The United States has the highest incarceration rate of any nation in the world. For every 100,000 citizens, over 650 individuals are serving time in a prison or jail. In this episode of Taking Care of Business, we will explore why so many people, once they serve their time, become repeat offenders and what can be done to break the cycle of recidivism.

Tonight on Huckabee, is Dr. Jeff Brodsky, President and Founder of Joy International, an organization that rescues and rehabilitates countless sex trafficking victims. Known as "Dr. Jeff," he shares that awareness is good, but awareness without action is apathy. He walks barefoot in solidarity with the many orphaned, abandoned and trafficked children. "The Barefoot Mile" was created by a youth group that wanted to raise funds to help these victims, which has since grown nationally as well as internationally. There is no worst crime perpetrated against a child since the dawn of creation than the trafficking of children; being forced into brothels, being used by men, fifteen to twenty times a day. Children are rescued from brothels as young as four years old. It is an evil and the depths of depravity in our world today knows no bounds.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, shows us the life of a former prostitute and how she found hope. Prostitution has been around for thousands of years damaging the lives of many women. Recent statistics tell us that the average prostitute begins selling her body between the ages of 12 and 14. Many of these women face physical dangers from assaults and rape. Some are even murdered in the streets. The great percentage of these women go on to contract sexually transmitted diseases and psychological disorders. To many, this seems like a hopeless situation, but we believe that nothing is hopeless when God enters the picture. No matter what you've done, no matter where you've been, God is able to change your life and turn your life around and give you a new direction, give you new purpose, and heal your broken heart. His love is able to change your life.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, takes us into the lives of women locked up behind prison bars. The life of a woman prisoner is very dangerous. Many of these women will never adapt to so-called 'normal life' because of the traumatic experience they face behind those prison walls. There's a tremendous amount of tension, violence, and fear that women face daily. The percentage of women going to prison has skyrocketed over the last 30 years by 646%, rising from about 15,000 women to over 110,000 women. So many of these women experience physical and sexual abuse while imprisoned. More than one million women are a part of the criminal justice system whether it is through incarceration, probation or parole. Many of these women are mothers, or mothers to be, at the time of their imprisonment, and 62% of these women have children under the age of 18 while in prison. These incarcerated women find themselves in a place of regret, depression, physical harm, and sometimes with suicidal thoughts. But the bars of a prison cell are not strong enough to hold back God's grace, love and forgiveness. These are the stories of a few women who were once locked in a prison cell but found the keys to freedom through Jesus Christ.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, shares the testimony of a former madame. Prostitution has been an epidemic for thousands of years. In fact, it is considered the world's oldest profession. The lives of those who are prostitutes are greatly affected not only physically but emotionally and mentally. There is another side to the prostitution business. Along, with prostitution comes sex trafficking. Typically, we see men referred to as pimps that handle this side of the business, but on rare occasions, women have decided to step into the business as well. These women pimps, or madams as they are called, handle the money. They transport the call girls and at times get violent to protect their women. This is a problem that is taking place in inner cities around the world. Victory Outreach has seen firsthand the lives of so many who have come out of that lifestyle totally transformed. The message they give to them is that you shall know the truth, the Bible says, and the truth shall set you free. And he who the Son sets free is free indeed.

Tonight on Huckabee, Charlie Kirk, Founder and Executive Director of Turning Point USA, explains that the executive order of free speech on college campuses is a constitutional freedom. If a university fails to protect the constitutional rights of the student, their federal funding could be in jeopardy. College campuses should be a marketplace where you can have debate, dialogue, career preparation, and students getting hardened for the real world. Students should leave more mature than when they entered. Currently, that is not the case, as "safe places" are common across many college campuses. If a student hears something objectional, they can retreat to a physical "safe place" where milk and cookies are provided. An important question to answer is "What kind of country are we going to be?" Three important messages are presented to students: 1. America is the greatest country to exist in the world. 2. The constitution is the greatest political document ever written. 3. Free enterprise capitalism is the most proven economic system discovered. We have been given a gift from God to live in this country. What happens on campus today will happen in Congress tomorrow.

