It is not open to the general public. Prevea Health President and CEO Dr. Ashok Rai joined us Friday on Action 2 News This Morning to talk about that testing process, the drug Remdesivir, and the Red Cross and plasma donations. |
| 12p | May 1, 2020 | 0:30 | Whole Foods plans to join other stores in asking customers to wear masks while shopping — and if you don't have your own, the store will offer them for free, according to an Amazon blog post. The change is expected "within the next week" and will affect Whole Foods stores nationwide. The company says they have provided more than 100 million masks to the global Amazon operations network and Whole Foods Market stores. The masks have been available to Amazon associates, delivery service partners, Amazon Flex participants, seasonal employees and team members at Whole Foods locations. |

| 4p | May 1, 2020 | 0:30 | Lessons learned from a coronavirus outbreak aboard the aircraft carrier USS Theodore Roosevelt played a central role in limiting damage when the virus hit a second Navy ship at sea. On the day that the USS Kidd learned that it had its first COVID-19 case, a team of Navy medical specialists was flown aboard to ramp up testing and detect likely hot spots aboard the destroyer off the coast of Central America. Even before the Kidd arrived to assist in a counter-drug operation, its crew had conducted a quarantine-and-isolation drill as part of a Roosevelt-derived protocol for Navy ships at sea. |
| 4p | May 1, 2020 | 0:30 | Researchers in Germany say the only way to combat the coronavirus is through contact tracing. The four top medical research societies made a rare joint statement, saying that the only viable option right now is curbing new infections. They believe that trying to achieve "herd immunity" would take several years and still lead to restrictive measures. Instead they say the best approach is reducing new infections until effective contact tracing is possible. |

| 4p | May 4, 2020 | 1:00 | Chad Reader, the President of Country Villa Assisted Living in Pulaski, issued a statement late Saturday morning confirming there has been one case of COVID-19 at the facility. According to Reader, the case was confirmed on Monday, April 27, and the facility then immediately started their emergency protocol, with Reader saying all residents were isolated to their rooms in order to contain further spread. The statement didn't say if the person who was confirmed to have the virus was an employee or a resident. |
| 4p | May 4, 2020 | 0:30 | A White House model predicts a dramatic jump in the U.S. daily death toll from COVID-19. An internal document obtained by the New York Times shows the Trump administration model projects the number of daily deaths reaching about 3,000 by June 1. The report states the increase is nearly double the current number of daily COVID-19 deaths. While an official cautions that the numbers are just projections, it is based on modeling from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. FEMA put the data into charts and graphs. |
| 4p | May 4, 2020 | 0:30 | The Food and Drug Administration, under fire for allowing more than 100 commercial coronavirus antibody tests on the market without review, moved Monday to assert oversight, saying the tests will have to pass agency muster, including meeting standards for quality and accuracy. Officials said "unscrupulous actors" have been "marketing fraudulent test kits and using the pandemic as an opportunity to take advantage of Americans' anxiety." The FDA action came after the agency was criticized for a March 16 policy that allowed commercial test makers to sell antibody tests after validating their own data and notifying the FDA. The result, some testing experts said, was a flood of products of dubious quality that confused hospitals, doctors and consumers — "a wild, wild West" environment, said Scott Becker, chief executive officer of the Association of Public Health Laboratories, which represents state and local public laboratories. He and others in the laboratory field urged the agency to exert its authority over the tests. |

| 12p | May 6, 2020 | 0:30 | The Wisconsin Department of health opened a facility Tuesday that will provide decontamination services for health workers across the state facing a shortage of personal protective equipment. The facility in Madison was granted technology from FEMA and Battelle that cleans and sanitizes N95 respiratory masks. Health workers rely on the masks to keep themselves and patients safe during the coronavirus pandemic. The Battelle CCDS decontaminates masks by killing viruses and bacteria using hydrogen peroxide gas. Masks can be decontaminated up to 20 times. The system will be able to decontaminate tens of thousands of N95 masks on a daily basis. |
| 4p | May 6, 2020 | 1:00 | Wisconsin set a new record for COVID-19 test results with 4,194 tests received since Tuesday afternoon. The percentage of positive tests fell for a third straight day -- the first time that's happened in over a month. The state added 335 new confirmed cases. That was 8% of the test results and brought the state's total to 8,901 coronavirus patients. Nine more deaths were in the state's report, which brought the death toll of COVID-19 patients to 362, or 4% of cases. For comparison, Wisconsin had 2,440 confirmed coronavirus cases and 77 deaths one month ago. |

