Crime

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Oct. 27, 2023

Community conversations, led by the Co-Founders of Trust Marketing Beverly and Howard Robertson, were recently held around the Memphis and Shelby County area. Part of a Daily Memphian series, these conversations were aimed at gathering the public's opinion on local crime. Joining this week's WKNO-TV Behind the Headlines with host Eric Barnes and The Daily

Memphian reporter Bill Dries, Beverly and Howard Robertson discuss the results of the community conversations, including responses about the causes of violent crime and some solutions that could be had.

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Nov. 3, 2023

On January 2, 2024 Paul Young will take the office as the next Mayor of Memphis. Young managed to raise over 1.2 million dollars for his campaign and dedicates his campaign's success to consistent grassroots efforts. Currently, Young says he is in a transitioning period as he is meeting with local officials and assessing what his top priorities and agenda will be as Mayor of Memphis. So far, Young says that crime is a main concern among citizens, as well as improving public services / goods like the conditions of roads and MATA. Joining this week's WKNO-TV Behind the Headlines with host Eric Barnes, Young discusses his plans for Mayor of Memphis.

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Dec. 1, 2023

A new safety plan has been proposed, which is composed of recommendations like more police presence, Beale Street alcohol sales ending at 2 a.m., greater walking accessibility and more. The Director of Safety and Hospitality for Downtown Memphis Commission Lawrence Green says the plan will aim at making Downtown Memphis more welcoming and accessible, which in return will have a major impact on investments and citizen satisfaction. Green joins the Executive Director for U of M Public Safety Institute Bill Gibbons and Former MPD Director Michael Rallings for this week's Channel 10 Behind the Headlines with host Eric Barnes and the Daily Memphian reporter Bill Dries. Guests talk about what led to the need for such a plan, as well as what it is going to take to implement it all. In addition, guests discuss some of the expected results of the new Downtown safety plan.

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Dec. 15, 2023

As of December 1st, there have been over 360 homicides in Shelby County with over 580 unsolved homicide cases spanning over the years. Conducting an investigation on crime in the Mid-South, reporter for The Daily Memphian Ben Wheeler says that there are many aspects worth taking a hard look at when considering the new data that has resulted from his investigation, including crime hot spots, why cases go unsolved, laws playing a role in crime rate uptick, and more. This week on Channel 10's Behind the Headlines Eric Barnes hosts a journalist roundtable with The Memphis Flyer's Toby Sells and The Daily Memphian's Abigail Warren and Ben Wheeler. In addition to crime, guests talk about education — school vouchers, reading requirements, funding and more. Guests also discuss a possible passenger rail linking Memphis to other cities like Nashville, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Chicago, and New Orleans.

Government

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Oct. 6, 2023

Shelby County's 2023 municipal Election Day was Thursday, October 5. Despite early voting numbers, voter turnout was among some of the lowest in the city's history, says The Daily Memphian reporter Bill Dries. Dries and The Memphis Flyer's Toby Sells discuss election results with host Eric Barnes, including Paul Young's journey to winning the ticket for mayor of Memphis. Wrapping up, guests talk the process of runoff elections and what is on the ballot for November's runoff.

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Oct. 13, 2023

The summer of 2023 brought heavy rains and severe storms across the Mid-South area. As a result, the City of Germantown ended up losing power and had to rely on back-up generators to provide electricity to everyday city essentials. In late July, it was discovered that there was an overflow in a diesel tank that powered the generators. Germantown Mayor Mike Palazzolo says "That [diesel] leaked into the ground and then it made its way to a very small, quarter size, hole in a pipe that goes into our [water] basin," Palazzolo adds. It took the City of Germantown six days before their tap water was safe again. Palazzo discusses the Germantown water crisis that happened in July, when he joins this week's WKNO-TV Behind the Headlines with host Eric Barnes and The Daily Memphian reporter Abigail Warren. In addition, Palazzo talks about education, public safety, Blue Oval, and more.

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Oct. 20, 2023

Out of seventeen people on the ballot for Memphis City Mayor, the President and CEO of the Downtown Memphis Commission Paul Young won. "Mayoral elect Young received [roughly] 25% of the vote, which means 75% of the people voted for another mayor," says Memphis City Councilman JB Smiley, Jr. An amendment, 50% + 1, has been proposed to city council. If passed, the amendment would require a mayoral candidate to receive at least 50% of the vote, or the election would go into a run-off. Smiley, Jr. and Memphis City Councilman Chase Carlisle discuss the 50% +1 amendment, as well as the results of the recent municipal election when they join this week's WKNO-TV Behind the Headlines with host Eric Barnes and The Daily Memphian reporter Bill Dries. In addition, guests talk about MLGW, MATA, and the future of Liberty Park & Mid-South Coliseum.

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Nov. 17, 2023

At the end of December 2023, Memphis Mayor Jim Strickland will leave office as Mayor-elect Paul Young takes his place. With just a handful of weeks left in office, Jim Strickland is "optimistic but not positive" he can help close major deals involving local arenas, parks, and stadiums. Memphis Mayor Jim Strickland joins this week's Channel 10 Behind the Headlines with host Eric Barnes and the Daily Memphian reporter Bill Dries for part one of two episodes that are centered around Strickland's 8 years of being mayor, as well as his plans for the remainder of his time in office. In this part one, Strickland specifically discusses crime, sport complexes, some challenges of being mayor, bail reform and more.

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Nov. 24, 2023

After two terms, Memphis Mayor Jim Strickland will leave office at the end of the year. Joining this week's Channel 10 Behind the Headlines with host Eric Barnes and the Daily Memphian reporter Bill Dries, Strickland discusses what his priorities would be if he had been, theoretically, elected mayor for a third term. Strickland explains that there are certain things the city could do better, however, the "real challenge is state and federal laws, and court systems which has allowed for a revolving door with inadequate punishment." In this second and final part, Strickland reflects on the last eight years in office. In addition, Strickland talks about infrastructure, MATA, public spaces, local youth programs, and more.

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Dec. 8, 2023

Memphis City Council has approved an overall 12% rate increase for MGLW, 4% for the next three years. MLGW President and CEO Doug McGowen says outages have become twice as frequent and three times as long since 2020, and that electric has been underfunded for decades. McGowen joins this week's Channel 10 Behind the Headlines with host Eric Barnes and the Daily Memphian reporter Keely Brewer to discuss how the rate increase will help fund infrastructure upgrades to combat outage issues, as well as MGLW and TVA's plans for reliable power to meet the increasing demand for electric-operated products, such as electric vehicles. Wrapping up, McGowen talks about the scrapped plan to relocate MGLW's headquarters from Downtown and the possibility of purchasing a new space in Cordova to house the System Operations Center.

Behind the Headlines

30 minutes

Dec. 22, 2023

Projected to start construction in 2026, Tennessee Department of Transportation (TDOT) has announced a replacement of the I-55 old bridge. Greater Memphis Chamber's Chief Economic Development Officer Gwyn Fisher says this would be a replacement, not the construction of a third, new bridge. The price tag to replace the bridge is set to cost roughly $800 million, Fisher adds. $200 million from Tennessee and Arkansas each and the remaining paid for with federal funding (pending approval). This week on Channel 10's Behind the Headlines Greater Memphis Chamber's Chief Economic Development Officer Gwyn Fisher joins host Eric Barnes and the Daily Memphian reporter Bill Dries. As well as talking about TDOT's announcement, Fisher discusses other plans to update infrastructure and roadways throughout the City of Memphis. In addition, Fisher talks about Ford's new plant: Blue Oval, MLGW, TVA and more.
