RadioLab with Jad Abumrad (recent MacArthur Genius Grant winner) and Robert Krulwich returns to 91.7 WVXU and 88.5 WMUB with a "best-of" season. Jad, Robert and the team have picked five favorite episodes from the first six seasons of RadioLab. Each RadioLab program is a patchwork of people, sounds, stories and experiences centered around One Big Idea. On RadioLab, science bumps into culture... information sounds like music.

Radio Lab, Sundays at 8:00 PM:

January 1: Where Am I - This hour, RadioLab examines the bond between brain and body, and looks at what happens when it breaks. Author and neurologist Oliver Sacks tries to find himself using magnets, a neuroscientist uses an optical illusion to solve a century-old mystery that haunts some amputees, and pilots describe surviving out-of-body experiences while flying fighter jets.

January 8: (So-called) Life - In this hour, RadioLab asks what is natural in a world where biology and engineering intersect. Biotechnology is making it easier and easier to create new forms of life, but what are the consequences when humans play with life? Travel back to the first billion years of life on Earth, take a look at how modern engineers tinker with living things, and meet a woman who could have been two people.

January 15: Stress - Stress may save your life if you're being chased by a tiger. But if you're stuck in traffic, it may be more likely to make you sick. This hour of RadioLab is a long hard look at the body's system for getting out of trouble. Stanford University neurologist (and part-time "baboonologist") Dr. Robert Sapolsky examines what happens on our insides when we stand in the wrong line at the supermarket, and offers a few coping strategies: gnawing on wood, beating the crap out of somebody, and having friends. Plus: the story of a singer who lost her voice and an author stuck in a body that never grew up.

January 22: Zoos - In a cruel trick of evolution, humans can stand just three feet from a ferocious animal and still be perfectly safe. This hour, RadioLab goes to the zoo to ask what's with our need to get close to "wildness?" Examine where we stand in this paradox--starting with the Romans, and ending in the wilds of Belize ...starting into the eyes of a wild jaguar.

January 29: Sm - Sm carry half the genes needed for human life. In this hour of RadioLab: some basic questions and profound thoughts about reproduction. To begin a tour of sm battles in ducks, flying pig sm, and promiscuous whippoorwills. Then, we ponder fatherhood, and wonder...in a world where sm can be frozen and kept for all eternity...what does the future hold for men? And we end quietly, with a widow struggling to keep some essence of her husband alive.

February 2013
WVXU

A tribute to a local jazz legend; a truly romantic Valentine from local favorites, Over the Rhine; four outstanding theatrical presentations; and a very special hour with an American treasure, Dr. Maya Angelou...all in February and all on 91.7 WVXU and 88.5 WMUB.

Mama Jazz Revisited - Sunday, February 5, 8:00 PM - A special hour of jazz from the incomparable Mama Jazz. This is one her programs from 2002, originally broadcast on 88.5 WMUB, Oxford.

Over the Rhine with Love - Sunday, February 12, 8:00 PM - A Valentine's visit with Karin Bergquist and Linford Detweiler from the band, Over the Rhine, recorded exclusively for 91.7 WVXU in the studios of Cincinnati Public Radio.

Maya Angelou 2012 - Sunday, February 26, 8:00 PM - Maya Angelou defines Black History as it is embraced in popular culture with an emphasis on the civil rights era and a poetic acknowledgement of late activist, Rosa Parks. This one hour historical trek travels from the 1950's thru the 1990's. Dr. Maya Angelou renders a poetic portrait of the day-to-day lives of African Americans during the civil rights era, when artists and activists, musicians and ministers joined hands with people from all walks of life to bring about a historic change in our culture. In addition, Congressman John Lewis and fellow Presidential Medal of Freedom 2011 recipient shares some of his experiences during the Freedom Rides of 1961 and the civil rights era. Singer and songwriter Mary J. Blige, who will play Nina Simone in an upcoming film discusses her five year preparation for the role aimed at encouraging and educating a new generation on the life and times of the singer and civil rights activist. Economist and Bennett College President Dr. Julianne Malveaux discusses the impact of the Civil Rights movement on education, economics and how knowledge has begun to translate into a new prosperity with continued challenges.

