Topic: UNDOCUMENTED STUDENTS WON'T BE DEPORTED

Synopsis: Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano said Friday that illegal immigrant students and young adults who meet the criteria in last year's failed legalization bill in Congress are not a "priority" for her department's law enforcement efforts. Wading into an increasingly thorny debate, Miss Napolitano said she cannot unilaterally ignore deportations laws for broad groups of illegal immigrants, but said students and young adults who would have been legalized had last year's "Dream Act" legislation passed Congress are not a chief target of federal authorities. "I will say, and can say, that you know what? They are not, that group, if they truly meet all those criteria, and we see very few of them actually in the immigration system, if they truly meet those, they're not the priority," the secretary said at an event sponsored by NDN, a progressive think tank and advocacy group, on the future of the nation's border policies.

Topic: JOBLESS RATE REACHES LOWEST LEVEL IN 2 YEARS

Synopsis: The nation's job-creation engine revved up last month and pushed the unemployment rate to its lowest level in two years, spreading optimism the economic recovery is firmly in place and giving President Obama a political boost. The economy lured back unemployed Americans who had given up hope of getting another paycheck as increases across nearly all sectors led to 216,000 additional jobs, the Labor Department said. The unemployment rate ticked down to 8.8% - a full percentage point lower than in November and the sharpest four-month drop in 28 years. Obama, trying to fend off a Republican push for deep budget cuts that administration officials warn could derail the recovery, said Friday that the economy was showing "signs of real strength." But he cautioned that millions of Americans still are out of work and that "we have to keep the momentum going."

Topic: CHICAGO ANTIIMMIGRATION BILL

Synopsis: A youth group meets in Chicago with a clear mission: get to the neighboring state of Indiana to help immigrants as they fight the proposed sb-590, the latest attempt to criminalize undocumented workers. And so they came to the town of East Chicago where they joined hundreds of people. Political, civilian and religious leaders demonstrated in Illinois under the slogan "No to hate", after the legislative assembly rejected 10 anti-immigrant bills attempting to duplicate Arizona's controversial law SB1070, a measure seeking to criminalize undocumented migrants. "Defeating these bills is a great victory for Illinois amid the growing anti-immigrant atmosphere in the United States", Democratic state Rep. Lisa Hernandez said during the event at Chicago Temple.

Topic: SB 1070

Synopsis: At the beginning of the year, it appeared that Arizona's SB 1070 would spread through the country like wildfire, with at least 24 state legislatures having introduced copycat "show me your papers" bills since the original passed in spring 2010. But to date, none of those states have passed the bills and at least 10 legislatures have killed the bills altogether. Now, with many state legislative sessions coming to a close, the fight against SB 1070 copycat legislation appears contained to just a few key battlegrounds. Converging forces have blocked the copycat bills' success. On the one hand, the bills have spurred broad opposition from immigrant and civil rights groups, as well as from business interests. On the other, a ticking clock killed several bills as legislative sessions end before lawmakers have had time to pass the controversial laws-particularly in a season in which most state political debates are dominated by budget battles.

Topic: SB 2040

Synopsis: As the Florida Senate Judiciary Committee gets ready to hear immigration-enforcement bill S.B. 2040 on Monday, Arizona-like measures have been cut in other state legislatures. The Immigration Policy Center points out that the legislative graveyard got a little bit bigger this week as lawmakers in Mississippi pronounced a series of restrictive immigration measures dead. More than 30 immigration-related bills-including an Arizona-style enforcement bill-failed to meet a legislative deadline due to disagreements over the laws' impact on the business community. Mississippi joins nine other states (Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Nebraska, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Virginia, and Wyoming) where legislators have cut Arizona-style enforcement bills-bills that are, according to the Washington Post editorial board, causing many businesses to speak out for fear of sharing Arizona's economic fate

Topic: CALIFORNIA "DREAM ACT"

Synopsis: Assemblyman Tim Donnelly, of Twin Peaks, will host a rally and press conference regarding Assembly Bill 26, the "Secure Immigration Enforcement Act." Special guest, Arizona State Senator Russell Pearce, who was instrumental in passing the Senate Bill 1070 in Arizona, will be speaking at the rally. Assembly Bill 26 would help law enforcement manage illegal immigration in the State and fulfills Assemblyman Donnelly's campaign pledge to introduce a bill similar to the Arizona immigration law in California. This measure would, among other things, end sanctuary cities and enforce immigration laws against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens, which will free up jobs for citizens and eliminate incentives for people to come here illegally.