Tonight on Huckabee, James S. Robbins, Author of Erasing America Losing Our Future by Destroying Our Past. shares that there is quite a danger if you raise generations of people who do not know all the good of America and who do not understand why this country was founded. America was founded on the idea of freedom and if you erase all that, then there is no reason for people to love or honor this country. Once the slate is wiped clean, others can write whatever future they want on it, such as progressivism or socialism. If you don't have a respect for your past, even with its flaws, then there is no reason to have any kind of loyalty or optimism about this country. There are so many great aspects of our history. Some people say we must remember the past, so we don't make the same mistakes. Well how about we remember the past so we can do the same good things over, and over again. It is pretty consistent across various disciplines and academia, in the media and in politics, where they sign on to the same narrative that anything you can mention about the past is bad and we're going to have revisionist history, so anything that is meant to inspire or make everyone feel good about America and the idea of America, we're just going to wipe that out. It is up to parents to know what their children are being taught and to intervene if they think they are not being taught the right thing. Education is key. It is up to every citizen who believes with a positive and optimistic view of America to address this matter.

CBN News Reporter Charlene Aaron Reports: One in every five women and one in 16 men will be the victims of sexual assault during their time in college. Former television personality Rosemary Tribble knows that pain well. When she was 25 years old, an attacker brutally raped her at gunpoint in her Virginia hotel room. Earlier that same day she had hosted a segment on sexual assault. The attack left Tribble in a constant state of fear. As a Christian, Tribble leaned on faith for healing, which included forgiving her attacker, who was never caught. In 2010 she wrote a book about her experience and now helps others find healing through her non-profit organization, Fear 2 Freedom. Her Emmy-award winning documentary called, "Be the Change," challenges schools to make campuses safe for everyone. She started her work at Christopher Newport University in Newport News, Virginia, where her husband now serves as president. Fear 2 Freedom Executive Director Tricia Russell says a big part of the program focuses on male students. More than 50 colleges and universities across the country have embraced this effort and hosted events, including schools such as Radford and George Mason. Russell said the program now extends well beyond campuses and into communities. Students are encouraged to take an active role by putting together aftercare kits for assault victims. The kits are helpful because, after an assault, a victim's clothing is kept for evidence. So, each kit contains a t-shirt, sweatpants, toiletries, and other items. Also included in the kits is a personal note of encouragement to victims from a student. Since 2011, student volunteers have put together more than 20,000 aftercare kits. Russell says the impact on survivors has been overwhelming. While Tribble recently retired as head of Fear 2 Freedom, her legacy and achievements are well recognized. Earlier this year, the Virginia General Assembly awarded her a commendation for helping other victims find freedom.

CBN News Reporter Charlene Aaron Reports: Peter Viaming was a well-liked French teacher at West Point High School in Virginia. But late last year, Viaming was fired because he refused to call a ninth-grade student who transitioned from female to male by the student's new preferred pronoun, "he." Viaming agreed to use the student's new name. But since he wouldn't refer to the biological girl as "he" or "him," he was placed on administrative leave in October of 2018. Two months later, the school board made its decision. Students at the school were outraged. Forrest Rhode, a West Point junior, rallied students to protest Viaming's firing by staging a walkout. Rhode called the school's treatment of the French teacher unfair and felt he needed to act. Similar cases to Viaming's are cropping up across the country. Lawmakers in California are debating a bill that would force foster parents to use any transgender pronouns their foster children want. Some universities – including the University of Tennessee – are urging faculty and students to use so-called gender-neutral pronouns in the belief it will create a more inclusive campus. CBN News reached out to school officials at West Point for comment on Viaming's case. We were referred to a statement released by the school's attorney. Meanwhile, Viaming is looking into a possible appeal. Viaming says being out of work for six months has not been easy for his family. But Viaming says his faith is giving him the strength he needs.

