Synopsis:	Buffalo Announces 2015 Capital Budget. The budget, meant to make improvements to city-owned properties, features a $6 million dollar portion that will go to restoring city infrastructure. Over $3M will go municipal building improvements, including the City Court and a Music Hall. Investors are also hoping the million that the budget allocates for a 600-unit housing development will spur area development in run-down neighborhoods. Other budget highlights include $2.5 million to the demolition of unsalvageable structures that officials say are deterrents to investment, $1.4 million for phase 2 of the Niagara Street Gateway, and $500,000 for city-wide bridge rehabilitation.

Synopsis:	Federal energy regulators have approved a $700 million pipeline project designed to ferry cheap Marcellus Shale natural gas from Pennsylvania into high-priced markets in New England and New York. The project's backers said Wednesday the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's approval means the 124-mile Constitution Pipeline could be operational by next winter. The lead partners are Tulsa, Oklahoma-based Williams Partners and Houston-based Cabot Oil & Gas. Williams says Marcellus Shale gas is about half the cost of the Gulf of Mexico gas that typically reaches Boston and New York City through the existing pipelines.

Synopsis:	Sixteen bidders vying for up to 4 licenses will be waiting with baited breath as the Gaming Facility Board lines up to announce its picks for the first private casinos in state history. The announcement comes at 2 p.m. today near the state capitol and will cap off over a year of deliberations among Governor Andrew Cuomo, the state legislature, and the gaming board. In the Family Life listening area there are 3 contenders-- the town of Tyre, Nichols, and Johnson City. After the selections are announced, the gaming commission will review the winning applicants and issue the actual licenses, a process that could take several months.

Synopsis:	NY to Ban Fracking: Governor Andrew Cuomo announced Wednesday that the Empire State will ban hydraulic fracturing, after a long-awaited report concluded that the oil and gas extraction method poses health risks. An order will be issued early next year banning the process, which has been under a moratorium since 2008. The decision ends what has been a fierce debate in New York over the benefits and pitfalls of fracking, a process that involves pumping water, sand and chemicals into a well to extract oil or gas. New York will join Vermont as the only states to completely prohibit fracking.

Synopsis:	For the seventh straight year, drivers will pay more in the new year to ride on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. Tolls are increasing by five percent for all customers, whether paying with cash or EZ Pass. The Turnpike Commission said the increase is needed so they can pay the State Department of Transportation the amount required under a transportation funding law from 2007. They also cited continued maintenance on the roughly 555-mile system as a reason for the new rates.

Synopsis:	While the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission is hurting financially, they're doing something the agency has never done before. To interest more folks in fishing in the Commonwealth, the Commission is reducing the price of a one year fishing license by $1, or approximately 5 percent for resident and non-resident licenses. Officials are hoping the price cut will catch the attention of many people who haven't fished in a few years, or who have wanted to try fishing but mistakenly have thought that prices have increased like they have for other products and activities.

Synopsis:	SUNY Schools to Raise Tuition by $300 Tuition at all 65 SUNY campuses will go up next year by $300. The hike will bring in-state student tuition up to $6,470. This increase marks the fifth and final year of phased increases that were approved in 2011 as part of the SUNY 2020 program, a measure meant to give the 64-campus system the autonomy to increase tuition annually without legislative consent. College officials say the extra funds will go toward salary raises for faculty and staff, new academic programs, and student services. The new tuition will likely take effect April 1st, 2015.

Synopsis:	The 2014 regular deer and bear hunting seasons opened at sunrise on Saturday, November 15, in New York's Southern Zone. These big game seasons close at sunset on Sunday, December 7. The Southern Zone Regular Season is New York's most popular hunting season, with participation from about 85 percent of New York's 550,000 licensed hunters. Harvest during this season accounts for nearly 60 percent of the total statewide deer harvest and 30-60 percent of the statewide bear harvest. With the October 1 start to the bow season in the Southern Zone and a special Youth Firearms Deer Hunt over Columbus Day Weekend, many big game hunters have already enjoyed fruitful hunts. Following the regular deer and bear seasons in the Southern Zone, late bowhunting and muzzleloading seasons will open at sunrise on December 8 and close at sunset on December 16. Hunters taking part in these special seasons must possess either bowhunting or muzzleloading privileges. In the Northern Zone, the regular deer and bear hunting season opened October 25 and will close at sunset on December 7. This zone generally includes the Adirondacks, Tug Hill Plateau, Eastern Lake Ontario Plain and the Champlain and St. Lawrence Valleys. A late archery and muzzleloading season for deer will be open in portions of the Northern Zone from December 8 to December 14.

Synopsis:	The gap between what wealthy districts and poor districts spend to educate children has widened dramatically in the four years since GOP Gov. Tom Corbett took office, amid deep budget-balancing cuts in state aid under Republican-controlled Harrisburg and long-delayed pension obligation payments coming due. According to an Associated Press analysis of state data on spending, income and attendance, gaps that existed when Corbett took office have now more than doubled. The growing disparity that Corbett's successor, Democrat Tom Wolf, will inherit has helped Pennsylvania earn the label in one study as being among the worst states in educational disparity.

Synopsis:	Aside from the governor's race, that has political pundits favoring a republican Tom Wolf to beat Tom Corbett in the polls, the GOP is expected to have the majority of victories in the Keystone State. Republicans are expected to keep the 13 congressional seats they already hold in PA, leaving 5 to democrats, and to keep their hold on the PA legislature. Experts say that part of the reason for the stability is that Republicans control most of the competitive congressional and state legislative districts, and the national atmosphere is in their favor.Redistricting, too, has left fewer competitive districts on the map, either for state seats or Congress. Of 203 Pennsylvania state House seats, 105 candidates don't even have an opponent.