Synopsis: U.S. military troops at war in Iraq and Afghanistan would receive one-week's pay instead of two in their next paycheck if the government shuts down this weekend due to the federal budget impasse, according to a senior defense official. The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss personnel issues, said the military can't be paid during a funding lapse until a new appropriations bill or continuing resolution is passed by Congress. If the funding bill expires on April 8, it will be in the middle of the military's two-week pay period, so Pentagon would send out paychecks for just the first week of the pay period, said the official.

Synopsis: The Federal Aviation Administration is expected to issue an emergency directive requiring inspection of about 175 Boeing 737s for fatigue damage following an incident in which a Southwest Airlines plane was forced to make an emergency landing after a hole ripped open in the roof. The order comes after Southwest canceled nearly 700 flights nationwide - including 16 of the 130 flights in and out of Boston - in the three days since a 5-foot gash opened up in the fuselage of a Boeing 737-300 shortly after takeoff from Phoenix on Friday.

Synopsis: Legislators seeking to discourage the hiring of illegal immigrants are one step closer to overhauling Florida's employment law. The State Senate's judiciary committee on Monday approved a bill requiring companies use the federal government's electronic verification program for new hires or to request those employees show state-issued identification cards. The bill also encourages local enforcement agencies to train officers to enforce federal immigration laws. Unlike previous drafts, though, the bill does not require such training due to budget constraints.

Topic: CITIES DISPUTE 2010 CENSUS COUNTS

Synopsis: In New York City, some parts of Brooklyn and Queens were mistakenly classified as vacant, according to Joseph Salvo of the city planning department. "People are saying, 'Where are these areas? Because I need an apartment,'" Salvo says. Omissions can be costly. The federal government hands out money for things such as schools and public safety based on the count. In New York, each person left out means $3,000 a year the city won't get, says Rachael Raynoff, planning department spokeswoman. Government officials may submit Census challenges between June 1, 2011, and June 1, 2013. The bureau won't do recounts, but it will add people when local governments can prove errors. After the 2000 Census, the bureau found possible problems in 1,180 of the country's 39,000 jurisdictions. In the end, it raised the national tally by about 2,700 people. Hidalgo County, Texas, believes 8% of its rural population was missed, and the county may sue, says Jose Garza, a lawyer hired by the county. Topic: CALIFORNIA AB 26 AND AB 1018 REJECT

Synopsis: The Assembly Judiciary Committee on Tuesday voted down Assemblyman Tim Donnelly's bills targeting illegal immigration in California. Donnelly, R-Claremont, had presented two bills to the committee, which voted 7-3 against both, on a straight party vote. "While I am disappointed that Assembly Bill 26 will not move forward this year, I am greatly encouraged by the incredible show of support the bill received," Donnelly said on Tuesday. "This is not the end of the fight to protect citizens from the many problems caused by illegal immigration in California, and I look forward to continued work on this critical issue." Donnelly said the state spends between $11 billion and $22 billion in services to undocumented workers, and his bill would help reduce the cost by deterring illegal immigrants in the state.

Synopsis: Social Security is going to stop mailing workers those yearly statements that say -- here's what you'd get if you retired at 62, 66, or 70. The agency is trying to save money so it's making the information accessible on its website. Social Security is hoping to make the transition by the end of the year. But Commissioner Michael Astrue says there are still some security issues to work out, so workers may have another year of mailed statements. He says those paper statements cost $70 million a year to mail. The statements are sent to 150 million people each year and project future benefit payments. Some advocates note that not all people have access to computers or the internet. The decision to suspend the mailings is related to Social Security's operating budget not the talk of a possible partial government shutdown.