On this episode of Somebody's Gotta Do It, Host, Mike Rowe, takes us inside the national competition for Skills USA to find out how they are creating thousands of great careers while keeping the American Dream alive. Skills USA has filled in the gap that was created when Vo-tech vanished from high schools, by establishing a partnership between education and industry. Every year this organization trains over 300,000 students in dozens of skilled trades; welding, baking, and broadcasting, to name a few. At this competition, every competing student has already won a competition at the state level, and now they are competing for scholarships. Each competition lays out specific tasks to be completed within a certain amount of time with the opportunity to be awarded gold, silver, and bronze medallions. We're looking at a shortage of over 250,000 workers in the next ten years of retiring age. Our entire infrastructure is held together by welds, and the people who know how to make them. Right now, a good welder who is willing to go where the work is could pretty much write his or her own ticket. The baking industry is also struggling to find qualified people. While students are coming out of college mired in debt with no guarantee for a job in their field, the students who participate at Skills USA are gaining valuable training that makes them ready for the workforce as soon as they graduate.

CBN News Reporter Ben Kennedy Reports: A shortage of temporary foreign worker visas is making it almost impossible for landscapers and other non-agricultural businesses across the country to find enough employees. In 1991, Jesse Bane started a landscaping company with his family. Over the years Quality One, Inc. has grown into a successful business landing six-figure projects. So the Banes had to look elsewhere. Turns out, the H-2B program is not like that. It's designed to let employers hire temporary foreign workers for non-agriculture jobs. Companies must also show attempts to hire American workers before applying. Created back in the 1950s, H-2B is not an easy process. Employers must submit applications, pay fees, then wait to be chosen through a lottery. But lately getting help through H-2B has proven difficult. The Banes applied in December, and then again this year, for 15 workers but did not get a single one. This forced the Banes to turn down business and leave new equipment sitting in the parking lot with no one to operate it. The H-2B visa cap of 66,000 workers a year was set more than 20 years ago. Congress just passed a bill allowing nearly 70,000 more visas to open up, but DHS Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen limited that to only an additional 15,000 visas. So while lawmakers debate what to do, companies like Quality One, Inc. have this message for their customers.

Today on Better Together the ladies discuss true love in action: adoption. Adoption is an opportunity to change the trajectory of a life and provide the same entitlements of a biological child. There are so many misconceptions about adoption, as well as many unknowns, but why withhold love because of an unknown? Whether we have birthed a child or adopted a child, it is a relationship that we must grow into. When we are adopted into the Body of Christ, we are entitled to all that God has to offer us and our past is wiped clean. As Christians led by the Holy Spirit, God will equip and prepare us, through His grace, to love a child the way He has shown us His love. We are only instructed to love them, train them, and help them to grow well in a space where healing can happen. No matter the season of life, everyone has something to give. It is a mindset to pour into the lives of children and there is always room for family.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, let's us hear gripping true stories from mothers who have lost a child without notice to a senseless murder. There's little that is more tragic than the death of a child. The sad fact is that lives are lost every day. Every day, 33 Americans are murdered with guns and seven of those are children. When the horror of losing a child becomes a reality, the pain can be overwhelming. Not one person grieves the same. Everyone mother grieves differently. These mothers have overcome tragedy and have become overcomers in Christ. Jesus Christ is the answer.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, let's us hear stories of mothers who have had to live with the harsh reality that their child is sentenced to many years in prison. This topic has affected families from different backgrounds and social status. Every parent has hopes and dreams for their children. When you see them going in the wrong direction and headed for tragedy, most parents can feel helpless. One wrong decision can change a life forever. As a parent, you never dream or even image a son or daughter would be sentenced like a caged animal alone in a 5x8 foot cell or having to deal with the pain that your child has little or no hope of being free again. When your child is locked up in a cold prison cell, the pain can be devastating to a mother. But even in the midst of this horrific situation, God has given peace to many of these mothers. A peace that surpasses all understanding. God has been an anchor to these mothers during their time of hardship and turned their pain into hope.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, shows us the life of a woman who was held captive by domestic abuse and the terrifying circumstances she had to endure, and how God ultimately changed her life. The perils of domestic violence are affecting millions of people. Day after day, physical, emotional, and verbal abuse are devastating many families. These people often endure tremendous pain and are unable to go about their daily lives. Instead they are constantly looking over their shoulder and living in fear of what awaits them at home. The answer is always found in Jesus. He is the one who can change and deliver us. Jesus is the one that is able to change a life and then change an entire family.

