Real Talk: Racism and Climate

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Mustafa Santiago Ali, Vice President of Environmental Justice, Climate, and Community Revitalization, National Wildlife Federation; Glynda Carr, CEO and Co-Founder, Higher Heights for America; Robert Bullard, Distinguished Professor of Urban Planning and Environmental Policy, Texas Southern University

The national uprising ignited by the murder of George Floyd has cast a spotlight on the country's embedded, institutional racism, including the fraught relationship between environmentalism and communities of color. Air pollution, severe weather and the economic upheaval brought on by climate change impacts black and minority communities first and worst, yet their voices are often left out of policy responses and market solutions. How can we amplify and advocate for leaders of color in the fight against climate change? What can allies do to create a green movement that is inclusive and actively anti-racist?

The 2020 Election with Tiffany Cross, Rick Wilson, and Rich Thau

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Tiffany Cross, Co-Founder, The Beat DC; Author, Say It Louder! Black Voters, White Narratives, and Saving Our Democracy; Rich Thau, President & Co-founder, Engagious; Rick Wilson, Republican Political Strategist

Racism, police and the pandemic are dominating hearts and headlines, but will they translate to votes in national and regional elections? One study found wavering Trump voters rank immigration and climate change as top reasons for a possible vote change, but it's unclear if that will materialize. Other studies contend climate doesn't even rank on the minds of swing voters. Young, liberal Americans are leading the charge on climate, but Bernie Sanders learned they are more likely to protest than vote. What issues are top of mind for Obama-Trump voters in swing states? How will the Coronavirus and racial justice crises of 2020 impact voters this cycle?

John Kerry: The Global Dynamics of Decarbonization

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: John Kerry, Former U.S. Senator and Secretary of State; Justin Wu, Head of Asia-Pacific, Bloomberg NEF; David Sandalow, Inaugural Fellow, Center on Global Energy Policy, Columbia University; Julia Poliscanova, Senior Director of Vehicles & E-mobility, Transport & Environment; Lisa Fischer, Senior Policy Advisor, E3G

The COVID-19 crisis is expected to decrease U.S. carbon emissions by 7.5% in 2020 — exactly the rate needed globally to meet the climate goals outlined in the Paris Agreement. Can other major economies like China and Europe ever decarbonize at the same rate without throwing their economies over a cliff? What happens when the top clean energy exporters are also the top greenhouse gas emitters? With post-COVID economic recovery plans taking precedence, will the transition to a clean economy be pushed to the back burner?

COVID Curiosities

Hosts: Seth Shostak and Molly Bentley

Guest: Yvette Johnson-Walker - Epidemiologist at the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine, and affiliate faculty with the University of Chicago Illinois School of Public Health; Rolf Halden - Professor and Director of the Biodesign Center for Environmental Health Engineering at Arizona State University; Bryan Bzdek - Chemist, School of Chemistry, University of Bristol, U.K.; Megan Molteni - Staff writer, “Wired.”

Some dogs and cats have become sick with COVID. But it's not just domestic critters that are vulnerable: zoo animals have fallen ill too. There's more strange news about the pandemic, for example scientists who track the coronavirus in our sewage, and computer models that show that flushing the toilet can launch persistent, pathogenic plumes into the room. And scientists have warned the WHO that infectious virus remains airborne. Also, how a shortage of glass vials could delay the deployment of a vaccine.

Big Picture Science Something in the Air

Hosts: Seth Shostak and Molly Bentley

Guest: Janice Brahney - Environmental biogeochemist at Utah State University; Sally Ng - Atmospheric scientist, chemical engineer at Georgia Tech; Chandan Sen - Professor, department of surgery, Indiana University School of Medicine; James Nestor - Author of Breath: The New Science of a Lost Art

Inhale. Now exhale. Notice anything different? Our response to the virus is changing the air in unexpected ways. A pandemic-driven pause on travel has produced clear skies and a worldwide air quality experiment. And a new study reveals that hundreds of tons of microplastics are raining down on us each day.

But we can improve the quality of the breaths we do take; engineers have devised a high-tech mask that may kill coronavirus on contact. Plus, although you do it 25,000 times a day, you may not be breathing properly. Nose-breathing vs mouth breathing: getting the ins-and-outs of respiration.