Topic: ARIZONA IMMIGRATION APPEAL

Synopsis: A federal appeals court on Monday refused to lift a stay blocking major parts of Arizona's immigration law from taking effect and said the federal government is likely to be able to prove the controversial law is unconstitutional. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals turned down an appeal filed by Gov. Jan Brewer. She had asked the appeals court to lift an injunction imposed by a federal judge in Phoenix the day before the law was to take effect on July 29, 2010. The U.S. Justice Department sued to block the law, saying it violates the U.S. Constitution because enforcing immigration law is a federal issue. U.S. District Court Judge Susan Bolton issued an injunction preventing four major parts of the law from going into effect pending a trial. Monday's ruling by the three-judge appeals court panel upheld that injunction. The panel's opinion said the government is likely to succeed in its arguments that Congress has given the federal government sole authority to enforce immigration laws, and that Arizona's law violates the Supremacy Clause of the Constitution. One judge dissented.

Topic: GOV. IMMIGRATION REPORT

Synopsis: Today, the Immigration Policy Center will release DHS Progress Report: An Analysis of Immigration Policy in the Second Year of the Obama Administration. In its second year under the Obama Administration, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS)-which is responsible for the nation's three immigration agencies (USCIS, CPB, and ICE)-continues to struggle with its competing missions of providing immigration benefits and enforcing immigration laws, all within the context of an outdated and broken immigration system. Over the past year, while waiting for Congress to act, the Administration has increased its emphasis on enforcement and deportation and denied its ability to provide administrative relief. The forthcoming report finds that, while DHS has made significant progress in some areas, there is much room for improvement. The report recommends that DHS act in line with its own stated priorities and exert its executive authority to bring about much-needed reforms that can be done in the absence of Congressional action.

Topic: SPENDING SHOWDOWN

Synopsis: Details of the budget deal struck between the White House and Congress last week reveal that a large portion of the $38 billion worth of budget cuts would be achieved by pruning money left over from previous years, axing programs President Barack Obama had already been targeting and accounting maneuvers. Cuts include some earmarks, unspent census money, leftover federal construction funding and $2.5 billion from highway programs that could not be spent because of restrictions set by other legislation. Another $3.5 billion comes from unused spending authority for a program that provides health care to children of lower-income families.

Synopsis: Georgia has a day left to pass an immigration bill that has some parts that are similar to Arizona's contentious law, and opposition from agriculture and business groups has made it an uphill battle even with Republicans in control. After months of public debate and private discussions, a major sticking point is whether the law should force private employers to use a federal database, called E-Verify, to check that new hires are in the U.S. legally. The Senate stripped the E-Verify requirement earlier this week, only to have the House restore it the next day.

Topic: MARYLAND STUDENT "DREAM ACT"

Synopsis: The General Assembly in Maryland approved The Dream Act. After a turbulent journey in both the Maryland State House and Senate, legislation allowing illegal immigrants to qualify for in-state college tuition rates passed last night, as the 428th session of the Maryland General Assembly came to a close in Annapolis. Gov. Martin O'Malley (D) has pledged to sign the bill, paving the way for students to enroll in community college as early as this fall. The bill will allow undocumented high school graduates to receive in-state college tuition rates providing they meet certain criteria. The research arm for the state legislature, The Department of Legislative Services, estimated it would cost Maryland taxpayers $778,000 in fiscal year 2014 and up to $3.5 million in fiscal 2016 to subsidize the tuition rate undocumented students would receive. There are currently 16 community colleges in Maryland.

Topic: RAISE RETIREMENT AGE TO 70

Synopsis: Three Republican senators on Wednesday will propose a Social Security reform package that would raise the retirement age to 70 and cut benefits for the wealthy. Sens. Lindsey Graham (S.C.), Rand Paul (Ky.) and Mike Lee (Utah) previewed their proposal on Fox News, saying that it will put the entitlement program on a long-term path to solvency without raising taxes. The senators said that their plan would gradually raise the retirement age from 67 to 70 and would not affect individuals age 56 or older. Graham said that the proposal uses the same Congress used to raise the retirement age from 65 to 67, so that people born in 1970 would become the first group to have a retirement age of 70.