In a recent year, 47,000 individuals committed suicide in this country, 70,000 people died of drug overdose and many more died because of alcohol addictions. What is happening and, more importantly, what is being done to intervene? Depression and addictions are causing more suicide related deaths than at any other time in American history. Self-harm is not always caused by a gun; often it is a drug overdose or alcohol induced event. On this edition of Taking Care of Business, see the sad realities facing our society and meet those who are trying to intervene.

Tonight on Praise, Erwin McManus, Best-Selling Storyteller and Lead Pastor of MOSAIC, talks about how very few people are taking the necessary time to build their inner world. They are fighting trying to make it through the day as they struggle with depression, stress, anxiety, or panic attacks. His recent book, The Way of the Warrior, uses the analogy of a warrior to fight for your soul, which is the greatest battle for anyone. He addresses humanities' inability to create peace and individuals' challenge to find inner peace.

Health – Mental Health

Better Together	27:45	27:45	REC	PA/O	6/3/2019	1:30 PM
#BT19-26

Today on Better Together the ladies discuss overcoming shame. Not just emotional and spiritual, there is a physical impact when you feel shame. Ask yourself: "What has shame kept me from doing, seeing, or enjoying in life?" Shame keeps me from experiencing how God loves me. True intimacy with God because it doesn't match up with the narrative in my mind. Shame is chains and shackles us. It is emotional and mental. What magnifies it is the connection with my identity. How can I fix something that is inherently inside me that is broken or damaged? When it comes to women, shame corrodes our core image, making us feel worthless. If I'm not enough, then I shouldn't try, I shouldn't take risks, I shouldn't move forward. Society tells us that you're not thin enough, smart enough, not rich enough, etc. These false accusations keep us in a place of unauthenticity where we get comfortable living. You can try to mask that shame and find your value through accomplishments, things, or people. Be aware of when you hear "should" statements. There is a feeling of shrinking; I feel smaller, I feel like I should hold back, or I feel like I should hesitate, this feeling is an indication of the very place where I need to move forward. By shrinking back I'm reinforcing whatever the thought is that is keeping me in that place. Psychologist call it "call confirmation bias." Our mind is constantly filtering information to reinforce what we already believe. You have to do the work to move forward and get past the chains. It may mean getting counseling, being honest, or taking chances. Everything about Jesus Christ says that you have inherent worth. You are made in the image of God. Our identity is in Christ and He came that you might have life and life more abundantly. God offers us freedom. We shrink back because our feelings don't agree. So we need to keep working on renewing our mind and meditating on the word of God so that we can bring our mind closer to the mind of God toward us, then let our feelings catch up.