Climate One Billionaire Wilderness

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Dina Gilio-Whitaker, American Indian Studies Lecturer, California State University San Marcos; Justin Farrell, Author, Billionaire Wilderness: The Ultra-Wealthy and the Remaking of the American West (Princeton University Press, 2020); Diane Regas, President and Chief Executive Officer, The Trust for Public Land; Jessica Newton, founder of Vibe Tribe Adventures

For many of us, the story of the American wilderness begins when Europeans arrived on these shores and began conquering it. The wide open spaces of the American West loom large in our country's mythology. But what often gets written out is the history and culture of those native societies who were here to begin with - and whose relationship to this land is very different. And while one-percenters have contributed generously to preserve and protect the pristine wilderness they love, the people who work for them are often struggling, working two or three jobs. How are public and private land interests competing in the American West? Can conservation and recreation coalesce in a way that is inclusive of all communities?

Skeptic Check: Know-It-Alls

Hosts: Seth Shostak and Molly Bentley

Guest: Charles Piller – Investigative reporter for Science magazine; Alison Galvani – Epidemiologist and Director of the Center for Infectious Disease Modeling and Analysis, at Yale University; Tom Nichols – Professor, international affairs, U.S. Naval War College, and author of The Death of Expertise: The Campaign Against Established Knowledge and Why it Matters; Alex Bentley – Anthropologist, University of Tennessee and author of The Acceleration of Cultural Change: From Ancestors to Algorithms

Think you're some kind of expert? Join the club. It's one thing to question authority; another to offer up your untrained self as its replacement. Rebellion may be a cherished expression of American individualism, but, from sidelining Dr. Fauci to hiding public health data, find out what we lose when we silence health experts and "go with our gut" during a pandemic. Plus, from ancestors to algorithms: how we've replaced credentialed experts with sketchy websites and social media posts.

The Future Earth: Eric Holthaus and Katharine Wilkinson

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Eric Holthaus, Author, The Future Earth: A Radical Vision for What's Possible in the Age of Warming (HarperOne, 2020); Katharine Wilkinson, Vice President, Project Drawdown; Michael Méndez, assistant professor of environmental planning and policy at the University of California, Irvine, Author, Climate Change from the Streets: How Conflict and Collaboration Strengthen the Environmental Justice Movement (Yale University Press, 2020)

Science has given us a realistic picture of what Earth will look like with unmitigated climate change: increased extreme weather events, crippled economies, and a world where those with the least are the hardest hit. What would a radically re-envisioned future look like? What solutions do we need to replace tomorrow's doom-and-gloom projections with thriving equitable cities, renewed political consciousness and carbon-free economies? Join us for a conversation on reimagining our role in creating climate solutions.

The Best of Our Knowledge Reopening in person or online

Host: Bob Barrett

The debate about reopening schools in the fall continues with advocates on all sides arguing for what they believe is the best way forward. Some are calling for a full reopening with students in school all day every day, while others are calling for continued distance learning until the pandemic eases. And, of course, there are those in the middle calling for a little bit of both. School administrators are talking to faculty and staff as well as parent groups to make the best decision for their districts. But what do the students think? To find out, we spoke with Ed Grocholski, a senior vice president with Junior Achievement USA. JA just released the results of a survey of students in the U.S. about how they feel about going back to school this year.

Congress has passed urgent legislation to ensure that military veterans can continue to attend college. Hundreds of thousands of veterans get federal tuition and housing benefits through the Post-9-11 G-I Bill. But many received word they could lose those benefits if their colleges moved to online instruction because of the COVID-19 pandemic. For the American Homefront Project, Jennifer Brookland reports.

Big Picture Science On Thin Ice

Hosts: Seth Shostak and Molly Bentley

Guest: Peter Wadhams - Emeritus Professor of Ocean Physics at Cambridge University in the U.K. and the author of A Farewell to Ice: A Report from the Arctic; Eric Rignot - Earth systems scientist, University of California, Irving, senior research scientist, NASA Jet Propulsion Laboratory; Åsmund Asdal - Biologist, Nordic Genetic Resource Center, coordinator for operations and management of the Svalbard Global Seed Vault, Svalbard, Norway; John Priscu - Polar biologist, Montana State University

Water is essential for life – that we know. But the honeycomb lattice that forms when you chill it to zero degrees Celsius is also inexorably intertwined with life.

Ice is more than a repository for water that would otherwise raise sea levels. It's part of Earth's cooling system, a barrier preventing decaying organic matter from releasing methane gas, and a vault entombing ancient bacteria and other microbes.

From the Arctic to the Antarctic, global ice is disappearing. Find out what's at stake as atmospheric CO<sup>2</sup> threatens frozen H<sub>2</sub>O.