| 4p | May 7, 2020 | 1:15 | Wisconsin saw a huge increase in the number of coronavirus test results on Wednesday, shattering the previous record for a second day in a row. Unfortunately, the state also saw 12 more COVID-19 deaths and a sharp increase in the number of hospitalizations. According to the Department of Health Services data released Thursday afternoon, there are now 9,215 confirmed coronavirus cases in Wisconsin. That's an increase of 314, which is on the low end of increases in the past week. That represents 5.69% of the record 5,523 test results. We had to look back to March 24 to find a lower percentage. The percent of positive results has declined for 4 days in a row, which hasn't happened since the state's first COVID-19 diagnosis on February 5 according to our records. |
| 4p | May 7, 2020 | | A 12th COVID-19 patient in Brown County has died, according to the public health department. The patient was an 86-year-old man who lived in the 54162 ZIP code. No other identifying information was released about the patient. Public Health Strategist Claire Paprocki announced Thursday that Brown County had recording 1,704 confirmed cases of COVID-19. That's a 69-case increase from Wednesday. "I think it's obvious we saw an increase of 69 additional positive cases, but at the same time we're seeing increased testing, so let's hope that's a continued trend," said County Executive Troy Streckenbach. "And of course, I'm saddened to see we have another death in Brown County." |

| 12p | May 8, 2020 | 1:00 | There are encouraging signs in Wisconsin's fight against COVID-19, and that has a lot to do with the state's response. Prevea Health President & CEO Dr. Ashok Rai joined us on Action 2 News This Morning to talk about reopening plans, a decline in percentage of positive tests, the success in Wisconsin and hope for gathering in the stands for the NFL season. "They didn't rely on the federal government. They really made it a Wisconsin solution and it's really working out really well. And you can see that overall in the state. But our ability to go in and go to a hot spot and control it through testing has definitely been proven here in Brown County," says Dr. Rai. |
| 4p | May 8, 2020 | 1:00 | Coronavirus testing diagnosed 375 more patients in Wisconsin, the state Department of Health Services reported Friday afternoon, bringing the state's total to 9,590 patients. At the current rate, Wisconsin will reach an unwanted milestone with 10,000 cases on Sunday. Ten more COVID-19 patients died, bringing this pandemic's death toll to 384. The state received results of 4,605 tests. That's well below the record 5,523 we saw Thursday but 400 more tests than the previous record. 8.14% of those results were positive, a sharp increase from Thursday's 5.69% that was near a record low. |

| 4p | May 11, 2020 | 0:45 | COVID-19 testing declined over the weekend, and so did the number of confirmed cases in the state. The good news, though, is the percentage of tests that were positive also stayed low. The latest state numbers Monday show 3,069 test results came back since Sunday afternoon. They confirmed 199 new cases, bringing the state's total to 10,418. It's the first time the daily increase was under 200 since April 27. 6.48% of the tests were positive, a decline from Sunday and the lowest percentage since May 7. | 4p | May 18, 2020 | 0:30 | Wisconsin reported the lowest number of new coronavirus patients in almost a month Monday. Out of almost 5,000 tests reported statewide, 144 were positive, or 2.9%. That's the lowest percentage we've seen, and we've been tracking the state numbers back to February 5. It's the lowest daily number of new cases since April 21 (there were 121 new cases that day, when the state's coronavirus caseload was 4,620). There are now 12,687 people in Wisconsin known to have had the coronavirus. |
| 4p | May 18, 2020 | 1:00 | Five more COVID-19 patients have died in Brown County, according to Public Health Strategist Claire Paprocki. That brings the total of COVID-19-related deaths in the county to 26. The additional deaths were reported Monday after the state reported no new deaths on Sunday. The county has confirmed 2,088 positive cases of COVID-19. Oneida Nation reports 26 confirmed cases. Thirty people are hospitalized with COVID-19 in Brown County. That's down from 40 in the hospital on Friday. |
| 4p | May 18, 2020 | 1:00 | A Massachusetts company says its experimental vaccine against the coronavirus showed encouraging results in very early testing. Cambridge-based Moderna Inc. said Monday that its vaccine triggered immune responses in eight healthy, middle-aged volunteers. The experimental vaccine generated antibodies similar to those seen in people who have recovered from COVID-19 in study volunteers who were given either a low or medium dose. The study is being led by the U.S. National Institutes of Health. In the next phase, researchers will try to determine which dose is best for a definitive experiment that they aim to start in July. |