CBN News Reporter Lorie Johnson Reports: Negativity, anxiety, anger, stress, trauma, and depression: chances are very high that you or someone you love struggles with these negative emotions. There are many ways to deal with emotional pain. Self-medication with harmful substances or behaviors briefly offers relief, only to make the problem worse in the long run. These include food, drugs, alcohol, risky sexual behavior, shopping, mindless TV, video games or internet surfing. Christian psychiatrist Dr. Daniel Amen offers new hope. He says many of can turn around our negative emotions by changing some of our daily habits. Furthermore, he suggests several coping mechanisms that can make us feel better now and later. Nationwide, his Amen clinics see 4,000 patient visits a month. They have the world's largest database of functional brain scans relating to behavior. He says the SPECT (single-photon emission computed tomography) scan allows doctors to analyze the blood flow and activity inside the brain. Brain scans are so useful, he says, that nearly eight out of ten diagnoses and treatment recommendations were different after the clinicians used the information from the SPECT scans, compared to current diagnostic methods. He developed a program that resulted in one of the highest published success rates in treating mental health, which he shared in his book, Feel Better Fast and Make it Last. Many people are amazed to learn that our diet contributes enormously to our mental well-being. Unfortunately, the Standard American Diet is indeed "SAD," because it sabotages our brain. He recommends a whole-food diet complete with lots of plant-based foods and healthy fats. Dr. Amen points out the importance of having enough good bacteria in our gut. He says scientific evidence proves our gut microbiome directly influences the way we think and feel. He says brain scans even reveal the damage extra body fat can have on our brains. Dr. Amen says too many Americans aren't getting the proper vitamins, minerals and other nutrients necessary for optimal mental health. For example, he says eighty percent of Americans are deficient in Vitamin D, often called the "happy vitamin." Vitamin D comes from sun exposure, but since so many of us are indoors most of the time and wear sunscreen when we're outside, he recommends a Vitamin D supplement. Dr. Amen praises fish oil or similar supplements to feel your best. There are 16 different brain types according to Dr. Amen. He offers a free, five-minute quiz to learn your brain type and which supplements might be beneficial. Isolation contributes to mental health problems like depression and stress. Television, social media, and video games can do more harm psychological harm than good. Staring at screens also tends to promote a sedentary lifestyle, which also raises the risk of emotional issues. Dr. Amen recommends regular exercise because it releases endorphins, our brain's feel-good chemicals. Working out also improves the hippocampus, the region of the brain that helps regulate mood. Exercise also helps us get a good night's sleep, another critical component to mental wellness. Dr. Amen was a consultant on the movie "Concussion," starring Will Smith, that focused on the work of Dr. Bennet Omalu, who identified the danger of Chronic Traumatic Encephalopathy (CTE) among football players. Dr. Amen said mood issues can often be the result of hits to the head. Dr. Amen says we all feel emotionally low at times and want something to turn things around right away. The trick, he says, is choosing things that safely appeal to as many senses as possible. For example, he recommends looking at a picture of loved ones, nature of fractals, which are never-ending patterns. Listening to the sound of the ocean or your favorite music can instantly improve your mood. Anti-oxidant-rich dark chocolate is a healthy taste, as is cinnamon, but watch the sugar content. When it comes to touch, massage proves beneficial, as does simply holding the hand of a happy person. So, while far too many Americans deal with negativity, anxiety, anger, stress, and trauma, some cases, not all, appear to be linked to our food supply and culture. The good news: for certain people, lifestyle changes can help restore joy and peace.

