	Mark Reardon Show – The Reardon Round Table July 24, 2018 2:00 pm – 3:00 pm 12 minutes of a 4-hour program
	Host: Mark Reardon Guest: Dan Mehan, President of the Missouri Chamber of Commerce Host Mark Reardon interviewed Dan Mehan about “Right to Work”, Prop A. Mark sees a lot of vote “NO” for Prop A. Dan Mehan is Pro Prop A. Right to work simply says you are not forced to join a union to have a job in the state of Missouri. In addition, if you are forced to join the union you don’t have a say to what happens to that money you have to give up from your paycheck. Dan says right to work states are doing great in economic development. If we become a right to work state the workers don’t pay dues but, get the same benefits as those who are in the union therefore them not paying dues will eventually break the unions.

Host: Charlie Brennan Guest: Amy Marxkors Host Charlie Brennan and Amy Marxkors talked about the assault in the Catholic church. Archbishop Carlo Maria Vigano’ coming out and stating the Pope Francis knew about Cardinal McCarrick in 2013 and did nothing. McCarrick accused of sexually assaulting seminarians. He had a beach house, would invite the seminarians over, and would assault them. People turned a blind eye to it. What you are not hearing is what Vigano’ is really going after in his 11 page letter is that he says that there are a number of gays in the Catholic clergy who know about this and are allowing this to go on. There are two types of abuse in the Catholic church one is pedophilias when you take advantage of little boys and girls, this is sexual assault on seminarians by gay priest, bishops, or cardinals and are acting out with fellow priest or seminarians and Vigano’ says this is a problem. That there is a schism in the church within the church between the gay clergy and the non-gay clergy.

	Host: Mark Reardon Guest: Kayleigh McEnany Host Mark Reardon interviewed Kayleigh about the Supreme Court, a good week for Republicans. Last week the "Left" are in all panic mode "the sky is falling" which Mark interprets the country is over. Kayleigh says in a sarcastic manor right the country is over because we are going to get a justice on the supreme court that enforces the words of the constitution and is not an activist judge and is faithful and loyal to the law as it is written not as they believe it should be in their own minds. How does this affect the Row V Wade front? Kayleigh expresses that the Judge is to interpret the words of the Constitution and statutes as written and to engage in judicial analysis not to engage in political grandstanding and to put their political views aside. She is confident that the new Judge will interpret the constitution faithfully and will come to the right conclusion for the Row vs Wade being overturned.

Facing her first election cycle in the Trump era, Democratic U.S. Sen. Claire McCaskill is calling herself "the underdog." During a campaign stop in the St. Louis area, McCaskill urged the crowd of about 75 to get out and vote, and "to not just stay home and curse at your TV. The amount of people coming and going in the White House has set records according to the AP. The AP says that 141 staffers who worked in the White House as of June 30, 2017, have left their jobs, and 138 employees have been hired since then. That is a 37% turnover in just one year. The AP also found that 61 percent of Trump's most senior aides have left their positions. Former President Clinton is the only recent administration that saw that kind of turnover. Clinton saw a turnover rate at 42%. Media outlets are now allowed to use cameras and tweet from Missouri courtrooms following recent changes by the state's Supreme Court. As of Monday, judges can permit more than one photographer in the courtroom in some cases, depending on court approval, the Columbia Daily Tribune reported. Tweeting from the courtroom is now also allowed with prior approval from a judge. President Trump changing face of legal immigration, drop 12% in first 2 years in office