| 4p | May 26, 2020 | 0:45 | Wisconsin received 7,774 more coronavirus test results, the third-most on record, and diagnosed 279 new patients, the state Department of Health Services reported Tuesday afternoon. The percentage of positive results is 3.59%, the third-straight day of decline and the fourth time in May positive results were below 5%. Wisconsin now has 15,863 confirmed cases and 517 deaths, after three more deaths were added to the toll: one each in Grant, Milwaukee and Waukesha counties. |
| 4p | May 26, 2020 | 0:30 | Fond du Lac County's Public Health Officer says recent positive cases of COVID-19 have been linked to gatherings like birthday parties. Over the holiday weekend, the county confirmed 25 new cases of COVID-19. That brings the county-wide total to 182. "Many of these cases are related to current outbreaks we are addressing and actively investigating through our contact tracing," says Public Health Officer Kim Mueller. The source of the outbreaks? Birthday parties and funerals and other get together. |
| 4p | May 26, 2020 | 2:30 | Going to see your primary care provider, having an MRI or a colonoscopy, and being admitted to a hospital — all of these experiences will be different now on because of the coronavirus. Patients will be screened in advance for symptoms and may be tested. They may get a text when their exam room is ready, bypassing waiting areas if possible. And they will likely be asked to come to an appointment alone. |
| 5p | May 26, 2020 | 1:00 | Today's numbers from the Department of Health Services indicate 3.6% of COVID-19 tests returned in the past 24 hours were positive. There were 279 new cases. DHS reports 517 total deaths, three more than yesterday. More than 9,400 people have recovered and are out of isolation. We also had the latest on plans for free, drive-up community testing in Sheboygan this week. |
| 5p | May 26, 2020 | 0:45 | Fond du Lac County health officials say recent cases of COVID-19 are linked to gatherings like birthday parties and funerals. The county confirmed more than two dozen new cases over the holiday weekend, and contact tracing shows some people had symptoms they thought were just seasonal allergies. Fond du Lac County Health Officers Kim Mueller says those gatherings are an even bigger concern than businesses being open. |

The state reported 22 more COVID-19 patients' deaths since its report Tuesday afternoon. The state never reported so many COVID-19 deaths in one day. That brings the state's death toll to 539. After days of declining new case numbers, the state identified 599 more patients with the coronavirus, bringing the state's total to 16,462 cases since early February. That also is the largest one-day increase in the state's reporting, and only the third time the state identified more than 500 patients in a day. |

| 4p | May 27, 2020 | 0:45 | Dr. Anthony Fauci on Wednesday called for a cautious approach to reopening the US and implored Americans to wear face masks in public, comments that are at odds with President Donald Trump's push to have America quickly return to normalcy. Fauci said he believes that while wearing a mask is not "100% effective," it is a valuable safeguard and shows "respect for another person." The wearing of masks while out in public has emerged as a politically charged issue as Trump has called for a return to pre-pandemic life in the hopes of revitalizing the US economy. He has repeatedly declined opportunities to wear a mask in public, telling reporters at a Ford plant in Michigan last week that he "didn't want to give the press the pleasure of seeing it," though he did wear a mask while touring parts of the plant. |
| 4p | May 27, 2020 | 0:30 | More than 62,000 doctors, nurses and other health care providers on the front lines of the U.S.'s COVID-19 crisis have been infected, and at least 291 have died, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported Tuesday. The last time the CDC reported on infections among health care personnel was about six weeks ago, on April 17. At that time, just 9,282 cases of COVID-19 had been documented in the profession. In the April analysis, the median age of sick workers was 42. Nearly three-quarters were women. Those statistics were not made available in the new report. |

