WLOR-AM Public Service - First Quarter, 2015

January 13:

Jimbo & Casio served as keynote speakers at the Rotaract Club luncheon. The club is a feeder to the Rotary Club of Huntsville. We explained that any members that perform public service are welcome to visit the station to promote their event. The message spawned several visits from Rotaract members.

January 28:

Jimbo & Casio hosted a student from West Point High School for a job-shadowing day as a community service. The occasion was supervised by the Career Coaching Program at Wallace State Community College. The young man was so excited by what he saw and did, he was instrumental in creating a radio station for his high school.

February 4:

Rob Steingruber from the Multiple Sclerosis Society came in to spread the word about their event "MS Society Challenge Walk." Specifically, he was promoting an evening of silent auction at the Phuket Thai Restaurant. Funds were being raised for Team MSerables.

February 18:

Joanna Broad White came in to promote and discuss the importance of Panoply, a festival thrown by the Arts Council. Panoply is an Arts Festival that includes a children's drawing tent where kids learn to draw. Also, live music, local art, dining and dancing is provided.

March 3:

Tracy Cieniewicz promoted and discussed the 17th annual UCP fundraiser, An Irish Evening held on March 6th. The event is a fund-raiser to enable the local UCP chapter to provide goods and services to those local people in need.

March 5:

Shannon Drake from Still Serving Veterans came in to discuss their job fair service to local veterans. Serving Veterans assist Veterans in envisioning, planning, seeking, and finding meaningful careers – not "just a job any job." The Veteran Employment Services team will partner with each client to clarify their unique career goals, to develop effective search and networking strategies, and to create strong resumes - both written and "Google" which are essential elements of today's job search. Working with Veteran Friendly Employers, Still Serving Veterans provides clients with job announcements as well as Job Fair and other educational opportunities.
