Title: Stark County Minority Business Association (SCMBA)
Show #: 1025
Guests: Leonard Stevens, CEO/Stark Co. Minority Business Association (SCMBA)
Skyler Parks, Director of Business Development & Growth/SCMBA

Synopsis: The SCMBA works to support minority, women, and veteran-sensitive businesses in Stark County. It started with about a dozen businesses and now has close to 300 companies taking part in its programs. The organization counsels businesses and sometimes provides financial support for companies. Under-capitalization is often a major reason so many companies fail; SCMBA works with these companies to help them become successful. The non-profit organization received a $900,000 grant several years ago which allowed it to hire additional staff to ensure its mission could be carried out consistently. SCMBA is housed in the Stark County Chamber of Commerce Building in downtown Canton and is affiliated with the Pro Football Hall of Fame and the HBCU Black College Football Classic.

Guests: Michael Nelson, former Cleveland Municipal Court Judge

Synopsis: Michael Nelson calls Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. "the most important world figure in modern times". Judge Nelson is a Glenville High School graduate, attended the historic HBCU Central State University in Wilberforce, Ohio, is a former president of the NAACP Branch of Greater Cleveland, and is a founding member of the 100 Black Men of Greater Cleveland organization. Recently retired from the Cleveland Municipal Court, he has served on the Civil Service Commission of Cleveland and the Regional Sewer District. Dr. King visited Glenville High School when he was a student there in April of 1967. He recalls how impressed he was to see him and how what Dr. King did and espoused has impacted his life and millions of lives around the world. Mr. Nelson spoke of Dr. King's dream of a better nation but laments the fact that many of the hard-won advances achieved by the struggle led by Dr. King and others seem to have stalled or been rolled back.

Title: American Red Cross (ARC)
Show #: 1027
Guests: Jim McIntyre, Regional Communications Director/American Red Cross Northern OH
Christy Peters, Regional Communications Manager/ARC Northern OH

Synopsis: Currently, there is a blood emergency in northern Ohio. The Red Cross prevents and alleviates human suffering in the face of emergencies by mobilizing the power of volunteers and donors. The agency responds to over 60 thousand emergencies a year; there has been an annual increase of 70% of these disasters over the last decade. The Red Cross collects 40-percent of the nation's blood, teaches life-saving skills including CPR, trains people on the AED devices and provides crisis communications for U.S. military serving abroad. The agency needs all blood-types, especially universal type O. The current shortfall is impacting healthcare as it is forcing doctors and hospitals to base care on availability of blood supply. Viewers are encouraged to consider donating blood.

Title: Black History Month Perspective/Cavaliers HBCU Scholarship Program
Show #: 1033
Guests: Professor Ayesha Bell Hardaway, Professor of Law & Co-Director of the Social Justice Institute/Case Western Reserve University
Kevin Clayton, Sr Vice-president for Social Impact and Equity/Cleveland Cavaliers and Affiliated Companies

Synopsis: Professor Ayesha Bell Hardaway talked about legal inequality and lack of civil rights and the difference in racial perspectives. Many African Americans' experience is one in which many of the gains made in the 60s have been either rolled back or are being eroded in the courts and state houses under conservative judges and lawmakers. In her opinion, many citizens look at legal rights on paper and conclude that we all have the same legal protections when blacks live in a separate and unequal society. Some examples of the discrepancies include inequalities in education and unemployment and health care. Professor Hardaway opines that racism, discrimination and prejudices make it harder for people of color to move ahead.

Kevin Clayton, from the Cleveland Cavaliers, also feels that there is an unequal playing field that for black citizens. The Cavs' organization is playing a role in improving the plight of those who have often been left behind or "left out of the loop". The CAVS and the NBA have teamed up in the wake of the murder of George Floyd to pledge a $1-million-dollar donation per team/per year to offer scholarship to blacks attending institutions of higher learning. The Cavs have also created a scholarship program under The Cavaliers Community Foundation Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) Scholarship Program. Cavs' guard Donovan Mitchell's SpidaCares, Inc. joined the Cavs Foundation to help provide $50,000 for the scholarship's inaugural year of 2024. Students interested in receiving one of the five $10,000 scholarships have until March 18th to apply. Each student must be a permanent resident of northeast Ohio, and either be enrolled in or committed to an accredited HBCU during the 2024-2025 school year.

Title: Cuyahoga County Women's Health Council
Show #: 1019 (repeat)
Guests: Chris Ronayne, Cuyahoga County Executive
Yvonne Conwell, Cuyahoga County Council, District 7

Synopsis: Despite Cleveland being a city with many healthcare facilities, our black women have some of the worst health outcomes in the nation. Cleveland ranks as the 5th worst city for black women's health. The city also ranks last among cities with 100-thousand or more women in terms of overall educational achievement. Cuyahoga County Councilwoman Yvonne Conwell represents District 7 and she has worked to have women's health history in the county recognized as a public health crisis so it can get much needed funds and attention it deserves. She has teamed up with Chris Ronayne, Cuyahoga County Executive, to draw much needed attention to the growing problems surrounding black women's health. County Executive Ronayne joined Conwell in talking about the serious nature of the programs and has vowed to add whatever resources the county can to even the medical playing field. The new council is titled: Women's Health Advisory Council will get a boost in the arm to speed up women's access to convenient and affordable healthcare.