Climate One Billion Dollar Burger

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Sophie Egan, Author, How to Be a Conscious Eater: Making Food Choices That Are Good for You, Others, and the Planet; Chase Purdy, Author, Billion Dollar Burger: Inside Big Tech's Race for the Future of Food; Riana Lynn, CEO of Journey Foods

Long before the coronavirus began disrupting America's trillion-dollar meat industry, lab-grown proteins were upending the way we consume chicken, pork, and beef. With an environmental footprint far smaller than traditional animal agriculture, are cell-cultured and plant-based meat products — now on the menus of major chains like Burger King — still the future of food? Will food science and tech help us make better-informed decisions for our bodies and the planet, or do we need to get back to basics?

The Best of Our Knowledge No Kid Hungry Report

Host: Bob Barrett

The group No Kid Hungry has released a new report on the state of food insecurity in the US four months into the COVID-19 crisis called “The Longest Summer: Childhood Hunger in the Wake of the Coronavirus.” No Kid Hungry is a national campaign working to end childhood hunger. Their report explores the impact of job loss and school closures on families across the country, particularly their ability to feed their children. Bob spoke about the report with Sky Beard, the director of No Kid Hungry Florida.

“Machine learning” and Artificial Intelligence” are two terms that were coined in the 1950s but only now beginning to be put to solving practical problems. In the past few years, machine learning algorithms have been used to automate the interpretation and analysis of clinical chemistry data in a variety of situations in the lab. In the September 2020 issue of the journal Clinical Chemistry there is a paper on a machine learning approach for the automated interpretation of amino acid profiles in human plasma. The same issue contains an accompanying editorial titled “Machine Learning for the Biochemical Genetics Laboratory.” One of the authors of the editorial is Dr. Stephen Master, Chief of the Division of Laboratory Medicine at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and an Associate Professor of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine at the Perelman School of Medicine of the University of Pennsylvania. Bob asked Dr Master, first of all, what exactly is machine learning, and why would it be significant for the clinical laboratory?

Math's Paths

Hosts: Seth Shostak and Molly Bentley

Guest: Eugenia Cheng – Scientist in Residence at the School of the Art Institute in Chicago, tenured at the School of Mathematics and Statistics at the University of Sheffield, and author of How to Bake Pi; Shankar Venkataramani – Professor of math at the University of Arizona; Steven Strogatz – Professor of applied mathematics at Cornell University and author of Infinite Powers: How Calculus Reveals the Secrets of the Universe; Daniel Finkel – Mathematician and founder and director of operations at “Math for Love”

If you bake, you can appreciate math's transformative properties. Admiring the stackable potato chip is to admire a hyperbolic sheet. Find out why there's no need to fear math - you just need to think outside the cuboid. Also, how nature's geometric shapes inspire the next generation of squishy robots and an argument for radically overhauling math class. The end point of these common factors is acute show that's as fun as eating Pi.

Flooding in America's Heartland

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Julia Kumari Drapkin, CEO and Founder, ISeeChange; Ed Kearns, Chief Data Officer, First Street Foundation; Martha Shulski, Director, Nebraska State Climate Office; Nebraska State Climatologist; Betsy Otto, Global Water Director, World Resources Institute; Jack Mulliken, farmer in Northeast Nebraska

Miami may be the poster child of rising waters in the U.S., but further inland, states are grappling with torrential flooding that is becoming the new norm. Last year, flooding in the southeast killed 12 people and caused $20 billion in damages. This year's rains have already driven Mississippi into a state emergency, and Missouri is bracing itself with a levee system still in disrepair from last year's storms. Can infrastructure like floodplains, wetlands, and engineered barriers save riverside states from their new, saturated norm? How are communities adapting to a changing, wetter climate in some of the most conservative parts of the country?

Skeptic Check: Worrier Mentality

Hosts: Seth Shostak and Molly Bentley

Guest: Eric Chudler – Research associate professor, department of bioengineering, University of Washington, Seattle and co-author of Worried: Science Investigates Some of Life's Common Concerns; Lise Johnson – Director of the Basic Science Curriculum, Rocky Vista University, and co-author of Worried: Science Investigates Some of Life's Common Concerns; Willie Turner – Vice President of Operations at the Hiller Aviation Museum in San Carlos, CA; Charles Wheelan – Senior Lecturer and Policy Fellow, Dartmouth College, and author of Naked Statistics; David Robson – Commissioning Editor for the BBC and author of The Intelligence Trap: Why Smart People Make Dumb Mistakes

Poisonous snakes, lightning strikes, a rogue rock from space. There are plenty of scary things to fret about, but are we burning adrenaline on the right ones? Stepping into the bathtub is more dangerous than flying from a statistical point of view, but no one signs up for “fear of showering” classes.