Ambassador Andrew Young talks about his relationship with Martin Luther King and the fight for equality during a time when separate but equal was not enough.

L.A. THEATRE WORKS - Saturdays at 8:00 PM

February 4: "Ceremonies in Dark Old Men"

Written By: Lonnie Elder III
Cast: Rocky Carroll, Charlie Robinson, Glyn Turman
Director: Judyan Elder

Synopsis: First produced by the Negro Ensemble Company in 1969, this classic by Academy Award® nominee Lonnie Elder III gives us the portrait of a Harlem family that dreams of a better life, but pursues it in tragic ways. Ceremonies in Dark Old Men opened the door for new generation of African-American playwrights, August Wilson among them.

February 11: "Barefoot in the Park"

Written By: Neil Simon
Cast: Laura Linney, Eric Stoltz
Director: Scot Reese

Synopsis: Newlyweds Paul and Corey are an odd couple: he's a buttoned-down lawyer, a freezing apartment, and romantic conflicts that threaten their young marriage.

The broadcast includes a conversation with Neil Simon, plus commentary from theater experts about the history and influence of Barefoot in the Park.

February 18: "Denial"

Written By: Peter Sagal

Cast: David Clennon, John Randolph, Stephanie Zimbalist

Director: Jenny Sullivan

Synopsis: In a contest of intellect and wills, Abby Gersten, a tenacious civil liberties attorney, defends a right-wing Holocaust denier, arguing her case against a young, committed Jewish federal prosecutor. But Abby may have to sacrifice everything to prove that truth and justice don't always go hand in hand.

February 25: "Relativity"

Written By: Cassandra Medley

Cast: Judyann Elder, Deldrie Henry, Jason Ritter

Director: Stuart K. Robinson

Synopsis: Kallima, a brilliant young African-American biogeneticist, finds her cutting-edge research brings her into ideological conflict with her mother, Claire, who runs a foundation dedicated to "melanin science". Claire fervently believes that the pigment melanin makes African-Americans genetically superior.

The broadcast includes a conversation with Dr. Stanley Nelson, Professor and Vice Chair of Human Genetics within the David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA

This play is part of L.A. Theatre Works' Relativity Series featuring science-themed plays. Major funding for the Relativity Series is provided by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, to enhance public understanding of science and technology in the modern world.

Thursday nights in March bring back the unique monetary perspectives of Freakonomics radio. Sunday nights, right after Around Cincinnati, enjoy some special programs, three of which were created by Lee Hay featuring locally recorded performances.

Freakonomics Radio:

In their books Freakonomics and Superfreakonomics, Steven D. Levitt and Stephen J. Dubner use the tools of economics to explore real-world behavior. What they really do is tell stories — about cheating schoolteachers, self-dealing real-estate agents, and crack-selling mama's boys. Just like the books, Freakonomics Radio explores "the hidden side of everything." It will tell you things you always thought you knew but didn't, and things you never thought you wanted to know, but do.

Thursday, March 1, 7:00 PM: The Days of Wine and Mouses: When you take a sip of Cabernet, what are you tasting -- the grape? the tannins? the oak barrel? Or is it the work price? Believe it or not, the most dominant flavor may be the dollars. Thanks to the work of some intrepid and wine-obsessed economists (yes, there is an American Association of Wine Economists), we have a new understanding of the relationship between wine, critics, and consumers. One of these researchers is Robin Goldstein, whose paper detailing more than 6,000 blind tastings reaches the conclusion that "individuals who are unaware of the price do not derive more enjoyment from more expensive wine." So why do we pay so much attention to critics and connoisseurs who tell us otherwise? That's the question we set out to answer. You'll hear Steve Levitt, who admits his palate is "underdeveloped," and pulls a wine stunt on his elders at Harvard's Society of Fellows; and wine broker Brian DiMarco, who pulled a stunt of his own on his very wine-savvy employees.