| 4p | May 29, 2020 | 0:45 | Friday's report from the Department of Health Services shows the state jumped well past 17,000 confirmed coronavirus cases. For the second time this week, Wisconsin saw a dramatic rise in the number of the coronavirus test results and new cases identified, and also the second-highest death reports in one day. The state's public and private labs completed 13,602 tests -- almost 3,000 more tests than Thursday's record. That's indicative of increased testing in Milwaukee County, which identified 450 new patients. |
| 4p | May 29, 2020 | 1:00 | Children's Wisconsin has identified its first suspected cases of a rare inflammatory condition in children. The condition is known as Multi-System Inflammatory Syndrome in Children (MIS-C). It has been seen in children with COVID-19 or those who have been exposed to the coronavirus. MIS-C is described as "a new and rare inflammatory response that causes swelling in different organs, including the heart, lungs, kidneys, brain, skin, eyes or gastrointestinal organs." |
| 4p | May 29, 2020 | 0:30 | World No Tobacco Day (31st May) will this year mark the danger the tobacco industry poses to young people. The campaign strapline, "If your product killed 8 million people each year, you'd also target a new generation", sets out the challenge plainly – the industry is actively manipulating children and young people into consuming harmful products. However, the difficulties no longer lie solely with traditional tobacco products. The tobacco control community is fighting on several fronts beyond conventional cigarettes: now including novel products like heated tobacco products (HTPs), and electronic nicotine delivery systems (ENDS) and electronic non-nicotine delivery systems (ENNDS), commonly referred to as "e-cigarettes". |
| 5p | May 29, 2020 | 1:15 | Today's numbers from the Department of Health Services indicate 5.4% of COVID-19 tests returned in the past 24 hours were positive. There were 733 new cases. DHS reports 568 total deaths, 18 more than yesterday. More than 10,800 people have recovered and are out of isolation. We also had updates on local mass testing sites. |

| 4p | June 1, 2020 | 0:30 | After days of record test results last week, the state Department of Health Services reported 3,632 test results on Monday -- almost 10,000 fewer tests than the record 13,602 on Friday. From those tests, 140 new coronavirus patients were identified, for a low 3.8% of the total tests..The state's total crept up to 18,543 confirmed cases. In terms of percentage, it's the second-lowest in two weeks (only Sunday's 2.35% was lower). It's also the lowest daily increase in cases since April 21, when the state confirmed 121 cases from 1,359 tests. |
| 4p | June 1, 2020 | 0:30 | A five-day course of the antiviral drug remdesivir sped recovery in moderately ill patients with pneumonia from Covid-19, drugmaker Gilead Sciences announced in a statement Monday. It's more evidence that the drug can help patients, however outside experts are not calling this a "game changer" quite yet. Coronavirus patients who were hospitalized, but not sick enough to need oxygen from a ventilator, were more likely to recover after a five-day course of remdesivir than those given the current standard of care alone, Gilead said. |
| 4p | June 1, 2020 | 0:30 | Officials are asking those who were out amid protests or other gatherings across America over the weekend to self-quarantine if they were not able to maintain social distancing. People across the country have taken to the streets to vent their frustrations over the seeming lack of value for the lives of black men. It was the same week the nation crossed the 100,000 death count from coronavirus. Sunday alone saw an increase of almost 20,000 cases, according to the CNN count compiled with data from John's Hopkins. |
| 5p | June 1, 2020 | 0:45 | 3.9% of coronavirus tests returned within the past 24 hours in Wisconsin were positive, a low mark in the past few weeks. Deaths are nearing 600 statewide, and a little more than 400 people are hospitalized right now for COVID-19. |