Find out why we get tripped up by statistics, worry about the wrong things, and how the “intelligence trap” not only leads smart people to make dumb mistakes, but actually causes them to make more.

COVID-19 and Climate: Implications for our Food System

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Lisa Held, Senior Policy Reporter, Civil Eats; Karen Ross, Secretary, California Department of Food and Agriculture; Helene York, Professor, Food Business School, Culinary Institute of America

Coronavirus outbreaks in food markets, food plants, and farmworker communities have impacted food access and put a spotlight on food insecurity. Farmers are hurting as supply chains for fresh, perishable foods shrivel, while food banks have seen a surge in demand that has required distribution support from the National Guard. “Farmers saw a lot of increased demand direct to consumer, which requires extra labor, extra packaging -- just so much time essentially creating a whole new business model,” says Lisa Held, Senior Reporter with Civil Eats. Will COVID-19 change our food system for good?

Climate Change Through the Artists' Eyes with Alonzo King

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Alonzo King, Choreographer and Founder, LINES Ballet; Nora Lawrence, Senior Curator, Storm King Art Center; Adam Schoenberg, Composer

Can art help us process our changing climate? The story of climate change is typically told in the language of facts and figures, graphs and charts. But through dance, music, sculpture and other media, artists can reach people on a deeper and more emotional level, designing cultural moments that can bring us together - and bring us to tears. Choreographer Alonzo King sees the union of art and science as the perfect balancing act. "There is nothing that exists that you can create that does not have science -- it's impossible," says King. "There's nothing that doesn't have music. It's impossible." A conversation about art, beauty and humanity in the age of climate disruption.

Polluting and Providing: The Dirty Energy Dilemma

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Derrick Hollie, President, Reaching America; Jacqueline Patterson, Director, NAACP Environmental and Climate Justice Program; Ivan Penn, Alternative Energy Reporter, The New York Times; Vien Truong, Climate Justice Director, Tom Steyer PAC

The cost and health burdens of electricity production have long been higher for low-income communities of color than for wealthy white ones. But for many of those communities the fossil fuel industry is also a source of jobs, tax dollars, and cheap energy. "It makes it difficult for anyone to speak out against the hand that's feeding them," says Ivan Penn, Alternative Energy Reporter for the New York Times. "The NAACP would typically support the positions of the utility companies." So is the industry an example of community leadership, manipulative greenwashing — or something in between?

Melting Ice and Rising Seas

Host: Dave Schlom

Guests: Josh Willis, NASA/JPL oceanographer; Thomas Frederickse, NASA/JPL postdoctoral fellow

Dave talks to two NASA climate scientists on the topic of global sea level rise. First, longtime friend of Blue Dot Josh Willis joins us to talk about the difficulties of collecting data from Greenland's massive ice sheets in a time of pandemic and discusses the rigors of peer reviewed research. Then NASA/JPL Postdoctoral Fellow Thomas Frederickse visits with us from the Netherlands. He led a breakthrough study on the water cycle budget that for decades has mysteriously underestimated the observed rising of global sea levels. Thomas also gives some insight in what it's like to be on the famed Jet Propulsion Laboratory campus.

Climate One Living With Fire

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Wade Crowfoot, California Secretary of Natural Resources; Julie Cart, Reporter, CalMatters; Leroy Westerling, Professor of Management of Complex Systems, University of California Merced; Vin Gupta, Affiliate Assistant Professor of Health Metrics Sciences at the Institute for Health Metrics and Evaluation (IHME) at the University of Washington; Lenya Quinn-Davidson, Director of the Northern California Prescribed Fire Council.

Wildfires are nothing new – they've been part of the west's ecology for millennia. But burning fossil fuels and suppressing the burning of forests over the past century have led to larger, more frequent and ever-more catastrophic wildfires. And burning trees release carbon dioxide. California's fires now are so big and fierce that they threaten to erase the state's progress in reducing greenhouse gas emissions. And even for those miles from the flames, the smoke from raging wildfires presents an extra danger in the age of coronavirus. "How and when exposure to wildfire smoke increases the likelihood of infection with COVID-19, we're still trying to figure that out," says Vin Gupta of the Institute for Health Metrics and Evaluation at the University of Washington. "But there is a clear symmetry between exposure and the likelihood of infection."

Host: Greg Dalton

Guests: Daniel Yergin, Author, The New Map: Energy, Climate, and the Clash of Nations; Roger Martin, Author, When More is Not Better: Overcoming America's Obsession with Economic Efficiency

From pipelines to clean power, the world's biggest economies are brokering developments in oil, gas, and renewables that will shape climate and politics for years to come.