Also in this episode of Freakonomics Radio, Stephen Dubner witnesses something that would doom any dining experience: while eating at a restaurant, a customer one table away was served a salad with a dead mouse in it. So, how does a business respond in the face of such a disaster? Vincent Herbert, the CEO of the restaurant in question, Le Pain Quotidien, explains what happened and how he coped; and crisis-control expert Andrew Gowers talks about facing the public on behalf of Lehman Brothers, post-collapse, and BP after the Deepwater Horizon oil spill.

Thursday, March 8, 7:00 PM: Show and Tell: Is booing an act of verbal vandalism -- or the last true expression of democracy? In this episode of Freakonomics Radio, hear how Philadelphia sports fans earned their reputation as the loudest boo-birds, and to what extent culture -- high or low -- plays a role. Guests include former Pennsylvania Governor Ed Rendell, who admits to booing Santa Claus; and sportswriter/opera buff Robert Lipsyte, who was surprised that more people didn't boo Pavarotti when he "parked and barked" his way through a performance.

Also in this episode, we'll look at "conspicuous conservation" -- when people go out of their way to engage in "green" activities. It turns out that driving a Prius may do a little bit of good for the planet -- but being seen driving a Prius may do a lot of good (for you, at least). Also: why some people install solar panels on the shady side of the street.

Thursday, March 15, 7:00 PM: The Power of the President: . . . and the Thumb: In this Freakonomics Radio episode we ask a simple, heretical question: How much does the President of the United States really matter? Stephen Dubner talks to former Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, economists Austan Goolsbee and Justin Wolfers, and constitutional scholar Bernadette Meyler about how the President's actual influence can be measured; and Steve Levitt weighs in on how he thinks the President shapes the nation, and whether he'll be voting in the next election.

Also in this episode, we look at another supposed truism: hitchhiking is terribly dangerous. True? The fact is that hitchhiking has practically disappeared in America. But why? Was it really as dangerous as we believed? Even if so, what other factors were at play? Among our guests are data wizard Bill James, who says our risk aversion to hitchhiking makes it more dangerous, and transportation scholar Alan Pisarski, who looks at how hitchhiking can inform future transportation policy. Would our society be better off with more hitchhiking?

Thursday, March 22, 7:00 PM: Eat and Tweet: In this episode of Freakonomics Radio, we look at the tension between "slow food" – a return to the past – and the food future. You'll hear from slow-food champion Alice Waters and uber-modernist Nathan Myhrvold, who advocates bringing more science into the kitchen – including, perhaps, a centrifuge, a pharmaceutical freeze drier and a... food printer?

Also in this episode: we delve into the social mores of Twitter. Is it a two-way street? Do you have to follow someone on Twitter to garner a large following yourself? Or are the mores of digital friendship different from those in real life? Twitter is a tool that has created a funny kind of friendship -- one that's less social than most people think. We'll hear about the Twitter give-and-take from sociologist Duncan Watts. Also, Justin Halpern parlayed his hit Twitter feed "Sh*t My Dad Says" into a best-selling book and a TV show; we learn about the one guy he follows. And Steve Levitt weighs in on just how important (or not) Twitter is in his life