The Indiana governor is the latest governor to call on state lawmakers to implement immigration reforms. "I think that legislation will be changed," Mr. Daniels said Wednesday. Synopsis: A published report says that federal authorities are investigating whether some major banks conspired to improperly manipulate an important interest rate before and during the financial crisis. The Wall Street Journal, citing unnamed people familiar with the inquiry, reported Thursday that the Justice Department and Securities and Exchange Commission are examining if the banks understated their borrowing costs, which help determine the London interbank offered rate, called Libor. It's an average rate set by banks each morning that measures how much they're going to charge each other for loans. It affects the costs of hundreds of trillions of dollars in loans and investments such as bonds, consumer loans and derivatives. The banks being investigated include Bank of America, Citigroup and UBS, according to the Journal article.

Topic: MARK DAYTON DROPS PAWLENTY DIRECTIVE ON IMMIGRATION

Synopsis: Minnesota Gov. Mark Dayton won't revive his Republican predecessor's directive requiring the state to participate in enforcement of federal immigration law. A spokeswoman told The Associated Press Thursday that Dayton decided against keeping or revamping the 2008 executive order from former Gov. Tim Pawlenty because it wasn't necessary. It had required state cooperation with federal authorities in areas such as customs enforcement and document fraud. Dayton spokeswoman Katie Tinucci says the order's expiration last week doesn't change anything state agents are already doing. She says Dayton considered keeping the directive, consulting with legal and public safety advisers as well as immigration advocates. Pawlenty made headlines when he announced the order and related immigration proposals as part of a get-tough approach toward illegal immigration.

Topic: IMMIGRATION BILLS

Synopsis: Three bills targeting illegal immigration are making their way through the Tennessee legislature drawing vows by the American Civil Liberties Union to pursue litigation if they become law. Other states, including Florida and Georgia, also are weighing strict measures that bear similarities to one that became law last year in Arizona, but parts of which have been blocked by the courts. Many legal experts believe the legal battle over Arizona's immigration law could reach the U.S. Supreme Court. One of the Tennessee bills would allow local law enforcement agents to question suspects about their immigration status. The other bills would require the state's employers to prove their employees are legally authorized to work in the U.S. and require agencies to verify that applicants for public benefits are legally eligible for them.

The Obama Administration - like the previous Bush administration has granted "deferred action" to some young people who would be eligible under the DREAM Act, however, these actions have been handled without a formal process, which leads to inconsistent handling of these cases by the various immigration services offices across the country. The senators asked the Obama Administration to consider establishing a formal process for deferred action, and to track cases of the Dream Act

Topic: HISPANICS SURPASS BLACKS IN MOST US METROS

Synopsis: Hispanics now outnumber African-Americans in more than half the metropolitan areas in the U.S., according to census figures released today. They became the largest minority group in 191 of the country's 366 metro areas, fuelled in part by the increasing black exodus from recession-hit cities in the north. The census results are already having a big political impact, as states redraw their district boundary lines according to population size and racial make-up. It's the latest in a series of releases from the 2010 census showing the changing face of America. Last month the Census Bureau reported the Hispanic population went up by 42 per cent in the last ten years to hit 50.5 million, meaning one in every six Americans is now Latino. New Latino immigrants are increasingly choosing to avoid traditional Hispanic areas in the south-west, spreading across the country instead. Many of them headed to cities such as Madison, Wisconsin and Lakeland, Florida, where the mid-decade housing boom created jobs in the construction and service industries.

Topic: REPORT PREESCHOOL ENROLLMENT

Synopsis: According to a recently published report from researchers at University of California, Berkeley, preschool enrollment among Latinos grew steadily across the country from stark lows in the early 1990s. But from 2005 to 2009 - during the recession years - Latino preschool enrollment seems to have declined. Nationally, about one in four children younger than 5 is Latino. In San Joaquin County, the proportion is much higher: about one in two. And as early as second grade, the scores of Latino children on standardized math and language-arts tests lag those of their same-age peers. High-quality preschool programs are widely viewed as a successful means of narrowing such achievement gaps, so that many advocates worry the budget cuts and other financial constraints threatening preschool enrollment could contribute to future academic disparity.