Synopsis:	Businessman Tom Wolf has been elected governor after spending $10 million of his own money on a powerful TV ad campaign that helped send Governor Tom Corbett to a historic defeat. With yesterday's victory, the Democrat will be Pennsylvania's 47th governor and the first since 1979 never to have held elective office. Corbett is the first incumbent to lose in the four decades since Pennsylvania's chief executive was allowed to run again.

Synopsis:	Incumbent New York 23rd Congressional District Representative Tom Reed (R) has declared victory over Democratic challenger Martha Robertson. This will be Reed's third term in Congress. Reed, became a congressman in 2010 after his predecessor Eric Massa resigned because of a sexual harassment scandal. Reed, in office since 2010, beat Democratic nominee Matthew Zeller in an election that year, and immediately assumed Massa's seat. Prior to Congress, Reed served as the mayor of Corning.

Synopsis:	Tallies 24 hours ago between 15-term congresswoman Slaughter and her Republican Challenger, Mark Assini, had them just 600 votes apart. After the election board counted absentee ballots all day Wednesday, she was still 651 votes ahead. She released a statement declaring victory last night-- but Assini says it's not over-- until every vote is counted. The County Board of Elections says about 13-hundred absentee ballots won't be able to be counted until next week-- meaning it may be another week-- before we have an answer on the winner. Slaughter represents the 25th district, which covers the Rochester area.

Synopsis:	Pennsylvania Senate leaders of both parties are suing Gov. Tom Corbett over his vetoes of spending bills as the state budget was enacted this summer. The lawsuit argues that the Republican governor did not follow rules for providing public notice of vetoes, he used the line-item veto on the wrong type of legislation and he put the money in an unlawful reserve. Corbett's spokesman and legal office say the lawsuit is being reviewed.

Synopsis:	Governor Cuomo won 80%-90% of the vote in the five boroughs that make up New York City. But upstate, he took only 8 counties from Rob Astorino, the republican challenger in last week's governors race. Cuomo claimed less than a third of the vote in 15 counties. If it were a county by county election, then Astorino won hands-down, claiming 46 of New York's 62 counties.

Synopsis:	Pennsylvania Attorney General Kathleen Kane has been unable to testify into a grand jury investigation into possible improper leaks by her office. Last month's testimony was delayed after Kane was in an early-morning car crash in Lackawanna County on October 21st, just hours before she was set to testify. Kane suffered a concussion and was unable to take the stand. Her testimony has been rescheduled for later this month. The grand jury expires within a few weeks. This morning, the 48 year old attorney general is recuperating and working from her home in Clarks Summit-- after doctors forbade her to travel. A special prosecutor is examining how confidential records about a 2009 investigation ran by her Republican predecessors became public.

Synopsis:	Republicans in the General Assembly in Harrisburg are flirting with the idea of divvying up electoral votes based on congressional districts - and doing away with the "winner takes all" approach to deciding presidential elections. This process comes as the GOP controls both the General Assembly and PA senate. Democrats argue dividing electoral votes is not fair to the democratic process. There are 23 electoral votes in the keystone state.

Synopsis:	Supporters of a higher minimum wage want New York Governor Andrew Cuomo to push the issue in a lame-duck legislative session before Republicans take control of the state Senate next year. Experts say, proposals to boost the wage to $10.10 an hour and allow New York City to raise it even higher will face opposition next year following big GOP victories in last week's elections. Cuomo says he doesn't expect lawmakers to convene before January, but democrats say the Governor should call a special session to make good on his promise of a wage increase. Meanwhile, a state board will meet today in Buffalo to consider raising the minimum wage for servers and other tipped workers.

Synopsis:	The state Senate took a conservative turn Wednesday when Republicans ousted Senator Dominic Pileggi, one of the chamber's more moderate voices, as majority leader. After eight years as leader, Pileggi lost a challenge from Senator Jake Corman, the chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee. Corman was backed by a group of conservative senators - as well as Senate President Pro Tempore Joe Scarnati - who sources have said believed Pileggi was blocking their agenda and was too moderate to lead the chamber for the next two years.

Synopsis:	Corbett to Push For PA Medicaid Overhaul Despite his election loss this month, Gov. Tom Corbett's lame-duck administration is moving ahead on implementing its Healthy PA Medicaid overhaul — even though Governor-elect Tom Wolf has said he plans to scrap it in favor of a straightforward Medicaid expansion. Corbett's Healthy PA plan would offer federal subsidies to as many as 600,000 low-income Pennsylvanians to purchase private insurance policies.

Synopsis:	Governor-elect Tom Wolf is expected to push for change affecting two high-profile industries in Pennsylvania — natural gas production and health care — when he takes office in two months. The York County Democrat successfully campaigned on a number of policy differences with Governor Tom Corbett, including a pledge to extract more tax revenue from natural gas drillers and fully comply with the Affordable Care Act. Experts say it looks likely that Wolf will prevail in achieving both goals, though it will probably involve some degree of compromise with the leaders in the General Assembly where Republicans increased majorities in both chambers.

Synopsis:	As she faces a grand jury probe into alleged leaks, Attorney General Kathleen Kane is once again reshuffling her top staff. On Tuesday, Kane named a former top aide to the Arkansas attorney general as her chief of staff.

	Kane also said she will be hiring a new communications director - her fourth top communications staffer in less than two years. According to Kane's office, Blake Rutherford will become chief of staff, a position that her predecessors used but one she chose not to fill after taking office. Rutherford had been a top aide to Arkansas Attorney General Dustin McDaniel, whose term ends next year.