CBN News Reporter Lorie Johnson Reports: When we think about life’s biggest decisions, images of choosing the right spouse, career or home come to mind. What to eat? Not so much. New research may change that. Scientists now know our body has five natural defense systems that are magnificently effective at warding off our scariest diseases. There is a catch, however. These defense systems only work properly when nourished with healthy foods. In his new book Eat to Beat Disease Dr. William Li explains how our body’s defense systems work and lists 200 foods that keep them humming. Readers will be thrilled to discover delicious sourdough and pumpernickel bread actually feed one of our health defense systems, as do certain cheeses. Many foods, called “grand slams” fuel all five defense systems. This health defense system keeps cancers small. Believe it or not, we all have cancer cells within our body, but angiogenesis is a form of protection that starves those cancer cells and prevents them from growing and invading the rest of our body. Angiogenesis regulates our blood vessels. More than 100 foods can enhance angiogenesis such as pomegranate, black raspberries, and tomatoes. Dr. Li takes it a step further by pointing out that when it comes to tomatoes, cooked, San Marzano contains the most cancer-fighting lycopene. Vitamin K-2 is key to controlling angiogenesis, you can find this vitamin in Gouda, Jarlsberg, and Edam. It may sound a little gross, but trillions of living bacteria call our intestinal tract home. Not only that, but we rely heavily on these microscopic critters to keep every aspect of our minds and bodies operating smoothly. The kind of bacteria and the amount of them comprise a very complex ecosystem called our microbiome. Dr. Li says a balanced microbiome leads to good physical and mental health. Dr. Li says fermented foods like Kim Chi and yogurt contain healthy bacteria, also known as probiotics. Fiber-rich foods like broccoli, which are called prebiotics, play a role because they feed the good bacteria. Some people are surprised to learn sourdough bread boosts our microbiome. Pumpernickel bread, which is made from rye flour, also fortifies the microbiome. We all know DNA contains the genetic code we inherited from our parents. However, it’s much more than that. It issues commands to our entire body, telling it what to do. Unfortunately, it’s a fragile system that is constantly under attack from the environment. Natural enemies such as ultraviolet radiation from sun exposure can weaken DNA, as can toxins such as second-hand smoke and gasoline fumes. (Dr. Li recommends standing down-wind of these fumes when filling our cars). Foods that repair and strengthen our DNA include kiwifruit, spinach and lentils. Get this: over 100 different types of oysters strengthen DNA, particularly Pacific oysters. In one study, the oysters reduced DNA damage by a whopping 90 percent! Only recently have scientists uncovered the protective properties of our own stem cells, which are vital for growing and maintaining our organs. Researchers now tell us these foundational life units can actually regenerate our bodies throughout our lives. As if we need another reason to love chocolate, recent studies show the dark bean can be a super fuel for stem cells. Our immune system is one of the most well-known health defense systems, yet scientists continue to learn more about how it works. It keeps us from getting an infection after we’ve been exposed to bacteria, fights off viruses and more. In short, a strong immune system provides protection against pathogen seeking to harm us. In addition to cancer, dozens of other conditions can be blamed on weak immune systems such as allergies, Celiac Disease, Psoriasis even Diabetes. Foods that stimulate the immune system include mushroom, garlic, and particularly extra virgin olive oil. Dr Li says certain olive oils contain more of the healing hydroxytyrosol and polyphenols than others. He recommends buying olive oil made from Koroneiki, Picual or Moraiolo olives. So, while many view food as an afterthought, Dr. William Li says putting a little thought into what we eat can pay dividends when it comes to our health.

The life of a gang member can be very violent and dangerous at times. From drugs and alcohol to fights and shootouts, gang members constantly risk their lives to defend their neighborhood. We often think of gang members as dangerous men with violent tempers, but they aren't the only ones defending their streets. Over the years, many women have also joined gangs. Many of them join in hopes of finding a sense of belonging, others for protection, and still others just want to be respected. They fight for their gang no matter the cost. These women are very violent and very dangerous. Through a Bible study women's lives have been changed. God has forgiven them, and he who is forgiven much, loveth much.

Alcoholism has crept into many homes over the years. The pattern of the social drinker turning into an alcoholic has affected many lives so the point that entire families have experienced the pain that comes along with this vicious cycle. Children are among the most damaged by alcoholism. Statistics show that an estimated 6.6 million children live in a household with at least one alcoholic parent. Many of these children develop emotional issues such as guilt, anxiety, anger, and depression. Some often have difficulty building relationships with others, make decisions which lead to violence and crime, and for many, they end up following in the footsteps of their parents. It's a very sad cycle that many families cannot break for generations. However, this family was transformed by the power of Jesus Christ. He's able to change you and your entire family, as well.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, shows us the lives of a few people who suffer from child abuse and how God was able to heal all their wounds. The harsh reality is that one in every five girls, and one in every 20 boys, are victims of child abuse. Many of these abused children grow up with psychological complexes and a poor self-image. More and more we see the news and hear how dangerous it is for our children. They are not even safe in their own schools. Psalms 147:3 says "He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds." What seems impossible to men is possible for God. Society says there is no hope for any of these innocent victims. But God not only heals the physical sickness and disease, but God can heal the heart and the mind and the emotions.