Thursday, March 29, 7:00 PM: Is a "No-Lose Lottery" the Answer to America's Savings Problem? This episode of Freakonomics Radio looks at a little-known financial tool that might help people save more money while still giving them the thrill of the lottery. It's called a Prize-Linked Savings (PLS) account, and it pools a sliver of the interest from all depositors and pays out cash lottery prizes. It combines the thrill of the lottery with the safety of a savings account – thus, a "no-lose lottery." In places like England and South Africa, millions of people have been coaxed into saving money via a PLS plan, but state and federal officials in the U.S. aren't very interested. Why? Here's a hint: guess who runs (and profits from) the lotteries in our country? Also in this episode, we take a broader look at financial literacy – or, really, financial illiteracy. In general, Americans aren't very good at the basics of saving, investing and retirement planning. So Freakonomics Radio wants to know: How do we improve our grade? We'll hear ideas for putting financial literacy in school curriculums, and from someone who thinks we shouldn't even try to learn it. And if we can't, can the solution be found in a Los Angeles hospital? Guests also include two members of President Obama's economic team and National Book Award-winner Sherwin Nuland.

Sunday Music Specials:

Sunday, March 4, 8:00 PM - Paul Simon: Songwriter

In this one-hour special, Paul Simon talks about his creative process. Some of his favorite songs from his entire solo career will be included as well as archival interviews to show the evolution of his creative process. Hosted by Rita Houston (WFUV) and produced by Joyride Media.

Sunday, March 11, 8:00 PM - Around Cincinnati: St. Patrick's Day Special
This special features interviews with folks from the Irish Heritage Center about their St. Patrick's Day events, as well as an expert on Irish foods, and the Irish American Theater Company will perform a scene from "A Couple of Blaguards" which will be entered in an international competition in Dublin, Ireland. Irish artwork, music by Silver Arm, and a discussion of the Riley School of Irish Music will be included. A performance of Kyle Meadows and Tisa McGraw recorded by WVXU at Christ Church Cathedral on November 22, 2011 will also be featured.

Sunday, March 18, 8:00 PM - Larry Kirwan: Rock & Read
A solo performance by author, playwright and punk pioneer Larry Kirwan, from the Irish rock band Black 47. He reads from some of his literary works and performs some of his memorable tunes in a one-man show recorded by WVXU on February 4, 2012 at the Irish Heritage Center of Greater Cincinnati.

Sunday, March 25, 8:00 PM - Around Cincinnati: Cincinnati Jazz
This one-hour special features a profile of Ron Enyard and a performance by the popular jazz group, the Faux Frenchmen. The profile of jazz drummer Ron Enyard, who's played with many legendary jazz musicians includes stories of his jazz career and the jazz scene in Cincinnati. Songs from his many recordings will also be featured. The performance by the Faux Frenchmen was recorded by WVXU at Christ Church Cathedral on November 29, 2011 and features many of their Django Reinhardt-influenced songs.

Chris Desimio is On the Money with a look at the week's business and market news.

CINCINNATI EDITION-SUNDAY (7:00 a.m.):

Thane Maynard welcomes Frank Keesling from the Mountain Gorilla Conservation Fund, who talks about the efforts to save the Mountain Gorilla population and the April 1 Cincinnati Gorilla Run where all the participants wear gorilla suits!

In an effort to match Cincinnati's social media community with worth non-profits, March 30 will be the first Yelp Helps After School Special at the Clifton Cultural Arts Center. Starting at 8:00, there will be food from local restaurants, entertainment from area performing arts groups, and over 30 non-profits recruiting volunteers. Alex Shebar from Cincinnati Yelp joins Mark Perzel to explain the purpose of the party and how to RSVP.

The University of Cincinnati baseball team is one of only a handful using special technology to dramatically improve its player's batting averages. Come along as trainers run the players through a battery of exercises with demonstrable results. Ann Thompson reports in Focus on Technology.

The history of Cincinnati is filled with illustrious families who have left their mark on the city. Mark Perzel speaks with Janice Forte of the Heritage Programs about the Cincinnati History Sessions: Prominent Families of the Queen City. The five programs will take place at Reakit Auditorium at Cincinnati Museum Center, March 27-April 24.

Larry Thomas reviews the new critically acclaimed film, In the Family, now showing at the Esquire.