Wisconsin's death toll from the disease caused by the coronavirus crossed 600 in the state's latest report. The Department of Health Services reported 12 more deaths Tuesday, bringing the total to 607 COVID-19 patients dead since March 19. That's a known-case death rate of 3.2%. Ten patients died in Milwaukee County; there was one death each in Racine and Washington counties. COVID-19 testing rebounded, with 10,522 test results returned -- well above Monday's 3,632. That's in line with the amount of testing last Wednesday and Thursday. |
| 4p | June 2, 2020 | 1:00 | Door County and Kewaunee County join together to provide a free COVID-19 community testing site. Members of the Wisconsin National Guard set up the testing site outside of the Door County Sheriff's Office on Tuesday morning as part of the team's ongoing mission to conduct COVID-19 testing around the state. "For the guardsman being able to be out in the community and meet the citizens and know that they're helping has really filled us with a good sense of pride," said Lt. Colonel Renee Huber with the Wisconsin National Guard. The number of cases remains relatively low in the two counties targeted by this testing, with state official reporting 38 cases in Door County and 35 cases in Kewaunee County. |

| 10p | June 7, 2020 | 0:30 | The US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on Sunday said it's closely monitoring the demonstrations happening across America. The comments come amid concerns that the protests – like other gatherings – could spur additional coronavirus transmission. Protests and large gatherings make it difficult to maintain our recommended social distancing guidelines and may put others at risk," CDC spokesperson Kristen Nordlund said in a statement. |

That's what Prevea Health President and CEO Dr. Ashok Rai said on Action 2 News This Morning as he discussed race and mental health and the COVID-19 crisis. "Systemic racism has been a public health crisis for over 100 years if not longer. And what we've seen today, or in the last week, is one mental health crisis that has been ongoing for a very long time, and another mental health crisis layered upon that with stay at home orders through COVID-19, which were necessary but definitely created mental health strain. | 4p | June 9, 2020 | 0:30 | Wisconsin approached the record for coronavirus tests in Tuesday's report from the Department of Health Services (DHS), but the news in the report wasn't all good. The DHS reported a 14,227 test results were received in the last 24-hour period. That's second to the record 16,451 test results received June 3. It's almost twice as many tests as Monday, when it received about 7,500 results. Less than 2% of the results were positive (1.90%). That's the lowest percentage since early March, before coronavirus testing in Wisconsin began in earnest, when the state was pushing to get access to coronavirus test materials. |
| 4p | June 9, 2020 | 1:45 | The number of confirmed coronavirus cases in Winnebago County has tripled since the Wisconsin Supreme Court overturned Gov. Tony Ever's safer-at-home order a little over three weeks ago. The Winnebago County Health Department reported a county total of 301 confirmed cases of COVID-19 on Friday, which is up 200 since May 17. Of those 200 new cases, 24 were confirmed by health officials on Friday. "This uptick in cases is especially troubling, because we are also seeing more cases in community settings where the virus spreads rapidly such as nursing homes and daycares," the health department wrote in a news release. |

| 4p | June 9, 2020 | 0:30 | A top World Health Organization expert has tried to clear up "misunderstandings" about comments she made that were widely understood to suggest that people without COVID-19 symptoms rarely transmit the coronavirus. Maria Van Kerkhove, the U.N. health agency's technical lead on the virus pandemic, insisted Tuesday that she was referring only to a few studies, not a complete picture, in the comments she made Monday. Van Kerkhove's remarks on Monday raised confusion and questions among outside experts and health officials who have recommended and in some places required that people wear masks to try to prevent the virus from spreading. |
| 5p | June 9, 2020 | 0:30 | Today's numbers from the Department of Health Services indicate 1.9% of COVID-19 tests returned in the past 24 hours were positive (out of more than 14,000 results). There were 270 new cases. DHS reports 661 total deaths, 15 more than yesterday. More than 14,583 people have recovered and are out of isolation. |
| 5p | June 9, 2020 | 0:30 | The state lists at least 34 new cases in Winnebago County. Health officials noticed a large increase last week among people in their twenties. That age group makes up nearly 40% of the county's coronavirus cases, much larger than its percentage of the population. 75% are tied to the city of Oshkosh. Contact-tracing shows the increase came after bars and restaurants were allowed to reopen, and the virus also spread at Memorial Day gatherings. The county health director says officials are contacting businesses where they are seeing multiple cases. |

