February 2, 2024	February 7, 2024	Local Arts	Ray Dudley	Kevin Collins	Kevin Collins, board member at the Garrison Players, was today's guest. And our topic? "What is the current state of non-professional theater and theater training?" We also had the good luck to be doing theater in the 1970's which was a highly experimental time, particularly in the arts. It was also still an analog world when we did just about everything – lighting, set design, publicity, with little or no training, just because we had to. But times have changed, in the sense that there used to be a sort of apprenticeship process through which an actor learned his or her craft: college theater, summer stock, summer festivals, regional theater, off-off-Broadway, etc., etc. Not that anyone followed this step-by-step – usually, an actor just tried out for everything. But the fact was there were many roads and many venues. In a very small way, community theater was a part of that. What are the changes? NH Unscripted and Kevin go deep in the weeds for what turned out to be "Part I!"
February 7, 2024	February 9, 2024	Local Business	Ray Dudley	Jim Rosenberg	Jim Rosenberg, attorney at Shaheen & Gordon, makes a return visit to chat about DUI stops and aliens in NH. Yup, aliens in NH! Jim is a defense attorney and I wanted to ask questions about what to do should you get stopped for a DUI and he certainly provided the info. Then in the last segment Jim makes the leap to alien citings around the Granite State. I had no idea how many there are. Did you know that there's a state plaque dedicated to one particular citing? As usual Jim's a treasure trove of info.
February 14, 2024	February 16, 2024	Local Arts	Ray Dudley	Kevin & Kate Collins	It was time for part II of my chat with Kevin Collins from the Garrison Players about the evolution of high school and community theater. Some of the topics today included: 1) The rise of theater training camps marketed to high school students (not summer, year-round) and its impact on traditional HS drama 2) The fragmenting and siloing of theater (HS shows in the 21st century v. 1950s-2000s) 3) Difference between the shows being done by high schools and youth theater v. "traditional" nonprofessional theater. And as usual, we drop down some rabbit holes!
February 16, 2024	February 21, 2024	Local Business	Ray Dudley	Liam Magan of TeaTotaler Café	Liam Magan, General Manager, from the Teatotaler Cafe on Main st. in Concord dropped in to talk about all that's happening at the cafe. Twice named Best of NH, Teatotaler is a "queer, hipster oasis of tea, coffee, and pastry goodness." Named "Most Instagrammable Restaurant in America" by Food Network Magazine they have incredible waffles, drinks with boba (I didn't know either) and macaroons made right there. Teatotaler is a café, tea-house, bistro, and venue with two locations in Concord and Dover, New Hampshire. They offer catering as well as host functions.
February 23, 2024	February 28, 2024	Arts	Ray Dudley	David Afflick	"It's never too late to start" is more than just a cute saying. David Afflick came by NH Unscripted to discuss how he took it to heart, applied to his life and turned his focus toward acting. His resume now glows with commercials for companies like Ocean State Job Lot, Direct TV, Tufts Health Plans, East Boston Savings Bank and NH Realtors as well as roles in films that have shown in the Cannes Film Festival and one that's on Amazon! When and how he did it plus advice for others that are thinking about dipping their toes into acting are all on the table.
February 26, 2024	March 1, 2024	Local Arts	Ray Dudley	Angelica Rosenthal	When NH Unscripted needs a little attitude and sass that's when it's time to bring in the big guns and so today Angelica Rosenthal from the Actors Cooperative Theatre is back for a repeat visit. She's directing "The Last Days of Judas Iscariot" for the Milford Area Players and she lays it all out there!! I love her honest, don't give you-know-what approach to life. We also get to catch up on what's happening in Derry with the Actors Cooperative Theatre. Open and refreshing.
March 1, 2024	March 6, 2024	Local Arts	Ray Dudley	Joel Mercier	It's almost springtime and that means birds are chirping, bunnies are running around and Artistic Directors are scouring the landscape looking for talent for their upcoming seasons of shows! What exactly does that process look like? How do they choose who to make an offer to? Where do they even go to audition them? Well lucky for us Joel Mercier, Artistic Director for the North County Center for the Arts, drops in to explain all of that as well as discuss their upcoming season which will
March 6, 2024	March 8, 2024	Permaculture	Ray Dudley	Dunstan Smith	Spring and it's peakin' its nose around the corner and that means gardening and in particular a bit of permaculture gardening. March 8, 2024	March 13, 2024	Permaculture	Ray Dudley	Ethan & Amy Sager of Again & Again Farmstead	I'm telling you I'm in love with permaculture and so today I had Amy and Ethan Sager, from the Again & Again Farmstead in Randolph, come by to chat up the farm. Their diversified farm produces growing supplies, wool products, flower bouquets, and ethically grown fruit and vegetables using non-certified organic methods. We talked about biochar, vermiculture (worms), no-till gardening, heritage breed chickens, ducks and sheep (and all the great wool that comes from them) and a heckuva
March 15, 2024	March 20, 2024	Local Arts	Ray Dudley	Pattiann Graham	Parttime commercial actor Pattiann Graham dropped by the WKXL studios and spoke with NH Unscripted host Ray Dudley about how she stumbled into doing commercials, what it was like being on set, some of her favorite shoots (Wayfair, Honda, Al Terry) and gave some tips for any newbies that might want to give commercials a try. She also gives some hilarious personal stories from her life. Oh yeah, and she's also my sister!!!
March 18, 2024	March 22, 2024	Local Arts	Ray Dudley	Jordan Formichelli & Marina Altschiller-Gannon	It's time to party at Dive in Productions!! We also do the show on Facebook Live for the first time. Slim is a bit old and slow with the uptake when it comes to social media, but he is trying to forge a new path and he is getting a lot of help along the way. Please keep the suggestions coming! On today's show we talk, yet again, about how Jayson Tatum comes up short in clutch situations. But we still stay positive. When he eventually hits paydirt, he will continue doing so for years and years for the Boston Celtics. The Bruins game last night was awesome.