	Host: Debbie Monterrey, Tom Ackerman, and Charlie Brennan Host Debbie Monterrey discusses with Tom and Charlie about National Republican money will start flowing to Josh Hawley's Senate campaign before he's even won the nomination. The unusual decision was made, in part, because state Republicans say President Trump has already endorsed Hawley over his ten challengers. One of them -- Austin Petersen -- notes that he does better against Democrat Claire McCaskill in head-to-head polling. Does Mr. Petersen have a point? Should the national money hold off until there's a nominee? The Rhode Island Senate passed a bill that would require presidential and vice presidential candidates to file five years' worth of tax returns in order to appear on the state's ballots. The Senate voted 33-3 in favor of the measure. Senate spokesperson said if the bill becomes law, President Donald Trump would not appear on a future ballot unless he files his returns. Do you like this potential law? They discussed where the President is on his decision on the Supreme Court Justice. They talked about the Major’s dinner with Senator Jeff Berkley (D) that Senator Berkley gave a very strong sense of what he fears will happen with this nominee and potential confirmation that the supreme court will move decideingly in a conservative direction and that there are many rights understood and enjoyed now that are in jeopardy. Consumer rights, financial rights, human rights, civil rights and others. Berkley used a phrase that Major Garret challenged him on that this majority could be an “un-American”, anti-American majority on the Supreme Court. That is Berkley’s idea logic interpretation where the President stands now is American and if reversed it is anti-American or un-American. These are some of the very strong fault lines already developing even before a nominee sent to the senate. What do you make of his resignation? Andrew Wheeler, until now the low-profile deputy administrator at the EPA, became a likely successor to Scott Pruitt. Wheeler spent a decade lobbying for just the sort of companies the agency regulates. Do you have any issues with a former coal lobbyist heading up the EPA? Early this morning the Chinese government immediately retaliated against increased U.S. tariffs on Chinese imports as President Donald Trump's administration effectively launched a trade war with its most important trading partner. Any concerns over this tariff war? When President Trump visits the UK next week, there might be a giant "Baby Trump" balloon floating through the skies. London's mayor has approved a group's request to fly the nearly 20-foot balloon during a protest near Parliament. The mayor's office says it "supports the right to peaceful protest". Should the mayor have approved this protest? A third of U.S. adults are not getting the recommended seven hours of sleep per night, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, contributing to a range of problems, including health issues and mistakes at work. 	Host: Debbie Monterrey Guest: Charlie Brennan and Brad Young, Attorney Host Debbie Monterrey moderates the discussion with Charlie and Brad about the White House appears to be having a messaging problem with the Russian election meddling topic. Trump was asked at the end of a Cabinet meeting Wednesday if Russia was still targeting the U.S. He answered "no" without elaborating. But White House spokeswoman Sarah Sanders says Trump was saying "no" to answering more questions, although he did go on to answer an additional question. Why the mixed messages from the President? Sarah Huckabee Sanders says President Trump plans to "meet with his team" about a proposal from Russian leader Vladimir Putin that would allow Russian authorities to question a former U.S. Ambassador to Moscow who had held diplomatic immunity. In return, Putin offered to allow Special Counsel Robert Mueller to watch interrogations of the 12 Russian intelligence agents indicted by a U.S. grand jury in connection with interfering in the 2016 election. Is this a good idea? Former FBI director James Comey left the Republican party in 2016 and now he has a message for Americans: choose Democrats in this year’s midterm elections. Comey tweeted “All who believe in this country’s values must vote for Democrats this fall. Policy differences don’t matter right now. History has its eyes on us.” Is this just sour grapes by someone who was fired by the President? Democrats in Missouri want the state’s highest court to weigh in on whether Gov. Mike Parson had the authority to appoint a new lieutenant governor. In an appeal filed Tuesday, the party says state law intended for the lieutenant governor post to remain empty if it is vacated. Do the Democrats have a case? Brett Kavanaugh, President Donald Trump's nominee for the Supreme Court, said in 2016 that he would "put the final nail" in a 1988 high court ruling that upheld the law authorizing independent counsel prosecutor. Democratic senators immediately seized on the video to demand that Kavanaugh, at the very least, promise to recuse himself from any Supreme Court case related to special counsel Robert Mueller's probe. Could this latest revelation kill his nomination? According to The Hill, Democrats running for the White House need to be much more proactive in taking on the president. Democrat strategists are critical of contenders who they see as too reactive rather than proactive. Philippe Reines, the longtime adviser to Hillary Clinton who played Trump in mock debates in 2016 and is known for his pugnacity, said former first lady Michelle Obama’s famous “when they go low, we go high” line no longer applies. Do you agree with him? 3-D gun printing advocate Defense Distributed has won a legal battle against the US Department of State over the right to publish files that allow you to make your own gun from plastic. The win means that beginning August 1st, gun enthusiasts will be able to download the blueprints to print their own gun if they choose. Opponents of the blueprint say the gun could be slipped past security. Should these blueprints be released?