AROUND CINCINNATI (7:00 p.m. Sunday):

Play with Your Lunch, a program of one-act plays will be presented at the Wyoming Civic Center at noon on April 11. Jim Stump learns more about this unique theatrical program from founder and producer, Herb Duval and actress Dale Hodges.

John Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath comes alive on stage at Cincinnati Shakespeare Company beginning March 30. Anne Arenstein previews this production with the director, Brian Isaac Phillips.

Saad Ghosn reads a poem from poet Jason Patrick Moore, found in the collection he edited, 2012 Book of Poems & Drawings on Peace & Justice.

Program Highlights for CINCINNATI EDITION and AROUND CINCINNATI
Weekend of March 31 and April 1, 2012

[This update is sent weekly with information about the interviews and features that will be a part of CINCINNATI EDITION-SATURDAY, CINCINNATI EDITION-SUNDAY and AROUND CINCINNATI, airing each weekend on 91.7 WVXU. Program content subject to change.]

CINCINNATI EDITION-SATURDAY (7:00 a.m.):

And now we turn to one of Cincinnati's most pressing educational issues. Over the next 12 months, 91.7 WVXU, in partnership with CET public television, will be examining the consequences of, and solutions for, the high school dropout problem. The project is called American Graduate.

Chris Desimio is On the Money with a Cincinnati charter school using monetary incentives to keep the students coming to class and achieving behavior and academic goals. Dohn Community High School's Principal Ramone Davenport and Chief Administrative Officer Kenneth Furrier discuss this unique, and controversial, program.

American Graduate is a public media initiative funded by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

Cincinnati Magazine's April issue uncovers the 65 Hidden Secrets to Discover in Cincinnati, from cafes to unusual museums to the world's smallest church. Mark Perzel gets a preview from Cincinnati Magazine Deputy Editor Amanda Boyd Walters.

In the decades between 1920 and 1980, Bell Laboratories in New Jersey was the most innovative and productive institution in the US. New York Times Magazine writer Jon Gertner explores this institution in "The Idea Factory: Bell Labs and the Great Age of American Innovation", and talks to Mark Perzel about the great idea of innovation - how it happens, why, and by whom, and why it matters not just to scientists and engineers, but to all of us.

In advance of Ohio State's appearance in the NCAA Final Four, Mark Titus, author of DON'T PUT ME IN, COACH: My Incredible NCAA Journey from the End of the Bench to the End of the Bench is in The Front Row with Betsy Ross.

CINCINNATI EDITION-SUNDAY (7:00 a.m.):

Thane Maynard welcomes Paul Butler, Senior Vice President of Global Programs for Rare, an international conservation organization, to talk about his "Promoting Protection through Pride" initiative.

Many consider it the best glove in baseball, calling it "The Glove that would change the game". The Atlantic writer Daniel Fromson joins Mark Heyne to talk about this new invention and what it means for the future of sports at large.

After his commencement address went viral, Austin Kleon was encouraged to write about his ideas on creativity. In Steal Like An Artist, Kleon gives tips for beginning artists trying to create original work. Mark Perzel talks with Kleon about his new book and about what it means to steal like an artist.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Sent via e-mail March 29, 2012

The Cincinnati Reds have a new technology tool in their arsenal. The iPad 3 - in conjunction with new HD stadium cameras - helps players and coaches better prepare. Ann Thompson reports in this week's Focus on Technology.

Larry Thomas reviews the film "We Need to Talk About Kevin," starring Tilda Swinton and John C. Reilly and currently showing at the Esquire Theatre.

AROUND CINCINNATI (7:00 p.m. Sunday):

Frank Johnson learns all about the Tournees Festival of New French Film going on at Northern Kentucky University from Professor John Alberti, who is Director of Cinema Studies in the English Department.

In celebration of National Poetry Month, Barbara Gray welcomes Ruth Dickey from the Clifton Cultural Arts Center who talks about her poetry and future activities at the Center.