Synopsis:

This bill is an Arizona-style immigration enforcement bill and is clearly unconstitutional, as is Arizona's SB1070 which has been an economic and public relations disaster for Arizona and has already cost that state's taxpayers $4 million in legal fees and well over $100 million in lost business and economic downturn. We are confident it would be a disaster both for the people and the friendliness reputation of Texas.

Topic: OBAMA, ADVOCATES DISCUSS IMMIGRATION LAW OVERHAUL

Synopsis: Under pressure from advocates and the 2012 re-election calendar, President Barack Obama on Tuesday enlisted a diverse group of elected officials and religious, business, labor, civil rights leaders and law enforcers to help build support for a long-stalled overhaul of the nation's immigration laws. Obama is making a new attempt to fulfill his campaign pledge to enact broad changes early in his term. But his failure there has angered some Hispanics and immigrants' advocates, voters who helped elect him in 2008 and whom he'll need at the polls again next year. A White House meeting with a group of about 70 people led to no breakthroughs on the way forward, just a call to action.

Topic: GAS PRICES

Synopsis: The national average price for a gallon of gas is $3.83, and in several states it's already over 4-dollars for a regular gallon of gas. Many Americans are starting to cut back to make ends meet. In California, where the average price is well-above 4-dollars a gallon, some drivers have been running out of gas while trying to find a cheaper station. Triple-A says calls for emergency gas service are up 13-percent. But the high prices aren't due to any shortages of fuel in the Middle East. In fact, OPEC says there's a glut of oil on the market. Commodities traders are being blamed, as fears over unrest in Middle East and North African oil suppliers has caused a sharp rise in the oil futures market.

Topic: McDonald's 50,000 JOBS TODAY

Synopsis: As McDonald's makes its nationwide push to get 50,000 new employees to join its ranks, it is important to put the "McJob" in perspective. We've all heard that the average McDonald's job doesn't pay much. And you're right -- it doesn't offer compensation that is anywhere near the pay for salaried positions filled by college graduates or skilled workers. The data we've seen is that the entry-level McJob probably pays a little more than minimum wage. The company and sites that track wages suggest that many of those workers hired Tuesday will be making around $8 an hour, depending in which area of the country they live. A full workweek at $8 an hour gets you about $320 before tax withholding. That's $16,000 a year if you take two weeks off during the year for vacation. It's above the poverty line for individuals this year ($11,136 according to the Census), but below the level for a four-person household ($22,314).

Citing some deadly attacks on the drivers, the New York State Federation of Taxi Drivers distributed the vests on Monday and drivers started using them immediately. Priority was given to drivers working the night shift in areas where statistics showed high incidence of attacks -- chiefly in outlying parts of boroughs outside Manhattan. Livery cabs must be hired ahead of time and do not pick up passengers off the street, unlike the more well known yellow taxis that cruise New York City streets looking for fares. One dozen vests were donated by New York-based security firm Security USA, adding to another 20 or so protective shields that had been previously donated by retired police officers.

Napolitano tells NBC's "Today" show she does believe it's important that the Transportation Department and the Federal Aviation Administration conduct an internal review to "look at what's going on in the air traffic community." Her interview Wednesday came in the wake of revelations that a jet carrying first lady Michelle Obama to Washington was forced to abort its landing at Andrews Air Force Base, Maryland, because it came too close to an air cargo plane. Asked if the Monday incident involving the first lady and reports of sleeping air traffic controllers present an opportunity for terrorists, Napolitano replied, "No, not in that sense."

The airlines will also have to more clearly disclose the fees they charge. Consumer advocates say the wide-ranging regulations would improve the flying experience. Still, they wanted regulators to get even tougher on bag fees and make it easier to sue airlines over shoddy service. Beginning in late August, passengers who pay $15 or more to check luggage will get a refund if their bag is lost. They'll also be entitled to more money -- up to $1,330 -- if they're bumped from a flight. Airlines will have to include government taxes and fees in advertised prices.

