1. Holiday Economy	Inside America	10/6/22	9:20-9:40 p.m.	20min.	Major companies such as Amazon and Target are launching holiday sales early in October this year. By the end of this year, because of sustained inflation, spending on gifts will increase even though some people say they are planning to give gifts to fewer people.
2. National Economy	News Focus	10/11/22	9:30-10:00 a.m.	30 min.	The Federal Reserve has continued to raise interest rates intensely in an effort to control inflation. Some worry that the rates have increased so sharply that they now need to be adjusted. Moreover, in order not to lag behind, central banks in other countries are also raising interest rates sharply, raising fears of triggering a global recession.
3. National Politics	Press Handbook	10/22/22	9:30-10:00 p.m.	30 min.	For the upcoming mid-term election in November, the many contested areas make it hard to predict or guarantee an advantage for either the Democrats or the Republicans. Historically, mid-term elections are a referendum on the incumbent party, thus favoring the opposition. However, this year’s election is more difficult to predict due to the number of unusual variables such as the Supreme Court striking down Roe v Wade, the passage of the Inflation Reduction Act, the war in Ukraine, and the high consumer prices caused by sustained inflation.
4. Itaewon Tragedy	News Focus	11/1/22	9:00-9:20 a.m.	20 min.	In the Itaewon district of Seoul, South Korea, the recent disaster has shocked the world. People stampeded at an overcrowded street party with insufficient crowd control by authorities. The geographical characteristics of this area resulted in the business district developing mainly in narrow alleyways. Adding to the problem is the oftentimes illegal expansion and renovation in the district as well as the increased number of tourists to the area.
5. National Politics	Morning Focus	11/14/22	9:20-9:40 a.m.	20 min.	The Republican Party, which had been predicted to win the November 8 mid-term election in a landslide—the so called “Red Wave”—appeared to be winning in the House races by a much narrower margin. Instead of the Republicans gaining control in both chambers, the Democrats won comeback victories in Arizona and Nevada, thus ensuring Democratic control of the Senate regardless of the result of the December runoff election in Georgia.
6. American Culture	Inside America	11/23/22	9:00-9:20 a.m.	20 min.