| 4p | June 17, 2020 | 1:00 | Dental Associates, Wisconsin's largest family-owned dental group practice with 14 clinics throughout the state and more than 800 staff members, has reopened all of its clinics – two in Green Bay, three in the Appleton area, one in Fond du Lac, four in the Milwaukee area, one in Waukesha, one in Sturtevant and one in Kenosha. Beginning on June 1, Dental Associates slowly began providing routine care, such as cleanings, and elective care, such as fillings and other procedures. The dental group practice is providing services to both existing and new patients and, in some cases, is offering video visits as an alternative to in-person appointments. |
| 4p | June 17, 2020 | 2:00 | A Fox Valley orthopedic surgeon marks a milestone today, tied to the incredible advancements in hip replacement surgery. Dr. Lohrbach, with Orthopedic & Sports Institute of the Fox Valley, says even he is amazed at the pace at which hip replacement surgery is heading. "In 2000 we did 138,000 hip replacements and then the next decade mark in 2010 it was 310,000, and they anticipate now when we have the next measure which would be this year, maybe a little off with the current pandemic, but they're predicting over a half million hip replacements done in the United States," says Dr. Lohrbach. |

| 4p | June 18, 2020 | 0:30 | The percentage of positive COVID-19 test results and the number of new cases in Wisconsin reached a two-week high Thursday. The Department of Health Services reports there were 10,599 tests. Almost 4% (3.98%) of these were positive, resulting in 422 confirmed new cases. The positive test rate has been below 3% for twelve of the past 14 days. |
| 4p | June 18, 2020 | 0:30 | Florida has shattered its previous record for the number of coronavirus cases recorded in a day. The Florida Department of Health on Thursday reported 85,926 coronavirus cases statewide, a daily jump of 3,207 cases, the largest daily increase since the start of the pandemic in March. The previous record - 2,783 cases - occurred Tuesday. The state has had at least 3,061 related deaths. At least some of the increase reflects expanded testing, especially among people who are younger and without symptoms. But the rate of positive tests also has been ticking upward in recent days, raising alarm. |

| 4p | June 22, 2020 | 0:30 | While the World Health Organization is concerned about surges in coronavirus cases worldwide and in some U.S. states, Wisconsin appears to be holding a steady course. Based on only 6,549 test results the state compiled in the past 24 hours, 3.8% of tests were positive. Another 249 cases were diagnosed, putting Wisconsin at 25,068 cases. The percentage of positive test results has not been above 5% this month, although we've seen much higher numbers for daily testing. Wisconsin is diagnosing more than 1,000 cases every 3 or 4 days. The number of cases has doubled in about 5 weeks; the state had 12,543 cases on May 17. |
| 4p | June 22, 2020 | 0:30 | The American biopharmaceutical company Gilead Sciences will soon start trials of an inhalable version of remdesivir, an antiviral drug that has shown promise as a therapeutic against the coronavirus in early trials, according to a statement released Monday. Remdesivir is currently given intravenously, which restricts its use to hospital settings. "That's been the limitation" with this drug, said Dr. Mangala Narasimhan, a pulmonologist and regional director of critical care medicine at Northwell Health. |

They're still working on testing all of the people in the system, but say they're about half way done. In order to limit the spread of the disease they are limiting visitations but getting new equipment for a virtual set up. |
| 4p | June 23, 2020 | 0:30 | The Wisconsin DHS reports a large spike in coronavirus test results which were returned within the past 24 hours. On Tuesday, 11,794 test results were returned compared to Monday's total test results of 6,549, a difference of 5,245. Out of the total number of tests, 263 were positive for the virus, which equals 2.2%. That brings the cumulative amount of positive cases across the state since testing began to 25,331. Five new deaths were reported, bringing the statewide death total since testing began to 750. Another 37 people were hospitalized, bringing the total of hospitalizations for that same time period in the state to 3,268. On Monday, that number was 3,231. |
| 4p | June 23, 2020 | 1:00 | The Wisconsin Department of Health Services released a new dashboard Tuesday afternoon that highlights the active spread of COVID-19 by county, a move the department says is intended to give local decision makers more information. DHS has provided county-level data since March on the spread of COVID-19, but almost all of the data is cumulative, tracking the entire outbreak which has now gone on for more than 100 days. The new dashboard looks at data over a two-week window. So while the existing dashboard says Racine County has had a cumulative case rate of 1,069.6 cases per 100,000 residents, the new dashboard lists a 14-day figure of 120 cases per 100,000 residents. The two-week window drops Racine County from second-worst in Wisconsin to fourth. |