"Upper management has advised supervisors to have agents 'turn back South' (TBS) the illegal aliens (aka bodies) they detect attempting to unlawfully enter the country ... at times you even hear supervisors order the agents over the radio to 'TBS' the aliens instead of catching them," one San Diego border agent wrote in an email to Cochise County Sheriff Larry Dever. "This only causes more problems as the aliens, as you know, don't just go back to Mexico and give up. They keep trying, sometimes within 10 minutes in-between attempts, to cross illegally," continued the email, which was among a number of communications to Dever reviewed by FoxNews.com. "This makes the job for agents more dangerous. Not only are the aliens more defiant, they also begin to feel like they can get away with breaking our federal laws."

The new warnings could be conveyed to the public through Facebook and Twitter. Unlike the colors, the alerts will have expiration dates. The past system described the threat in five colors, from green, low risk, to red, severe. Napolitano says the threat picture in the U.S. is currently at an "elevated baseline," and future public warnings will hinge on specific and credible intelligence above and beyond that threshold. She says the terror threat to the U.S. is at its highest since 9/11 because of the increasing number and types of international and homegrown threats. This does not mean there is a specific threat of an imminent attack.

The law, known best by its legislative designation, SB 1070, turns 1 year old on Saturday, but it has spent the entire time in legal limbo. Synopsis: The average price for a gallon of gasoline in the United States rose 11.98 cents in the past two weeks, but last week's fall in crude oil prices may signal lower costs to come, an industry analyst said on Sunday. The national average for self-serve, regular unleaded gas was $4 per gallon on May 6, up 11.98 cents from April 22, according to the nationwide Lundberg Survey. This was still below the all-time high of $4.11 on July, 11, 2008, and last week's fall in crude oil prices may lead to a 8- to 12-cent drop in prices at the pump over the next few weeks.

Topic: OBAMA IMMIGRATION

Synopsis: Describing the border with Mexico as more secure than ever, President Barack Obama says Republicans who insisted on tougher enforcement should now be ready to move on and deal with comprehensive immigration reform. But instead, he says they're still demanding more. In a speech in Texas along the border today, Obama pointed to an increase in border agents, and the near-completion of a border fence. And he said more cargo is being screened. But he said Republicans will "never be satisfied." Obama is pushing for legislation offering a pathway to citizenship to the nation's 11 million illegal immigrants -- amid opposition from majority Republicans in the House. He's trying to convince Hispanic voters that he's not the one standing in the way of immigration reform.

House Republicans voted to end debate by calling for an immediate vote on the bill, shutting down debate on amendments after four hours of sometimes heated discussion. Democrats roundly criticized the tactic almost as emotionally as the underlying legislation, and faulted House Speaker Joe Straus for allowing the maneuver

Civil rights groups are seeking to block the law on constitutional grounds, and a judge will consider whether to halt its enforcement at a hearing set for Tuesday afternoon. The law, signed by Republican Gov. Gary Herbert in March, requires police to check the citizenship status of anyone arrested for a felony or class-A misdemeanor, while giving them discretion to check the citizenship of those stopped for traffic infractions and other lesser offenses. Class A misdemeanors include theft, negligent homicide and criminal mischief, while felonies range from aggravated burglary to rape and murder.

It also requires many private employers to check the immigration status of newly hired workers on a federal database called E-Verify. Enforcement of U.S. immigration laws traditionally is handled by federal, not state, authorities. Nearly 15 million people had entered the 2012 lottery hoping to win one of 50,000 U.S. immigrant visas available under a wild-card program for people who otherwise would have little hope of getting a coveted U.S. visa. Burt Solomons of Carrollton has filed a new version of the so-called sanctuary cities bill. It bans police agencies from adopting policies that prohibit officers from asking people they detain whether they are in the country legally. The bill was one of Perry's top priorities in the regular session but it failed without a vote in the Senate. Perry, a Republican, has not yet added it to the agenda of the 30-day special session which began Tuesday, but said he still considers it an important issue. After months of intensive lobbying by banks, the Senate is slated to vote Wednesday on a controversial bill that would delay changes to debit-card swipe fees that would cost the industry billions of dollars. Sen. Jon Tester (D-Mont.) unveiled revised legislation Tuesday that requires four banking regulators to study the issue for six months. The Federal Reserve would then have an additional six months to rewrite the rules governing swipe fees. Tester's original bill called for a two-year delay and would have required Congress to vote again to approve additional action. The debate centers on the fees that merchants must pay banks each time a debit card is swiped.