An all caps tweet that came out of nowhere. Iran and Russia have been cozy together. Is this a distraction? President Hassan Rouhani did what he does with some regularity he was going off about America the great satin and that is probably what prompted President Trump to weigh in on that. Iran's leader on Sunday left open the possibility of peace with the United States but cautioned President Trump against taking an aggressive stand with the Islamic Republic, saying an outbreak of hostilities between the two countries would lead to the "mother of all wars," according to a report. "America should know that peace with Iran is the mother of all peace, and war with Iran is the mother of all wars," President Hassan Rouhani said, Reuters reported. President Donald Trump issued a furious, all-caps challenge to the Iranian regime late Sunday night, warning that any threats to the US would be met with unspecified dire consequences. President Trump tweeted "To Iranian President Rouhani: NEVER, EVER THREATEN THE UNITED STATES AGAIN OR YOU WILL SUFFER CONSEQUENCES THE LIKES OF WHICH FEW THROUGHOUT HISTORY HAVE EVER SUFFERED BEFORE," Trump tweeted after returning to the White House from a weekend at his golf resort in Bedminster, New Jersey. Host: Charlie Brennan Guest: Amy Marxkors Host Charlie Brennan talked with Amy Marxkors about the how the primary elections went yesterday and on the Right to Work vote. There was a 42% in the county, which is high sometimes in the city on an April primary election you would get a 15 – 20% turn out for this election. Charlie was saying that the Americans for Prosperity who have vowed to support a renewed effort in the next legislative session to pass right to work. Prop A that was defeated yesterday after unions and others soundly went to the poles and voted no on it. With the Americans for Prosperity released a statement saying stated with the majority of Missouri voting “NO” the outcome nulls the legislation passed earlier in the legislative session. Governor Parson has recently declared his support for “Right to Work”. So AFP think the next session their going to come back. This raises question, if voters go to the polls and they reject it hey who is the legislature general assembly to overturn or pass right to work, except that also law makers will be also voted in by the people this November represented democracy they represent the role of the people and if they decide their going to pass right to work, Charlie thinks they will. Amy Marxkors explains it this way, if you are in a car with someone and they ask you where you want to go for dinner and you throw out some ideas but, they already know where you are going for dinner, so they were never going to take your suggestion anyway something like that. They just want to give the people chance to see how much resistant they would get. Eric Greitens- passed Right to Work. The Unions got signatures to get it on the ballot for the people to vote on it. Host: Charlie Brennan Guest: Mike Kelley Host Charlie Brennan interviewed Mike Kelley about what he thinks about the November elections. They talked about the past election and what they think the election this November. For the Prosecuting Attorney position Bob McCulloch 28 years in office who by many measurement per the LA Times was leading Wesley Bell just 3 weeks ago 56% - 26% so how does he lose handily 3 weeks later. What exactly happened? The ACLU spent a lot of money in their reports in the Missouri Ethics Commission they spend about $244,000 one of their organizers Astafa Madula here in downtown St. Louis is moving back to Washing ton he helped coordinate a lot of this. There were others including activist named Kayla Reed was very active working for Bell. Charlie has known Wesley Bell for a very long time, he is a very nice person he has not prosecuted a felony case yet but, we will see what happens. Wesley wants to stop prosecuting minor marijuana cases; he does not want cash bail for non-violent offenders. They said this race was not about Wesley Bell it was about Bob McCulloch. Chain migration is a concept that if someone is here in the United States and they are here legally then all of those persons relatives have preferential status when it comes to getting citizenship, a green card or permission to stay in the US for a long-term basis. Chain migration has played a role in the Bosnian Community here in St. Louis. Talked how Trump is against illegal immigration and chain migration, which is legal. Talked about the campaign add the ACLU paid for against Bob McCulloch. Michael and Brad think this add goes over the line. 501C cannot endorse political issues or candidates. The ACLU is on the line. Whom can you file a complaint. They are not seeing the same uproar as we did on Eric Greitens using his funds from his foundation. Is it because it is the ACLU? What does Wesley Bell think about cash bail reform? Brad Young joins the program to discuss an ACLU ad that appears to endorse Bell over McCulloch. Charlie believes the ACLU is endorsing Wesley Bell even though the ads say they do not endorse