| 4p | June 26, 2020 | 0:30 | The World Health Organization, together with partner organizations, aims to secure 2 billion doses of coronavirus vaccines by the end of 2021, unveiling Friday a creative plan to ensure high-risk groups around the world have access to any vaccine that's successfully developed. The health agency estimates $11 billion will be needed over the next six months to put its plan into action, and just over $18 billion through 2021, at which point the WHO hopes to have brought the acute phase of the coronavirus pandemic to an end. Through the WHO's plan, countries would be able to pool their resources to invest in the development a broad portfolio of experimental vaccines, obtaining in return a guaranteed share of the resulting supplies. The idea is to lessen the risk of betting on any one vaccine, while creating a mechanism by which doses are fairly allocated during the initial stages of a vaccine's availability. |

| 5p | June 26, 2020 | 0:45 | Today's numbers from the Department of Health Services indicate about 5.7% of COVID-19 tests returned in the past 24 hours were positive (out of more than 9,000 results). There were 520 new cases. DHS reports 766 total deaths, no more than yesterday. More than 21,174 people have recovered. We also had information on local cases and statewide hospitalizations. |
| 6p | June 26, 2020 | 0:45 | Wisconsin saw a jump in coronavirus cases with the release of Friday's state health report and a the largest percentage of tests coming back positive in almost a month. The Department of Health Services reports there were 9,127 tests and 5.7% came back positive, adding 520 new cases. Wisconsin has now seen 26,747 positive tests while more than 500,000 tests (507,168) came back negative since the state began collecting these numbers. |
| 10p | June 26, 2020 | 1:45 | As bars and brewers in Green Bay work to reopen and bring customers back, they're keeping an eye on how the coronavirus is impacting other places. Badger State brewing is opening for the first time in three months. They're making sure to disinfect and keeping certain areas closed. They are one of many that have kept their eye on the potential of another shut down. |

| 4p | June 29, 2020 | 0:45 | The Wisconsin State Health Department says more than 28,000 people have now tested positive for the coronavirus, after 315 more cases were confirmed. The state reported only 5,927 test results Monday afternoon -- the fewest since June 1st. The new cases represent 5.31% of the tests, the fourth day in a row that percentage was above 5% but down from Sunday's five-week peak of 7%. Wisconsin added 3,000 confirmed cases in one week. Previously, the state's cases were increasing at a rate of 1,000 every 3 or 4 days. For a second day the death toll remained unchanged, at 777. That hasn't happened since the end of March, in the early days of the coronavirus outbreak in Wisconsin, when there were only 19 deaths and 1,351 confirmed cases. |

| 4p | June 29, 2020 | 1:45 | Three female COVID-19 patients died over the weekend in Brown County as trends show a higher percentage of positive cases. In total, 42 coronavirus patients have died in Brown County. As of Monday, fourteen coronavirus patients are hospitalized in Brown County. The county's positive test total jumped by 88 over the weekend. Overall, 2,857 people have tested positive for coronavirus in Brown County. |
| 4p | June 29, 2020 | 0:30 | The maker of a drug shown to shorten recovery time for severely ill COVID-19 patients says it will charge $2,340 for a typical treatment course for people covered by government health programs in the United States and other developed countries. Gilead Sciences announced the price Monday for remdesivir, and said the price would be $3,120 for patients with private insurance. It will sell for far less in poorer countries where generic drugmakers are being allowed to make it. Critics swiftly attacked the price because taxpayers have funded much of the drug's development, and because remdesivir has not been shown to improve survival. |

