening option for sufferers and it only takes few minutes. In the heads of millions of americans, they sit silently and can burst without warning. Brain aneurysms rupture in about 30 thousand people every year, killing or disabling many. Women are at a higher risk for aneurysms than men. Lisa Rose reports how researchers are looking at how a major change in a woman's life could be to blame. In our family healthwatch... losing weight is a popular resolution for the new year. But even when some people exercise, they still find it hard to shed the pounds. K-y-3's Paul Adler met up with one runner who turned to some high tech tools to help him lose weight. |

| Health | Ozarks Today | 10/10/2012 | 2:44 | Tracking the West Nile Virus and the flu season. Mike Brothers with the Greene County Health Department is here. Mike, we've had a record number of deaths in Arkansas from the West Nile. How close is this threat to Missouri? |
| Growth | 6pm | 10/11/2012 | 3:28 | An exciting day for many in the Mountain Grove community.. And for Ozarks Medical Center. They broke ground on a new two-million dollar facility. Ky3's Linda Russell was there, and joins us to explain how it will improve access to healthcare in the small town. Mountain Grove has a few clinics that provide healthcare close to home, but Ozarks Medical Center is now excited to offer more resources with a brand new facility that is double the current size. |
| Legalizing Marijuana | Noon | 10/16/2012 | 2:07 | Ed Derr with the Ozarks Fighting Back Advisory Board knows there are several reasons people turn to drug use. And he says more and more people are turning to marijuana to cope with that stress. But it's that perception that community leaders hope to address at Tuesday's night's forum. They want people to realize the dangers. So they can make safer, more informed decisions. |
| Jobs | 6pm | 10/30/2012 | 3:18 | New trucking jobs rolling into the Ozarks may be good economics for all of us. That was only part of the news at an impressive turnout at a Springfield job fair. Ky3's Linda Russell is here with more. It's been a tough job market for a few years, but there are some positive indicators here in the Ozarks, including the employer turnout at the Ozarks Technical Community College job fair. |
| Traffic | 6pm | 10/31/2012 | 3:49 | It's a safety issue for slow moving vehicles, especially those with real live horse power. An Amish farmer is concerned about his family and others traveling by buggy on a rural highway. Ky3's Linda Russell reports from the Webster County line on |

| Goodwill | Noon | 11/29/2012 | 3:27 | It's an annual garage sale...where no money will change hands. But as Dustin Hodges reports a Springfield church needs you to help those in need." |
| The Homeless | 5pm | 12/5/2012 | 1:04 | Where to send the homeless when they're ill or injured. That's the challenge some in Springfield are now embracing. Ky3's Linda Russell is live near Commercial Street's Missouri Hotel with more on the issue. It's an issue that hospitals, shelters and other agencies have dealt with for a long time, but because of a nursing student's desire to make a difference, the community is looking for a solution. |
| Tourism | 6pm | 12/12/2012 | 2:05 | After a tough 2012.. A branson community that relies on tourism is looking to draw in some long-distance travelers next year. Chamber of commerce leaders are counting on the so-called "Southwest effect" to fly people in from chicago, dallas, and houston. |
| Food Banks | 10pm | 12/13/2012 | 1:37 | It's a closet that's known as the Market on the Hill. It's a food pantry inside a school. Counselors came up with the idea. They give students nutritional information and other health supplies. Northside businesses and churches are chipping in to make sure no hornet family goes without. The staff has also created a clothing bank... It's all part of the Helping Hornets Succeed program. Administrators say providing this help at school is improving student performance. |
| Goodwill | 10pm | 12/25/2012 | 4:37 | People right here in Springfield spent Christmas Eve sleeping on the streets. Today an army of volunteers prepared them a traditional Christmas dinner...and sent out an invitation to others who need it most. Ky3's Emily Wood was there. |
| Passion Play | 6pm | 12/26/2012 | 4:47 | Praying for a miracle, while preparing for the worst. The Passion Play in Eureka Springs closed last month- possibly for good. Ky3's Mike Landis joins us what's next for the play- and the town it called home for nearly 50 years. |

| | | | | Owners of the attraction and the community are working on some deals they hope will resurrect the play in 2013. Even if something can't be worked out- its likely people will still flock to Eureka Springs. |

Non-Profit Meetings. On October 29th, 2012, KY3, Inc. invited three non-profits to meet with station department heads to share about what the non-profits do on a day-to-day basis to meet the needs of our community. Representatives from A Sporting Chance, Ozarks Literacy Council and the Regional Girls Shelter presented materials from each of their organizations. All three commended the stations on their efforts in recognizing local non-profits. The station has decided to make this a quarterly effort with the next non-profit meeting being held in first quarter 2013.