Topic: ALZHEIMER

Synopsis:

Scientists developing treatments for the devastating brain disorder Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (CJD) have unexpectedly blocked the onset of Alzheimer's disease, the most common cause of dementia. Researchers said they were "thrilled" at the unexpected discovery that two antibodies - extensively studied in relation to CJD - may also have an effect on Alzheimer's disease. Almost 500,000 people a year in the UK and 20 million worldwide suffer from Alzheimer's. The finding, published in Nature Communications, represents a "significant step forward in the battle to develop drugs to treat Alzheimer's disease," they say. The lead came from an American study by researchers at Yale University in 2009, which showed prion proteins causing CJD also play a role in Alzheimer's disease.

Topic: ALABAMA NEW ANTI-INMIGRANT LAW

Synopsis:

The American Civil Liberties Union and the ACLU of Alabama said today that they will file, in coalition with other civil rights groups, a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of Alabama's draconian anti-immigrant law before it goes into effect Sept. 1. HB 56, even more restrictive than Arizona's SB1070 which it was inspired by, was signed into law this morning by Alabama Gov. Scott Bentley. The law's key provisions sanction discriminatory and unconstitutional practices by police officers, landlords and employers by inviting racial profiling of Latinos and others based on how they look or talk, violating the First Amendment and interfering with federal law. Under the extreme law, Alabama public schools will require children to provide proof of citizenship when enrolling in kindergarten and grade school and require police to demand "papers" from people they stop whom they suspect are not authorized to be in the U.S.

Topic: HISPANIC VOTERS SUPPORT UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRANTS

Synopsis:

The plight of undocumented immigrants in the United States is no stranger to the lives of Latino voters and a majority (53%) admit to having met someone who has no papers, and a quarter (25%) claim to know an individual or family who is facing deportation proceedings or have been deported. This was revealed by the survey Impremedia / Latino Decisions (LD), the third in a series of six national surveys that explore the views of the Latino population more integrated into American society: the registered voters. This installment of the survey focused on the immigration issue. Matt Barreto, political science professor at the University of Washington and LD pollster said this debunks the idea that Latino voters are not interested or do not have nothing to do with what happens to illegal immigrants.

Topic: ALABAMA SCHOOLS TO CHECK IF STUDENTS IN US LEGAL

Synopsis:

Alabama schools will soon have to check if students are in the country legally and people stopped for any reason could be arrested on suspicion of immigration violations under a sweeping law being called the nation's most restrictive against illegal immigration. Advocacy groups promised to challenge the sweeping measure signed by Gov. Robert Bentley on Thursday, which they call even more severe than the one in Arizona that is being challenged in court. In addition, it requires all businesses to check the legal status of workers using a federal system called E-Verify and makes it a crime to knowingly give an illegal immigrant a ride. "It is clearly unconstitutional. It's mean-spirited, racist, and we think a court will enjoin it," said Mary Bauer, legal director for the Southern Poverty Law Center.

Synopsis:

A special unit of airport screeners, charged with detecting suspicious behavior, engaged in racial profiling so frequently at Newark Liberty International Airport that their resentful colleagues called them "Mexican hunters," according to an internal federal report. Officially known as behavior detection officers, or BDOs, the screeners were supposed to focus on nervous, erratic or evasive gestures or speech and other indicators to single out passengers for extra scrutiny, but instead they concentrated on whether Mexican or Dominican passengers had proper visas or passport stamps, the report said - all at the direction of their managers.

