Genetics Testing	Palm Beach Perspectives	Talked with Conni Murphy, Dir. of the Cancer Genetics Program at Good Samaritan Medical Center. They offer a wide variety of genetic screening in addition to the commonly heard of BRAC1 and BRAC2. Patients get a script from their Physician and fill out a long history of theirs/their family medical health. Once they submit that then the center reviews all the data, builds a family tree of who needs testing and for what genes. They then discuss with the patients. Once testing is done they followup with various recommendations for treatment (medicine, preventitive surgery, high surveillance). For more information, listeners can contact call 561-650-6084	Conni Murphy, Dir. of the Cancer Genetics Program at Good Samaritan Medical Center 561-650-6084	02/05/17	30 min

Program 17-01

Producer Reed Pence

Air Week 01/01/17-01/07/17

Production Director Sean Waldron

2:02 SEGMENT 1: ICU INEFFICIENCY

12:25

Synopsis: With monitors surveying every part of patients' bodies, hospital intensive care units appear to be a model of high tech. But systems engineers say ICU's are actually models of inefficiency because few of those high tech devices talk to each other. Experts discuss how ICU's could be improved to save lives.

Host: Reed Pence. Guests: Dr. Peter Pronovost, Senior Vice President for Patient Safety and Quality, Johns Hopkins Medicine and Director, Armstrong Institute for Patient Safety and Quality; Dr. Brian Pickering, intensive care anesthesiologist, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, MN

Compliancy issues covered: health care; technology; science and engineering; economics; business and industry

15:29 SEGMENT 2: REVERSING THE SHORTAGE IN PRIMARY CARE DOCS

7:36

Synopsis: Most people rely on their primary care doctors first when they need health care. But a shortage in primary care doctors is only getting worse. Some medical schools have been successful in keeping their grads in primary care. We talk to an expert from one of them to see how it's done and if other schools can replicate their success.

Host: Nancy Benson. Guest: Dr. Elizabeth Baxley, Sr. Assoc. Dean for Academic Affairs and Prof. of Family Medicine, Brody School of Medicine, East Carolina Univ.

Compliancy issues covered: health care; public health; economics; education

2:02 SEGMENT 1: PEANUT ALLERGIES AND KIDS: CHANGING THE RULES 12:58

Synopsis: Peanut allergies in children have skyrocketed to the point that many schools ban foods containing them. Now studies show previous advice is wrong. Rather than keeping kids away from peanuts to protect them, parents should give most infants peanuts from an early age. An allergy expert who is co-author of new guidelines explains.

Host: Reed Pence. Guest: Dr. Matthew Greenhawt, Asst. Prof. of Pediatrics, Allergy and Immunology Section, Children's Hospital, Colorado and Univ. of Colorado School of Medicine, and Chair, Food Allergy Committee, American College of Allergy, Asthma and Immunology

2:01 SEGMENT 1: ANTIBIOTICS AND FARM ANIMALS: NEW
RULES 12:18

Synopsis: Antibiotic resistance may mean some infections are untreatable in the future. To combat this bacterial evolution, new federal rules went into effect on January 1 that restrict use of antibiotics in food animals, where the majority of US antibiotics are consumed. Critics worry the rules don't go far enough. Experts on both sides of the issue discuss.

Host: Reed Pence. Guests: Dr. David Wallinga, Senior Health Officer, Natural Resources Defense Council; Dr. Ramanan Laxminarayan, Director, Center for Disease Dynamics, Economics and Policy and former member, White House antibiotics panel; Dr. Liz Wagstrom, Chief Veterinarian, National Pork Producers Assn; Katie Roth, dairy farmer, Platteville, WI