neither him nor his opponent Bob McCulloch. Bell wants Cash Bail reform when in fact Bell was the judge in Velva City (a small suburb in North St. Louis) when it was sued by the Arch City Defenders for jailing people for minor defenses because they couldn't make cash bail. The City lost the lawsuit and had to change their ways and the judge at the time was Wesley Bell. The ACLU (501-C4) sent Wesley Bell stating they are going to keep their eye on him. In honor of Ralph Kaufman the Kaufman Fund founded in 1995 by his brother Wayne. The fund has raised over 1 million dollars to help veterans and their families. Ralph was a Air force Veteran for 4 years and was involved in a number of charities and he decided that in St. Louis that Asthma and allergies are pretty bad here for children. So Ralph in 1988 took to the Asthma and Allergy and raised 10,000 dollars. In 1990 Wayne’s brother passed away and the board of directors with the Asthma and Allergy Foundation went to Wayne to ask him to take over a Golf Tournament that Ralph handled. Wayne told the foundation that he will do it but he wanted 10% to put into another account called the Kaufman Fund in memory of his brother Ralph. Since 1990, The Kaufman Fund has provided support for local veterans, spouses, and children who have been deprived of life’s necessities. Our mission is to reach out and render support to every veteran, spouse, and child in need, but we cannot do this alone – your contribution and support is vital for our mission success. 	Host: Charlie Brennan – Guest Hugh Eastwood and Beavis Schock Host Charlie Brennan interviewed Hugh Eastwood and Beavis Schock about building inspectors were going to homes in the city of St. Louis and saying to the owners either you let us in to inspect this property or we will condemn your house and you won't be able to live here. Beavis said this is correct. This started 3 years and a few months ago by a guy named Leon Walker who is a homeowner in north St. Louis went to Hugh and Beavis to Leon went to work one morning and a half an hour later their house was invaded by Policemen in full riot gear. They threw something called a flash bang into the house they said they were after these horrible drug characters. There was a drug character living next door. Throughout this process, the Leon Walker family asserted there was not any drug activity in their house. Judge Perry threw that out and said there was enough there to think there was drug activity and there was some marijuana and guns in Leon's house. They finish the raid and issued search warrants to search the house more though. The detective calls a building inspector pursuant called "Project 87" a very elaborate important program there were training manuals on it. This was just for the city of St. Louis not the county. The building inspector would come and state that he would like to look around to see if there are any building violations. The idea is that the police think this is a drug house and they want to shut it down and eliminate from the city. Therefore, they are trying this maneuver to say the house isn't fit to live in and needs to be condemned. Leon was at work and his stepson Victor who was there and kind of the leader said that he did not want to sign the inspection form and the building inspector says you have two choices either you can sign this or I condemn this house right now. They do not have any evidence of any building violations. The Stepson signed and they did not end up shutting it down. Hugh and Beavis had a mediation with lawyers in the City of St. Louis and they are pleased to announce that they have reached a settlement agreement with the City essentially this Project 87 practice and policy of demanding consent to search without probably cause that there are serious life threatening building code violations has ended after at least 30 years of practice in our community.

St. Jude Hospital: Progress – 115

It's pretty amazing when you consider seven years ago, we didn't have the treatments we do now. We cure 80% of children with cancer. Go back fifty years; we were curing 20-30%. This is the miracle story of modern medicine. We understand what makes this cancer tick. And of course, without donors from around the world, this just couldn't happen. There's one thing we are focused on, and that's beating this thing. St. Jude Children's Research Hospital: finding cures, saving children. Learn more at St. Jude dot org.

Homer's for Health (Carpenter/Wainwright) – 349

Hi, I'm Matt Carpenter and I'm Adam Wainwright. This season we begin our seventh year of Homer's for Health and K's for Kids. We've had an incredible run, thanks to thousands of donors across Cardinal's Nation and beyond. This year we want to get a pledge from every state in the country again. Why stop there? Let's get a pledge from every country in the world. Hey, there's an idea! Do you think we can start up Major League Baseball in England? That would be smashing! We could sell fish & chips and tea at the stadium. Make your pledge today at Glennon dot org, presented by Heartland Coca Cola.