Synopsis:

Over the past few weeks, there's been a growing sense of anticipation and confusion among those who follow First Amendment law as the U.S. Supreme Court stubbornly refuses to release an opinion on whether states like California have the right to ban the sale of violent video games to minors. No one has any idea what's taking the Supreme Court so long, but a decision is long overdue. Not only have the Supremes checked off every single case from their autumn term except the video game case (Brown v. Entertainment Merchants Assn), but the high court has already rendered decisions on most of its spring cases too.

Topic: E-VERIFY

Synopsis:

A bill that would require employers to electronically verify the immigration status of potential employees was introduced on Tuesday. Its sponsor said it would help Americans get jobs while one critical group said it would hurt businesses and immigrant employees. The measure calls for an expansion of the E-Verify system created under immigration legislation in 1996 and subsequently extended, said a statement from the office of Representative Lamar Smith, House Judiciary Committee Chairman and sponsor of the bill. The proposed Legal Workforce Act, or H.R. 2164, repeals the current paper-based I-9 system and gradually phases in mandatory participation for most employers.

Topic: NEW ANALYSIS FINDS THAT HISPANICS FACE DISPROPORTIONATE HEALTH THREAT FROM COAL PLANT'S TOXIC MERCURY POLLUTION

Synopsis:

An analysis of several studies conducted among Latinos reveal that this community faces a disproportionate risk from toxic mercury pollution because of a combination of cultural, economic and linguistic factors. The analysis based largely on previously unreleased data from the polling firm Bendixen & Ammand's 2008 National Survey of Latinos on the Environment - provides new evidence that toxic mercury pollution, which primarily comes from coal-fired plants, constitutes a clear and present danger to the health of the Latino community. According to the previously unpublished sections of the Sierra Club survey, 31 percent of Latinos fish regularly, and 76 percent of those eat and share what they catch with their families. These families include young children and women of childbearing age, the two most vulnerable population sectors to mercury poisoning.

Synopsis:

Utah's Mormon leaders, who in recent months have emerged as a force in immigration, say undocumented immigrants should be given a way to work legally in the United States. In a statement on immigration released by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the leaders assail mass deportation, and depict immigration as a moral and religious matter. "What to do with the estimated 12 million undocumented immigrants now residing in various states within the United States is the biggest challenge in the immigration debate," the statement says. "The bedrock moral issue for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is how we treat each other as children of God."

The government plans to inspect the hiring records of 1,000 companies in all 50 states. Businesses across the U.S. that rely on low-skilled labor are working to stave off Immigration and Customs Enforcement audits, which can lead to the loss of large numbers of employees, reduced productivity and legal expenses. Wednesday's surge in so-called silent raids drew criticism from both the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and immigrant advocates. It brought to 2,338 the number of companies audited by ICE in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 and topped the prior year's record of 2,196. The audits, affecting such businesses as garment makers, produce growers and fast-food chains, result in the firing of every illegal immigrant found on a company's payroll.

A newly approved budget proposal has bought state lawmakers more time to achieve the plan they really want -- a tall order that falls mainly to Gov. Jerry Brown as he attempts to muster the necessary Republican support. The Legislature on Wednesday passed a Democratic budget for the coming fiscal year that eliminates the state's remaining $9.6 billion deficit, but the plan was widely seen as a placeholder designed to meet a constitutional deadline for sending a balanced budget to the governor. Democratic leaders acknowledged that the plan was not the budget they and Brown hope to implement in the long run, but say it will allow the governor to continue negotiating with GOP lawmakers over a key provision in that desired budget: extending expiring tax increases to fund schools in the coming fiscal year.

SYNOPSIS:

Wal-Mart scored a big victory on Monday when the Supreme Court threw out the largest sex-discrimination case in U.S. history, but it has been forced to address the issues raised in the suit. Since the sex-bias lawsuit was given class action status in 2004 on behalf of 1.6 million women, Wal-Mart Stores Inc. has added more policies for advancing women in the workplace. As a result, Wal-Mart says the percentage of entry and midlevel women managers has increased over the past five years from 38.8 percent to 41.2 percent. Some analysts say Wal-Mart is moving in the right direction, but has a ways to go. They note that there is only one woman among CEO Mike Duke's 11 direct reports.