| 4p | June 30, 2020 | 0:45 | More than 600 new coronavirus cases (601) were diagnosed in the latest batch of tests reported to the Wisconsin Department of Health Services, the most new cases in a 24-hour period than any day since May 29. The higher number could be attributed to the higher number of tests. The state received 12,781 results, the first time in three weeks that figure was above 12,000. The positive tests were 4.7% of that number, which is a decline from the past four days but otherwise is higher than any other of the other days this month. Seven more deaths bring the state's COVID-19 death toll to 784, after two days when no deaths were reported to the state. Barron County reported its first COVID-19 death. The state report also added deaths in Milwaukee (1), Outagamie (1), Racine (2), Rock and Waupaca (1) counties. |

The government's top infectious disease expert told a Senate hearing Tuesday that he's "very concerned." | 12p | April 14, 2020 | 0:30 | South Korea's military says a barrage of North Korean missiles fired from the ground and fighter jets has splashed down in the waters off the country's east coast - a major show of force on the eve of a key state anniversary in the North and parliamentary elections in the rival South. The back-to-back launches Tuesday were the most high-profile among a series of weapons tests that North Korea has conducted recently amid stalled nuclear talks and outside worries about a possible coronavirus outbreak in the country. All the recently tested missiles were short-range and didn't pose a direct threat to the U.S. mainland. |
| 12p | April 14, 2020 | 0:30 | Ukrainian emergency officials say they have managed to put out forest fires in the radiation-contaminated area near the Chernobyl nuclear power plant. At the same time, they acknowledged it would take a few more days to extinguish grass that's still smoldering in some parts. Hundreds of firefighters backed by aircraft have been battling several forest fires around the decommissioned Chernobyl plant for the past 10 days. They contained the initial blazes, but new fires raged closer to the decommissioned plant. Emergencies Service chief Mykola Chechetkin reported to President Volodymyr Zelenskiy Tuesday that rains helped firefighters put out open flames, but the grass was still smoldering in some areas. |

The gunman, a Saudi Air Force officer, was killed by a sheriff's deputy during the rampage at a classroom building where he had been undergoing flight training. The FBI learned of the contacts between Mohammed Saeed Alshamrani and operatives of al-Qaida after breaking the encryption on cellphones that had previously been locked and that the shooter had tried to destroy before being killed by law enforcement. |

He was sentenced him to 16 years in prison Monday after a closed trial that the U.S. denounced as a "mockery of justice." Whelan, a former Marine from Novi, Michigan, has insisted he was innocent, saying his 2018 arrest in Moscow was a setup. U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said Washington had "serious concerns that Mr. Whelan was deprived of the fair trial guarantees that Russia is required to provide him in accordance with its international human rights obligations." The 50-year-old Whelan has complained of poor prison conditions. His twin brother, David, said Whelan underwent an emergency hernia operation. Pompeo called his treatment "appalling." |

The demolition of the empty building is largely symbolic. But it's still the most provocative thing North Korea has done since it entered nuclear diplomacy in 2018 after a U.S.-North Korean standoff had many fearing war. It will pose a serious setback to the efforts of liberal South Korean President Moon Jae-in to restore inter-Korean engagement. North Korea's official Korean Central News Agency said the nation destroyed the office in a "terrific explosion." |

The moves would nullify the landmark tension-reducing deals reached during diplomacy with the South in 2018. The announcement came a day after North Korea destroyed an inter-Korean liaison office in a display of anger over propaganda leaflets sent across the tense border. It was the most provocative act by North Korea since it entered nuclear talks in 2018. The Diamond Mountain resort and the Kaesong industrial complex just north of the Koreas' heavily armed border were once symbols of inter-Korean cooperation. |

Twenty Indian troops were reportedly killed in the clashes Monday night in the Ladakh region's Galwan Valley, while it was not clear whether China suffered any casualties. Indian security forces said neither side fired any shots, with some officials saying the soldiers were carrying anti-riot gear rather than weapons. It was the deadliest conflict between the sides in 45 years and dramatically raised the stakes in the standoff between the nuclear-armed Asian giants. |
